BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c per bottle.

"WHY do I take Cardui"? writes Mrs. Jelemma Mullins of Odessa, W. Va. "Because, after suffering for several years with female trouble, and trying different doctors and medicines without obtaining relief, I at last found, in Wine of Cardui, a golden medicine for all my ills, and can recommend it above all others for female complaints."

Cardui furnishes safe relief for backache, headache, periodical pains, irregular, painful or unhealthy catamenial flow, and all ailments from which sick women suffer. A perfect tonic for delicate women. A pure vegetable medicine for girls and women who are subject to the complaints peculiar to their sex. Has benefited over a million who used to suffer as you do.

At every drug store, in $1.00 bottles.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP

has been used by Millions of Mothers for their children while Teething for over Fifty Years. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS A BOTTLE.

SKIN PARASITES

Live and multiply in the skin of the sufferer from tetter, itch, ring worm, and similar skin diseases. It is horrible for one to be fed upon in this manner. Fortunately the sufferer is no longer helpless. One box of Tetterine will destroy the germs and restore the skin to a perfectly healthy condition. Physicians prescribe and druggists endorse it. 50 cts. at druggists, or by mail from J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE LAW-MAKERS.

To the New Orleans Christian Advocate: Forasmuch as unsought counsel is an inexpensive commodity, and inasmuch as an alternate delegate of the second magnitude cannot be considered a probable factor in determining "what Zion ought to do," the writer is emboldened to suggest for the consideration of our law-makers at Birmingham:

First—Strengthen our Episcopacy with the necessary number of the strongest men to be found anywhere in our connection. I cannot believe that the Holy Ghost operated on geographic lines in the selection of Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto He called them.

Second—Create the office of General Superintendent for Foreign Fields, and elect thereto one Superintendent to serve China, Japan and Korea jointly for four years, as other officers elected by the General Conference, with power to preside in the Annual Conferences and to station preachers in the absence of the Bishop.

Third—Make the appointment which places any preacher in charge of a circuit, station or mission carry with it authority to administer the ordinances, and to perform all other functions devolving upon a pastor of our Church.

Fourth—Keep the hands of the General Conference off the ark of our itinerant system. Through this system we have fallen heir to the most efficient method of evangelization revealed in the annals of Christendom. Let us not forfeit our birth-right for a mess of modern ecclesiastical pottage, nor be beguiled into a species of class legislation whereby we would place an unnecessary strain upon loyalty of the noblest brotherhood known among men—the Methodist itinerancy. Retain the time limit for all—or for none!

Five—Appoint a Commission, one member of which should have a wide range of pastoral experience, to revise our ritual, subject to amendment and adoption by the succeeding session of the General Conference.

Sixth—Merge the quarterly Review into the Nashville Christian Advocate and give the Church one general organ equal to any religious periodical on earth.

Seventh—Secure, if possible, more effective methods for the universal distribution of our own literature. Enormous sales of current literature of all kinds do not accurately indicate to the Church what we are doing in the matter of "spreading Scriptural holiness over all lands" in printed form.

Eighth—Give good heed to J. W. (Gulliver) Hill's tract proposal.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR APRIL.

There will be a sketch of that friend of all young hearts, Robert Louis Stevenson, in the April St. Nicholas, by Ariadne Gilbert, under title of "The Lighthouse-Builder's Son." While the boyhood of Robert Louis will be dwelt upon with much interesting detail, the story of his later life and his work will also be covered; and there will be extracts from Stevenson's letters and a number of interesting illustrations, one a reproduction of the bronze memorial of Stevenson by Augustus Saint-Gaudens, now in St. Gile's Cathedral, Edinburgh.

THE "Yellow Leaf Blight" and "Red Leaf Blight," so disastrous to cotton, are both attributed, by the highest authorities, to impoverished soil—lack of POTASH and nitrogen. In fact, these authorities advise liberal fertilizing with mixtures containing Kainit as the prime preventive.

Mr. A. B. Gerardeau, Savannah, Ga.

Dear Sir: My son, a man of thirty years, was attacked with La Grippe, and believing it to be of malarial origin took your Johnson's Tonic as directed for Chills and Fever. The result was he escaped the fever which follows the severest aching, and was able to be at work the second day. I was taken with the disease. Every bone in me began to ache, and my suffering was great. I was compelled to go home and to bed. I fully expected to be there a week. My son told me of his experience, and urged me to take Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic. I did so, took it with regularity all through the night and was agreeably surprised to see that no Fever came. I continued until I had taken eight doses. I felt weak and exhausted from no fever, and aching disappeared. Next morning I had a good appetite for my breakfast, and felt quite well, and went to my business as well as I ever was. Since then I have tried it with like results on two other cases. Yours truly, W. W. CALDWELL, President and Manager.

Expert Medical Advice Free to The Sick.

J. NEWTON HATHAWAY, M. D.
Graduate Dartmouth Med. College; Ex-Pres. N. Meh. Med. Society. Ex. Member State Med. Bo., Board of Health, etc.

No matter where you go you could find no physician or specialist more competent to advise or to treat you, if you have a chronic disease, than Dr. Hathaway of Atlanta, and, too, he is offering to counsel and advise every sufferer, free of charge. If you have any disease of a chronic nature, such as Kidney or Bladder Disease, Stricture, Rheumatism, Varicocele, Skin Disease, Nervous Debility, Catarrh of the different organs, Stomach, Bowel and Liver Complaints, diseases peculiar to women, etc., you should at once write and take advantage of this offer. In addition, you will be sent a valuable booklet on your disease. Dr. Hathaway is recognized as the most successful specialist in the South today, and the secret of his success lies in the fact that he has always dealt with his patients in an honest, straightforward manner, promising them nothing that he could not fulfill and by curing their disease. His charges are not extraordinarily high, but are reasonable, certainly no more than you would be willing to pay for successful treatment of your case. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address DR. HATHAWAY & CO., 57 Inman Bldg.

Mrs. MARY J. SPEED, daughter of Richard and Annie Sanders, was born in Monroe County, Miss., April 15, 1834. She was married to A. L. Wafford July 10, 1856, and there were born to them three sons and four daughters. One son died in infancy and six children still live to mourn the death of their mother. The eldest son and daughter reside in Mississippi, and the other four in Texas. Her first husband died in 1875, and she was married to Rev. J. H. Speed on Feb. 12, 1879. During the four years of her widowhood she toiled hard to support her children, but no word of complaint was ever heard to come from her lips. She often called her little ones around her knees and read the Holy Scriptures to them and taught them how to serve God. She was converted in early life and joined the M. E. Church, South, with her first husband. She loved God and loved his Church. The ministers of the Gospel were always welcome in her home. Her useful life ended, and she went to her reward March 2, 1906.

IRVIN F. HARRIS.

Miss FRANCES ELIZABETH HENDERSON, eldest daughter of the late J. D. and Martha Henderson (of precious memory), and sister of Rev. W. F. Henderson, of the Louisiana Conference, was born July 22, 1843, at the old Henderson residence, near Friendship Church, Caddo Parish, La., and died of pneumonia at Keithville, La., Jan. 16, 1906. The subject of this notice was received into the Church when a child, and neither her own memory nor that of relatives could recall a time when she did not love God. The kingdom of God came into her heart without "observation"—"the bright and the morning star" shed his light upon the very dawn of reason, and the radiance of Christian virtues in the child and in the woman was uniform and unbroken, never obscured by indiscretion. Miss Henderson was highly intelligent, without assumption. She maintained the highest ideals of social propriety without austerity; she was, when occasion required, grave enough to restrain the frivolous and the giddy, but her gravity was always tempered with dignity. She was cheerful, but the flow of humor was not gushing or spasmodic, but beautifully serene. Unselfishness was the predominant feature of her character. She was a ministering angel to the afflicted and a comforter in the house of mourning. The orphans that she fostered and the pupils she endeared to her in school and in Sabbath school will ever cherish her memory; nor will the recollection of this writer, who so often in his rounds on circuit and district enjoyed the hospitality of that "Bethany" over which the subject of this notice so long presided as the active hostess, ever fail to recall with gratitude and joy the restful and peace-giving association in the home which had been a resting-place for itinerants for sixty-five years.

CORRECTIONS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I have before me the complaints of Brother Daniel M. Geddie regarding the statistics of Buena Vista Circuit, Aberdeen District, and of Brother B. C. Gray, a member of Sylvestria Church on Holly Springs Circuit.

Now as respects the complaint of Brother Geddie, all I have to say is the mistake is not mine. I find from the report which is submitted at Conference, the original copy of which I have on file, that he reported an assessment of $35.00; but reported in fact he was home. I think. I do nothing paid, at least that column is not mean to reflect upon Brother Wilblank. son by this explanation. I feel sure

As respects the complaint of Brother that his leaving out the financial reGray I plead not guilty also. Brother port was unintentional.

Wilson, the pastor of Holly Springs I shall be glad to answer any dis-Circuit last year, did not hand satisfied brother, and to make correcin his report until the very tions where I am due to make them. last minute almost, and when I went I know that my report is not perfect. to record it the envelope did not contain any financial table at all. has for sixty years been the standard extract of witch hazel and to-day is more popular than ever both with the public and the Medical profession. This has entailed upon POND'S EXTRACT the inevitable penalty of fame:—

Imitation and Substitution

Neither of these however, would be perilous to public health if unscrupulous manufacturers—swayed more by Profit than Principle—did not jeopardize the health and lives of the people by adulterating their common and unidentified witch hazels and offering them through wholesale and retail druggists and department stores as "the same thing" and "just as good" as POND'S EXTRACT.

Not content with marketing an inferior article these manufacturers reached the point at last—in their Greed of Gain—of offering witch hazel fortified with Wood Alcohol (poison) or Formaldehyde (poison) or both, to the imminent peril of all who were deceived into buying and using it.

So rife have these pernicious conditions become that the State Legislatures of New York and Illinois have enacted laws which make it an offence punishable by heavy fine, or imprisonment, or both, to sell any medicinal extract containing Wood Alcohol (poison) or Formaldehyde (poison) unless the bottle containing same be labeled POISON, and other States throughout the Union are taking steps one after another, to the same protective end.

In order, therefore, that the public may be secured against the danger of poisoning by the use of such witch hazels, we are impelled to publish the following

Caution

Witch Hazel is not "the same thing" as POND'S EXTRACT. On analysis of 70 samples of witch hazel, bought of leading wholesale and retail druggists and department stores, 52 contained Wood Alcohol (poison) or Formaldehyde (poison), or both, and not one of the other 18 was up to the required standard of strength. The peril of these poisons may be avoided by the exclusive use of

POND'S EXTRACT

It costs more, but it is worth the difference.

LESSON FOR APRIL 15.

Jesus' Power Over Disease and Death.

Luke xvii. 1-17.

Golden Text: "Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life."—John xi, 25.

In reading the Scripture that leads to the lesson before us, Luke relates the fact that as a preparation for an important event about to transpire our Lord retired to a secret place on the mountain-side and continued all night in prayer to God. When the next day came he began to select the twelve who were to be his apostles. After that he came down and stood in the plain, and then comes a shorter report of the Sermon on the Mount than Matthew gives, and the circumstances make it appear that it was a kind of ordination sermon to the twelve; but the beginning of the next chapter tells us all that his sayings were in the audience of the people, and it was then as it is now—all Scripture and Scriptural teaching was given to the individual, as well as to the multitude.

Jesus then left the plain at the foot of the mountain and came to Capernaum. An officer of the Roman army heard of Jesus and of his power over disease and death. This officer had in his employ a servant who, probably by his faithfulness, had won the heart of his master—a very rare thing, this, in our time, the principal reason being that neither employer or servant is actuated by the love of Christ, but rather by the love of gain. The love of this soldier for his servant led him to receive a blessing from the Lord. This captain was tender-hearted by nature, as is evidenced by his building a synagogue for a people who were held in subjection by the monarch whom he served.

Look at the love of Christ for his own race and his native country! Remember how he went out on the hillside overlooking Jerusalem and wept over that city! But love of people and love of country was as nothing compared to his love for suffering humanity, and seldom was he unemployed in doing good from the time of his entering on his ministry until the time of his death. The cross, with him nailed to it, did not prevent his doing good to the repentant thief, and it was from the cross that came the words that gave his poor grief-stricken mother to John, and John to supply his place in his mother's heart and home.

Let us look at his power over a human life. When we accept Christ as our Savior, we begin to know him, and day by day and year by year we live in sweet contemplation of his holiness until we "count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord."

His power over disease? Go ask the man who came to him, saying: "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." How plain and simple, and how kind was the answer: "I will. Be thou clean."

His power over disease? Go ask that one of the ten that were cleansed of leprosy; he will tell you for he turned back to give glory to God.

His power over death? Come to that bereaved home where death has claimed a dear little daughter, and come in with the child's parents and James and Peter and John; but when our Lord says the maid "is not dead but sleepeth" do not laugh him to scorn, but thank God for his power over disease and death. Come with him now to the village of Nain. See! A funeral procession is making its way toward the cemetery. Borne on the bier is the body of a young man, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow. Full of pity and compassion, our Lord first sees the tears of the broken-hearted mother, who, with wonder, hears the words, "Weep not." "Oh, who is this," she says, "that tells me not to weep when I have lost my all?" But, her grief was soon changed to joy as Jesus shows to them, and to us, his power over death.

Come, let us go down to Bethany—there is a house there which is the house of sorrow, indeed. Mary and Martha live there, and Lazarus has been dead and buried four days; but this is not the only cause of their sorrow—the Lord does not come, and they sent for him, even before Lazarus died. They sent again, telling of the death of "him whom thou lovest," and still he does not come. Ah! here comes one to whisper to Mary. It is Martha, and she had seen Jesus, and tells Mary: "The Master is come and calleth for thee." Mary responded with such directness of purpose that her friends thought she had gone to Lazarus' grave to weep, but Martha had received the consoling truth that comforts all bereaved hearts, until this day: "I am the resurrection and the life." Then, after that, Jesus calls Lazarus back from the shores of eternity to remain a while longer, because Jesus, who, through pity and love, has shown them and us his power over death.

It is not his power over disease and death that awakens our interest now. "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth" were his last words before his ascension, as given us by Matthew, and love and interest and adoration fills our hearts as we see his power over diseased souls and over them who are dead in sin.

His power over disease? Yes, sin is a most dread disease, and it is epidemic throughout the earth. It is deadly contagious, too—but, being properly protected, we can go among it without danger. First, we must have a purpose that moves us to go among afflicted souls. There are many on earth who are dead—yes, there are many so dead to every impulse of good and love and tenderness that it seems as if they had surrounded themselves by a wall. There are some that you meet every day that you know are certain to be lost, and you love them, for you have known them long, maybe from childhood — yet, when you try to approach them in the name and in the service of Christ there seems to be some invisible foe that beats you back. "Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting," and the power over this kind of death is in Jesus' name. Can we say that we have seen the power over such coming from our risen Lord in answer to restraining prayer? O yes, (praise be to our God) there are some in heaven to-day, and some who have been there for years, with whom we used to love to talk, as we pointed them to our great Physician. Will it not be sweet to meet them there, all radiant and joyful, earth's sin disease banished by being washed in the blood of the Lamb, and the paleness of earth's death brightened into the glorious life, the gift of God?

As with such holy meditations we are lifted up above the world, we are ready to say with Paul: "I am in a stralt betwixt two, having a desire to depart and to be with Christ," where we will behold the glory of his power over sin's disease and the second death.

CATARRH IS VERY DANGEROUS.

Summer is the best time to cure it, when the winter blasts are over, and the mild winds blow.

HOW CAN YOU REFUSE MY TRIAL OFFER?

Ninety per cent of humanity are unconsciously breeding and nursing germs of diseases in their systems, like neglected gardens growing weeds instead of flowers. Your system is like a garden. It is the natural hot bed for breeding millions of germs of disease. Did you ever see a garden where all the weeds were destroyed one year but that they also made their appearance again next year. If you could destroy the seed of every weed in that garden this year, the air, if nothing else, will carry more seeds in it next year.

Air is the agency that carries the germs of disease into the head and air passages and it must be the agency to remove them. Let the weeds grow in your garden and they will choke and ruin all that is good. Let the germs of disease continue to multiply in the air passages of your head, throat and lungs unmolested and you are doing far worse. You are destroying the system of a noble human being worth more to you than all the gardens in the world. YOU MUST KEEP ON WEEDING.

I am making the only common sense offer ever made to the readers of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Carefully read it, ponder over it, then act quickly, confidently and be assured that you will be fairly and honestly dealt with.

I CAN CURE YOUR CATARRH

I WILL PROVE IT FREE!

Because I KNOW What My New and Wonderful Discovery Has Already Done for Hundreds—will Do for You—I will cheerfully and willingly send a full Treatment to you, Prepaid, Absolutely FREE, for TEN DAYS' TRIAL.

I offer what is really a Blessing to sufferers from Catarrh—Head, Bronchial and Throat troubles.

A new and Wonderful medical discovery that cures by striking right at the root and cause of the disease—by KILLING THE GERMS.

A CURE for YOU, no matter what bad shape you are in.

Now I do not ask you to take my word nor that of cured hundreds. Instead, I want you to try this treatment, entirely at my personal risk, at my expense. Just say the word, and I will send the treatment to you, without pay or promise on your part. If, at the end of ten days treatment, you do not feel like a new being, if you do honestly bless the day that you answered this advertisement, simply return the treatment to me. You are nothing out. Isn't that a fair and honorable offer? Your word decides it, I fully trust and believe you.

My afflicted friend, do not suffer longer from this cruel disease, Catarrh. Don't drag out a miserable existance, a curse to yourself, a nuisance to those around you. Don't let down the bars to more dangerous disease. (CONSUMPTION MOST FREQUENTLY STARTS IN CATARRH.)

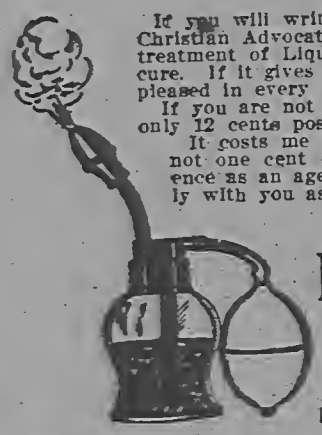
My new treatment is applied direct. No drugs to swallow; its application is a pleasure. As if by magic, it stops the hawking, spitting, sniffing and snuffing relieves the maddening head noises; does away with the nauseating dropping of mucus into the throat; the queer, stuffy and oppressed feeling of the head; the painful burning and smarting of the air passages. Soothes and heals the irritated membranes, and leaves the head CLEAR AS A BELL.

It is a folly to take medicine into the stomach to kill the germs of Catarrh in the head.

Air was the agency that carried the germs of disease there, and it must be the agency to remove them.

My treatment positively cures Catarrh, Asthma, Head Colds, Pains and Roaring in the Head, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Headache, Partial Deafness, LaGrippe, and all diseases of the air passages by a patented method of dry Inhalation.

The treatment is easily carried with you; may be used anywhere, at any time.



Read what grateful persons write:

"Your treatment has done me more good in three days than all others I have used in a lifetime."—J. D. S. ATKINS, Durham N. C.

"After using your treatment one week I have got my hearing back, which I thought was lost forever."—REV. ALBERT EGLI, Elgin, Ill.

"I have been using your Medicator three weeks and would not take $1,000 for it if I could not get another. I can sing again, something I have not done for two years."—MINNIE COLLINS, Hayner, Ala.

MY SPECIAL TRIAL OFFER.

If you will write me a mere Postal Card mentioning the New Orleans Christian Advocate, I will mail you my new Spray Medicator with full treatment of Liquid Spray with complete directions for a quick home cure. If it gives perfect satisfaction after ten days' trial, and you are pleased in every way, and wish to continue the treatment, send me $2.00. If you are not satisfied mail me back the Medicator which will cost only 12 cents postage and you still have your money.

It costs me $2.00 to place this treatment in your hands, and I have not one cent of profit except I receive future orders thru your influence as an agent, for which I am willing to pay you. I will deal fairly with you as I do not want your money unless benefited. WRITE THIS VERY DAY.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13, 1900

We are constantly receiving letters from all over the country asking for information on the subject of Catarrh and the air passages of the head. We have been asked time and again to recommend some remedy which can be used with good results, for these diseases.

To benefit the public at large, and to answer their questions, we have recently commissioned our Board of Experts to investigate the subject of Catarrh and its cure, to find some remedy, which would successfully meet the conditions and be easy and simple of application. The report of the Board of Experts has been handed in, and as a result, we are pleased to recommend a treatment which is manufactured by the E. J. Worst M'f'g. Co., Ida of Medicated air treatment very successfully, and has designed the neat and efficient little instrument which is becoming so well known as the E. J. Worst Catarrh Medicator. It conveys the true principle of forcing the medicated air as an agent into every air cavity of the head.

As a result of this investigation we are pleased to extend to E. J. Worst's Catarrh Treatment, the unqualified endorsement of the United States Health Reports.

MANNERS.

The question of manners has more to do with success than many people think, and it also has much to do with happiness. It writes itself, too, on the countenance, for one whose manner is frosty will have a forbidding set of the mouth, an icy expression, will repel instead of attracting. Moods affect the manner, and those who let their moods control them instead of assuming control of their moods are decidedly unfortunate people to have relations with, either in business or in society.

"My Aunt Lydia would take any trouble, go to any expense, to serve one of us," remarked a girl of an elderly relative, "but she is so disagreeably satirical and snubs one so unkindly that we avoid going to her house, and we fairly throng Aunt Carrie's because she is so pleasant. But yet Aunt Carrie does not put herself out for any one, and Aunt Lydia is very unselfish."

There are good men and women who trample upon conventionalities, despising them as trivialities and clinging to rude or uncouth forms no longer in vogue simply from a sentiment of independence. Do these dear, mistaken beings ever remember that we should not suffer our good to be evil spoken of, and would it not be nobler for them, even in small matters to cultivate attractiveness of manner?

Nothing more effectually distinguishes the gentlewoman than a winning manner towards children and servants. In a large up-town shop in New York I was waited upon lately by a sweet-faced young girl whose weary pose and tired look went to my heart. She had occasion to summon a little "cash" to her side, and she said pleasantly, "Susie, go to such a one, dear, and bring me some more of these garments." The child beamed, for not every saleswoman called her "dear!" And I knew the young woman, who was so patiently trying to find just what I wanted, to be the most beautiful thing on earth, a lady. Her manner stamped her thus.—Southern Churchman.

AN EASTER POEM.

BY MRS. L. M. EPSCOMB.

Christ is risen, hallelujah!
Sing ye nations of the earth;
Proclaim aloud his resurection,
'Tis more wondrous than his birth.

He has triumphed over Satan,
Burst the bars of death apart,
Revived a sad world's sinking hopes
And carried joy to every heart.

Sing ye little children, sing;
Praise him with a tuneful voice---
He who took you in his arms
Bids you evermore rejoice.

He is risen, the flowers proclaim it,
Buds now burst on every side;
The gentle breezes waft their perfume
O'er every hill and rising tide.

Take courage, ye whose loved ones sleep
In the dark and cruel grave;
Christ is risen, do not weep—
All who trust him he will save.

Ring out, ye joyous Easter bells,
For Christ the Lord is risen to-day.
O'er land and sea the chorus swells
And millions own his gentle sway.

Glances at the World.

By all means the Hepburn-Dolliver Bill, now before Congress, should become a law. This is the bill which proposes to keep liquor dealers in one State from shipping their goods into prohibition territory in another State. As the law now is, the Inter-State Commerce law practically nullifies the prohibition laws through the agency of express companies. The bill before Congress has a strong supporter in the person of John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, but opposed to it are other Congressmen, who, if not so strong as Mr. Williams, are backed by brewers and distillers, who will do all they can to defeat it. People everywhere should be interested, and do everything they can, in an honorable way, to secure the passage of the bill. Many of our readers are acquainted with the Congressmen from our territory. They can write a personal letter, and urge upon the gentlemen the importance of supporting the measure. The measure before Congress is a safe one, within the provisions of the Constitution, and is absolutely necessary to save our prohibition victories so frequently won in popular elections.

The decrease in the birth-rate is attracting attention, not only in this country, but in others. It is certain that unless the statistics are wholly unreliable there is a falling off of the natural increase of families. A German periodical, as quoted by the Globe-Democrat, of St. Louis, has been making an investigation, covering the time between 1876 and 1901, and finds striking evidences of a falling off, or what is called now, "race suicide." And the falling off is in those nations which are classed as at the head of the list in progress and civilization. In Prussia the birth rate is four and a half per cent. less now than in 1876, and in the German empire as a whole the decline is still greater. In England, France and other European countries, and in the United States, the tendency is downward. The Globe-Democrat says: "The decline seems to be proportionate to the degree of prosperity in the countries mentioned. In the United States it strikes practically all elements of the population in the second generation. The Irish, Germans, Italians and others are affected by it just like the progeny of the men who came over in the Mayflower. Statistics which can be relied on have not been obtained from Russia, but it is safe to say when modern industrial conditions and a fair degree of physical comforts are introduced in that country the birth rate will start downward as in the other civilized countries."

The British House of Commons is composed of 670 members, 512 of whom are counted on to sustain the Government in any proposition it may set forth. These 512 were elected in opposition to the previous administration which enacted the hated education bill, and other measures of an important character. A London correspondent says one striking result of the recent election is the number of Nonconformists that have been returned to the new Parliament. In the last Parliament these numbered but fifty-nine, in the new Parliament they will number one hundred and seventy-six, Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, etc. This astonishing increase is due to the education bill which has served Britain well. That bill has awakened something of the old Puritan spirit among our people, and men have been elected and sent to Parliament who had previously gone to prison or had their goods sold over their heads because they would not pay what was called the "priest's tax." At length retribution, and a Niagra of it at that, has come on the Church, for with that number of Nonconformists, liberal churchmen and men heedless of all religion, the Government will have such a majority for dealing with church questions as Britain has not seen since the days of Cromwell. But we do not rejoice in the election of these men for their nonconformity alone; we rejoice because well-nigh all of them are not merely church-goers, but are openly and individually religious men. A large number of the labor members are earnest Christian workers. Some are local Methodist preachers, many are deacons and Sabbath-school teachers—a new class of men to be brought in any numbers into the House of Commons. A new class of men will give us a new atmosphere, and Sir Henry Bannerman has already adopted the rule laid down by Mr. Gladstone, that no member of the Government can hold any office in a private business enterprise. All insurance chairmen, all railway directors, all trust company presidents are barred out of the ministry. The cabinet itself might be called a Nonconformist cabinet, so many of its members are either the sons of well-known Nonconformists or such themselves. Every member of the cabinet is understood to be distinctly in favor of disestablishment of all the churches in Great Britain."

THE NEED OF DOCTRINAL TEACHING.

A recent discussion in the senior class of one of our Sunday schools on the text, "Thou Shalt be perfect, even as thy Father in Heaven is perfect," brought forth the humiliating revelation that we have Methodist Church members believing in a limited salvation from sin.

The past glory of the Methodist pulpit was the preaching of a free and a full salvation from all sin, controverting the teaching of some sister denominations that the best that could be hoped for (until death crowned the work of redemption) was a life of daily sinning, followed by repentance and pardon.

One member of the class referred to, young in a Christian experience, contended that the command to be perfect indicated the possibility of a full deliverance from the bondage of sin in this life, and expressed the wish that some arrangement could be made for a course in Methodist doctrine in our Sunday schools.

Is this not a time for our Methodism, from pulpit and press, to be a unit upon doctrines and to promulgate them with a zeal and energy worthy of a people professing to "spread Scriptural holiness over these lands?" I expect that there are other ministers besides myself who need enlightenment as to what twentieth century Methodism accepts as orthodox.

The doctrine of entire sanctification as taught in present hymnology and church standards, is at a fearful discount. The doctrine of depravity is viewed askance; the work and office of the Holy Spirit is challenged: Pentecost we are told, was primarily a linguistic miracle; the entire Bible, being the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, must be accepted with many grains of salt. Some think that overcome by weariness Christ nodded when he told the young man perfect in his observance of the Decalogue from his youth up, and the failure of omniscience to challenge the statement confirmed it, declared that the lacking of only one thing would deny attainment of divine life.

Average righteousness, partial consecration, holiness in spots, seems to be all we can hope for in our present unsettled convictions as to what is the Scriptural truth. It does appear to me that if our Bishops and the General Conference could give a unanimous decision as to what is orthodox in Methodism, and command the promulgation of it only, Methodism would again set the pace for other denominations to follow in zeal and service to our Lord Jesus Christ.

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY.

It is generally conceded that one must be called of God in order to be a Christian minister in reality, and, too, that such a call carries with it the idea of the new birth, or of being born again; but we feel that due attention is not being given to the true signs of it. It would not be at all amiss for each truly-called minister of Christ ever and anon to ask himself the question, "Are the unmistakable signs of a true minister of Christ in all I say and do?" They should be, and God help us as his ministers to say: "By His grace, as far as we are capable of knowing them and producing them, they shall be in all we say and do!"

Let us not be deceived as to what those signs are, lest we be lost—and others, too. An inward sign God himself gives us, to be by us fostered and perfected, is an earnest desire for all Christians to be finally saved and sinners to be saved from all sin. So all-consuming should this desire be, that no feeling of lost interest in either class is ever entertained, however much they may disappoint us in any respect, or even when they seem to have no interest for us whatever.

Another important sign is, that whenever he discovers, or could discover, defects in his own life by the teachings of others, he cheerfully does so, instead of excusing himself, or covering up his own lackings by the sins he may discover in those whose doctrines are all right. He wants to be as faultless as possible.

Another is, he is so full of his work and so lost in the great messages he has for the world, he becomes as Christ expressed it: "For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh" (Matt. xii. 34), and therefore cannot afford to limit himself to the pulpit and the church to speak of them. He must talk them in the parlors, sitting-rooms of railroads, on the trains, in private, in public and everywhere, when prudence dictates and circumstances will allow. It is the "now" only that he can claim, and, therefore, he must use it. He feels as Christ did when he said: "I must be about my Father's business." (Luke ii. 49.)

Many other signs could be given if space would allow, but now a few of those that belong to a true church of God. First, its members must be born again of the Holy Ghost. No one is any part of the spiritual Church of God but him who is born again. The signs of a true church are its willingness to be taught in the right way and the right things; its willingness to be led in righteousness; its willingness to obey rightful authority; its diligence in God's work, and its readiness daily to meet God and be judged. These signs and others! No wonder our Lord said: "Because straight is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matt. vii. 14.)

May God help us all to get into the "narrow way" to life and remain in it forever.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE IN NEW ORLEANS

MISS RUTH ROSS
HAMMOND

The Sunday School [illegible] conference has for [illegible] engage the foremost [illegible] our Church. Dr. and Mrs. Hamill [illegible] old institutes in our [illegible] fact that their services [illegible] need it has been impossible [illegible] this year. They came to New Orleans the last [illegible] week in March.

Dr. Hamill is thoroughly [illegible] teaching, and is fully abreast of those who [illegible] the old-time Methodist. While he is sound [illegible] doctrine, he stands for advancement and progressive methods.

Saturday evening, during the first session of the institute, he took up the lesson for the next Sabbath, teaching it as would a well-prepared teacher on Sunday morning. The blackboard was used to great advantage in his illustrations of the temperance lesson. The beginning glass of sparkling wine was pictured in its vividly resembling the richly-colored and grateful adder, the more reminding us of the other of its deadly effects on the human system.

The well-conducted Sunday school of to-day must be in co-operation with the Church, and the first step towards success is to have the pastor present with their encouraging words.

Dr. Hamill stressed the point of having Sunday school in the morning in preference to afternoon, using as an argument the fact that the children were neat and bright in the morning, while in the afternoon they were apt to be cross and soiled. He has learned that the clean dress and fresh duck trousers are also small items with the mother when the Sunday school hour arrives. The Church hymnal was given preference over Sunday school song books. The men and women of to-morrow should be taught good hymns to-day. The superintendent must first see that silence reigns a few moments before singing, and by all means see that the teacher, during recitation, is protected from interruptions by the secretary and treasurer. New scholars must have special notice. They should be brought to the front and introduced to the school. One of the last, but by no means least, duties is to see that all scholars remain for the preaching service, for this is the end to which the Sunday school works—the children for the Church.

Sunday afternoon was given to the study of the life of Christ. It was shown us that all prophecies as to his humanity, nation, tribe, house, city, mission and time were fulfilled. Christ was not only the Son of God, but the true heir to the throne of David. He had the "blue blood" of an earthly king flowing through his veins. His 33 1-3 years were significant of the fact that the time is the average length of human life. In waiting until he was 30 years of age before entering on his duties he was really keeping the Jewish law. It is true that Christ never broke the laws of his country.

In extending the Sunday school the pastor can be of more service than any other one, as he comes in contact with children in his pastoral rounds. The superintendent must keep his eyes on new families. The teacher must be persistent in visiting the pupils. As an incentive, some time

Mrs. Hamill [illegible] definition of [illegible] The influence of [illegible] strong that she [illegible] wills it or not [illegible] class. With [illegible] she impressed the [illegible] ration of [illegible] love of God as [illegible] paved with [illegible]

The prepared teacher will not try to teach every lesson given by the Sunday-school committee, for some are beyond childish minds. Neither will she spend time teaching the golden texts, words are memorized, but really mean nothing to the child. She will teach only one truth a Sunday, and apply that one to their little lives. The primary teacher should ever have the word "vary" uppermost in her mind when preparing her lesson. To secure the interest of the children is to be considered, and to do this, one must get their curiosity aroused. The little children

[illegible] Paul consulted [illegible] Cor. xii. [illegible] have seen that the gifts of the [illegible] varied and numerous. Wisdom, [illegible] healing, working of [illegible] discernment, speech, or [illegible] interpretation [illegible] these purposes, and [illegible] where promised, the Holy Ghost is [illegible] was sent on men. There are only two or [illegible] instances mentioned of the gift of [illegible] tongues.

The Spirit was sent to our Lord to lead him through his temptation (Matt. iv. 1); to Simeon, to reveal to him that fact that he should see Christ (Luke ii. 25-26); to the apostles, to teach them what to say and how to say it (Luke xii. 12); to Christians, to live in them (1 Cor. iii. 16.)

All this is general; each case cited is specific. On the Day of Pentecost Brother Wilson has not shown what the disciples received, save "the Spirit" which "gave them utterance." The same occurring at some other time and place does not change the fact in this case.

J. V. PARKER.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT.

The Committee on Church literature at the New Orleans District Conference last week, presented the following paragraph in regard to the New Orleans Christian Advocate. We are indebted to the secretary, Rev. W. W. Holmes, for a copy:

"The New Orleans Christian Advocate, that ancient bulwark of Methodism in the Southwest is ably edited by one of the wisest and safest men in our Church, who gives forth no uncertain sound in the great moral and religious issues of the day. The Methodist who fails to take his paper does himself and family, as well as his Church, an injustice, and has no intelligent conception of the work his Church is doing. We pastors ought to realize that it is our duty to see that our people take the New Orleans Advocate. The discipline says that this is a part of our pastoral work, as much as the conversion of souls and the building up of the saints in holy living. We ought to throw our time, tact and talent into getting subscriptions for the paper; work at it as we work for a revival and on the same ground."

We thank God and the brethren and take courage!

THE RESURRECTION.

BY MISS EDDIE BENTLEY.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

"The Lord is risen, indeed!" Ring out, glad chimes, and let the echoes answer, "The Lord is risen, indeed!" Oh, tomb of Joseph of Aramathea, thou canst not longer be the home of that illustrious One, for behold! the powers of heaven and earth conspire to effect his release..... And now—deep silence..... The mellow light of evening dawn is slowly reddening the East. Afar, over the foot-hills of Jerusalem, moves a solitary figure. 'Tis Mary Magdalene, and she approaches the tomb where Jesus had lain. Sad is her heart and listless her step, for she is unconscious of the joyous tidings awaiting her. Me thinks the morning zephyr or the voices of unseen angels whisper, "Mary, He is risen," but eye and ear and soul are held in thralldom to the thought: "My Lord and Master is crucified, dead and buried." But, see! She looks! Sees the stone taken away from the sepulcher! Turns, and, fleet of foot, retraces her way to impart the startling news: "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher; and we know not where they have laid him." We lift our eyes, and there appears to the view two swift runners, Simon Peter and John, the beloved disciple. They looked within the tomb, entered, saw that the Christ was not there, and returned in wonder and sorrow to their own home. Oh, loving woman and noble men! Dost not recall how He healed the sick, cleansed the leper and raised the dead? Comes there not the entrancing thought, "Perhaps our Lord has risen by power divine?" Nay, grief and despair seem to have sapped the fountain to their faith, but God honors their love, and is so gentle in dealing with their doubts, as He is with ours.

"God most graciously exalts women. Mary stood without at the sepulcher weeping; she stooped down and looked within; she seeth two angels in white; she converses with them; then, turning, she beholds Jesus, but knows him not. He saith unto her: "Mary." Oh, the wonder of it all! The ecstasy that must have thrilled her being at the sound of that voice! One word only—yet, like a golden magic key, it opened the flood-gates of memory, and, in joy and tender adoration, Mary prostrates herself before him and cries in glad recognition, "Rabboni!"

"Vain the stone, the watch, the seal—
Christ hath burst the gates of hell;
Death in vain forbids his rise;
Christ hath opened Paradise."

Our Risen Savior, we beseech thee, on this sweet Easter morn, speak the one word, "Forgiven," to the remorseful of earth. To the doubtful, whisper tenderly, "Saved." Spirit of the Christ, rise "with healings in thy wings," and soar to the ends of the world, breathing divine messages. Scatter sorrow; and replace with gladness; dry the falling tear and leave the radiant smile; tear down the strongholds of evil, and upbuild cities so beauteous and pure that the great King may abide therein.

"Jesus saith unto her (Mary) * * * I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God." And so, friends, with the psalmist we cry to the heaven of heavens, "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, even lift them up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of Glory shall enter in. Who is this King of Glory? The Lord of Hosts, he is the King of Glory."

The Resurrection! Fragrant blossoms outblowing at the wooings of spring sunshine; tender grass upspringing at April's beseeching tears; the chipped shells of the birdlings, rising sun, radiant moon and golden star—all of these bespeak the Resurrection. The earth, with her multitudinous voices, raises a pæn of thanksgiving on the glad Easter morn. Eternal souls of men, God grant that there may be a resurrection within thee of hope and faith and joy and peace, because the Christ-life hath been implanted! Tennyson's emotions cried out:

"That life shall live forevermore."

His heart

"Stood up and answered, 'I have felt.'"

In an age of spiritual doubt, Lord Tennyson sought earnestly for truth, and our God and his God satisfied his longings.

If the resurrection of Christ brings to us today a rich fruition, then, with the spirit-imbued poet, Robert Browning, we can sing:

"How good is man's life, the mere living! How fit to employ
All the heart and the soul and the senses forever in joy."

SLOWLY BUT SURELY.

Diligence and moderation are the best steps to climb to any excellence. Nay, it is rare if there be any other way. The heavens send not down their rains in floods, but by drops and dewy distillations. A man is neither good nor wise nor rich at once; yet, softly creeping up these hills, he shall every day better his prospects, till at last he gains the top. Every year something laid up, may in time make his stock great. —Selected.

Every man is a volume if you know how to read him. It takes brains to appreciate brains.—Selected.

"He used to complain because he never got what he wanted to eat." "Yes, but he's very rich now." "Yes, and now he complains because he never wants what he gets to eat."—Philadelphia Press.

Christians cannot be too careful of temper and tongue in the midst of gainsayers and faultfinders, not one of whom is charitable or discriminating in judgment. In their eyes one Christian is simply the duplicate of another, and the misconduct of one leads them to misjudge all. Hence the importance of walking in wisdom towards men on the outside.

The idea that doubt as to the truthfulness of some story of the Bible is fully made up by "embracing more firmly the spirituality of the Psalms and the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount," is the latest defense of the higher critics that we have seen. By the way, the author of that idea tells us that the "higher criticism" is but another name for "interpretation."

ATTENTION, EPWORTH LEAGUERS!

An enthusiastic League of sixty-two members awaits the coming Conference League Convention in McComb. Our visitors will be greeted under the roof of a very handsome brick Church, the cathedral of the district, (with apologies to our sister towns.) We hope for fine attendance, eloquent speakers, enthusiastic delegates and everything necessary for a live convention.

Above all, we pray that God will bless this all-important work among the young people.

Names of delegates and all who purpose attending should be sent at once to Rev. Nolan B. Harmon.

Yours for the League.

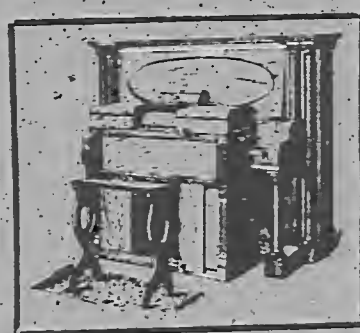
Juliet Howe Harmon,
Third V. P. Centenary Chapter.

FORMAL OPENING OF CENTENARY.

On Easter Sunday, April 15, Bishop Morrison will be with us, and preach the first sermon in our handsome brick Church, whose unique architectural beauty won universal admiration. We are expecting a red-letter day in McComb Methodism. A cordial invitation is extended to all Methodist ministers, and especially former pastors, to be present. We thank God for blessing us so abundantly as He has done in the erection of this Church to the honor of His name and for the good of Methodism.

Nolan B. Harmon.

A CHEERFUL HOME.



A bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day; one surly glance casts a gloom over the household, while a smile, like a gleam of sunshine, may light up the darkest and wearliest hours. Like unexpected flowers, which spring up along our path, full of freshness, fragrance, and beauty, do kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessing dwell. No matter how humble the abode, if it be thus garnished with grace and sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn lovingly toward it from all the tumult of the world, will be the dearest spot beneath the circuit of the sun.

And the influences of home perpetuate themselves. The gentle grace of the mother lives in the daughter long after her head is pillowed in the dust of death; and the fatherly kindness finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons, who come to wear his mantle and fill his place; while on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned, and disordered home, go forth persons who shall make their homes miserable, and perpetuate the sourness and sadness, the contentions and strifes and railings which have made their own lives so wretched and distorted.

Toward the cheerful home the children gather "as clouds and as doves to their windows," while from the home which is the abode of discontent and strife and trouble they fly forth as vultures to rend their prey.

The class of men who disturb and distress the world are not those born and nurtured amid the hallowed influences of Christian homes; but rather those whose early life has been a scene of trouble and vexation—who have started wrong in the pilgrimage, and whose course is one of disaster to themselves, and trouble to those around them.—Friend's Intelligencer.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you are forced to do something and to do your very best, for that will breed in you self-control, diligence, content, strength of will and a hundred virtues.—Kinsley.

NOTES FROM THE ARCADIA DISTRICT.

Dear Doctor: Since Conference I have been so busy I have hardly had time to write much, but, having concluded my first round, perhaps a few lines from us might be of interest to the brethren.

In the first place, no word of dissatisfaction has reached me, either from the preachers about their works, or the works about their preachers. I take this as a good sign. Everybody is at work with this determination—to make 1906 the great year on the district, great in every respect.

There are five church enterprises on hand, four for building new churches and one moving and rebuilding. Minden has begun work on her house, which will cost somewhere between $15,000 and $20,000. Homer is at work on a new stone house, to cost, exclusive of furnishing, $6,500.

The brethren at Spring Hill will build there a house commensurate with their needs.

Cotton Valley is confronted with a more difficult problem. Her house is about one mile from the town, and in order to do anything the house must be put in town. This they are trying to do.

Antioch, on the Vienna Circuit, is in a fair way to rebuild their church, which was destroyed by fire year before last; the preacher having taken a collection at the Second Quarterly Conference, securing nearly half enough to put up the house.

Brother Wynn, at Ruston, has raised several hundred dollars on the debt at that place. "Bob" is gradually bringing the end of that struggle into sight, in spite of the fact that a Bishop is reported to have said that it could not be done. Such an experience as the Ruston Church has gone through shows the need of that law in the Discipline concerning the building of churches, which is too frequently neglected. I would further amend that provision so as to forbid any preacher undertaking a great credit job during his fourth year.

The finances during the first quarter of this year are 45 per cent increased over those of the first quarter of last, the one item of ministerial support alone being considered.

Our institute will meet with Brother Anders' people at Bienville. The Committee has prepared a good programme, and we are looking for a gracious time.

The prospect for a revival over the district is very encouraging, and we all confidently expect great things from God this year.

BRISCO CARTER.

Arcadia, La.

SOME IMPRESSIONS GAINED AT RUSTON.

Mr. Editor: The Sunday School Institute at Ruston, La., March 22 and 23, conducted by Dr. and Mrs. Hamill, was a feast of good things. While the attendance was fair, we were sorry no more could attend the instruction of these great Sunday school teachers. To us it was inspiring to sit at the feet of such great teachers and workers in the Master's vineyard. The reader should bear this in mind—it was an institute, not a convention. We have attended some Sunday school conventions where some of the speakers had little to say, and knew less as to how to say it. Dr. and Mrs. Hamill had something to teach, and they taught.

None who went with eyes and ears open failed to learn to do well. From the beginning there was a very manifest presence of the Holy Spirit.

Surely the Sunday school work in the Arcadia and Monroe Districts will be given new impetus as a result of this gathering under such competent teachers.

It is lamentably true that we are lacking in men in portions of our rural districts who are competent to properly organize and use any moderate degree of system.

Too many of us are Methodists, without any method. A Sunday school superintendent should know both God, I mean as a personal Savior, and men. He should also be so filled with the Spirit that he will be made wise unto the salvation of others. There was a lack of that type of men in Ezekiel's time; else why did he write: "I sought for a man * * *, but I found none." God grant that the men so much needed to-day may be found. If more energy and wisdom and money would be expended for the formation of character, less expenditure would be required for reformation.

Our young people are the pride of our country, the hope of the Church. Fathers and mothers, know ye not that it is through your influence that States rule, courts decree justice, churches prosper—yea, that heaven is made to rejoice? Neglect your duty as Christian parents, and the result:—you help to populate the city of Hades.

It is much easier to train a child to believe in God than it is to turn men from sin. It is natural for a child to believe in its mother and Sunday school teacher. How important, then, that they should be living patterns of the Great Teacher!

The half has not been told. We started to tell you some of the things we learned. Other things were taught us, but we cannot speak of them now.

The kind hospitality given the Institute by the good people of Ruston was both royal and generous.

GEO. W. HIVELEY.

Vienna, La.

IS IT SO WITH YOU?

Brother Boswell: What a bad day last Sunday, the 18th, was! A cold rain began about 3 o'clock A. M. and continued all day. As was usual, I began to think days before earnestly about a subject, or subjects, for the approaching Sabbath, but nothing came in view. I felt so blank and empty-minded that I was sure that something would prevent my preaching. I had no idea what it would be until I heard the thunder and rain begin. I never choose my subjects for preaching. I leave that to the Holy Spirit, and He leads. When a text is clearly and forcibly impressed on my mind, as is almost invariably so, that is an assurance that I shall be alive and able to deliver the message given; that the weather will be favorable, and a congregation present, and, last, but not least, that the "lo I am with you" will attend the delivery. "Truly this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes."

Just before attending a camp meeting or a conference of any kind, if I am going to be called on to preach, I am aware of it, because I get my message before I leave home. There may be many others whose experience is similar to my own, but, if so, I never have heard of it. It may be that my experience on this subject might help some young minister, and I think I am getting old enough to "speak out in meeting." I was born in 1837, and licensed to preach in 1857.

God bless you!

H. ARMSTRONG.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF A COUNTRY CHURCH TO THE CITIES.

It may seem surprising to some that a weak country church, part of a weak circuit, is contributing perhaps not less than $300 annually to the support of Christ's cause in towns and cities of Mississippi and Tennessee. But it is, nevertheless, true. Wall Hill, Miss., is doing this. The people who have moved from Wall Hill in the last twenty years, and their children, by a moderate estimate, are contributing the amount indicated by the above figures. After looking over the field, I do not know of as much as $10 per annum that has come to this Church by immigration during the last twenty years. And I would but slightly exaggerate by saying that the Church at Wall Hill is but a fair specimen of the churches of the charge. The resources of this charge have been constantly drained for the last thirty years. Byhalia, Memphis, Coldwater and Grenada have profited by our losses here.

We still have a noble people here, but they are weak commercially and financially. It has been the custom for people here, when they accumulate much of this world's goods, to move to the towns and cities. This has been a good recruiting station for the armies of the Lord in other fields. Wealth may be accumulated here yet. Lands are still fertile. In view of these facts is it wise to withhold from the people of this charge a little help from the boards of missions?

E. M. HUGGINS.

LETTER FROM ARKANSAS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I read the Advocate as a letter from home. We came here Jan. 4, and went at once to work, making about $1,000 improvement on church and parsonage. We have a full house at each service—fine interest. The Sunday school is too large for the church, and we are now planning an annex that will cost a thousand dollars to meet this need. The prayer-service is the best in attendance I have ever had. The Woman's Home Mission Society is doing a good work; just now they have refurnished the parsonage. The Board of Stewards have made their assessment $300 more than they paid last year. We have received thirty-two members. We begin our revival next Sunday. Dr. R. R. Moore, a former pastor of Little Rock, now presiding elder of this district, will assist us. We are expecting a great time and a fruitful meeting.

Tell the Mississippi boys I am doing well but am homesick. I will see you at General Conference. May God bless you and the Advocate.

A YEAR OF GREAT PROSPERITY: THE STATISTICS OF 1905.

By Jno. J. Tigert, LL.D.

1. Ministry and Membership.—The ecclesiastical year of 1905, just closed, has proved one of great prosperity throughout the M. E. Church, South. The total membership of the Church, including traveling and local preachers, is 1,029,198. The total last year was 1,503,839. The gain for 1905 is 32,362. The total number of traveling preachers is 6,835, against 6,703 in 1904, making a gain of 132. The total number of local preachers is 4,718, against 4,770 in 1904, a loss of 52. The total membership of the Church, apart from traveling and local preachers, is 1,014,645, against 1,582,303 in 1904, making a gain in the membership alone of 32,282.

2. Baptism.—The number of infants baptized in 1905 is 57,363, against 33,538 in 1904, a loss of 6,175. The number of adults baptized in 1905 is 62,067, against 57,614 in 1904, a gain of 4,183. The total number of adult baptisms (62,067) is nearly 30,000 in excess of the net increase in the membership of the Church (32,276). Many persons are received into the Church, of course, who were baptized in infancy. It is probable that the number of persons annually received into the membership of our Church is about three times as great as the net increase for the same year. This excess is necessary in order to make good the losses by death, exclusion, those united with other denominations of Christians, and the names dropped by order of the Church Conference.

3. Districts, Charges, and Societies.—The membership of our Church is now organized in 285 presiding elders' districts, 5,435 pastoral charges, and 18,503 societies or congregations, being a decrease of 8 in the number of districts, an increase of 70 in the number of pastoral charges, and an increase of 406 in the number of congregations.

4. Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues.—Our Sunday-school statistics for 1905 are 14,858 schools, 169,055 teachers, and 1,040,748 scholars. Last year there were 14,783 schools, 167,427 teachers, and 1,007,830 scholars. The increase is 115 schools, 2,228 teachers, and 32,918 scholars.

There are 3,542 Epworth Leagues, against 3,472 in 1904, being an increase of 66. There are 120,485 Epworth League members, against 122,547 in 1904, being a loss of 2,062. There has been an unprecedented increase in the circulation of the Epworth Era, which is easily one of the most attractive young people's journals published in this country. Its able and energetic editors, Drs. DuBose and Parker, deserve their large circulation.

5. Houses of Worship and Parsonages.—Our pastoral charges have 4,377 parsonages, valued at $5,017,293, with an indebtedness on them of $302,313. Last year there were 4,284 parsonages, valued at $5,508,429, with an indebtedness on them of $300,688. There is an increase of 93 in the number of parsonages, with an advance of $430,164 in value and an increase of $1,625 in indebtedness.

There are 102 district parsonages, an increase of 93. These parsonages are valued at $539,178, an increase of $62,505. The indebtedness on them is $50,297, being an increase of $10,555.

7. Benevolent Contributions and Ministerial Support.—The collections for Conference Claimants aggregate $217,407.74, a gain of $10,060.49 over the collections on this account the preceding year ($206,408.25).

For foreign missions, the contributions were $350,521.76, a gain of $27,028.14, the amount for 1904 being $331,593.62; for domestic missions, $228,240, against $222,007.68 in 1904—increase, $6,232.02; total for missions, $578,761.76, gain, $34,100.16, the amount the previous year being $553,001.60.

The reports of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and the Woman's Home Mission Society for 1905 have not yet been promulgated.

For Church Extension $101,554.24 was contributed, which is $1,500.00 less than the sum for 1904—namely, $103,054.30. There was also a slight falling off in the amount given for the American Bible Society, $10,052.90, showing a decrease of $1,060.13 from the collections in 1904 ($18,612.62).

Presiding elders were paid $123,407.05, against $402,339.10 the previous year; an increase of $21,067.95; preachers in charge received $3,084,131.20, which is $196,352.50 more than for 1904—to wit, $2,014,778.71. Our Bishops were paid $52,980.00, a gain of $845.00 over the year preceding ($51,253.20). The grace of liberality abounds in our Church.

BROTHER BABB'S VIEW ENDORSED.

I wish to take my stand with Brother Babb in his opposition to very large presiding elders' districts. I think he clearly has the preponderance of logic on his side. The presiding eldership is an absolute necessity under our system of government. Under a general Episcopacy like ours it is impossible for our Bishops to know either the men or the charges. They must depend upon the presiding elders for information and counsel, hence the presiding elder needs to be in every charge enough to know the exact situation when he goes to Conference. He can not grasp the situation in the various charges by merely touching them for a day, three or four times during the year. He needs to be on the ground enough to see clearly the necessities of every field, and any scheme that tends to prevent this must necessarily interfere with the efficiency of our great system. Nothing could possibly do more harm than mistits in the pastorate, and such must inevitably be the result of hurried and inadequate supervision.

In any judgment the following points need especially to be considered:

First.—If the districts are made large and the burden of traveling them thereby increases, it will be more difficult to secure strong and efficient men to serve them. Nothing could be more harmful than weak and short-sighted men in this important office.

Second.—If the presiding elders should come less into touch with the strong charges that feel so able to get along with a minimum of service, it is probable that their representatives would throng to the seat of the Annual Conference to see the Bishop even more than they do now. It should never be forgotten that whatever tends to weaken the presiding eldership, tends toward congregationalism. When these intermediaries between our Bishops and people shall no longer exist, or when their office shall have become merely nominal, the next step logically will be to adopt a congregational form of government, or to substitute a diocesan for our general form of Episcopacy. Already there are not a few among us who openly express the opinion that the end of both our itinerancy and general superintendency will come in the future, not remote. We should be slow to discard methods that have been tested in the school of experience and which have made Methodism the mightiest power in the Protestant world.

R. A. MEEK.

Greenville, April 6, 1906.

REVEREND IRVIN MILLER.

Though not unexpected, the news of the death of Rev. Irvin Miller at his home at Walnut Grove on the morning of March 20 cast a gloom of sorrow over that little village, and brought a keen sense of the loss of a sincere friend to his many acquaintances all over the State.

Mr. Miller was born near Lebanon, Ky., in 1830; came to Hillsboro, Scott County, Miss., in 1855; married Malissa Brewer in 1859; entered the Confederate Army, Company K, Second Mississippi Cavalry, Armstrong's Brigade, in 1861; was licensed to preach in 1865 at White Plains Church. He held a commission as Assistant Chaplain in the Mississippi Division of the United Confederate Veterans; received the degree of D.D. at Haiti and Huddleston College, Harperville, in 1893. For more than thirty years Mr. Miller resided in Walnut Grove, and for some years did a successful mercantile business there. He was a prominent member of the Constitutional Convention of 1890, and later ably represented Leake and Neshoba Counties in the State Senate. As a Mason he was known all over the State, having served as Grand Master of the Grand Lodge. When stricken with his last illness, Brother Miller was pastor of the Harperville Circuit. He was a man of wide reputation as a public speaker and orator.

Brother Miller is dead, but the beautiful, godly influence of his life will long live. His delight was in doing for others, administering loving sympathy, scattering seeds of kindness. No preacher in East Mississippi presided at more funerals than he. People everywhere knew that great, sympathetic heart which joined with theirs in hours of gloom. At home he was a loving, generous father, a devoted husband and sincere Christian. Of his substance, limited in later years, he gave freely. No man was ever turned from his door. At his people's call, be it in sunshine or rain, heat or cold, he always responded. Loyalty marked his attitude toward his friends everywhere; no service was too great for this man of holy purpose. His community has lost a valued citizen, his Masonic fraternity a stanch advocate, his Church a faithful, zealous servant, and his home an ideal father.

Farewell, dear Brother Miller, "none knew thee but to praise thee; none named thee but to praise." We will trust to meet thee yet again.

THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1906.

St. James cautions men against being over-confident in carrying out their plans of going to the city to buy and sell—and get gain. "Ye ought to say, if the Lord will, we shall live, and do this or that." The boasting of the self-confident is evil.

We do not understand how it is possible to over emphasize the depravity of human nature. Those who think so, either do not believe that human nature is depraved, else have forgotten St. Paul's pen-picture of the natural man as portrayed in the last half of the first chapter of his epistle to the Romans.

Five per cent. of the earnings of race-track betting in the State of New York goes to the county fairs for the purpose of purchasing premiums for good horses and hogs. Perhaps those who framed and passed the law will not realize that they were encouraging farmers to raise better horses and hogs at the expense of the "breed of men."

After Samuel had gained a great victory over the enemies of Israel, he "took a stone and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying, 'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.'" Would it not be a good idea for all Christians now and then to set up a monument in token of the help and guidance of the Lord?

The interest of others besides criminals are to be considered in the administration of law, and the executive who turns criminals loose unpunished on the plea of mercy is lacking in appreciation of justice, and forgets both his oath of office and his duty to protect society against evil doers. The officer of the law is not to bear the sword in vain.

Some of the higher critics have declared against a real Joseph, affirming that he was "only an astral myth—a mere personification of the Sun." They will reach the limit after a while and join the noted infidel who declared Jesus was only "a virtuous revolutionist who lost his life between the jarring interests of contending factions." If Joseph was a myth, how can they believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God?

THE EASTER CELEBRATION.

Sunday is pre-eminently the Lord's day, so called because early on that day he rose from the dead. Christians celebrate the fact every time they come together on that day for worship. On Easter Sunday, the anniversary of our Lord's resurrection, "we celebrate our Savior's victory over death and hell, when, having on the cross made an atonement for the sin of the world, he rose from the grave, brought life and immortality to light, and opened to all his faithful servants the way to heaven." Such was the statement of our fathers in regard to the Easter feast, and the reasons for observing it. There is no reason to-day for changing our faith, and the language used to express it is quite as good as any we have at command.

We have never heard a sound objection urged against the observance of Easter Sunday. We know of some who oppose it strenuously because the name, Easter, itself is objectionable, being the name of a heathen goddess of the East. This goddess, according to Watson's Dictionary, "was Astarte, in honor of whom sacrifices were annually offered, about the passover time of the year, the Spring; and hence the Saxon name 'Aester' became attached by association of ideas to the Christian festival of the resurrection." Surely, the fact that a heathen goddess was yearly honored co-incident with the feast of the resurrection is no good reason why the feast should not be observed.

Evangelical Christians are sometimes asked to disregard Easter because it is the principal festival of the Roman Catholic Church, and true Christians, it is urged, should not imitate apostate Rome. But all true Christians believe as fully in the resurrection of Jesus as do the Roman Catholics, and should not be one whit behind them in bringing to the thought of the world the victory of their Lord over death and the grave.

A general objection is that the observance of days, especially when attended by much outward show, tends to ritualism. That false notions, followed by inconsistent and hurtful practices, in connection with Easter, have obtained, we readily admit, but the abuse of a good thing by those who attach virtue to works of piety, is no argument against the use of the thing in a proper way. Lent, the forty days of abstinence and humiliation, is intimately connected with Easter. With devout souls, it is a solemn period, and, we doubt not, is made a means of grace, and we can readily see how, at its close, there is rejoicing with the dawn of Easter. But, with the multitude, the keeping of Lent is a farce—observed only because it is enjoined by the Church—never as a means of grace. It is folly to look upon people as true Christians—examples of piety and faithfulness, who dance Lent in on "Fat Tuesday," and dance it out the day after Easter. In the very nature of the case, there cannot be much religious enjoyment or profit in "keeping Lent" while there is a longing for the pleasures of the world, and at the same time making ample preparation to shine in society in the coming season. This, we are told, is what is being done in fashionable circles during Lent. A society writer says in one of our daily papers:

"Within a few days Lent, with its abstinence from pleasure, will have closed; one's obligations have been met; one's duty calls paid, and, ahead, unfolds the vista of another season, a not far distant summer, with its charms and ease, its freedom from form and ceremony, and its limitless opportunity for pretty and fascinating clothes."

That writer may have little knowledge of the value of Lent to a devout Christian, but she knows exactly what use is made of the season by fashionable society. All of which is a solemn mockery.

But all sincere Christians, whether they observe Lent or not, should hail with gladness the dawn of Easter. If not the actual anniversary of the resurrection, it brings to mind the triumph of Jesus over the grave—a pledge to us of our own resurrection and immortality. Jesus said: "Because I live, ye shall live also." And St. Paul says: "If the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised," and all men are yet in their sins, and without hope, and "they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept." With such assurance, we may bury our dead in sure and certain hope of meeting them again in that land where there is no more death.

Let every Christian, this Easter-tide, go to the house of God with a glad heart, and there publicly thank the Lord for a risen, and ascended, and glorified Savior, who liveth and reigneth forever. Amen!

A WORD TO OUR PREACHERS.

Every member of the Advocate Publishing Committee has personally, under his own signature, endorsed the plan of the Editor for an Advocate Day. Several not only signed the paper, but added strong commendation of the Advocate, and a promise to follow up the endorsement by earnest effort to extend its circulation. We appeal to our preachers to make Advocate Day, April 22, a great day. Several of our brethren have already exerted themselves to the limit of their charges. Others have done well. Not a few can do much towards bringing up our list to the ten thousand mark. An average of ten subscribers from each preacher in charge would put us considerably beyond the ten thousand readers. Surely if one brother can send us ten times ten he lacks but a few, and says he is determined to get the remainder, and a score or more can send us from twenty to sixty, every other brother can secure as many as ten.

We are doing our part in the office, and beg our brethren to do their part in the field. We must have the ten thousand subscribers.

ADVOCATE DAY.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate is winning its way. The subscription list has largely increased during the past three months. We are anxious to put the paper in the homes of a great many more of our people. It can be done only through the agency of the preachers. We appeal directly to them.

Up to this date, in all of our appeals we have never asked for support on the ground of merit. Our claims have always been made on the ground that the paper belongs to the Church. We still think it entitled to support on that ground. But we come before the Conferences now claiming that the paper has some degree of merit to recommend it to our preachers and members generally.

We frankly acknowledged before the Conferences last fall that the Advocate, in its mechanical execution was not a fair representative of our Methodism. We were as conscious of its defects as any man living. But we promised the brethren that with the coming of a new Publisher and modern, up-to-date facilities that he proposed to furnish, we would give them a paper of which they need not be ashamed. Our promise has been fully redeemed. In mechanical execution and general appearance our Advocate is superior to many and surpassed only by a few. When the Publisher installs his new folder and paster with the improvements which have practically made of the Advocate a new paper it should commend itself to all old friends and secure many new ones.

In editorial work we are doing now, what we have always tried to do—our best. Many brethren tell us there has been improvement. If so, we are thankful, though not conscious of it. In this respect we let others do the talking. In along with the material improvement of the paper, the preachers can conscientiously say that the editorial work is worthy, we shall not complain.

It has for a year or more been understood that if we had ten thousand subscribers we could put the price of subscription down to one dollar. The question was before the Publishing Committee at the last meeting, but the way was not clear to make the reduction, nor even to promise it. The best that could be done was to offer club rates, which, so far, has worked well. See the rates, etc, on page 5.

We desire to list ten thousand subscribers. To this end we ask the preachers of the patronizing Conferences to set apart a day for work in behalf of the Advocate. Call it ADVOCATE DAY, if it meets approval. Bring the subject before the congregations and urge the importance of the Church paper. Put it in every Methodist home, if possible. Let us all unite together in making a strong effort to reach the ten thousand subscribers. It can be done. It should be done at once!

THE EDITOR'S APPEAL INDORSED.

We, the members of the Publishing Committee, indorse the plan and call of the Editor, and ask the preachers of our respective Conferences to appoint a day, to be called ADVOCATE DAY, on which to make a special appeal in behalf of our paper. We recommend that the work be begun on April 22, and continued until all our congregations are reached. A united effort, well directed, will accomplish great good.

Yours fraternally. Signed:

PERSONAL.

Bishop Morrison spent Sunday last with Rev. John F. Dees and his congregation at Jeanerette, La.

Rev. L. H. Harper, a local preacher of the Ponchatoula circuit, has been appointed to supply the Amite circuit work in place of Rev. G. W. Hives, transferred to the Vienna Circuit.

A note from Rev. J. T. Murrah, of Senatobia, says the new presiding elder of the Sardis District, Rev. H. T. Caines, "is vindicating the judgment of Bishop Hoss in elevating him to the presiding eldership."

Rev. J. R. Congress, of Greenville, was with Rev. E. H. Rockhold at Boyle, Miss., last week, where he did some faithful preaching which was received with interest by the people. The services were spiritual and edifying.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Smedley, of New Orleans, have issued the editor and family with an invitation to the marriage of their daughter, Jeannette May, to Mr. Clarence W. Morris, on Wednesday evening, April 22, 1903, at 8 o'clock, Felicity Street M. E. Church, South.

The presiding elder of the Greenville District is greatly disappointed, as are also all the brethren, because Bishop Hoss has found it impracticable to attend the District Conference appointed for this week. The Conference has been postponed to a further date not yet fixed.

Rev. J. P. Moss, of Carrollton, Miss., has brought his pastor oldgate sister and five new subscribers. When writing he was engaged in a meeting with Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Dickens, doing the preaching. "Carrollton," he says, "has some of the best people in the world." The Carrollton preacher ought to be happy.

In the absence of a report from the Vicksburg District, which the presiding elder, Rev. W. H. Huntley, has promised, we quote this paragraph from a private note: "The first round has just been finished, with some distinct advance in the interests of the church in several of the charges. Substantial sum has been applied to the setting of the purchase price of the District parsonage."

We have received an invitation from the Theological Faculty of Vanderbilt University to hear the Cole Lectures, to be delivered this year by Prof. Francis H. Smith, of the University of Virginia. The lectures are six in number, under the general title "The Influence of Christ in the Realm of Physical Science." The course will be delivered during the week beginning April 22. We thank the Faculty for kindly remembering the Advocate.

Rev. Jno. V. Randolph, Chaplain, who has been long with his regiment in the Philippines is on leave of absence in the States, and is delighting, as well as instructing the people in regard to our island possessions. Rev. J. W. Hommell, who has heard him, writes thus to the Advocate: "Those who failed to hear our Chaplain, the Rev. J. V. Randolph, on the Philippines, have missed a treat. I learned more in thirty minutes about these islands than I had learned from our papers in five years. His lecture ought to be delivered in every community in our South land."

Dr. Wilkinson, pastor of our Church at Monroe, La., favors us with a copy of the Directory of his church for 1902. It is complete, giving the names and addresses, both residence and business, of the large membership, together with the boards and societies and the officers of the Church, and other information interesting and important to every member of his congregation. It also contains many sermons, including those of the present pastor and presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Moss. We thank Brother Wilkinson for a copy of the pamphlet.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The New Orleans District Conference convened in Carrollton Ave. Church on Wednesday, April 4, at 7:45 p. m. Rev. P. O. Lowrey, of Melville, preached the opening sermon.

Thursday was observed as Epworth League Day. The morning service was opened with a general discussion by all the preachers and leaguers on the subject, "A Symposium—The Pastor and the League." Rev. J. E. Wray gave a thoughtful and helpful talk on the Epworth League and Missions. We [illegible] service [illegible] Missions [illegible] and [illegible] Workers [illegible] effective [illegible] which Miss [illegible] and Rev. [illegible] land. The District [illegible] room and business [illegible] o'clock, with Bishop H. C. Morrison in the chair. Rev. W. W. Holmes was elected Secretary, with Rev. J. W. Hommell as assistant. The body of [illegible] in the morning and [illegible] and [illegible] stenographer [illegible] appointed.

Books for [illegible] Rev. [illegible] Wray, [illegible] Campbell, [illegible] Sharp, Superintendent State and Church; Rev. [illegible] Lowrey, W. W. Carroll and Rev. [illegible] Worship; Rev. H. C. Davis, [illegible] and W. W. Holmes; Temperance, Revs. Robert S. Parrish and [illegible] Conference Records, H. W. Spear, Mr. Wilson and Rev. W. C. Thurber; Conference Reporter, Rev. [illegible] Whitley; Visiting [illegible] Rev. [illegible] S. Roberts.

The entire session was given to the reports of the pastors and presiding elders of the several charges. The brethren were all hopeful that the missionary assessments would be paid in full. Dr. Davis reported that a missionary was now being supported on the New Orleans District. Several new preaching places have been secured on the District and over twenty-six rooms. Other communities are anxious to have the gospel preached to them.

Mrs. W. E. Perry, District Secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and Mrs. J. E. Ross, District Secretary of the Woman's Home Mission Society, gave a report of the work of the missionary societies in the District. The reports showed that a most excellent work had been done.

At the afternoon session Dr. Davis spoke of the general work of the District. He reported progress in all lines; new preaching places; lots secured for church building; six new churches being built on the District; one parsonage promised; planning for District programmes; everything hopeful and encouraging. The reports from the different charges on the spiritual state of the Church, the Sunday school work, etc., were now given; they were helpful and inspiring.

The next District Conference will be held at Donaldsonville.

The following were elected as delegates to the Annual Conference: H. E. Baker, W. W. Carroll, W. E. Dressel and S. H. Meyer. Alternates, Jacob Cohen and R. B. Paine. Revs. G. S. Roberts and Rev. J. W. Tinnin were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The Conference heartily endorsed the movement of the Barber's Union looking to the closing of the barber shops in New Orleans on the Sabbath.

W. B. Thomson, A. S. Daniels, Dr. E. L. McCabe, P. L. Rils, S. H. Meyer, J. W. Adams, R. D. Anders and H. W. Spear were elected as Trustees of Seashore Camp Grounds.

There was no business session Saturday morning.

The afternoon session was given to the reports of the committees, etc. The reports were all to the point and unanimously adopted. The New Orleans Christian Advocate was represented by the manager and Publisher, Mr. Chas. O. Chalmers. The Conference commended the Advocate very highly.

J. E. Wray, H. N. Harrison, Thos. Copeland and W. W. Holmes were elected as the Licensing Committee. The licenses of Rev. T. S. Brown, Rev. G. S. Roberts and Rev. E. L. Wiley were renewed.

Revs. Lowrey, Buley, Tinnin and Bishop Morrison did the preaching during Conference and the sermons were all strong and spiritual and helpful.

WATER VALLEY CIRCUIT.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I will send a few notes from Water Valley Circuit. We were read out at Conference for Banner Mission, went at once to my work, preached the third Sunday of December at Banner to a large and appreciative congregation. Before filling my second appointment my Presiding Elder saw fit to remove me from Banner to Water Valley Circuit. Here we found 450 of the biggest-hearted people we have ever met. We have six churches; found the work in fine shape—could not expect anything else, as my predecessors, J. H. Holder, R. P. Neblett and others who preceded me were great workers.

My people have a great deal of respect for their old pastors as well as their present pastor. We have made our third round; preached twenty sermons, made about one hundred pastoral visits, and organized a Sunday-school at all of our churches.

Bro. Thames, our Presiding Elder, held our first Quarterly Meeting March 10 and 11. He was at his best, and all who know him know what I mean. The stewards made a fine report. The assessment is not quite so large as it was last year, on account of several deaths, which included some of our best paying members, and some having moved away. But the assessment is larger than last year in proportion to membership.

We hope to bring our Conference collections up in full, as my people are all liberal and willing to do their part. We hope to be able to send several new subscribers as well as a number of renewals.

We are hoping, praying, trusting and laboring for one of the greatest years in all the history of the Water Valley Circuit.

Pray for us. Fraternally,

W. J. WOOD, L. P.

MOUNT PLEASANT, MISS.

Dear Doctor: At our last Annual Conference, of North Mississippi, I was sent by Bishop Hoss to Mount Pleasant. This was the first appointment that I received after giving myself to the ministry. This is my third year at Mount Pleasant.

Being a young servant, and not having had much acquaintance with our good Methodist people elsewhere, I have but little idea as to how they act toward their ministers. But there could not be a better people to their pastor found in all our great Southern Church. Whatever they may lack in dimes and dollars, they restore an hundred fold through their kindness, their patience, their gifts, and their love. It is pleasant to live among such good people, but more pleasant to be their servant.

The best thing that I know of my people, and by far the greatest thing that could be said of any people, is that they are very spiritual. We have much of the "old-time religion." That is the secret of their being so good to their humble pastor.

Our good Presiding Elder, Brother Gaines, was with us on the 17th and 18th to hold our first Quarterly Conference. He preached four sermons for us. These sermons will be long remembered by many of Mount Pleasant's people, especially the one delivered at 3 o'clock Sunday to the children and young people from John iii, 14-15. We were all sorry when the time came for him to take his leave.

We found, in a conversation with him, that the work of Sardis District is upon his heart.

May the Lord bless his work, our district, and the Church everywhere this year, is our humble prayer.

W. L. STORMENT, P. C.

ASHLAND CIRCUIT.

Dear Dr. Boswell: He that bloweth not his own horn, the same shall not be blown. Although I never had the gift of horn-blowing, yet I will say something of my work since coming to Ashland.

I found the outline of a little coop of a parsonage. We now have one of the most beautiful and comfortable preacher's homes in all the country, worth $650, well covered by insurance. I found in Ashland an old, dilapidated church, which had stood since 1872. We expect to have a church finished within thirty days from date that will be worth $1,000. I have done most of the work upon church and parsonage with my own hands. We have raised the money with which to rebuild another church. Out on the circuit I have never made the people shout very much since coming here. We hope for that to come at a later date, when we have a solid foundation on which to stand. In fact, my mind has changed some in late years about these things. I believe some people's religion is like an alarm clock—just set to go off at a certain time. But we are moving along serenely, and I hope I have bought one of the best selections of fruit trees to be found in all our country, and put them out at the parsonage. I am working to make Ashland a first-class station some day. The people here are not hard to please about a preacher, possibly you have noticed that before now. They say I am about the best makeshift they have ever had. I am trying to build a platform on which my successor will be able to stand and do something. I expect to leave the circuit in two or three thousand dollars better condition materially than I found it. The Stewards of my circuit assessed for me $130 more this year than they did last year. We are pulling very strong to make it self-supporting. I expect to send you a club of subscribers in a few days. Your brother in Christ,

W. R. WILLIAMS.

A CARD.

I will say through the Advocate that I can and would like, when it is desired, to be with the brethren of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences in their revival meetings this spring and summer.

Those desiring my assistance will address me at Beauregard, Miss.

Your brother in Christ,

M. J. MILLER.

COURTLAND, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I have been employed since Conference, by Bro. Gaines, to serve the Courtland charge, in the Sardis District. I have had charge of the work since the first of January, and moved to it the first of March. The prospects for a good year are moderately good.

We are at work trying to improve part of the churches on the work. We have the paint and money in hand to repaint the church here at Courtland. We have not been able so far to get any one to do the work. We have a move on foot to repaint the church at Pope also. I am trying to raise money to pay a debt on one of our churches. I hope to leave the charge so it will be inviting to my successor.

I am planning to make a thorough canvass of the work in the interest of the Advocate. I hope to be able to send you a good number of subscriptions ere long.

Yours truly, C. W. BAILEY.

ELLZEY, MISS.

Dear Brother Boswell: We have been getting along nicely on the Ellzey work since Conference. Have not missed an appointment, and have had good congregations all the winter. Peace and harmony seem to prevail throughout the entire work, and we are expecting a great revival during the summer. We have four Sunday-schools doing excellent work. The four schools have ordered from the Publishing House $19.50 worth of literature.

We sold the old parsonage building at Ellzey and are preparing to build a Church and parsonage at Vardaman, three miles south on the railroad. So you see we have some hard work to do. Pray that many good things come to us this year.

I have been working for your valuable paper and have secured my club of twenty.

Yours in Christ,

L. B. HANKINS.

BIENVILLE CHARGE, LA.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I am just in from my second Quarterly Conference. To say that it was a success does not express it. Bro. Carter was on hand and gave us one of his best sermons. On account of rain the crowd was small, but the sermon was delivered with as much care and earnestness as if a thousand had been present.

I have made two hundred and seventy-five visits in two months, and my congregations are increasing every service. Penitents are coming to the altar and I feel that this is going to be one of the best years of my life. We are singing the old-time songs, and asking for the old paths, and somebody is going to get religion in the old-time way. The people are falling in love with the Advocate.

The Preacher's Institute will be held at this place from the 17th to the 19th of April.

Come up Doctor, and see the best country in Louisiana. Our Presiding Elder says that there is more to eat in this section than any place he ever saw.

G. D. ANDERS.

LAKE CITY, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: At the last Annual Conference our good Bishop gave us a transfer and we were read out for this place—Lake City. It is a beautiful place, situated on Wolf Lake, a fine fishing place.

Our work is in the delta, two appointments on the Yazoo River—all reached by private conveyance. We have a delightful circuit; good people to serve though few in number. We have very good congregations at two places. They are increasing all the time, which is encouraging to their pastor. Our predecessor, Bro. Lankford, left everything in good shape. He laid well the foundation, so all we have to do is to take up the work where he left off and go on with the building.

We are planning to build a Church at one point—Lodi, which was destroyed by fire some time ago. We hope to have it ready by summer so as to hold our meetings in it.

Our beloved Presiding Elder will be with us again the seventh and eighth to hold our Quarterly Conference. He is very much loved by our people. We hope to report about $15 collection for our superannuated preachers at our next Quarterly Conference—an increase over last year. We are trying to get a few subscribers to the Advocate and hope to send them soon.

May God bless you!

Yours fraternally,

H. E. CARTER.

BLAIRSTOWN, LA.

Dear Dr. Boswell: At our last Annual Conference, I was appointed to East Feliciana Circuit. I filled my first appointment the first Sunday after Conference, and have missed only one appointment. I find that I am among some fine people, and I appreciate them very much. Many of our people and others seem to be very much interested in the cause of Christ, and are willing to do what they can to advance the cause. I am profoundly grateful to be able to state that our people here are very kind and thoughtful in looking after the support and comfort of their pastor and his family.

Our first Quarterly Conference was held on the 17th instant. Our much loved Presiding Elder, R. W. Tucker, was present and preached to the delight and edification of all present. After feasting of the delicious food that had been prepared by some of the good ladies, we proceeded with the business part of the Quarterly Conference.

Our Board of Stewards raised the assessment for preacher-in-charge, and made a very gratifying financial report for the support of the ministry. Our Presiding Elder very highly complemented the preacher-in-charge and Board of Stewards for the report. I will not tell all that he said about it.

We give God the praise. By the grace of God, I expect to feed my flock, and make this the most fruitful year of my short experience in the ministry.

Yours in Jesus,

E. L. CARGILL.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. ABERDEEN CIRCUIT.

Dear Dr. Boswell: As I have been silent for some time, I think a few notes from the Aberdeen Circuit might be of interest.

I am beginning my second year here very favorably. We have been remembered kindly in many substantial ways; not a dangerous pounding that threatened our lives, but a gentle zephyr that brought many acceptable gifts to our home. Have received twelve into Church membership since Conference; five by letter, seven on profession of faith.

Our new Church at Splunge is nearing completion, which will cost about $600. We are also preparing to build one here at Greenwood Spgs. at an early date. Our Building Committee have spent $100 on the parsonage since Conference, finishing our home except painting. The home is completely furnished throughout, making a comfortable home for the preacher and his family. In building this home we have made a small debt which I hope to liquidate in sixty days. We all feel very proud of our parsonage the first Aberdeen Circuit has owned.

Our first Quarterly Conference was a success. Our beloved Presiding Elder, Rev. J. H. Mitchel, was present and preached for us Thursday night to the edification of all present. Every Church was represented. The pastor's salary was raised $20 over last year and nearly one-fourth paid.

We have two Sunday-schools that have run through the winter. One Womans Home Mission Society doing a fine work, having sent a Christmas box to the Orphan's Home, valued at $20; have two good prayer-meetings, and fifty-two family altars in the bounds of my work. I am now preparing to organize two Epworth Leagues.

I expect to bring up all collections in full and add one hundred converts to the kingdom of Christ, all by His help and in His name. I am praying that the Holy Spirit may invade our ranks and permeate the lives of our people until sin, in all its forms, may be banished and righteousness reign supreme. Let us all labor to this end.

Your brother in Christ.

O. P. ARMOUR.

TO THE PRESIDING ELDERS, PASTORS AND EPWORTH LEAGUE OFFICERS.

The Fourth Annual Session, Mississippi Conference Epworth League, will be held in McComb City, beginning April 26th, at 8 o'clock P. M., and will continue through Sunday the 29th. Reduced rates have been granted by all the railroads, on the certificate plan. The programme will soon be ready to send out, and we think it will be the best we have ever had. Addresses will be delivered by Dr. H. M. DuBose, Revs. J. E. Carpenter and J. W. Shackford, and others. The annual sermon will be preached at 11 o'clock Sunday by Dr. DuBose. The installation and consecration service will be held in the afternoon at three o'clock.

Will you please be present and see that your League has a full delegation present?

Those Who May Attend.—Presiding elders, pastors and Epworth League presidents are delegates ex-officio. Each League is entitled to one delegate for every ten members; provided that each League shall be entitled to one delegate. As many as two delegates may be appointed by the pastor of any charge where there is no League. Elect your delegates right away and send their names to Rev. N. B. Harmon, McComb City.

Railroad Rates to Annual Meeting of Woman's Board of Home Missions.

The only railroad association granting rates thus far is the Southeastern Passenger Association, which grants a reduction of one and one-third fare, plus twenty-five cents, on the usual certificate plan.

The Central and Western Passenger Associations decline to grant rates on account of small number probably coming over lines within its territory. The other associations will probably decline for the same reason. Should they decide favorably, announcement will be made. All persons coming from points outside the Southeastern Passenger Association are advised to purchase tickets to nearest points within that territory, and then purchase tickets to Asheville, securing delegates' certificates from that point of purchase. MRS. FRANK SILER, Rec. Secty.

RATES TO SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The Mississippi Central Railroad has also granted reduced rates; one and one-third fare plus 25 cents, to the Mississippi Conference Sunday School Institute to be held at Columbia, Miss., May 7-9.

Let every one who attends get a certificate from the local railroad agents when they purchase tickets. Also, there is a possibility that the road from Mendenhall to Columbia, and from Brookhaven to Silver Creek, will be completed in time for the Institute. Let those interested in going by those routes watch the daily papers for further information.

Very truly,
N. A. MOTT, Secty.

JESUS, THE SINNER'S FRIEND.

(Luke vii. 36 to 50.)

Golden Text: "Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."—Luke vii. 50.

A difficult task for us to learn is to be friendly with those whom we know are unfriendly to us, and Jesus lays down that same task in the first verse of our lesson, when he accepts an invitation to dine with one of the Pharisees. Knowing the thoughts and purposes of all men, Jesus knew that there was no feeling akin to hospitality prompting this invitation. Jesus had sat down to eat when a woman, known in the city as a notorious sinner, hearing that Jesus was in the house, entered bearing in her hand an alabaster box of ointment, which showed that she had a purpose in this coming.

He was in a reclining position, and the woman came and stood behind Jesus at his feet, weeping. O, how often as we knelt in fervent, penitent prayer, before we have uttered a word we are prevented beginning our prayer by a flood of tears! It is because we, too, are in the presence of Jesus, just as really so as was this woman that stood at his feet, and we have wept for the same cause as she, because we know we have sinned against him who is such a friend of sinners. The woman washed the Lord's feet with her tears, wiped them with her hair, and kissed them. What a picture of grateful devotion! She must have heard of Jesus' power on earth to forgive sins, and faith told her that hers would soon be forgiven.

This was a most affecting scene. But there are those so full of prejudice and hatred of all good that they are past feeling, and such things rouse no sympathy within their hearts. No sympathy was in Simon's heart, and Jesus knew it, as also he knew of the unfeeling criticism of his submitting to the ministrations of the weeping, penitent woman, even if it was only a thought not given utterance. The text avers that Jesus answered Simon, although Simon had not spoken, and in answering Jesus taught the truth that he, no doubt, accepted the invitation from the Pharisee in order to have the opportunity to teach, and that was that they are forgiven "many" sins love much.

Truth is eternal, and this truth comes forcibly to all of us, as in self-condemnation we class ourselves, as Paul did, "the chief of sinners." Many a true servant of Christ has been in the past a most wretched sinner, and is a true servant from love and gratitude.

In order to reach the most difficult ones to save, Jesus went among them, even into their homes. Are we doing this for those who do not come to the house of God, and who never hear the Gospel, and know nothing of the blessed salvation of Christ? The recipient of the blessing certainly should be eager and anxious to tell it to others, in whatever sphere in life they move. Many of us, too many, are like Simon in that we are shocked as we see Christians on familiar terms with people known for their worldliness or ungodliness. The love of Christ throws down all barriers, caste, class distinctions and every rule or usage that comes between the Christian and the sinner. Our Lord has set for us this example, not only in the case under consideration, but in all the works of love done in the time when he lived and moved among men. He made his home among the poor and humble, and it was the common people that heard him gladly; but in our day it has come to pass that you can be too poor to enter the Lord's house for worship. It is to these, who are kept away from the means of grace, that Jesus goes as the sinners' friend, and oh, how gladly will they listen to the plain, simple story of Jesus and His love. Is there any service too lowly to prevent us laying aside every prejudice or bias whatever, and the work of the Master as the Master has plainly shown us how to do it? How hardly can they who have riches enter into the kingdom," and as this world's goods lift us up, how hardly can we, if we are well up in the world, get low enough for the work?

Do not think for a moment that the masses that we so much desire to reach never think of that which keeps the follower of Christ away from them, for they refer to it as the drawback to the one that is trying to tell them that Jesus is the sinner's friend. What is more, they will tell you that the same reason keeps them away from the Church of God. What reason do you ask again? Why that we are proud, that we think ourselves above them, that we never notice them; then if there is ground for this complaint, how can the Christian accomplish anything? O, let us look the truth in the face; if such things exist, let us, each one personally, go forth as Jesus did, and then we can put ourselves in the right light before the people who find nothing in the world that speaks to them of rest and peace.

Then Jesus, taught by the figure of the two debtors, the one owing a large amount and the other a smaller one, they both being declared free from their indebtedness by the creditor. He asks which one loved the generous creditor the most, note closely the answer of Simon. He at once saw the point taken, and it seems by the "I suppose" with which he prefaced his answer, that he was to see the application. He may have had such thoughts as these: "Am I, a Pharisee, to be taught such simple lessons, yet full of wisdom, I must admit, by a poor wandering carpenter? a man sprung up from the ranks of the common people? I must go to the Sanhedrin and make a report that this man must be stopped in his teaching, he is laying the way for taking from us our place and nation." I am not surprised at the remarks made now and then by Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea, about this fellow. I shall certainly lay this matter before Gamaliel, he is a doctor of the law, I will have his opinion." These thoughts rather than a reflection on the lesson of love and that Jesus is the friend of sinners.

What is it that causes sinners not to want such a friend as Jesus? They do want Him and need Him too. There is only the opportunity waiting for Jesus to be placed before them in this loving attitude of friend. Who must show them Christ as such a friend? Take your Bible and turn to the XV Psalm, and you will see who is to do this work for the friend of sinners. One verse in this psalm reads thus: "He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart." Let us read the whole Psalm and take it to heart, and the result will be that we will know how the worker shall be prepared to do the work for the sinner's friend.

REFERENCE PASSAGE BIBLE.

Rev. E. D. Van Valkenburgh, a superannuated Methodist minister, well known to many of our readers, calls for agents for a wonderful arrangement of the Scriptures, called The Reference Passage Bible. It is a fine production; any Bible student will be pleased with it. See his advertisement on another page.

It is easy enough to make too much of the outward and visible side of religion. We may think so much of the visible portion of the Church as to forget that larger invisible portion of it which is beyond the veil.—Dr. Liddon.

Your Friend Who Drinks

I WILL SAVE HIM

I HAVE A HOME CURE WHOSE PROOF IS TRUE THAT RESTORES FOR LIFE THE HABITUAL DRUNKARD, THE DESPAIRING AND THE DESPERATE, THAT REPULSES NERVE STRENGTH AND AMBITION.

No one except the victim knows the misery, the remorse, the broken promises and the good gifts of the drink habit has trampled upon. Again and again they vainly hope it will be a foothold that

Will [illegible] Can NOT conquer that devouring passion, the trembling craving that is voiced by every nerve cell of the helpless, hopeless victim of inebriety. The opium or [illegible] habitue is not a greater master of himself, or a more half crazed martyr to perverted appetite.

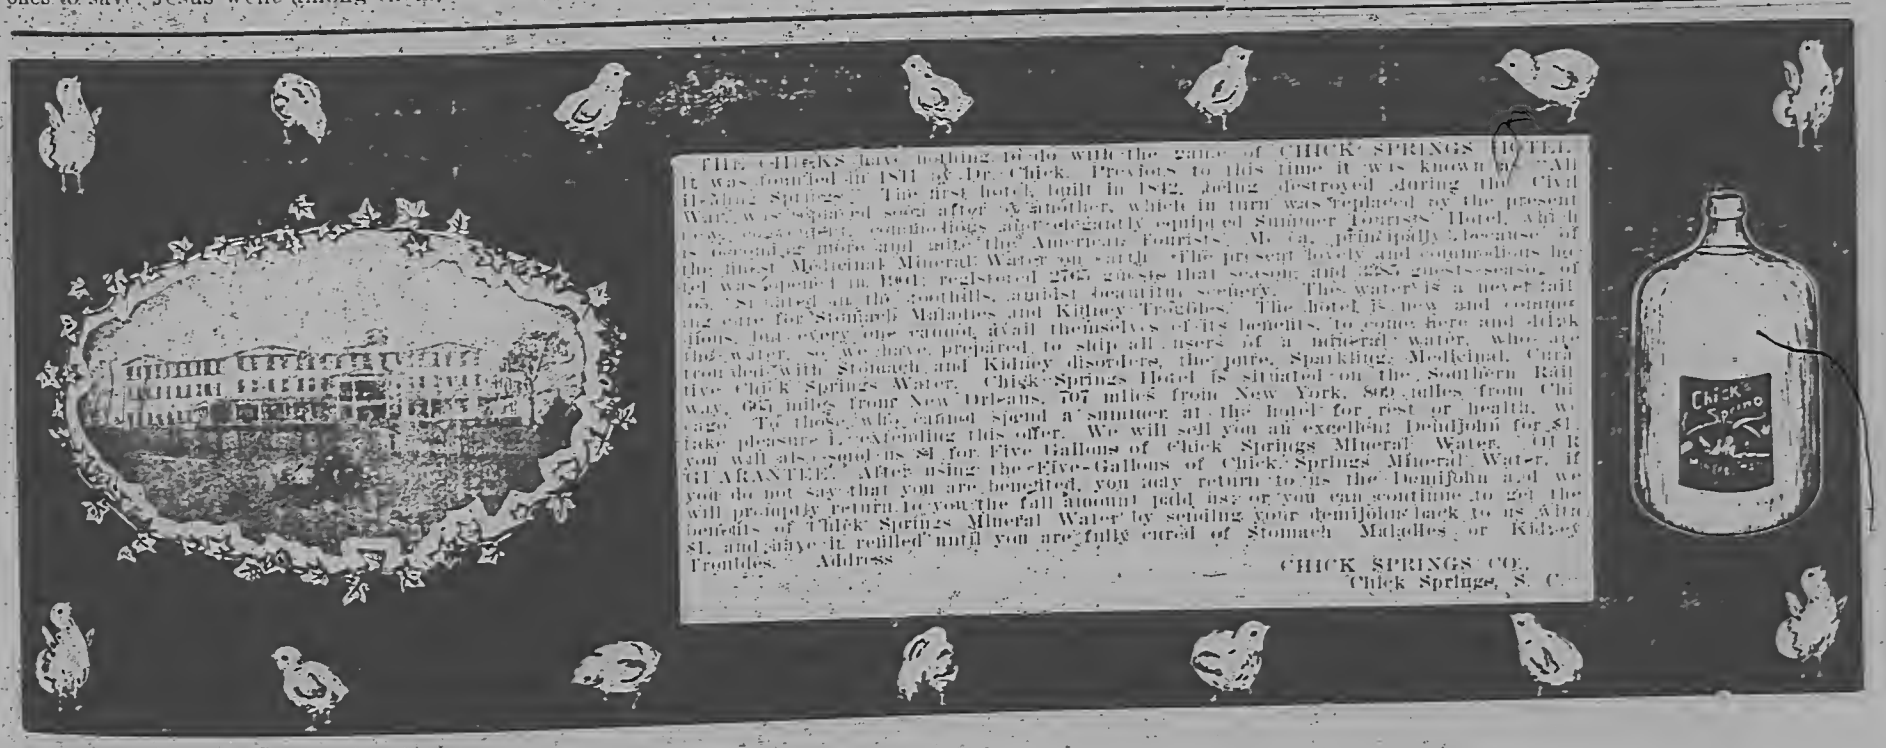
Advice and kindly words will not help your afflicted friend any more than a straw will save a drowning man. What you must do to rescue him is to throw out the life line. In the shape of an actual, tangible CURE for the disease.

To prove that I have such a cure, I will send it in a plain wrapper, so that no one need be a party to the secret, a large treatment, that does its work, that will prove its wonderful merit, free of all expense.

A marvelous change will at once be noticed. The terrible, incessant craving will vanish, appetite returns, the nerves grow steady, the haggard appearance will vanish, the eyes grow clear and the sufferer will again be able and inspired to take his proper place in business and society.

I appeal to the WORST cases. I glory in hopeless cases that again and again have refused to yield to other treatments. My record is 100 per cent of cures. CURES TO STAY CURED. And I have the proof to back my claims.

No matter how hopeless the case may seem, do not despair. Remember mine is a home treatment. There is no advertising the fact that it is being taken, no [illegible] of neighborhood gossip. Nothing but the blessed reality of a perfect cure.



Being sober, I do not ask, and will not accept, one single penny of pay till I have proven that my simple home remedy is an absolute, unfailing cure. You take not a cent's risk and the gain is priceless.

Write this very day for free treatment, sent in sealed, plain wrapper.

J. S. RUTLEDGE.

ISAAC [illegible] FELPS was born June [illegible] 1830. He was united in marriage to Miss Katherine [illegible] in 1850. He served in the Confederate ranks during the Civil War. Bro. Felps joined the Church when young, and lived not merely a nominal Christian, but a quiet, consistent Christian life. He had lived for half a century at his country home, near Clinton, La., and was a faithful steward in the Clinton Church when called to his reward. He had been in ill health for several months, and having been to New Orleans for treatment he returned as far as his daughter's, Sister Dillon's, Slaughter, from where he passed to that eternal rest that remaineth to the people of God. All who knew him had confidence in him and in the religion that he professed. They took knowledge of him that he had been with Jesus. His wife, a daughter and two sons survive.

HIS PASTOR.

On Sunday, March 17, 1906, Mr. J. S. JOHNSON fell into the sleep that knows no waking, at his home near Arco, Miss. The Sunday before his death he was eighty-three years old. For several years he had been very feeble, requiring the constant attention of his children. No one dreamed that the end was so near, for he arose Saturday, had his breakfast, lay down to take a rest and while he was sleeping, God called and the spirit took its flight to join the wife and children gone before. The calm, sweet expression on the dear old face was a benediction and solace to the loved ones. On Monday afternoon he was laid to rest. Around the casket was gathered the two sons, three daughters, two granddaughters to whom he had been father and mother, five other grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. His pastor, Rev. J. W. Raper, and Dr. J. W. Price officiated at the funeral service. To each of the loved ones we extend heartfelt sympathy. Truly, "He giveth His beloved sleep."

Cotton Ginning

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time, when they will take the place of steam engines."

Glances at the World.

Two cases of sickness during the past month, one in the city and the other near by, bore symptoms of yellow fever. So striking were the symptoms that one or two physicians pronounced the disease as fever without hesitancy. The first case suspected was that of a man, one set of physicians declaring he had yellow fever, while another said he was suffering from liver disease. The patient died. An autopsy confirmed the opinion of those who pronounced the case to be liver disease. The other case was that of an Italian boy. He was visited first by surgeons of the United States Hospital Service, who said he had yellow fever. He was next seen by the State health authorities, who had in consultation two city physicians, one of whom was Dr. E. L. McGehee, a man and physician of highest standing. These declared the case to be one of bronchopneumonia. The difference of opinion between the doctors seems irreconcilable, and as the boy recovered, the question will likely never be settled. But one thing is settled—that is, great diligence is being exercised in locating and watching suspicious cases of sickness. And the doctors are going to be frank in reporting all cases. There is no need for any alarm in the country.

Something like a year ago it was discovered, or asserted, that the will of the philanthropist, McDonogh, was not being carried out in all respects. About the middle of the last century Mr. McDonogh left an immense estate, the larger part of which was equally divided between the cities of Baltimore and New Orleans for the establishment of schools for poor children, in which they were to be educated absolutely free of all cost. In the will it was expressly provided that the Bible, which he regarded as the basis of morals, and of divine authority, should be regularly read in these schools. Up to this date thirty or more of the McDonogh schools have been established in New Orleans, and thousands of children are beneficiaries. By some means, we know not how, it came to the ears of certain citizens that the reading of the Bible was provided for in the will, and, as the Bible was not being read in these schools the Protestant Ministers' Alliance of New Orleans appointed a committee to examine into the matter and report. The investigation was made, and the report submitted a short time since. The committee reported that the provision of the McDonogh will was not being complied with, whereupon the Alliance respectfully called the attention of the City School Board to the fact, and asked that the will of Mr. McDonogh be carried out according to the terms. As yet no answer has been received from the Board. The call of the Alliance was like the bursting of a bomb in camp. It stirred things mightily for a few days, and at once there were partisans for and against. The Jewish and Roman Catholic citizens were in opposition, and argued the question, solely on the presumption that the McDonogh schools are free public schools, and that, under the Constitution, sectarian or religious teaching, which Bible reading involves, is not allowable. The gentlemen who thus argue overlook the fact that the McDonogh schools are not public schools in the sense contemplated in the law, statutory or constitutional. Public schools are maintained by taxation. The McDonogh schools are not maintained by taxation, but by interest on funds bequeathed for free schools for poor children. If this is true, those who oppose the reading of the Bible in the McDonogh schools have no ground on which to stand—no right to interpose an objection.

Booker Washington's school at Tuskegee, Ala., has just celebrated its "silver jubilee." It began twenty-five years ago, with nothing but the brain and energy of Booker Washington, and the good will of Tuskegee's citizens. To-day it enrolls 1600 students, and employs 150 teachers. Washington seems always to have at heart the interests of his people, with a burning desire to train them for useful work. With this in view, the education he seeks to impart embraces that of the hands, as well as of the mind. He has in his large plant shops of all kinds, and when a boy leaves the school with the school's diploma he knows enough of some art or profession to turn him a decent living. The girls likewise have useful training. At the recent celebration Mr. Andrew Carnegie was the leading speaker. His address was noted for its simplicity and the directness with which he laid before his hearers good common sense talk. The course of Booker Washington was highly commended, and his advice to the colored people was wise and conservative. We would be glad to quote at length from his address, but there is too much of it. Let it suffice to say that the trend of his talk was in line with the thought and desires of the best and wisest of our Southern citizens, who, though they would not deny the negro an education, believe that with the education he should be trained to useful work.

PROPOSED LEGISLATIVE ENACTMENT.

An Act to cause improvement in the management of convicts in the penitentiary of the State of Mississippi.

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the Board of Control to open a debit and credit account with every convict in the penitentiary.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of every court committing a convict to the penitentiary to forward to the Board of Control an itemized statement of the cost that has been incurred by the State up to the time of turning over any convict to the warden of the penitentiary.

Section 3. All the costs incurred by the State to convict and keep in confinement a convict shall be charged to each convict, and all the earnings made by each convict shall be credited to him.

Section 4. Whenever the account of a convict shows that his earnings have liquidated his indebtedness, then his family may have remitted to them the earnings that have accrued to such convict, or if the convict has no family dependent upon him, then whatever balance he may have to his credit may be used by said convict by and with the consent of the Board of Control in such a way as will best encourage a spirit of emulation among convicts—or such balance may remain to the credit of such convict until the time of expiration of his sentence, when it is to be paid him.

Section 5. The provisions in sections 3 and 4 are not to apply when the convict has been convicted for theft or similar violations of law, until he shall have liquidated, out of his credits, all claims due the person or persons whom he wronged.

Section 6. That this Act shall take effect, and be in force from and after its passage.

METHODIST PAPERS—A RESUME.

By H. M. DuBose, D.D.

Certain articles written by me on the consolidation of Methodist papers have provoked much and varied discussion. In some cases this discussion has been illuminating, in some more spirited than pointed. In almost every case the writers have missed the points of the "measure" proposed. In no case has an attempt been made to answer the arguments in which the measure is believed to be justified, which arguments were drawn from a most careful study of the history of church journalism. I here restate my points:

1. We have too many official papers, connectional and Conference. This is a fact, not a theory.

2. Consolidation is desirable, and this should be brought about by the Annual Conferences, under the direction and with the help of the General Conference. To do this, an advisory commission appointed by the General Conference is proposed in the case of Conference papers. No new papers to be projected without consent of commission.

3. The Annual Conferences are to own, control, and direct the editing of the consolidated papers, except where the said Annual Conferences may wish to sell or turn over the said papers to the General Conference, which may be done if the Book Committee adjudges the investment safe from a financial standpoint. The initiative is wholly with the Annual Conferences.

4. The Christian Advocate, the general organ, to be maintained in its present status, and improved as the General Conference may order.

5. The General Conference to "inquire into the possibility of a healthy consolidation" of other connectional papers.

He that runneth may read.

NOTICE.

Will every preacher in the two Conferences in Mississippi please write name of charge and district, and then give total number of members in charge at present date. Brethren, please carefully examine all rolls and be sure the number is correct; send to me at Arcola, Miss., and I will give you the true status of the Methodist Church in Mississippi. You can write on a postal, and please do so at once.

Thanking you in advance for your trouble, I am, your brother in Christ,

J. W. RAPER.

DR. BROOKS' FIGURES AND WITNESSES.

Dr. Brooks certainly makes a serious mistake in the figures he uses to represent conversions and sanctification. On page 36 he says: "As a plot of ground the heart is overgrown with thorns and briers of sin. In justification this growth is removed, leaving the roots of these thorns and briers in the soil." No wise farmer would prepare his plot of ground in this way when he could remove the roots at once. His references in another place to the doctors' treatment of disease is unfortunate, for who would employ a physician to treat an ulcer who would only cut out the body of the ulcer, when he could extract all the roots?

The Doctor's theory is that sanctification is an instantaneous cleansing from inbred sin by faith. How many of his witnesses support this theory? Only one of the thirteen bishops of our Church to which he refers. Neither does Finney, Moody, Havergal, Anderson, Schoolfield, Earl, Gordon, Houston and others. These all testify that they were not seeking a cleansing from inbred sin, but did not believe in it. Therefore, they did not receive it by faith, but contrary to their faith, and if God could bless these in their unbelief, why not all earnest Christians? All Christians believe that we should go on to perfection, but they do not believe that Christian perfection implies a cleansing from inbred sin, but that it is a higher degree in the divine life, the manhood state; and, perhaps we are not as far apart as our language would indicate.

What is meant by inbred sin? Does he mean that the young convert is in an enervated state—simply weakness—and that this babe in Christ is to go on to perfection by growth, or under baptism of the Holy Ghost? If so, we are all agreed; but if he means that the soul is stained by sin, like a stained cloth, and Christ goes in and dwells there, we cannot believe it.

Dr. Brooks says on page 36 that "he half agrees with Dr. Mudge" in the following: "Instead of 'cleansing,' then we would suggest that of 'empowering' as a much better term to use." If he would agree with him in whole, we are all together, for we all believe that the heart is cleansed from sin when the Holy Ghost enters and dwells there. This is in keeping with what Fletcher has said in the following:

"Christian perfection is the cluster and maturity of the Christian graces which compose the Christian character," and that if we are "made perfect by one baptism of the Holy Ghost, so much the better, but if two or more are necessary, the Lord can repeat them. To deny that imperfect believers may and do grow in grace, and, of course, that the remains of their sins may and do gradually decay, is as absurd as to deny that God waters the earth by daily dews as well as by thunder showers. It is as ridiculous as to assert that nobody is carried off by lingering diseases, but that all men die suddenly."

Fletcher certainly refers here to weak Christians, who need to be strengthened by one or more baptisms of the Holy Ghost. If so, on this we are all agreed. That is in keeping with what Wesley says in the first volume of his sermons, page 195: "Sin in believers grows weaker and weaker, while the believer grows on from strength to strength, conquering and to conquer."

Again in his sermon on the "New Birth," Vol. 2, page 302, he says: "It is undeniably true that sanctification is a progressive work, carried on in the soul by slow degrees, but this is not true of the new birth; this is a part of sanctification, but not the whole. When we are born again, then our sanctification, our inward and outward holiness, begins; thence forward we are to gradually grow up in Him who is our head. A child is born in a very short time afterward he gradually and slowly grows, till he attains to the stature of a man. In like manner a child is born of God in a short time, if not in a moment. But is is by slow degrees that he afterwards grows up to the measure of the full stature of Christ. The same relation, therefore, which there is between our natural birth and our growth there is also between our new birth and our sanctification."

Again I say: "All this we steadfastly believe"—on this platform we can all meet. Does Dr. Brooks believe this? If not, he is only Wesleyan in part. His answer to the objection that if sanctification removes depravity, that the children of sanctified parents would not be depraved (pp. 303 and 372) is far from what we would expect of such a man as Dr. Brooks. But he is to be excused from the fact that there is no answer—the stream must partake of the nature of the fountain. Dr. Brooks will never get any better than the little child, for "of such is the kingdom of heaven;" and poor, weak natures will go down to the grave in weakness. "It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power."

METHODISTS OF MISSISSIPPI

OUGHT TO HAVE ONE FIRST-CLASS TRAINING SCHOOL.

The forty thousand Methodists of the Mississippi Conference are well able to have a great training school. The Mississippi Conference has already adopted the Montrose High School as a Conference training school.

The North Mississippi Conference has no school of a similar kind. One training school for eighty thousand Methodists! We ought to have a patronage of four hundred for this school.

My brethren of the laity and the ministry, the high school or training school is the most needed school of the hour. You need not fear to preach it from your pulpits, and around your firesides. The day is not far distant when men and women will be raised up that will put their means in some good training school, like the Montrose High School. A few thousand dollars will do as much good in this way, at this time, as tens of thousands will do in higher education. To stimulate the country boy, to make possible the academic education for the poor boy, counts a great deal, not alone for the individual, but for our land and country.

This kind of education does not hinder higher education, but fosters and encourages it. We have solved the problem very awkwardly. We have misused a great deal of money in the education of our boys and girls, because we have sent them to college when they were hardly prepared to go to a good high school. Parents have been greatly disappointed over the results of the college training of their boys and girls, and the reason is that they have started the boys and girls wrong—started them to college when they should have gone to some good high school.

We have been trying this awkward way for forty years. Let's try the other for twenty years. Will it be an experiment? If so, it will be a very profitable experiment.

We have a great opportunity here at Montrose for the Methodist people to experiment on this question of high school education.

At 5 cents per member for the Methodists in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference, we can experiment on this important question.

We already have the building and grounds, and the school in operation here at Montrose. Ought we not to give the 5 cents per member that this cause may succeed?

The man that has contributed his means and made the college possible for the youth of our land will be praised, like Saul of old, by thousands, but the man that contributes his means to the training school and makes such a school possible for the youth of our land will be praised, like David, by tens of thousands. "And who, then, is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" Brethren, let us hear from you.

WALDO W. MOORE.

Montrose, Miss.

THE FIGURES COMPARED.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Since coming to this country I have been repeatedly told that our Baptist brethren were very greatly in the majority throughout this section, and, of course, I knew no better until recently. The minutes of the Tippah Baptist Association of 1905 fell into my hands. I also have the minutes of the North Mississippi Conference for the same year.

What was the Holly Springs District, and what is now the Association, cover very much the same territory. Our Baptist brethren have 31 houses of worship, with 14 Sunday schools and 2,475 church members, and paid last year for all purposes $4,551.62.

The M. E. Church, South, has 68 houses of worship, 48 Sunday schools, with 4,443 church members, and paid last year for all purposes $13,207.00.

I give these statistics that our people may know what Methodism is doing in this hill country of North Mississippi. Your brother in Christ,

W. R. WILLIAMS.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

During the quadrennium now closing the Epworth League has had a net increase in its membership, according to the General Minutes, of 6,483, and an increase of 307 in the number of chapters. This is an average net increase of 1,622 members each year, and of slightly fewer than 77 chapters. The figures in the General Minutes for the present year show an increase in the number of chapters, but a decrease in the membership. The League is enjoying a solid prosperity.

In addition to the above, which comes to us over the signature of the Editor and Secretary, Dr. H. M. Du Bose, we are pleased to report that the Epworth Era is having unprecedented success. There are now 22,000 subscribers, and Dr. Du Bose is reaching after 30,000. We hope he will secure them. The Era deserves all it can get.

LETTER FROM REV. H. P. LEWIS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: A man of my age needs a little rest and recreation occasionally. I am just a little older than "Gilderoy." I was born on all fool's day, about two years and eight months after the stars fell, and am now 70 years of age. I was born again on the fifth day of May, 1855, 51 years ago. I have been a licensed preacher 50 years, an itinerant over 48 years. I have never found much time to rest. The Savior said "go," and I have been going—am still going. I feel as much as ever the great importance of the work in which I am engaged. I have traveled thousands of miles—visited thousands of homes, preached, or tried to preach, many thousand times. Just how many children I have baptized, I do not know—wish I had kept an account of the number of both children and adults I have baptized. I have led a busy life—have ever made it a point to meet all my engagements—fill all my appointments. My good P. E., Brother Huntley, gave me permission, so I am visiting my children and others. Brother H. wrote me he was glad I had good children to visit—so am I.

I left Vicksburg on the early morning train on the second day of April, and reached Meridian about half-past 1 p. m. At Newton Station, Rev. J. M. Morse, the faithful, wide-awake, energetic P. E. of Forest District, boarded the train, bound for Laurel Station to look after church interests. Brother Morse is looking well, and he has his work well in hand. He makes a first-class presiding elder. His brethren, on his District, love him. He is one of our Delegates to the General Conference. It was a treat to ride with and converse with him on general Church interests. In Meridian, I met Brother Clifford, of Columbia Station, on his way to Columbus. I also met dear Brother Emery and his good wife—they are looking well. Brother W. M. Sullivan, the efficient P. E. of Meridian District, heard I was in the city, and in a short while was with me in the depot. Brother Sullivan, like myself, has lost his home—hence, we can sympathize one with the other. He wrote me such a good, sweet, sympathetic letter after the death of my dear good wife, in which he said, among other things, "Brother, you will never get over it; you will never be yourself again." Brother Sullivan had been there; he knew. I did not; but I know now. It is true, when a man loses his wife, he loses his home—a man's wife is his home—no wife, no home.

Brother Sullivan makes a good P. E. One brother wrote me some time ago that he never had a better, more faithful and helpful presiding elder in his life than he has in the person of Brother S. How helpful presiding elders can be to their brethren when they are so disposed. Most, if not all, our Mississippi Conference P. E.'s are good, true men of God—consecrated Christian men. Some of them need a little more power in the pulpit. Power from on high. Some of us old men will remember how glad we were to have our presiding elder with us once in a while. Barnabus Pipkin, late of Mississippi Conference, was my first P. E. in 1858. I had him preach for me six or seven times during his first visit to my Circuit. He spent a week with the boy-preacher. I shall never forget that visit. His prayers, advice, words of encouragement have helped me wonderfully all these years.

At Waynesboro, I met Brothers F. M. Williams, grand old man, and W. L. Linfield, both of whom are looking well. I suppose Brother Williams is about, if not, the oldest preacher on the effective list in our Church. He is more than 80 years old—been a preacher nearly or quite 60 years. Brother Linfield has served three years on the Waynesboro charge. This is his fourth. I am now at Buckatunna, can you pronounce it? An Indian name. I do not know the English name; if you know, please tell us; we will appreciate it. The new preacher here, B. W. Lewis, has started off well. He is trying to have the Church registers put in proper shape. Also he is building a new church here—will have it completed about June or July. It will be worth, when completed, $2,000 or $2,500. He has also organized a prayer meeting here which bids fair to be a success. An efficient, wide-awake, consecrated preacher can do a great deal in the way of building up Sunday schools and prayer meetings. I enjoyed a talk to the young people, with a few old ones, on Wednesday night. We had a good spiritual service. More later.

H. P. LEWIS, SR.

MRS. NANCY DRIGGERS.

Mrs. Nancy Driggers (nee Turner) was born in South Carolina, in Mulberry District, March 18, 1813. She celebrated her ninety-third birthday on March 18, at her humble home near Hico, La., which is our regular day for that Church. She is in real good health, and quite active for one of her age. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when she was but 18 years old, and has lived a consistent Christian life ever since (75 years). She was received in the Church by Rev. Smith. "I do not remember his initials. I was never tried; nor have I had any complaints against me. I was married to Moses Driggers the fourth day of October, 1835. We lived happy together until he died, the 28th day of April, 1868. We had thirteen children; six are now living, and are members of the Methodist Church. I raised six stepchildren, besides my own. I have forty-nine grandchildren, 47 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great-grandchildren. I have been poor all my life, and have worked a great deal. I have done some work in the field, not much. I could card and spin my six ounces per day when I was only 6 years old." Our old people can understand this clause well, what it meant to card and spin, etc. "I have woven many yards of cloth. I have been smoking sixty years. I commenced smoking to cure the toothache. Never used tobacco any other way."

The old clay pipe, with its long cane stem in it, looks to be a real comfort and luxury to this old grandmother in Israel.

"My spiritual sky is clear. I am trying to live day by day as best I can. I believe, when God calls, I will be ready to go and live with Him forever."

Sister Driggers' memory, for one of her age, is remarkable. She can go back and talk about the old preachers who have served on this work and many things that happened many years ago. She walked near three-quarters of a mile a few days ago to visit another good old sister (Fowler). There were twenty-eight of her neighbors besides four of her family present at the celebration. There would have been many more had it not rained all day. A most excellent dinner was served. The day was delightful socially. We closed that evening by reading the 14th chapter of John, and by prayer. Several of the company gave her money, besides a nice rocker.

Yours in Christ, W. T. WOODWARD, P. C.

CARROLLTON AVENUE CHURCH, NEW ORLEANS.

The Intermediate and Junior Leagues of Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church gave their annual Easter-egg hunt on last Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. C. W. Bentley, 1014 Cambronne St. The boys and girls of Tchoupitoulas Mission were entertained. Sixty happy tots were present.

Sweet-scented clover and blue-eyed wild flowers vied with each other in hiding the pretty Easter eggs, but the bright glances of the children quickly discovered them. Iced lemonade was served, and dainty souvenirs made by Miss Jamieson were given the children. One and all had a thoroughly delightful time.

A special Easter service was held for the young people and Leaguers on Sunday evening. "The Risen Christ" was the theme of the several anthems given by the choir and hymns by the congregation. The Intermediate and Junior Leaguers gave a cantata on "Dreams of the Easter-tide." This was, indeed, an impressive part of the service. The story of the Resurrection told in verse and song by little children arranged in angelic garb touched many hearts. Miss Eddie Bentley, who had charge of this part of the service, "hath wrought better than she knew."

After the sermon, quite a pleasant innovation was the manner of reception into the Church of seven children who had applied for membership. The pastor, Rev. W. W. Holmes, had taught them the rules of the Church, something of the early history of Methodism, the Apostle's creed, their obligation, etc., all of which they gave with a readiness and intelligence that might put the blush of shame to older applicants.

MISSISSIPPI

Mrs. B. F. Lewis reports three new auxiliaries for the past quarter: At Lake City, at Silver City and at Union, Newton County.

We are glad to see increasing interest in our work throughout the Conference. Let us impress, every Church should have its Home Mission Society. How else can we systematically reach the poor and needy, and lend them a helping hand? Do not feel that you haven't the time to attend the meetings. Join the society and go once or twice, and after that we believe your interest will be so awakened that no matter what work or duties may be pressing, you cannot stay away from the meeting. And you will find also that your work will be accomplished without friction, and your duty done to God and to the Church.

Another matter which we would bring to the attention of our members is to urge them to become subscribers to Our Homes, the paper which stands as the official organ of the Home Mission Society. A great effort is to be made to increase the subscription list five thousand during the present year of 1906. And why should it not be done?

If every subscriber would tell only one friend of the good to be derived from reading this little paper and induce that friend to become a subscriber, think how the list would be augmented! And, in the words of the editor, "as we work for these five thousand subscribers, let us pray our Father to give us good success and to make the paper a blessing to every one who receives it."

Mrs. L. J. Whitaker, Treasurer of Central Church H. M. S., makes her yearly report ending March 1 as follows:

Membership dues	$60.05
Florine McEachern Brigade	5.62
Pledge (extra $1)	11.00
Conference expense fund	7.00
Week of Prayer	10.00
Baby Roll	.50
Total	$104.67
Home work	153.95
Grand total	$258.62

This is a most gratifying showing, and is altogether the best report ever made by this auxiliary.

Will not the treasurers of other auxiliaries send in their reports for our columns in the Advocate? These reports are an inspiration to ourselves, as well as to others, besides keeping the Conference informed as to what we are doing. Then let us not neglect our reports, but forward them promptly, and also other matters that may be of interest to Home Mission workers.

MRS. E. J. HARRIS,
Supt. Press Dept., Mississippi Conference.

Epworth League

H. G. HAWKINS, EDITOR, PORT GIBSON, MISS.

At the Mississippi Conference Epworth League Session, to be held in McComb City, Miss., April 26-29, addresses will be delivered by Dr. H. M. DuBose, Rev. J. E. Carpenter, Rev. J. W. Shackford, and others. As the occasion embraces a fifth Sunday, it is hoped that many pastors of circuits will attend. All Leagues should send delegates, and two delegates may be appointed by the pastor of any charge where there is no Epworth League. If names are sent to Rev. N. B. Harmon, McComb City, free entertainment will be provided.

Dr. Edward Thompson, Secretary of the Sunday League of America, has been visiting some of the congregations in Mississippi recently. If every young person in the nation were inoculated with a spirit of determination to observe and preserve the Sabbath, it would guarantee the perpetuity of the greatness of our nation.

The enthusiasm and unselfishness of the great Students' Volunteer Convention, recently held in Nashville, seemed to make a profound impression upon that city. The Convention brought temporarily to the city four thousand delegates, mostly young people, buoyant and full of life; and yet the police observed that the only extra work entailed upon them thereby was giving directions as to localities in the city, the Convention, in this particular, contrasting with all other events that have brought great crowds of strangers to the city.

Some weeks ago we enjoyed the privilege of attending an Epworth League meeting at Crawford Street Church, Vicksburg. The meeting was well attended and had zest. The Crawford Street Leaguers have a pretty little chapel in the church, especially arranged for the purpose.

Rev. J. S. Chadwick, the newly-elected Editor of the Alabama Advocate, is one of the younger men. Residents of Harrisburg, Miss., may remember him as a boy-teacher in the graded school in that town little more than a decade ago.

AN URGENT APPEAL.

To the Pastors: Our Epworth League Conference will meet in McComb City April 26th and continue through the 29th; this will be our fourth session. At the former sessions of the Conference, very, very few of you were there, which was a great disappointment to our young people, especially those who had the work in hand; for we realize that without the pastors interest, help and hearty cooperation we can never succeed. Now, I wish to lay upon your heart the welfare of the young people of the church, and appeal to you to make a sacrifice (if need be) to attend the approaching session of the Conference, and you will add much to the success of the meeting and greatly encourage us in the work.

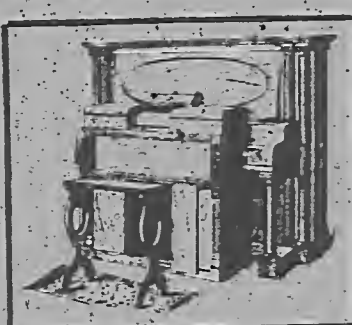
Will you please try to have a full delegation from your League, and if you hav'nt a League, send two of your young people to the conference any way (or a better way, bring them with you.)

Send names of delegates to Rev. N. B. Harmon, McComb City.

Work and pray with us and for us that the meeting may be a great success.

Faithfully yours,
W. D. HAWKINS, President.

DELHI AND TALLULAH CHARGE.



Dear Dr. Boswell: Since our return from Conference we have finished our new church in Tallulah, and held our first service last Sunday, April 1, with a large crowd in attendance. I believe it was the happiest day of my life, to have accomplished the building of the Lord's house, after so many difficulties being in the way.

We think the church very pretty, indeed, and many compliments have been passed on it, and we are sure it will prove a great blessing to this people.

I am glad to say we owe very little on the church, and expect to have that cleared up in a few weeks, ready for dedication.

May the Lord continue to bless us all in His work, is my prayer. I ask the prayers of the brethren.

JUDGED BY HIS WORKS.

In that beautiful part of Germany which borders on the Rhine there is a noble castle which, as you travel on the western bank of the river, you may see lifting its ancient towers on the opposite side above the grove of trees as old as itself.

About ninety years ago there lived in that castle a noble gentleman, who had an only son, the comfort of his father and a blessing to all who lived on his father's estate.

It so happened once that while this young man was away from home a French gentleman came to the castle on a visit. The talk of this Frenchman concerning God was such that it chilled the old man's blood. The old baron reproved his guest, saying: "Are you not afraid of offending God, who rules above, by speaking in such a manner?" The Frenchman said he knew nothing about God; for he had never seen Him. The baron took no further notice of this answer at the time, but the next morning took him about the castle and profited by the occasion to show him a very beautiful picture that hung on the wall. The man admired the painting very much, and said: "Whoever painted that picture knows how to use the brush."

"My son painted that picture," quietly returned the baron.

"Then your son is a clever artist, indeed," replied the old gentleman.

The baron took his guest into the garden and showed him many beautiful flowers and rare plants.

"Who has the ordering of this garden?" asked the visitor.

"My son," said the baron: "he knows every plant, I may say, from the cedar of Lebanon to the hyssop that grows on the wall."

"Indeed," replied the Frenchman. "I shall think very highly of him soon."

The baron then went with his visitor into the village and showed him a neat little cottage where his son had established a school in which all young children that had lost their parents were received and brought up at his own expense. The children in the home all looked so happy that the man was very much pleased, and when he returned to the castle he said to the baron: "What a happy man you are to have such a son!"

"How do you know that I have such a good son?"

"Because I have seen his work, and I know that he must be good and clever from all that you have shown me."

"But you have never seen him?"

"No, but I know him very well, because I judge him by his works."

"True," replied the old nobleman, "and thus you should judge of the character of our heavenly Father. From His works you must see that He is a being of infinite wisdom, power and goodness."

The Frenchman felt the force of the reproof, and never offended the old baron any more by his remarks.—The Herald and Presbyter.

AN ENVELOPE TOWN.

Harrison lay in his little white bed. He looked wistfully out of the window. There were days when it was so hard to lie still and wait for the time when the doctor said he would be able to run about again. He had been real patient, mother said sometimes, with shining eyes, and when he looked into them he wanted to try harder than ever. Then there was Gyp—dear, faithful little doggie—always by his side, who could hardly be persuaded to take necessary exercise. And everybody was good to him, but still there were hard days, and this was one of them.

Suddenly there was a rustle of skirts in the hall. Gyp flew to the door and barked in delight, while a gay voice called before she came in sight:

"Here I am, little soldier! And what will you give for an idea?" she added as she bustled in, in just the merry way that auntie always came.

The little soldier smiled brightly and said, "A kiss." He knew what kind of legal tender auntie liked.

"It's yours," she cried, "if you pay in advance."

And from the merry smacking that went on, I think she was well paid. But Gyp made up with delighted snuggles whatever might have been lacking. Then auntie drew out from one coat pocket a package of white envelopes of various sizes and shapes, from another coat pocket came a package of blue envelopes, and from her muff she drew still another of yellow and brown envelopes of various shades, shapes and sizes, while from inside her blouse there came yet another package of gray ones. Auntie always did things on the wholesale plan. You may be sure Harrison looked puzzled.

"What did you bring me all these envelopes for, auntie?" he said; "I never can write this many letters."

"Of course not," said auntie. "They're not for letters, but to make houses."

That was more astonishing still, but by this time auntie had her wraps off, and was ready to show him. First she cut off the flap of an envelope, then she crushed in the back and folded it down to make the roof. Next she folded down the four corners to make the ends of the house, and lastly she cut the windows and folded the shutters back, cut the door and left it standing open. Then it was done, and it looked like a house.

Harrison was delighted, and said it was an idea worth having.

"I knew you would want to build a whole town, so I brought plenty of lumber," laughed auntie.

And sure enough, the idea grew amazingly, as ideas had a way of doing with Harrison. He devised a plan to make sloping roofs by taking a box-plait in each end of the house for chimneys, which gave a chance to push up the roof in the middle. Then he built churches with steeples, by cutting down the pointed tops of the ends; school-houses and stores by pasting the pointed ends down or putting up signs; dwellings and barns of all colors and sizes, for which auntie had provided by bringing envelopes of various sizes and colors. Then he found use for his library paste in gluing parts together, and putting people in doors and windows, also for his box of paints to make blinds green and vary the trimmings of the houses and clothes of his people.

He worked over it for days, and when he was done there was indeed a lovely envelope town spread over the bed.

When auntie saw it she clapped her hands, and then hugged and hugged him, while Gyp barked and capered in joy and pride.—Mrs. I. M. Mullins, in the Sunday School Times.

FROM THE CO-EPORTER'S DESK.

I spent three days, including the fourth Sunday in March in Eupora as the guest of Brother and Sister Johnson, at the parsonage, and the servant of the Church in preaching and circulating the books.

The pastor and his wife, though young in the cause, have not only learned the amenities of preacher-life, but they take great pleasure in practicing the same.

Brother Johnson is in great favor with the people of his charge, and has an "open-door" for a prosperous year. May he have many seals to his faithful ministry.

Winona is getting ready for the coming of Rev. Sam Jones on the 20th of May. Brother Bowen and the other pastors are marshaling their forces and planning wisely for the occasion. Under the leadership of the Lord of hosts we are expecting a meeting of great results. To this end let prayer continually be made by our brethren and friends everywhere.

We rejoice with Brother W. M. Young, pastor at Indianola, in additional rooms and other valuable improvements to the parsonage, adding to the value thereof $1,000.

As known to most readers of the Advocate, conditions have been such during the winter as to prevent my traveling much; but I hope for the future to be able for much field service, as well as office work, and am at the behests of my brethren for any help I can afford them in person or otherwise.

I will (D. V.) attend District Conferences at Leland, Itta Bena, Oxford, and Philadelphia and the Sunday School Institute at Columbia, at all of which we trust to have good meetings and abiding fruit in every department of the work, and especially that represented by this scribe.

The Christian Life.

"DO IT HEARTILY, AS UNTO THE LORD."

This is the way the apostle would have us do everything. It is a simple and sufficient rule. If we should give attention to it many a knotty question would be quickly settled. We talk about difficult problems. Most of them would melt away like snow before the sun if we should bring to bear this simple rule.

Young people often ask what seem to be perplexing questions about amusements. "May we do this? What harm is there in this? Why should it be prohibited?" No one need ask these questions, because the answer is found in the apostle's short rule of life. "As unto the Lord." The Christian has no business with anything which he can not do as unto the Lord. We may do whatever we like if we are sure that in doing so we are serving the Lord, and if we are doing it as unto him.

This rule exalts common things. It is natural for men to despise common things. Everyone wishes to be somewhat and to do some great thing. Thrones, palaces, wealth and glory are fascinating. But the commonest thing done in the service of the Lord is far greater than the greatest thing done for our own pleasure. We have all heard of the suggestion which someone has made concerning the service of two angels. If one were sent to rule a kingdom and another to sweep the streets, they would recognize no difference between the two forms of service. Every task is noble when it is done unto the Lord. Without this distinction nothing is noble.

The hardest task is made easy by this rule of life. It is not hard to do hard things, but when we have no important motive or inspiration everything is difficult. The youth does not consider difficult things hard if in doing them he can gain some honor. He chooses the difficult in preference to the easy. The soldier does not ask for the easy place, but for the post of danger. Is there a forlorn hope? Every regiment in the army clamors for the distinction. It is not hard to do anything for one whom we love. The hard task is easy when the heart is enlisted. A young lady was once asked to take a certain part in the service of the sanctuary. "I could not think of that," said she. It was a hard task, for she was diffident and unused to prominence. "But," said the pastor, "can you not do it for Jesus?" "Yes," she answered at once, "I can do anything for Him." Many a duty which is left undone because it seems too heavy would prove an easy task if this rule of life were kept in sight.

During the war a certain general was relieved of his command, and General Howard was appointed to take his place. When the war was over, and the great review in Washington occurred, many men in high positions importuned General Sherman to allow the officer who had been relieved to ride at the head of his old corps on the day of the parade. It is said that General Sherman called on General Howard and told him of the pressure brought to bear on him to allow the general who had been superseded to ride at the head of his old corps.

"But," said Howard, "it is my command, and I have a right to appear as its leader."

"I know it," said Sherman, "but you are a Christian."

"Of course I am, but what has that to do with the case?"

"You, as a Christian man, can make a great sacrifice to-morrow for the sake of the country."

"If you put it on that ground," said General Howard, "there is but one answer. Let him ride at the head of the corps, and I shall be content."

"And you shall ride with me, at the head of the army," said General Sherman.

It required no trouble to persuade the Christian general that he could and should make a sacrifice as a Christian, but it required two positive orders from General Sherman to induce him to accept the greater honor of riding at the head of the army on the great day of the review.

This simple rule will insure success in the highest sense. Many things which men do for themselves shall fail. They shall not gain the end they seek. But nothing done unto the Lord shall fail, not one thing. "Your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Every life may be made beautiful by this simple rule. Too many lives are crooked and dark. There is no beauty in them that we should desire them. They may be full of luxury and prominence, but they are repulsive to every true soul. Why? Low motives, narrow motives, mean motives, sordid motives are behind them all. But one who does everything heartily as unto the Lord will live a life which he shall never have cause to be ashamed. His descendants will not be ashamed of it. The Lord himself will not be ashamed of it. It may lack the worldly glory which many seek, but it will be beautiful in simplicity, in purity, and in righteousness. The beauty of the Lord will adorn it from first to last.

REV. IRVIN MILLER.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Not as yet having seen an account of the death of our lamented pastor in the Advocate, I feel constrained [illegible] him homage, and to convey to you [illegible] ness that gathered over [illegible] friends in our midst when [illegible] that Brother Irvin Miller [illegible] beautiful beyond. Oh, how [illegible] deeds will live after him. He [illegible] ministry for about fifty years, [illegible] as local preacher, but with [illegible] fions, and always imbued with the spirit of his Master, with the kindest regard for widows and orphans and suffering humanity everywhere.

When I remember his beautiful Christian character, I can but think of him as a beloved disciple always following very near his Lord, whom he loved so tenderly, and it was known and said of him that he loved everybody and everybody was his friend. But he has gone from us and we feel our loss to be almost irreparable. He is so sadly missed in that home where such deep sorrow now exists, for in it he was as the giant oak around which the tenderest vines of true affection cling. They sorrow deeply, and we all sorrow with them.

ONE OF HIS MEMBERS.

AN APPRECIATION.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The death of Dr. Irvin Miller, of Walnut Grove, Miss., is a personal grief. He was a St. Paul in the ministry and a St. John in Masonry. Younger men will miss his sweet spirit and fatherly advice. He was the first great man of my boyhood days. For eighteen years my opinion of his greatness has never lost any of its ardor. He was one of those local preachers that have been ballast for the Church. I knew him when he was tall and erect—a handsome man of impressive personality. I knew him when time, misfortunes and accidents had crushed his body, but hurt not that gentle spirit it possessed. He knew the power of God and His work; he knew men—hence his preaching was very effective. His advice was sought in counsels of Church and State. He was a vanguard in the Church, a soldier of the cross, a prophet of God. May his mantle and the power of his spirit fall on the "sons of the prophet."

COMING TO DREAMS AND VISIONS.

I seemed to have been standing at the entrance of the great palace of the Father and the Son, when an admittance was soon to be given me, when suddenly I felt snatched from my place and was dragged down, down, down, amid gloom and darkness, while myriads of fiends were careering about me. Looking up through the gathering gloom, I saw the face of the blessed Saviour turned towards me. I determined to give one utterance of praise before being shut out from view of him forever, when like an irrepressible gush, it rose from me: Glory be to God and the Lamb forever and forever. Immediately the doors of hell were rent from their places, its iron walls and floors were shattered, when every devil ran howling into deeper and darker places of gloom.

I found myself standing in the presence of the Father and the Son, with the notes of hallelujah playing on my lips forever. DUCKWORTH.

ADVOCATE DAY, April 22. Do not forget it.

One who declines to correct a mistake to make believe that he is wise and inerrant fools only himself. Those who know him, so far from acknowledging him as infallible, write him down as an unconscionable egoist.

There is no religion in human heels, and what little there is in human heads is worthless until the heart is touched and responds to the spirit of grace. Devils give intellectual assent to the truth, but their hearts remain unmoved.

Be patient with the chronic fault-finders. They are always with us, but do not mean to be obstructionists. We never yet knew one to object to the methods of doing a thing that did not take much credit to himself when the thing was done.

Sectarianism is not a bug-bear, to be dreaded and shunned, until it assumes the spirit of intolerance. Then it is no better than ancient Phariseeism, the devotees of which compassed sea and land to make one proselyte, and, when made, the product was anything but a saint.

For the first time we see it stated that Methodists, like some other churches, "have long and harmful vacancies" in their pulpits. The brother who makes the statement must have in mind congregational Methodists. It is the boast of Episcopal Methodists that vacancies in our pulpits are filled almost as soon as they occur.

A Baptist brother, writing to the Chicago Standard, says: "Our money goes further, and produces greater results than that of any other denomination." Is it not a pity that the Baptists do not control the money of the world? If they did, Dr. Eaton's "iridescent dream" would be realized in a shorter time than he has set for the conquest of the world by the Baptist hosts.

"The immersion of the believer in water is accepted by the Christian scholarship of the world as New Testament baptism." We do not know whether that is a stretch of imagination or pure assumption. We feel sure, though, that the brother who made the assertion is not acquainted with the scholarship of the Christian world. At any rate, all the scholars are not of one way of thinking. Some are left who believe that baptizing with water, instead of dipping in water, is New Testament baptism.

THE FULNESS OF SALVATION.

Our Lord said, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." He said also, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." The two statements taken in connection reveal the fulness of salvation in that they teach that it is possible for all men to be saved, and for all men to be saved from all sin.

Our Gospel is neither partial in its offer nor incomplete in its operation. Christ who saves "is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him," not only evermore, but from all the corruption and effects of sin. Otherwise, with no consistency could it be said that as a priest he liveth and abideth forever.

It is immaterial at what period in the Christian life the work of freeing the soul from sin is effected, whether in the moment of regeneration, or at a time in the future. The work itself is material. It is essential, for God and sin cannot dwell in the heart at the same time, nor can sin enter heaven. It must be effected in time. The Gospel makes no provision for cleansing the soul after death. It may be done in the last hour, as we dare say it was with the penitent thief on the cross, but there is no Scripture to justify the belief that it is never done until then.

The Gospel offers full salvation in the present—not a partial salvation now, and complete salvation in the future. In the very nature of the case there can be no such thing as a partial salvation. As nothing pure can be sent to hell, and nothing impure can enter heaven, we had as well talk of a man being half damned as half saved. God saves men when they believe with hearts unto righteousness, and the salvation is complete. Hence said St. Paul: "When ye were the servants of sin, ye were free from righteousness * * * * but now, being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." And St. John said: "If we walk in the light as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin."

One of the strange notions entertained is, that though a man may get rid of one or more sins, he cannot get rid of all. Ask one who thus holds whether or not a thief can cease to steal, and he will tell you yes. Apply the question to another sin, and you will get an affirmative answer; but ask him if a man can keep the whole law of God, and he will probably hesitate. Why should he? There is but one answer. He is grounded in the belief that sin is inseparable from human nature, a belief contradictory to the teachings of the Scriptures, and at variance with the character which is ascribed to every true believer.

The secret of the difficulty with many persons is, they fail to distinguish between sin and the liability to sin, and, as reason and experience teach that the liability to sin is essential to human free agency, they conclude that as long as a man lives, so long must sin remain. That liability to sin is inherent and co-existent with life is true, but the individual is not responsible for the inherent tendency. But sin, whether in open act or intention, is known disobedience, and the individual who gives way to it is responsible. And, it must be accepted as true that every act for which man is responsible is avoidable, and can never come to pass unless he wills it. Hence, sin is not inseparable from human nature, and the requirement to live without sin is reasonable.

Many persons, ready to acknowledge that though a man may be guiltless of all actual sins, are not ready to admit that he can be freed from inward sin. This is equivalent to saying that the fountain from which flows the stream can never be purified. It is perhaps for this reason it is sometimes said that the best of Christians commit sin every day. We wonder if those who hold to this view ever stopped to consider that men can sin as egregiously in heart as in life, and that the atonement, which makes provision for the pardon of actual transgression, also provides for the cleansing of the inner man. The Psalmist said, "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear." Our Savior is equally specific in regard to lust which lacks only opportunity for actual gratification. If these things be true, how can a man be saved, if compelled to live all his life in corruption? It is from the heart that evil proceeds, and the heart must be made right. One thus made right cannot sin, because he is born of God. Otherwise, it is impossible to lead a pure life, and the whole scheme of redemption is a failure.

As we read the Scriptures we see that grace makes as full provision for saving the soul from inward sin as it does for helping a man to avoid actual transgression. We acknowledge the difficulties in the way—the influence of Satan, who takes advantage of every opportunity to force evil thoughts into the mind and to encourage their indulgence. We know also that our worldly surroundings thrust upon us temptations that appeal to the heart through our outward senses. And were it a fact that every evil thought is registered as a sin, we would be hopeless, indeed. But such is not the case, and cannot be, unless in connection with the thoughts there is consent and purpose to put the thoughts into practice.

God graciously safeguards the souls of his children by inspiring them to high and holy things. He says to everyone: "Keep thy heart with all diligence," and "set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth." And, no matter what the temptation, he gives grace to withstand it, and to say, "Get thee behind me Satan." And when one considers that every thought may be "brought in obedience to the captivity of Christ," there is no great difficulty in seeing that the Christian can be freed from inward, as well as from outward sin. Until this is done, no man can feel safe, much less can he ever realize that he is complete in Christ. If such freedom is not realized, it is because the individual will not avail himself of the grace which is always at hand.

A holy heart is the Savior's home. He will not dwell where sin exists. When he enters sin departs. If sin is allowed to creep in, he leaves. And if it be true that sin is inseparable from human nature, it follows that the Lord Jesus does not dwell on earth. But the experience of good men and women everywhere contradicts this false and dangerous doctrine. In the very nature of things perfection can never be a matter of experience, for who can ever know and say that the limit of grace has been reached? There can be a desire for it, and a groaning after it, and day by day there may be a nearer approach to the spirit and character of the Master. David looked forward and rejoiced, though he never realized the fullness in this life, but he said, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with Thy likeness."

WHAT KIND OF TEACHERS?

My Dear Doctor Boswell: After reading your editorial in last week's Advocate, I hasten to congratulate you on its pointed and timely deliverance. You are right—go ahead. If the elect are not deceived in some things that are being taught by some teachers, it will be because they have that "spiritual unction" spoken of by St. John, "and have no need" that such men "teach them." The writer hopes he is not an "alarmist," but for the life of him, he can't see any good in the lectures of which you speak. After all, it seems to me that the future of the Church is in the keeping of the (technically) uneducated ministry. Will I be understood?

"I thank thee, oh Father," said the Master, "that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and revealed them unto babes." This is what I mean. An analysis of this Scripture will bring out the matter clearly, as I understand it. Men may be "wise above what is written." One need not tremble for the Word; may well they tremble who would destroy it.

May the Holy Spirit give you wisdom and courage to defend the Bible of our fathers.

As ever yours.

The above letter was not intended for publication, but we do no violence by printing it. The brother who wrote it is a prominent preacher in Arkansas—an educated man, who does not depreciate learning in any department of life, but, like the editor, he sees danger when those, wise above what is written, assume the place of teachers, and undertake to lead the people into strange paths. The rank and file of the ministry will not be stampeded by their utterances, nor turned aside from the great work they are set to do, to save the people, and commit to them the Word of Truth—the faith once delivered to the saints—a thing that cannot be done by raising doubts as to the inspiration and final authority of the Word of God.

PERSONALS.

ADVOCATE Day, April 22. Do not forget it.

We are indebted to Rev. W. W. Murray, of Wilkinson Circuit, for a club of twenty subscribers. And he has more readers in prospect.

A note from Rev. H. S. Spragins, of Oxford, informs us that the Grenada District Conference announced to be held with his charge, has been indefinitely postponed.

Rev. J. E. Wray, pastor of First Church, this city, is booked for the annual sermon before the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference, next Sunday morning, at Alexandria. They will be pleased and profited.

Mrs. A. E. Wyatt, of Vicksburg, writes to correct an error as to the time of holding the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Conference at Laurel, Miss. The date is June 14-17, instead of June 16-20. The members will please take notice.

Dr. W. H. LaPrade, of Jackson, Miss., will preach the commencement sermon for Grenada College, June 3, at 11:00 a. m., and Rev. L. M. Broyles, of Columbus, will preach the sermon before the Epworth League of the College at night.

Rev. J. W. Bell, and the junior preacher, Rev. C. F. Stepp, are doing good work at Minter City and Strathmore. They have raised already over three hundred dollars on the various benevolent enterprises. They look carefully after all the interests of the Church.

Bishop Morrison was with Rev. J. F. Foster, of Jeanerette, nearly the whole of last week, and on Sunday was with the brethren at McComb City, where he was booked to dedicate their elegant new house of worship. He returned to the city on Monday morning.

Rev. J. S. Chadwick, of the North Alabama Conference, associated some time with the late Rev. J. D. Ellis in the editorial work and business management of the Alabama Christian Advocate, has been elected editor of that paper. We welcome Brother Chadwick to the fraternity.

We had a pleasant call last week from Rev. J. E. Denson, of New Iberia. He gave a good account of the work in his charge, which is prospering under his ministry. He has made considerable improvement recently on the parsonage—adding to the comfort and attractiveness of the home.

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Culpepper invite us to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Mattie Key, to Mr. John G. Mackey, of Alabama. The marriage will take place May 3, high noon, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Iuka, Miss. The young people have our prayers and best wishes.

Mr. V. Rousseaux, the patriarch of our Hammond Church, has been working for a club of twenty subscribers to the Advocate. He has sent in fourteen names, and will try to complete the list. He is a layman, nearly 80 years of age. His example might be followed with profit by many younger men.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gore, of St. Francisville, La., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Josie, to Rev. Marion Freeman, of the Louisiana Conference. The marriage will take place in the Church at St. Francisville, on the evening of the 25th of April. They have the good wishes and prayers of many friends.

We are in receipt of a pleasant personal letter from Rev. M. F. Johnson, late of the Louisiana Conference, but now stationed at Altus, Ark. Brother Johnson still loves the Louisiana brethren, and reads with pleasure every item of news from them in the Advocate. On the 18th of March he had the misfortune to lose his father, an old and faithful servant of the Lord.

The revival at Carrollton, Miss., Rev. C. P. Moss, pastor, resulted in the addition of four members on profession of faith. The preaching, except one sermon, by Rev. H. W. Whitnell, was done by Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Pickens. Brother Duncan's work was highly appreciated. On the last Sunday of the meeting all the churches of the town joined in worship with Brother Moss. The house was packed, and brotherly love prevailed. "The spirit of comity between our churches is beautiful, and is worthy of all commendation."

Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Winona, writes us a delightful private letter detailing in part his experience in revival services with the brethren, first at Meridian, with Brother J. W. Crisler, then at Lenox Church, Memphis, with Brother W. C. Sellars, and next with Brother G. H. Martin, at Mississippi Avenue, Memphis. In all these meetings he witnessed scores of conversions "at the altar," where "old-time power rested on the people." Brother Bowen is having great success at Winona, and is looking forward with great interest to the coming of Rev. Sam Jones in May. He is expecting a great revival.

THE THORNTON MEMORIAL FUND.

Owing to the absence from the last session of the Mississippi Annual Conference of the undersigned, no mention was made in the annual report of the Board of Trustees of the Conference Endowment Fund of the Thornton Memorial Fund. This fund was authorized by the Annual Conference in December, 1904, and its foundation was laid by the Joint Board of Finance setting aside $500 to that fund. During the year 1905 the sum of $277 was raised and put into the fund, to which amount the Trustees have added $223 from undirected funds, so that the Thornton Memorial Fund now amounts to $1,000. It is the purpose of the Board to continue the agitation of this matter until the fund amounts to $2,000, of the $1,000 needed, $250 are now subscribed.

The Board appreciates the help it has already received and confidently appeals to our laymen to help us complete this memorial fund.

JOHN W. CHAMPERS,
Pres. Board of Trustees of the Mississippi Conference Endowment Fund.

The following are the committees appointed for the coming District Conference at Bunkie:

Committee on Quarterly Conference Records—A. R. Hoffpauir, L. W. Elliott, J. W. Mitchell.

Committee for License and Admission on Trial—Henry O. White, Lastie N. Hoffpauir, J. W. Booth.

Committee on Deacon's Orders—N. E. Joyner, E. C. Weir, B. H. Sheppard.

Committee on Elder's Orders—Jas. A. Parker, A. C. Holder, H. B. Thompson.

Committee on Public Worship—J. T. Sawyer, P. E.; P. M. Brown, P. C., and L. E. Williams.

Other committees, as may be needed, will be provided for. JOHN T. SAWYER, P. E.

A LAST WORD.

A letter in this morning's mail from Mr. J. D. Moore, chairman of the local committee at Birmingham on General Conference Entertainment says: "We will have no trouble in rooming all the delegates to the General Conference, comfortably, and we hope to make the stay of the General Conference in Birmingham, one of the most pleasant in its history."

By the same mail, Mr. E. H. Jackson, chairman of the railroad committee, writes: "I take this occasion to say that the committee appointed by our church to handle the interests of the General Conference has everything practically arranged, and shall make the effort of our lives to have the Conference a great success, so far as local conditions are concerned." He also notifies me that satisfactory arrangements have been made so far as railroad rates are concerned. The rate is "one first-class fare plus 25 cents from all points in the territory south of the Ohio and Potomac, and east of the Mississippi Rivers." As to date of sale the regulations are as follows:

"Tickets limited to continous passage in each direction will be sold on April 30, May 1 and 2, from all points beyond a radius of 300 miles of Birmingham, and on May 1, 2 and 3, from all points within a radius of 300 miles of Birmingham." These dates apply to the territory described above. The Passenger Associations covering territory not specified in the above have also taken favorable action, and there will be no difficulty about securing tickets at reduced rates from all points.

It has also been provided that "the original purchasers of such tickets may secure an extension of the final limit (which is June 3) to not exceeding June 30, 1906, by personally depositing their tickets with Joseph Richardson, Special Agent, Birmingham, Ala., between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m., not earlier than May 1, 1906, nor later than June 3, 1906, and upon payment of a fee of fifty cents) 50 cents at the time of the deposit.

W. F. McMURRY,
Secretary of Committee on Entertainment.

I desire that every pastor should attend the District Conference, and stay over Sunday. This is due to the good people of Bunkie, who will royally entertain us, and we will ourselves be benefited by remaining to the end. No work will suffer by our absence on this fifth Sunday; and it is doubtless well, as the saying goes, to let our people "have a rest" that day. Let all pray for, and in faith expect, a time of spiritual refreshment at the coming Conference.

REVIVAL AT MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Dear Editor: It may be of interest to the readers of the Advocate, and especially to the Methodists of Mississippi, to know something of the revival which has just closed, and about the spiritual work which is going on here.

Our annual spring revival services were conducted this year by the Rev. Paul B. Kern, of Nashville, Tenn., son of Dr. Kern, of the Vanderbilt Faculty. Services began on Friday evening, March 23, and continued eight days. As usual, the recitation periods were shortened fifteen minutes in the morning, which gave us an hour, from 12 to 1, to meet for religious devotions, and then 8 to 9 in the evening. The students met for a week previous and carried on a prayer service in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, and when Brother Kern reached the college he found plans already formed for a good meeting. The Faculty joined heartily in the meeting, and in the first service, after a short talk by our beloved President and a face-to-face, heart-to-heart talk by Brother Kern on the obligations of a college man, it was evident that there was a great blessing coming to the students.

Mrs. J. E. Walmsley presided at the organ for us, and the song and prayer services were given special attention, and two solos rendered by Miss Robinson, the assistant librarian, were very effective.

Brother Kern's sermons were direct and personal. In each he held up before the people the Christ and him crucified, the life of Christ as the ideal and only perfect example by which we may raise ourselves to the plane which God intends for us to reach. His preaching is logical and forceful, and causes one to look in on self and make a close examination of his relation to God and his fellowmen. One of the most effective means used was the personal interviews in the quiet hours of the afternoon.

Mr. Kern stayed from 1 to 5, and sometimes longer, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, and boys burdened in any way about their souls were at liberty to go in and talk over these life problems in a frank and honest way. About twelve were converted and took a bold stand on the side of Christ. Many were almost persuaded and showed signs and have since shown that they wanted a life better than the one they have possessed. The general spiritual interest of the college was aroused and quickened to greater activity, many new additions have been made to the Bible and missionary studies, and if we are to judge by fruits and outward impressions, our revival was a great success. One service was held for men only and almost every college boy and members of the faculty were present. Another special service was the presentation of the Christian Ministry. Other subjects bearing upon college life were given forceful treatment. It goes without saying to Millsaps that colleges desiring a man to do good work and touch the heart, mind and souls of college men will do well to get this gifted young man just from the Theological Department of Vanderbilt, acquainted with college problems as they exist to-day and who knows how to deal with them when they are discouraged. May rich blessing fresh from a throne of grace abide with us, and may we treasure these precious thoughts from our brother and friend, so that our spiritual interest and welfare may be replenished day by day, and thereby Millsaps College will be a "city set on a hill."

J. A. McKEE.

GLOSTER, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Several months have elapsed since Conference met with us, and though the charge at that time was served by a whole Conference of preachers, there was some work to be done when this scribe was returned for the third year.

If we are to judge by the work that has been done already, this year will be by far the best in the history of the charge. Two years ago we built a parsonage, borrowing the money from the bank. We had raised over half of the indebtedness by subscription, but had been unable to raise it all. The last note was about to mature, and we were all growing anxious. Several weeks ago we wrote to Bishop Morrison, asking him to come to our relief. Last Sunday he was with us, preaching two magnificent sermons. At the conclusion of the morning service he called for $1,150, and in a very few minutes nearly $1,200 was raised. This, then, is the note of our rejoicing—our parsonage is paid for, the church doesn't owe a cent on anything. In a short while the collections ordered by the Conference will be provided for. No small amount of credit is due our presiding elder, Dr. H. E. Jones, for this happy consummation of our fondest hope—the payment of the parsonage debt.

Our membership is small—one hundred and forty. Last year the work raised $1,835; this year it will go to $2,000 and over. I am afraid that I belong to that class of your preachers who haven't done their best for the Advocate, but I suppose you will overlook my derelictions in the past if I send you a long list of new subscribers soon. I'll do this.

With best wishes for the success of the Advocate, and personal regards, Yours fraternally. C. N. GUICE.

It is good for a man to be checked, crossed, disappointed; made to feel his own ignorance, weakness, folly; made to feel his need of God; to feel that, in spite of all his cunning and self-confidence, he is not better off in this world than in a dark forest, unless he has a Father in heaven who loves him with an everlasting love, and a Holy Spirit in heaven who will give him a right judgment in all things and a Savior who can be touched with the feelings of his infirmities.—Charles Kingsley.

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER,

As taught by Jesus as He Sat in a Boat Near the Shore of the Sea of Galilee, the Great Multitude of Listeners Remaining on the Sloping Land. (Matt. xiii, 1-20.)

Golden Text: "The seed is the Word of God." (Luke viii, 11.)

All places where Jesus walked, or where he taught, or where he worked the works of love and compassion were made holy by his having been there, sanctified by the presence of the Son of God. Palestine, the Holy Land; Jerusalem, the Holy City; Gethsemane, the sacred garden where he suffered, and Calvary, where "He poured out his soul unto death" that we might live. Now Galilee, sweet and placid Galilee, peaceful waters that obeyed his voice when tossed by fierce and raging winds and rested under "a great calm" it seems that Jesus loved to linger near the shores of the beautiful sea. Or it may have been that Peter and Andrew and James and John lured him thither, as they were drawn to the scenes of their former life. Now that was all in the past; they were no more fishermen, but were fast preparing to be "fishers of men." In the background was the peaceful waters of the sea, but in the foreground was "the Prince of Peace," "By parables," in "His doctrine" he taught, "Hearken," listen, for the pointed words come to-day to each one of us. "Behold, there went out a sower to sow." What a truth! We are all sowing, every day of our lives: we are sowing, be it good or evil seed—still we are sowing. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

The sower that Jesus speaks of in our lesson is understood to be a good sower, sowing good seed, for the seed represents the Word of God; but remember that all that hear the Word of God are also sowers of this Word.

At this time Jesus is speaking to his hearers as the soil on which the seed is sown, and puts the entire responsibility of results on that soil. So, then, if we hear the Word of God, we must work out our own salvation with fear and trembling, "for it is God that worketh in us both to will and to do of his good pleasure." It has been the good pleasure of God that we live at a time when the facilities of hearing, reading and studying the Word of God are greater than ever before. Therefore, let us reflect that our responsibilities have increased in proportion.

We are not studying this lesson as workers, but we place ourselves among the receivers of the Word, as the ground on which the seed is sown. Now, we will examine the ground, to see what prevents a bounteous yield of the sown seed.

As the sower sowed, some seed fell by the wayside, and the fowls of the air came and devoured it up. The wayside, where many pass to and fro, is hard—the seed lie on the surface. The heart needs to be softened by a sense of our needs, in that we are unfit to be a fruitful hearer—the heart is beaten down hard by contact with the world alone. Our thoughts are distracted, and the birds of fancy, and morbid imagination, carry away the seed. Memory places it beneath the hard crust of a hardened heart.

Some fell on stony ground, where the soil was shallow, and it sprang into life at once, and bid fair to yield a profitable harvest, but the hot sun soon made it droop and die. How saddened we have been, as we have seen how dear ones, who give promise of a good life, are soon, under the influence of the pleasures of the world, made to forget all the good words spoken and all the good resolutions made. This kind must be taught that there is no sufficiency in self, and that "He that hath begun a good work in you will continue it until that day." The same power that makes us forsake sin will make us strong in the hour of trial.

Some fell among thorns: — The thorns of care and uneasiness; the thorns of worldly prosperity; the thorns of love and pleasure, of putting aside God's service on flimsy pretexts. Thorns choke down growth. It helps the field to keep the thorns even out of the fence-corners. Paul wearied under the thorn, but consoled himself that, lest he be exalted above measure, it be not taken away. How our hearts bleed when we think of the thorns that pierced our Savior's brow!

Praise be to God for the good, fruitful ground—hearts that receive the Word with gladness; to whom the old, old story is ever new. In their eagerness to go out and tell the glad news to others, they count it selfish to wait to hear more of it themselves. They go forth weeping, may-be, "but return again rejoicing." These are they that are fruitful workers for the Master. At first, let them not be discouraged by only thirty-fold, for after a time the Lord, "who gives the increase," may double their results to sixty-fold, then "take courage and go forward," until the hundred-fold reward will be theirs. All things contained in our service to the Master are progressive. Jesus taught it, saying: "First the blade, then the corn; after that the full corn in the ear." Peter set forth the principles when he wrote of our "growth in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." Paul notes this growth even from the time his converts were "babes in Christ," until the time when he calls himself "Paul the aged."

Therefore, as we rejoice in a growth in a progression toward Christian holiness, and as we are never without motions, either toward or from the desired state or condition, let us fear lest our surroundings—hard soil, stony ground, thorns—all as a figure of that which works against us—make us become listless or careless, and from that the growth might be toward evil, and not toward yielding good fruit.

WILLIAM C. COYLE, son of Jesse and Lucy Coyle, was born in Copiah county, Miss., April 9, 1837, and died in Wesson, Miss., March 2, 1906. Brother Coyle was twice married. His first marriage was to Miss Mary J. Haggett, March 3, 1861. This union was blessed with 17 children; 3 are dead and 14 are living. He joined the Confederate army in 1862, and was a true and faithful soldier until the war closed. Was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1872, and lived an upright Christian life until his death. His second marriage was to Mrs. Sallie C. Watson, nee Wordin, May 14, 1896. This marriage was blessed with one child. So he leaves fifteen living children and his wife to mourn their loss. Brother Coyle was a true man and a good neighbor. His pure Christian life developed until he was fully prepared for the inheritance to which he has gone. But the sweetest flowers of his life bloomed in his own home—the tender and protecting love of his pure heart inclosed as a mantle the loved ones about his own hearthstone. His happy face will be missed in that home, but we would not call him back from his heavenly home to this world of trouble. His work is done—his mission finished, and he is safe, safe at home in his Father's kingdom. In the home to which he has gone are many loved ones. Into the very presence of God he has gone, for it is written, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

W. W. SIMMONS.

CHARITY SALUDA DECKER (nee Nesom, nee Higginbotham) was born Aug. 7, 1869, and died March 10, 1906. Once more the angel of death has come to our home, and the sweet spirit of our darling has gone to rest. She passed across the dark river so silently that those who loved her best had no warning of her departure. Only a noiseless ripple of the dark waters told us a boat had passed from view on that voyage from whence no traveler returns. We could not wave farewell or look into the tender eyes of our dear one as the dreamless sleep shut them from our sight. Our sorrow has been greater because of this, but we know what she would have said, for she lived in such a manner that she had no fear of death, and when it came she just wrapped the drapery of her couch about her and fell asleep. We know that she loved all that was pure and beautiful in this life, and looked for a dawn beyond the night. Her life was filled with sorrow and suffering, for she had been alone in the Garden of Gethsemane, where our Savior often calls his followers to draw them nearer to him and to teach them his prayer—"Father, not my will, but thine be done." She joined the M. E. Church, South, at an early age, and even when a child she listened earnestly to the teaching of dear old Grandfather Higginbotham, seeming even then to have the faith of a true and tried Christian. She leaves two children, a father, step-brother and several brothers and sisters to mourn their loss. We miss her everywhere. All the dear, familiar scenes of childhood are empty without her, but we know that God will keep her safely, and that glad day, for which all other days are made, He will give her back to us, and "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away."

SISTER EFFIE.

Mrs. ELEANOR E. McLAIN, daughter of Rev. Wm. James and Mrs. Margaret James, was born near Newtonia (then Whitestown), Miss., on April 11, 1827, and died March 13, 1906, at 1 o'clock and twenty minutes a.m. Mrs. McLain was educated at Newton Institute, and in early life became a member of the Methodist Church, South, of which her father was a minister. She united with the Church at the famous old Bethel Camp Ground, and she continued a member of the Bethel congregation during the remainder of her life. She led a consistant life, and was ever true to the faith she professed. She was married in 1882 to Mr. Isaac D. McLain, of Amite County, Miss. After spending a short time in his home, they returned to her home near Newtonia, Miss., where Mr. McLain died in February, 1902, leaving Mrs. McLain alone. In her widowhood she sent to Texas for her nephew, who came with his family and lived with her and looked after her and cared for her as an own son should do. Mrs. McLain was a blessing to those with whom she was brought in contact, and many still live to call her blessed. She led a Christian life, teaching others, both by example and precept, the lessons of life. She was naturally of a quick temper; but early in life she learned to control it, and never permitted it to control her. She fully realized the truth of the Scripture: "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." She was a woman of strong will and of indomitable energy; and was never contented unless actively employed. She was a great sufferer for years, yet never complained, but bore her sufferings patiently and cheerfully. She was not content to be a mere babe in Christ; but she added to her faith, courage, knowledge, self-control, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love. And these abounding in her, rendered her that she was neither idle nor unfruitful in the knowledge and service of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. She lived in Christ, she died in Christ, and in him will she be raised to life everlasting.

D. L. P.

Mrs. ROSANNA ELIZABETH WILCOX was born in Jackson parish, La., July 28, 1854, and died Feb. 23, 1906. She was 51 years, 5 months, 5 days old when she died. She was converted when quite small, and joined the Missionary Baptist Church, remained a member a few years and then joined the Church of her real choice, the M. E. Church, South, and remained a consistent member of it until her death, in February of this year. She was truly religious, and a great worker. She was a fine specimen of Christian character, and manifested the spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ in her every-day life, and those that knew her "took knowledge of the fact that she had been with Jesus." I believe she was the most conscientious woman in all things I have ever known. Her will was the will of God—and she proved it by her daily life. She was married to Dr. C. K. Wilcox, May 29, 1880, and they lived a happy life together until January, 1890, when he died and left her to grapple with this cold, unfriendly world alone, and yet she was not alone because she had Christ with her through the sunshine and the shadow. She was a very charitable woman; kind to all, specially the sick and needy, and was constantly on the outlook to help some one in need. She was a great Church worker, both in the Sunday school and Woman's Home Mission Society. She was a great worker in the W. C. T. U., and was president of the local union here when she died. She was also president of the Woman's Home Mission Society here and one of the most faithful teachers in the Sunday-school. The town here—and the Church—and all have sustained a great loss in her death. She leaves a mother and sister, and four brothers and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. But our loss is her eternal gain. She has gone beyond the river and stacks her arms of Christian warfare on the banks of sweet deliverance, where she can lean her weary head on the bosom of Jesus. We miss her counsel and kind words. We miss her in our homes, we miss her in the Sunday-school and Church. We miss her in the sick chambers of the town, we miss her at the house of mourning, for she was always there. In short, we miss her all around. She has gone; but her influence remains and generations yet unborn will rise up and call her blessed. Let us imitate her life, and live as she lived. God bless the bereaved aged mother and all the relatives and friends.

Yours in deep sympathy,

WE TAKE ALL THE RISK

All We Ask

is a Test, a Test at our Risk. We know what we have to offer, we know the public. We trust to the power of what we offer. We trust to the public's sense of Honor and Gratitude. The sick man or woman suffering day by day for lack of the right kind of help, is glad and happy to pay when they get the help. We know this we know Vitæ-Ore will help, we know we will get our pay, and so we take the risk. We want to take it—all of it. We are glad to do it.

It is not a gamble, not an experiment, not a chance, but a test, and a test that leads to absolute sure conviction, to assurance, to positive knowledge that Vitæ-Ore is the best medicine on earth for sick and ailing, poor, thin, weak, debilitated, worn-out, Rheumatism-racked, Stomach-tortured, Kidney-tyrannized men and women. It is a test that leads to unassailable certainty that Vitæ-Ore is the Right Medicine for him or her who makes the test—a test that leads to our pay and Vitæ-Ore's popularity. That is why we take the Risk.

You Don't Risk

One Single, Solitary, Red Cent. You must spend 2 cents for a stamp to write for it or we cannot know that you need it, but we will return a 2-cent stamp to you after 30 days if you ask for it. We want the test to be absolutely, entirely and completely free of any and all cost to you if Vitæ-Ore does not help you. We do not want it to cost you one single penny unless the 30-day treatment benefits you, unless it proves Vitæ-Ore the remedy for your ills, as it has proven the remedy for so many thousands of others. We don't want a nickle of your hard-earned money unless you are glad, willing, happy and proud to send it to us for what Vitæ-Ore accomplishes for you. Then we want our pay and deserve it, but not otherwise! We take absolutely all of the risk. We leave it entirely for you to decide, to say that we have earned our pay or that we do not deserve it. Read our special offer; read the proof we give upon this page; read what Vitæ-Ore is; read what it has accomplished for others, and write today for the $1.00 package on 30 days' trial.

AFTER FORTY YEARS

Vitæ-Ore Brings Health, Comfort and Happiness After 40 Years of Disease and Drugging—A Modern Miracle.

HILLSDALE TENN.—For nearly forty years I suffered with Rheumatism and Piles. I cannot begin to describe the acute misery I experienced at times—it was too terrible. I was under skilled treatment of one kind or another almost continually during this time. I went from one physician to another as the years went on; altogether about twenty-five different doctors have sought to cure me. They treated me for Rheumatism, for Heart Trouble, for Liver and Kidney Disease; each doctor would have some new explanation of my trouble, but they all did what they could for me. I used many medicines and about all the home treatments I heard of, buying one after the other in the hope that I at least would be relieved, as I had grown to believe a cure impossible.

Sleep was almost impossible. My back was so weak I could not walk, but had to crawl about when I wanted to move.

I saw the advertisement offering Vitæ-Ore on thirty days' trial to every sufferer, and sent for it, not expecting a cure but in the hope of some relief. It was promptly mailed to me and I prepared it and used it carefully for thirty days. The result was astonishing as well as a great joy to me. My back was stronger; I was almost free from pain. I sent for more Vitæ-Ore and kept it up. I have used eight packages altogether and am now well—entirely so—and believe I am as happy as the happiest in the land. I never tire of telling others that I have been almost dead and buried and that Vitæ-Ore resurrected me to life, health and happiness. I am again an active, and, I hope, a useful member of society, walking about, doing my work and enjoying life as I have not for forty years past. J. M. SNOW.

V.-O. Will Do As Much For You

as it has done for hundreds of readers of this paper if you will give it a trial. Send for a $1.00 package at our risk. You have nothing to lose but the stamp to answer this advertisement. We want no one's money whom Vitæ-Ore cannot benefit. You are to be the judge! Can anything be more fair? What sensible person, who desires a cure and is willing to pay for it, can hesitate to try Vitæ-Ore on this liberal offer? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases, two or three for chronic, obstinate cases. We mean just what we say—do just as we agree. Write today for a package at our risk and expense, giving your age and ailments, and mention this paper.

Read This Liberal Thirty-Day Trial Offer

If You Are Sick we want to send you a $1.00 package of Vitæ-Ore, the great healer from the earth's veins, enough for 30 days' use, postpaid, and we want to send it to you on 30 days' trial. We don't want a penny—we just want you to try it, just want a letter from you asking for it, and will be glad to send it to you. We take absolutely all the risk—we take all chances. You don't risk a penny! All we ask is that you use V.-O. for 30 days and pay us $1.00 if it has helped you, if you are satisfied that it has done you more than $1.00 worth of positive, actual, visible good. Otherwise you pay nothing, we ask nothing, we want nothing. Can you not spare 100 minutes during the next 30 days to try it? Can you not give 5 minutes to write for it, 5 minutes to properly prepare it upon its arrival, and 3 minutes each day for 30 days to use it. That is all it takes. Cannot you give 100 minutes to insure for you new health, new strength, new blood, new force, new energy, vigor, life and happiness? You are to be the judge. We are satisfied with your decision, are perfectly willing to trust to your honor, to your judgment, as to whether or not V.-O. has benefited you. Read what Vitæ-Ore is, and write today for a dollar package on this most liberal trial offer.

From the Earth's Veins to Your Veins.

Vitæ-Ore is an ore-substance—a combination of minerals—mined from the ground, from the Earth's veins. It contains iron, sulphur and magnesium, three properties most essential for the retention of health in the human system, and one package of the ORE, mixed with a quart of water, equals in medicinal strength and curative value nearly 800 gallons of the powerful mineral waters of the globe, drank fresh at the springs. The mineral properties which give to the waters of the world's noted healing springs their curative virtue, come from the rock or MINERAL ORE through which water forces its way to its outlet, only a very small proportion of the medicinal power in the ORE being absorbed by the liquid. Vitæ-Ore is a combination of these medicine-bearing minerals, powdered and pulverized, requiring only the addition of water to make a most remarkable healing and curing draught. Thousands have pronounced it the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Anæmia, Dropsy, Catarrh of Any Part, Liver, Kidney & Bladder Troubles, Stomach & Female Disorders, Nervous Prostration, General Debility.

IF you are sick or suffering from any of the above named disorders, in all of which V.-O. is of special value, don't let another day go by before you send for a trial package.

It Is Different

from anything ever before offered, from other treatments you have used, as is pure milk from chalk and water or the brilliant sunlight from a tallow candle. It flows like life through your veins, pure as it came from the veins of the earth, and acts in a different manner, cures in a different way. It is different from all others and can be differently offered to those in need—on trial, the user to be the judge—a way sellers of medicine dare not duplicate or copy. Send for a dollar package today and test it at our risk. Do not delay, but do it today.

FATHER, MOTHER AND SON

All Cured of Serious Ailments

And All Permanently Cured.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Vitæ-Ore has done much for myself and family:

My husband has been afflicted with Catarrh for years and in 1900 it settled in his Stomach and nothing would help him. His Stomach would hardly stand anything. Whenever he tried to eat it caused coughing spells, at which times he vomited blood, and his death was expected at almost any hour. It was then my sister visited me. She had used V.-O. with good results and had some with her, which she gave him to try. My husband got better almost from the first dose, and was out of danger in a short time. We sent for more Vitæ-Ore and he kept on taking it until he got completely well, and he has remained so ever since, although now sixty-seven years of age.

About that time my son took very sick and the doctors pronounced it Quick Consumption and said he could not get well. We gave him Vitæ-Ore and he grew well and hearty. He was then twenty-six years of ago and now is past thirty-two, is married and has two beautiful and healthy children.

I, personally, suffered for many years with Female Trouble until doctors told me that I had to have an operation as the only thing that could give me relief, and I consented. This was over ten years ago and it left me very weak and but very little benefited. It was the Vitæ-Ore which has given me strength and new blood so that I have since been able to attend to my housework. I will be sixty-six years old in May, but don't feel that old; I go about my work and duties now much better than I did twenty years ago. All of this we owe to Vitæ-Ore. MRS. EMMA SACHS.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

JOHN W. BOSWELL, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1906. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Manager.

WHOLE NO. 5202. "PROVE ALL THINGS; HOLD FAST THAT WHICH IS GOOD." VOL. 53—NO. 17.

DR. JOHN T. SAWYER,

Presiding Elder Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS.

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

Glances at the World.

Relief will come to the prohibition territory of Mississippi through the good office of the American Express Company. Heretofore this company has been the medium through which whisky dealers have set at naught the prohibition laws of this State. Their work was done on the C. O. D. plan. The people tried in vain to stop it, and as a last resort appealed to Congress, but that body is slow and uncertain. Pending legislation the O. R. T. (Order of Railroad Telegraphers we suppose), to which order the whole business was offensive, the majority of operators being also express agents, took the matter up, and laid it before the express managers, and now comes the good news that after July 1 the American Express Company will handle no more C. O. D. whisky packages in the prohibition territory of Mississippi. Honor to the Company, and double honor to the agents who succeeded in securing the order! If Congress will follow this up by passing the Williams bill prohibiting such traffic, our State prohibition laws will become effective. But we cannot feel altogether safe until Congress acts.

The great State of Mississippi has again been scandalized, this time by one holding a high office of honor and profit. Mr. McNair, one of the Railroad Commissioners, so far gave way to his appetite as to get under the influence of liquor, and beyond self-control. In this condition he became noisy and offensive in the State Capitol, and disturbed the peace. He also went to the Rankin county farm, a State convict farm, where in the house, and at the table of the Sergeant in charge of the farm, he got so noisy and profane, that he was first taken to a private room, and then by two convicts, under the order of the Sergeant, he was put in a hack and started back to Jackson. At the Capitol his noise and profanity, it is said, was heard across the street, to the disturbance of the neighbors. The Senate and House took the matter up and will investigate. After such an exhibition of himself, Mr. McNair should not wait for an investigation, or a request from anybody to resign his position. He should resign at once. However, worthy otherwise, a man who will get drunk is not a suitable man for high office. His example is anything but helpful to young men.

The craze for "reform spelling" has broken out again, and on many sides we see suggestions, and specimens. Every silent and what is to be otherwise useless letters are to be dropped, and the world will be asked to adopt this reform—not all at once, but by degress. This is perhaps well, as it would be a great strain on the literary world to suddenly set aside the accustomed orthography and fall into line with Mr. Carnegie and President Butler. They might get along very well when they strike such words as bivouac, bizarre, business, phthisic, phthongometer, etc., but when they hit buy, by, and bye, and try to distinguish between know and no, they will meet with some trouble. The uneducated classes would have less difficulty. "Fonetic" spelling comes natural to them. In fact, judging by a few letters that come to this office, we are inclined to think the reformers could get some valuable hints by arranging for an extensive correspondence with the people. At any rate it would be in the interest of the public to spend some of the money Mr. Carnegie has given for the cause among them.

The papers are using gallons of ink in printing accounts of John Alexander Dowie, First Apostle of the Christian Catholic Church, and self-styled "Elijah the Restorer." For some weeks past he has been absent in Mexico—it was reported in search of health. Before he left for Mexico he appointed a representation with power of attorney. After his departure it was given out that everything was not right in Zion City. Extravagance, mismanagement, etc., were charged, and at a great meeting of the Dowieites, Dowie was formally deposed, and suspended from membership. When these things came to Dowie's ears in Mexico, he started hurriedly for Chicago with threats of vengance. But though he has been in Chicago a week, he has not at this writing ventured inside of Zion City. Matters are being investigated by lawyers, and the differences will probably be settled in the courts. Dowie's wife joined the revolutionists against her husband, not so much because of differences between him and Zion, but because he had enthusiastically avowed the doctrine of polygamy, in accordance with which avowal it is said he had "planned a harem of seven wives," and had already proposed to five women. This is not fully authenticated, but the public is prepared to accept as true any statement concerning this erratic and fanatical man.

The surest indication of degeneracy of the present age is seen in the greed for gain. It is so all-absorbing and insatiate as to let nothing stand in the way of appropriation and accumulation. This is true not only of corporations which are said to have no souls, but of multitudes of individuals. That many accumulate large fortunes, legitimately we have no reason to doubt, nor have we any doubt that many others accumulate dishonestly. And one of the worst features discovered is that rich men will resort to tricks of all sorts to increase their gains. Rich railroad corporations do not hesitate to grant rebates to large shippers to keep them from shipping their goods by other roads. And large shippers will bill their goods under weight to save freight. It has just been discovered that shippers, by this method, have defrauded the railroads leading from Chicago out of something near $200,000. In a hundred ways men are robbing corporations and each other out of their dues. And what is more, they so cover up their rascality as to make it next to impossible to convict and punish them. Many of these big sinners are leaders in commercial enterprises. The poor grafter who will violate or evade the law for the paltry sum of five dollars, is not a whit worse than the capitalist or manufacturer who swindles the government or some great corporation out of thousands. But the one is punished, while the other goes free.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Now that the New Orleans District Conference has led the way in commendation of the Christian Advocate, we hope other District Conferences will do likewise. One presiding elder has written to us saying that he proposed having a special committee appointed to look after the Advocate and other publications. Another says he "will appoint a man to give it special attention." We thank these brethren, and all others who are speaking so kindly to the paper we are now sending out.

We greatly regret our inability to comply always with requests of brethren who send us matter and insist that it be printed "in next week's issue of the Advocate." We often receive such requests when one side of the paper (pages 2, 3, 6, 7, 10, 11, 14 and 15) have already been printed, and matter for the other side is in the printer's hands. And we are crowded nearly all the time. We would accommodate our friends if we could.

In reply to several inquiries we answer: Brethren who make up clubs at $1.25 each subscriber are at liberty to add as many more above the twenty required as they can secure, and in making up the clubs they can count renewals at the same figure, provided the person renewing pays up what is behind, if anything. If a subscriber is behind, it is no trouble to tell how much is due. Add the amount to the club rate and renew.

A Conference for leaders in young people's work will be held under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Missionary Movement, at Asheville, N. C., June 29 and July 8, 1906. The purpose of this Conference is to enable Missionary Secretaries in charge of Young Peoples' work and leaders in Sunday school and young peoples' organizations to spend a week or more in the uninterrupted Conference of prayer. The Conference is also intended as a training school for leaders in the work of local churches and Sunday schools.

The American Humane Association is a federation of societies and individuals for the prevention of cruelty, especially cruelty to children and animals. Just now the Association is endeavoring to secure the enforcement of United States laws in regard to the transportation of stock over railroads. The law now requires that stock in transit shall not be left without rest and food and water longer than twenty-eight hours. Stock men and railroad men not only disregard the law, but are trying to lengthen the time, so that they may do under the law what they are now doing against the law. The Humane Association is giving close attention to the bill now before the Senate, and will not allow it to pass without great opposition.

The Fifteenth General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, (no session having been held in 1862, on account of the war between the States) will convene in Birmingham, Ala., May 3, 1906. It will be of interest and importance to the whole Church. Every Methodist who loves the Church ought to bear the Conference in mind, and pray daily for the blessing of God to rest upon the body.

A QUESTION.

Mr. Editor: I have always admired my good Brother Lewis, and considered him one of the safest men among us; but in my judgment he has gone awry for once on a question of larger districts. He says he does not intend to discredit the presiding eldership at all, and if the next sentence he says, "The presiding elder is not needed in many of our charges on Sunday." If, as he says, the office is the outgrowth of the genius of the church, and is necessary to carry forward our work, where is the congregation that does not need him? Have we some congregations that have outgrown the genius of the church, and have no work to be carried forward by the leadership of a wise presiding elder? Some years ago the pastor of a strong congregation urged the building of a new church; his leading members were opposed. They agreed to repair and remodel the old church at a cost of $2,500; the pastor could only consent against his judgment. At the Quarterly Conference the question came up, and the presiding elder made a strong plea for the new church, showing that whatever they did to the old church would be unsatisfactory, and would not meet the demands of the prosperity of the community. It stopped the repairs, and now they have a $10,000.00 church. Bro. Lewis says, "send him to the country on Sunday; that many of our strong stations prefer to hear their own pastor."

If this is true it is not the fault of the presiding eldership; it is because the wrong man is the pastor. Put these drawing preachers in the presiding eldership, and the other fellow in the strong station, and let him learn to draw. The presiding eldership is the medium for keeping these strong stations connectional, and unselfish in the great work of the church.

Your system would make him simply an administrative officer. The spirit and law of the church makes him pastor, preacher, evangelist, and administrative in his office. "He is to travel through his district, in order to preach and to oversee the spiritual and temporal interest of the church." Have these strong stations and their pastors nothing in common with the country place? Do they not need in many things the unbiased judgment and godly wisdom of the presiding eldership to guide them in the affairs of the church?

"Send the presiding elder to the country on Sunday," and it will not be long until these strong stations will make a stronger kick because of the service they get and the amount they pay. My experience in this difficult and responsible place for eleven years has convinced me that there is an important work in these strong stations that no one but the presiding elder can, or dare to do. Send him to the country on Sunday, and you destroy his influence and the sympathy of the congregation, and when the time comes for making the appointment for the station they can justly claim that he is not informed. The men who have been put into this place have done as much to help or hinder the work of the church as the pastor. He says, "the purpose of large districts is not to pay large salaries to the presiding elder." The figures show that this has been the result wherever it has been done, even in our Conference. Every time this question has come up in the cabinet, this has been the strongest and almost the only plea. I would not misrepresent Bro. Lewis, but his illustration would indicate that his purpose in decreasing the number of presiding elders was to increase the salary of the pastor. He says the Methodists want to raise the salary of their pastor, but there is the salary of the presiding elder which must be paid, and they leave the pastor's salary at the same old figure. This has not been my experience or observation for thirty-five years. But, to the contrary, there is an earnest desire to pay the pastor if everything else goes unpaid in our stations. The Presbyterian congregation in our Conference that pays the pastor $1,200, and the Methodist $1,000 is not at Tupelo, or anywhere else. We are leading all the churches in support of the ministry, and this is largely due to the influence and the work of the presiding elder. But after all, is the money consideration the most important?

Are we for the sake of a few dollars to go into the salary of the station preacher to turn the presiding elder out as merely a business manager even in the country? This is unjust to the people and the preacher.

The same argument used for fewer presiding elders, and larger districts, may be used for fewer Bishops. If we would reduce the number of Bishops to about six it would save about $25,000, most of it to go on the salary of the station preachers. The office of presiding elder is of more importance to the success of the church if properly administered than that of Bishop, and yet I would not think for one moment of doing away with the episcopacy because it costs a pittance.

I hope you will not think I have any kick against station preachers. I am one of them. I have an elegant people to serve, and they pay me $1250, and whatever they are asked for on the P. E. salary, and are glad to hear him when he comes. I am glad to have him with me once a quarter; sorry they did not make another district so he could give me a full Saturday and Sunday, four times a year. I need him to tell me what I am doing or not doing. He can find out how I stand and help me to do better. Two years ago I was in conversation with an official layman of a sister church whose congregation was being served by a college man, and a full-fledged theologue, young, sprightly, promising. Said this brother, "There are two things that are in his way. It is hurting him and the congregation." I said, tell him; and you will do him and the congregation a great kindness. Said he, "I cannot, he would think me officious. We need a presiding elder. If you had him you would make a great man of him." And so you will find that among us many of our strong stations are filled by men who were made largely what they are in this way. Had it not been for some presiding elder who felt an interest, and saw his needs, and exhorted, reproved, and encouraged, they would have been in the woods yet. Spread them out over twenty-five pastorial charges, under whip and spur, and when the end of the year comes he will only have formed a passing acquaintance with the preachers and people, and both will be afraid to risk his judgment in giving advice about appointments. Make the limit of twelve appointments in each district, fill them with the best men we have, and watch the results.

LICENSING OF PREACHERS.

Dear Brother Boswell: My dear friend, Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, thinks it unwise to change the licensing of preachers from the District Conference back to the Quarterly Conference. Twelve months ago I would not have taken issue with him, but last summer and fall I traveled over the sunk lands of north and east Arkansas, the rocky hills of southwest Arkansas, and through the southern part of the Indian Territory. I had plenty of time, as I was seeking health. I attended Church in town and country, and in all my travels I found but two local preachers, and they both lived in towns. Not a single Methodist preacher did I find residing in the country, but in every community I found from one to five Baptist preachers, and preachers in these holiness bands and other side-shows all wielding an influence for the denomination to which they belonged. Many of these preachers under our old system of licensing preachers would have been local preachers in our Church, that, as the Doctor says, could have received license in our Church, but they do not, and our success depends not on what men could do, but on what they do. The District Conference is sometimes fifty miles away, where they are to go before an examining committee, and to many of them it is a very difficult task. Others offer them license at once, and they fall in and are lost to our Church. In all these hill communities we have a number of Methodists who seldom see a Methodist preacher, and, when they do, he comes out at 3 p.m., preaches and returns to town, as a rule, and our people are left to take care of themselves; hence, it is no wonder that we are not licensing preachers in these sections.

The Pope of Rome said once, "Give me the maidens of this generation, and I will have the mothers of the next, and with these, I can take the world." Give me the "swampers and hillsters" of this generation, and I will have the preachers, lawyers, doctors and successful business men of the next generation, and, with these, I will take all this country, except the cities and great centers.

If we lose these we are doomed as a Church. As we increase the difficulty of getting license to preach we cut off many which, under the old system, we would get. When it was possible for almost anyone to get license to preach in our Church, the Church suffered but little from incompetent local preachers. If they cannot preach, the people do not go out to hear them, and their labors come to an end.

I heartily wish we had these local preachers in every community, wielding an influence for our Church. There is no danger of too many preachers. "I would that the people were all prophets." I do hope that the General Conference will do all they can to encourage our young men to enter the ministry.

TEXAS METHODISM AND ELSE.

My Dear Doctor Boswell: Let me congratulate all concerned on the "new dress" of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, with other important changes which have been made for its improvement. Our Texas Methodism is more progressive to-day than at any time since my connection with it, twelve years ago. Church building has been pushed till our cities are being adorned with magnificent structures of worship, and even the rural appointments, many of them, have comfortable church houses. I am now in my eighth year of pastoral work in the bounds of the old East Texas, and now the Texas Conference, and with the co-operation of my people I have been able to build two splendid church houses and one four-room parsonage. I am now enjoying for the third year a splendid five-room parsonage built by some former pastor. And just here let me digress for enough to say that I take great pleasure in nailing on the palings and keeping things in general fixed around our lovely parsonage home, a thing some of our preachers don't do. Our people have had, and are still having, good revivals in Houston, Dallas and other places. Rev. George Stewart came and helped Dr. Moore, at Shearn, Houston, and according to the Houston Post the meeting was a success. Rev. Mr. Brown is now helping Brother Sexton there at his new place, St. Paul, so recently named, and great good is being done. And then the inimitable Abe Mulkey and his "Miss 'Liza" (his wife) began last night there with Rev. Ellis Smith at Tabernacle Church. Dr. Chapman, the great religious campaigner, with nearly a half-score of helpers, recently closed a great series of meetings in Dallas.

Perhaps your readers have kept up with the great local option movement in this State, but to know and understand it in all of its mighty momentum, one must be on the ground. Some of our great dailies, I am sorry to say, are fighting it with might and power, which reminds me somewhat of Demetrius, when his "craft" was endangered by Paul's plain preaching against the idol worship of the goddess Diana. Dr. Rankin is doing valiant service to the Church and for civic righteousness in his able management of the Texas Advocate. While he had brought down upon his head the condemnation of the breweries and Saloon folks, as well as some of the great whisky dailies, yet he stands for the right, and speaks out his mind in meeting, and that in no uncertain sound.

Now, before closing, let me have the hands of Brother T. W. Lewis and Doctor Sullivan: The former has a strong piece in the Advocate of Feb. 1, on the need of a revival, and the latter in a recent number, among other things, says that he heartily endorses Brother Lewis' piece.

Oh, how we do need a revival of old-time heart-felt religion! And, from experience, I am sure that I shall not look for it to come through the "stamping, yelling, laughing and (forced) crying" preacher who lives miles away, and whose work is to "hold meetings for the brethren," and who will make no money contract, but "let the meeting run itself;" the meeting may run successfully or otherwise, yet the seventy-five or ninety dollars is expected. Certainly it is a calamity that in many places our laymen hold the idea that the pastor, though beloved and highly appreciated, cannot hold a genuine revival meeting. We have been sowing that kind of seed perhaps, and are now only reaping what has been sown.

God bless you and all our old friends of the old North Mississippi Conference.

REV. MURDOCK JAMES McDONALD.

Murdock James McDonald, son of Murdock and Effie Douglas McDonald, was born in South Carolina Dec. 2, 1822; married to Miss Rebecca Hendrix, of South Carolina, Oct. 9, 1842, and died March 28, 1906.

His wife was a woman of refinement—industrious, intelligent. There were born to this couple eleven children—five sons and six daughters. All five of the sons are living, and three of the daughters. All are members of the M. E. Church, South, and have filled and are filling important positions in the Church.

The 21st day of May, 1900, was a very solemn day with Uncle Murdock (as we called him) and his children, when they bade adieu to wife and mother, and she left her home at Beech Springs, Miss., for her home in heaven.

During the summer of 1835 Rev. Kenneth Murchison conducted a meeting at the Academy, Chesterfield Courthouse. One of the results of that meeting was that Murdock James McDonald, a 13-year-old boy, gave his hand to the preacher, his heart to God, and his life to the Church. He impressed the preacher as a boy of superior talents, and possessing the elements of leadership. He was appointed at once class-leader. Proving efficient, he was licensed to exhort in 1836, and, being so very successful as an exhorter, he was licensed to preach in 1837. He was 16 years old.

Rev. David Derrick, Presiding Elder, signed licenses both to exhort and to preach. Brother McDonald was appointed by the Bishop to supply Cabarrass Circuit, Barnwell Circuit, and some others.

Brother McDonald was very successful, loyal and competent from the very beginning, holding some of the very best camp meetings and revivals. He was a strong preacher. After having spent one year as class-leader, one year as exhorter, and eighteen years as a local preacher, he, with his wife and children, in the fall of 1855, left South Carolina for Mississippi, and arrived in Neshoba County Feb. 9, 1856. He lived near Dixon a few years. He then bought land near Beech Springs, and there spent the remainder of his life.

In 1856 Brother McDonald taught school at old Carolina Church, in Neshoba County, and for several years he gained his support by teaching, farming and running a public gin. He served Hickory, Chunkey and Decatur Circuits as supply, and was successful. He was appointed Probate Judge for Neshoba County, and held that position for some time. He was ordained deacon at Camden, S. C., Dec. 22, 1844, by Bishop James O. Andrew; ordained elder at Kosciusko in December, 1861, by Bishop James O. Andrew.

Seventy-one years class-leader, exhorter and preacher, and never a complaint brought against him!

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, made no mistake when she authorized Uncle Murdock to preach the Gospel according to her usage. As a right interpreter of the word of God, he had few equals. As a loyal local preacher, he had no superior. As a preacher who was devoted to God, the Church, and his pastor, no one ever surpassed him.

Rev. P. H. Howse and L. L. Jones, his former pastors, who were intimately acquainted with him, say: "He was a man of strong character, wonderful memory, and very correct in his interpretation of the word of God. Few preachers approached near him in loyalty to God and the Church. Ready at any time to assist his pastor and defend his character; very conservative and judicious, gifted in conversation, strong in prayer and deeply pious—we knew he would die right, because he lived right."

For two years Uncle Murdock had patiently awaited the summons of death. He suffered untold agony, but never a murmur was heard from him. His mind was clear to the last; he knew every one; his last words were: "Bless the Lord, O, my soul; bless His holy name."

After all these long years of labor and anxiety, having finished his work, having done and suffered the will of God, on March 28th, 10 p. m., 1906, at the mature age of 83 years, 4 months and 26 days, he went to Heaven from the home of his oldest daughter, Mrs. Effie Turner, at Beech Springs, Miss., surrounded by his children, grandchildren, pastor and friends. His last request was carried out. Brother Miller, who had preceded him to Heaven by eight days, we could not have with us. His pastor, Brother J. R. Hays, and J. C. Long buried his body with appropriate services in the old family cemetery at the Beech Springs campground, by the side of his ever-faithful wife. This pastor and circuit will so much miss Uncle Murdock. A preacher was very fortunate to have his company and prayers. His children's interest never abated. Everything that could be done for him was done. Prayers, sympathy, tears, affection and money were lavished upon him. His children have covered themselves with glory, having the body of their father put away with highest honors.

One of the last texts used by him was Matt. xxii. 42. "What think ye of Christ?" God grant that his children and grandchildren may have the same opinion of Christ that he had, and, as they have promised to meet him in Heaven, may these promises be fulfilled. Peace to his ashes. We will see you again Uncle Murdock, on the resurrection morn. Good-bye, but not forever.

LETTER FROM GILDEROY.

Did you ever have a chill? I have had two in the last few days. They are unpleasant creatures to deal with. They come when you do not want them, stay longer than you like, leave you hot when they go and with a lingering dread that they will come again. Mine begin with a quivering in the region of the diaphragm, which soon extends to the top of my head and down to the soles of my feet, and then I am sick all over. One or two chills take all the starch out of me and leave me as limp as an old rag. Did you ever see a church with a chill on it? It is awfully cold and uncomfortable to try to preach or worship with a church in that state. I mean the membership, not the house. The church has dumb chills. They quit singing, quit praying and quit talking religious talk in meeting. That is a sign of the chill. The atmosphere gets cold. I mean the religious atmosphere. It is up-hill work to worship with a church that has a chill on it.

I see that some of the younger men have gone to writing again about the sin and salvation of infants. I had thought we had gotten past that, but just as long as the idea remains that infants are liable to go to perdition on account of what they have inherited, just that long will men hold to the idea of infant regeneration as necessary to infant salvation. Surely no infant is responsible for nor guilty of that which comes to him by the law of natural regeneration. If so, God made that law, and is responsible for that sin. "What about depravity?" asks one, and "how are you going to get rid of it?"

Regeneration does not set us free from it, nor does sanctification. Regenerated and sanctified parents produce depraved children just as our race has done from the beginning. God has made no arrangement to subvert a law of nature by a law of grace. No infant is responsible for or guilty of his natural depravity until, by his own choice, he elects to be governed by it. No amount of sorrow over or repentance on account of natural depravity will ever result in having it taken out of one single individual. That is not God's method of dealing with it. He puts new life and a loving spirit into us in regeneration and leaves us with all the resources of grace to gain the mastery over it. This is our victory. The new-born spiritual man conquering and overcoming the natural man. Our fight in this life is with our natural selves—with the world, with the flesh and with the devil.

I had thought that all Methodist preachers with our standards in their hands were far enough along to know that regeneration was a co-operative work, depending on conditions, and was never performed until the conditions were complied with. Infants are not capable of complying with these conditions, hence regeneration is not predicable of them and should not be affirmed as necessary in case one of them should come to die.

Regeneration at the sovereign will, and by the sovereign power of God, is just as objectionable in the case of infants as in the case of adults. Why deny the one and then assert the other? They are born depraved because God, through Christ, provided for them to be born that way. They are not guilty of it. Neither God or man could count them guilty for something they could not help. They need no forgiveness because they have been guilty of no sin. Regeneration is meant to set right a will that has gone wrong or is in the toils of temptation and about to go wrong. The sin of the sinner is in the will and not in his nature. A depraved nature is not so bad if we have the power of will to control it. That controlling power of will comes from God. It is imparted by the Holy Spirit, must be sought after and when given it is a new birth. It is not what we call a naturally strong will. It is a heaven-born will, a will that loves to do right.

Yours,
GILDEROY.

Lula, Miss.

"OLD CARONDELET"

Mr. Editor: Coming to the reunion in this city, amid scenes of long ago, I was deeply moved to learn that the old Carondelet Church had been sold. The new house is, I learn, to be called the First Methodist Church. I often attended the services held in the old building before the Civil War, and it is painful to me to know that it has ceased to be a church.

It occurs to me that the true historical perspective ought to name the new house for the largest contributor to the old, and call it McIlhee Memorial Church. That would be both historical and poetic justice.

C. J. NUGENT.

THE ORPHAN'S HOME.

The new Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home at Jackson is now finished, and the Superintendent, Rev. G. A. Oats, moved into it last week. The Home has now seventy-seven orphans, and in the new Home they will be well housed and cared for. This orphanage is very dear to the Methodists of Mississippi, and they will see that the little ones lack for nothing. We hope Brother Oats will give us a full description of the new Home.

The law requiring men to love God also requires them to love each other. The law likewise declares, "If a man say, I love God, and hates not love his brother, he is a liar." Words can be no plainer.

W. H. M. S.

The angel of the resurrection speaks to Christian womanhood to-day as to many of old on the first Easter morning, saying: 'Go quickly and tell.'

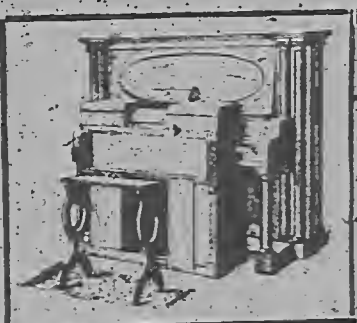
If the Marys and the Salomes of to-day will go quickly and tell their friends and others the past resurrection message, Isaiah's beautiful prophecy will soon be fulfilled in our own country and distant lands: "They shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God."

YOUR PRIVILEGE.

Auxiliary Superintendents, this high privilege is yours. Will you not have at least one fact a week in your secular papers? Will you not endeavor to arouse the indifferent women of your Church and your auxiliary to the needs of those "who dwell in darkness?" Will you not scatter "Our Homes" and other literature until even those that slumber shall be aroused?

ON TO ASHEVILLE.

The all-absorbing topic among home mission women is the approaching meeting of the Woman's Board, April 26, in Asheville, N. C., official notice of which has already appeared in this column. Asheville extends a cordial invitation to all Christian workers who would learn more of home mission work and thus labor more effectively.



Last Friday the members of the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of Rayne Memorial united in a prayer service for the work and workers of both Boards. The meeting was led by Mrs. Theodore Copeland.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

At a recent meeting of one of our local auxiliaries, resolutions were adopted petitioning the City Mission Board to co-operate with the organizations which are trying to get a compulsory education bill passed by the Legislature. Statistics show that there are 40,000 white children in the city of New Orleans who are of school age, and are not attending school or receiving even the rudiments of an education.

This is one of the vital questions of the day, and we hope the City Mission Board will take some action to help remedy so great an evil.

COUNTING ONE BY ONE.

People are often proud of their family connections, and they speak of them to show their distinguished blood. Yes, they count them, as it were, one by one, till we become familiar with their genealogy.

We have of late been called upon time and again by a lady who is tracing up a name that belongs to one part of our family, and she wanted to see the family record and go back as far as possible, to find what connection this name, in our family, had with the same name in a very distinguished family of more than a century ago. And we have said, "How can that book of hers ever be finished, for she branches off in all directions?" Yes, and she finds connections everywhere.

But what we would speak of is the connection of one event with another. Paul says, "None of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself."

So also we may say in regard to events; there is no event but has a connecting event. Scripture is full of this truth, and its illustrations are striking and vivid. From the fall of man up through the ages until Christ came, there is an unbroken genealogy, and a series of events that at length culminates in the fact that a babe lies in a manger in Bethlehem, and this babe is the Savior.

Who would think that the selling of a boy, a mere lad, for a slave, would save two great nations from famine? Who would think that the little ruddy shepherd-boy, perched upon the hills of Bethlehem to watch the sheep while the older brothers followed on with the army of Saul, would by a series of events climb to the throne at Jerusalem?

The restlessness of the great Persian king upon an ordinary night caused him to ask that the book of records be read for his profit and amusement, and this brought Mordecai before him, and thus was Mordecai saved and Haman hung.

What a close connection there is between the coming of the beautiful Jewish maiden to the kingdom and the consuming hatred of Haman to the Jews. "Who knoweth," cried Mordecai to this adopted daughter of his, "but what thou hast come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" And cannot the saving of the Jews at that time be traced largely to the fact that Esther did all the commandments of Mordecai from her youth up to that present time?

If events are so closely connected, so also our conduct, our actions, our words, have almost all to do with the shaping of our destinies. These are so closely connected that nothing can separate them.

One of the servants of the king of Syria said unto the king: "The prophet that is in Israel telleth the king of Israel the words that thou speakest in thy bedchamber." And often we think that Israel's great king knoweth the words that we speak and the acts that we do in the seclusion of our homes, and publishes them abroad, as it were; if we are faithful at home it influences people and events toward us, even where we cannot trace the connection; if unfaithful, this great disposer of events and hearts often bars our way even when we can see no reason whatever for the untoward circumstances. When we speak or act, if we could only see the links of connection we would be careful how we spoke or acted; we would count them one by one. O to remember that there are no isolated words or acts, that all have connection with other words, acts and events.—Anna D. Walker, in Christian Intelligencer.

SIX DOLLARS.

Eighteen years ago a home missionary, riding to a distant appointment, met an earnest young man who had prepared himself for college, but saw no way to go. The minister encouraged him, and running over the account of his probable earnings and expenses prophesied a sufficient saving in the intervening weeks to justify a beginning. Just at Christmas time the young man came to the minister to say that the undertaking was hopeless. The mill where he had been working had shut down; there had been unlooked-for expenses; he had barely enough left, after buying his clothing, to pay his railroad fare. But the minister, undaunted, said, "If you really mean business, go home, pack your trunk, come back and stay with me to-morrow night, and the next day start for college. I can fit you out with second-hand text books; I can get you free tuition, and I will lend you six dollars for your first month's board. Saw wood during your spare time the first month, and if you don't earn enough for your second month's board, let me know."

The young man accepted the offer. Then the minister's wife asked, "Where are you to get the six dollars?"

"I have one dollar," said the minister, "and I shall find the rest, somehow."

In the post-office that day was a letter, and in the letter a five dollar bill from a remote place where the minister occasionally preached. The woman who sent it said that, as she was making up her Christmas gifts she wished to show her gratitude for the occasional religious services, which had been so helpful a reminder of the days back East. The minister had rarely received such gifts. He went home and said to his wife:

"It is a special providence, my dear. It is exactly the sum we lacked." And both rejoiced when next day they placed the money in the hand of the young man and saw him on the train. The story of that young man's education would be full of interest. He sawed wood during the school year; he worked as a carpenter during vacation, and found plenty of work in the villages springing up along a new railroad. He graduated with no other help from the friend who had sent him to college than the original six dollars.

Some time after the minister was fitting himself out in another distant field. His work necessitated a weekly drive of nineteen miles and back, across bleak prairies. He needed a fur carriage robe. The price was six dollars.

"I will consider it over night," said the minister, for he did not have the six dollars. But on his way home he stopped at the post-office, and found a letter from his friend, the graduate, who had worked late in the fall to clear up all college debts before going into his future duties. In the letter was six dollars.

"Another providence, my dear!" cried the minister, as he threw the warm fur robe round his wife. And they knelt together and thanked God for it all.

In time the home missionary was called to a larger church, where no cold drive was necessary, and the fur robe was stored in the attic. But one day there came a request for a missionary barrel, and a list of articles needed by a minister with two appointments miles apart, in a cold and thinly settled region. Then the robe came down from the attic, and was packed in the barrel with the other warm articles.

"Another providence," said the minister's wife, as they nailed the head into the barrel.

"Our six dollars are still drawing good interest," said the minister.—Youth's Companion.

THE SUPERANNUATE ENDOWMENT.

I wish to ask all pastors who have taken collections in churches for the Superannuate Endowment Fund to please report results to me at once. I ask this for special and good reasons. The reports received show good returns. Will the preachers in charge and presiding elders be reminded that in all instances where this collection has not yet been taken that it is greatly desired that it be done as early as practicable.

IS FASTING OUT OF DATE.

BY REV. JNO. R. BROOKS, D. D.

The pertinency of this question is indicated by what seems to the writer to be a general, if not an almost universal neglect of this once-regarded important means of grace. One familiar with our history and the teaching of our Church need hardly be reminded that we have all along recognized fasting as one of the divinely prescribed helps to and conditions of our religious development and usefulness.

In our general rules of the six "ordinances of God" that we are required and we promise to "attend upon," "fasting or abstinence" is distinctly named.

In prescribing the "method" for admitting a preacher into full connection at the conference, the Discipline says: "After solemn fasting and prayer, every person proposed shall be asked certain questions. And one of those questions is: 'Will you recommend fasting or abstinence both by precept and example?'"

In prescribing the duties of a "preacher in charge," the law says one of these is "to see that a fast be held in every congregation within his charge on the Friday preceding every quarterly meeting, and that suitable service be held on the occasion, wherever practicable."

Now, these extracts from our Discipline are sufficient to show something of the importance attached to and the prominence given by our Church to "fasting" as a means of grace. In the general rules it ranks in importance with "the public worship of God," "the ministry of the word, read or expounded," "searching the Scriptures," "prayer" and "the supper of the Lord." And preachers are required to "recommend" it to their people, "by both precept and example," urging them to observe it at least four times a year.

And these requirements and recommendations of the Church certainly seem to be based on the teaching of Scripture in both the Old and New Testaments. Fasting is enjoined by both the word and example of our Lord and the Apostles, and by the practice of the early Church, as well as by the fathers of Methodism. In commenting on the Saviour's words teaching His disciples to fast and pray and give alms, Mr. Wesley well says: "Our Lord does not here enjoin fasting, alms-deeds, or prayer; all these being duties which were before fully established in the Church of God." In correcting the abuses of the Pharasees touching these things Jesus assumes and concedes their importance, and proceeds to teach His disciples how they were acceptably and profitably to use these means of grace. And he seems to regard all these as of equal importance, at least, as equally binding on His disciples. See Matt. vi, 1-18.

In the light of this teaching of Scripture and our Church, is it not strange that so little attention, comparatively, is given by Methodists to this matter of fasting? And, may we not ask if, as a means of grace, it is not thought to be out of date?—as being no longer regarded by our preachers and people as a necessary or even helpful condition of spiritual growth and Christian usefulness?

Let us look at some of the signs of decline in fasting.

First—The writer has been attending Annual Conferences for nearly half a century. By actual count, he has attended seventy-five sessions of such Conferences, about one-third of that number within the last five years. And yet he does not remember ever but once to have heard the attention of the Conference called to the injunction of "solemn fasting and prayer" before receiving members into full connection. Still the injunction seems made to the Conference taking part in this proceeding, as well as to the preachers who are being received. Possibly it is presumed that the Conference knows and remembers its duty and needs no prompting—a somewhat unwarranted presumption.

It would be interesting to know what proportion of our preachers "recommend fasting or abstinence, both by precept and example." Does one in a half dozen do it? It is doubtful.

Third—Do 10 per cent of them "see that a fast be held in every congregation within his charge on the Friday preceding each quarterly meeting, and that a suitable service be held on the occasion, wherever practicable?" Does one in a hundred hold that "suitable service?" I have never known but one pastor to do it regularly.

Fourth—Does one in a dozen of our 1,000,000 lay members pay practically any attention to that general rule of our Church which enjoins "fasting or abstinence," and which "ordinance of God" each one of them promised to "attend upon?" Did one in five of our membership ever fast at all, in all their lives, as a means of grace? It is seriously doubted if they ever did.

Far be it from me to under-estimate the faithfulness of our ministry, high or low. For, I may at some points named above inculpate myself, as well as other preachers. Nor would I exaggerate the forgetfulness of duty on the part of our laity. I may have overstated the delinquency of both these classes touching this matter of fasting. Possibly things are worse in my limited field of observation than they are in the Church at large. I have simply presented the matter as it appears to me.

Now, if the case is as I have presented it, one or two things must be true: Either fasting is not so valuable a means of grace as our Church represents it or our people are suffering loss from a failure to use it. For one, I prefer to take the latter horn of this dilemma, for I would not like to call in question the combined wisdom of our great Church in her interpretation of Scripture touching this matter, and in her recommendation to her people concerning it.

Well, what hurt has come to us from this neglect? May we not have suffered loss of spiritual vigor and power, bringing upon us spiritual leanness and weakness, thus affecting somewhat our health, happiness and usefulness as Christians? It is not proposed to discuss the philosophy of this subject further than to suggest some of the benefits that may come to us by a return to the paths of our fathers in this matter.

First—As already intimated, our personal piety and spirituality might be promoted by it. There seems to be a constant tendency in our lower, fleshly or sensual nature to antagonize and dominate our higher and spiritual nature. Even the innocent appetites of a thoroughly saved man often blindly clamor for gratification, and fasting seems to furnish one of the conditions and helps to their subjection—their being "kept under" our higher and better nature. Hence, the psalmist speaks of "humbling" or "afflicting" his soul or body with "fasting," and St. Paul seems to refer to such effect of "fasting" in I. Corinthians vii, 5. And in olden times the wearing of sackcloth and ashes as a further means and sign of humiliation and affliction and repentance was resorted to, especially in times of threatened calamity.

Second—May not the temporary withholding from the body of the food that is so satisfying to the appetite and so necessary to our sustenance and happiness tend to increase our appreciation of and gratitude for God's supply of this want of our nature?

Third—And, is there nothing for us in our Lord's remarkable words to his immediate disciples touching the power of prayer and fasting over a certain kind of demons? When they asked Him why they could not cast out given devils, He said: "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting." Mr. Wesley's judicious note on these words is: "What a testimony is here to the efficacy of fasting, when added to fervent prayer."

Is it true, as some assert, that the Gospel seems to have less power, especially with certain classes, than it did half a century or more ago? Are our people generally less deeply convicted of sin and more superficially converted than they were in the days of our fathers? In a word, does our preaching have less power and effectiveness than theirs did? If so, is the cause of that difference in these people, in the Church, in us preachers, or in all of these? Is it because the demons of sensuality, worldliness, commercialism, covetousness, indifference and unbelief are more difficult to dispossess than were those that formerly possessed the people? Is it because the demons possessing modern society "go not out but by prayer and fasting," and, failing to resort, as our fathers did, to these extraordinary means and conditions of success, we fall short of it?

I would not dogmatize, but rather put the matter hypothetically and by way of suggestion. In view of our past neglect and our apparent loss of spirituality and power, together with our lack of the measure of success in winning souls which our efforts might justify us in reasonably expecting, would it not be well for us, preachers and people, more faithfully to heed the teaching of our Church and our solemn promises touching this means of grace and power? Let us try it.

THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1906.

Any unsaved soul parading in ecclesiastical garb can become a bigot. None but a genuinely converted man has inheritance in the Kingdom of God.

Competent leadership is not found in men of passion or impulse, but in those of cool self-possession, who are sound in judgment, and discreet in life. Not until one has acquired the habit of self-control is he prepared to undertake the control of others.

Respect for old things, whether opinions or practices, no matter how true and useful, should not blind a man to the importance of new ideas and new ways. Ever onward, is the watchword of enterprising men, and they are the men the world depends on to do things.

Some men take up too much time in trying to impress an idea. They put it one way, then turn it over and put it another way. A few, not satisfied with two ways, try it three or four times. When through, they have taken as much as five minutes to say a thing they had already said in one minute. No wonder they are long-minded, and too often tedious.

Too much headiness in one who is set to rule in the Church is likely to lead to serious blunders, for no man is infallible. On the other hand, one who is headless will be so loose in administration as to inspire the contempt of those under his care. We want neither a tyrant nor one who is "all things to all men" in high office.

To make companions of the godless, even though they may occupy the highest position in literary or social circles, is the most dangerous thing a Christian young man can do. In spite of his convictions and training, he will find himself so influenced by them that he will imbibe their sentiments and adopt their ways. It is as true today as ever, that "evil communications corrupt good manners."

Money will count for nothing before God, unless it is used well and wisely in this world, and the father who labors to leave his children rich, that they may have an easy time in going through life, but neglects their education and training for higher and better things than the spending of money, is short-sighted and selfish. That which he intends for their good will but minister to the flesh, and prove their undoing in the world to come.

LIBERALISM GONE TO SEED.

Some of our brethren, dreading and repudiating "Christian sacerdotalism," have gone so far as to repudiate also the "theory of a divinely-instituted Church," and tell us that the Church, in its organized capacity, is merely a "human device;" that Christians unite of their own accord, thus "making use of that liberty wherewith Christ hath set them free." If such expressions conveyed only the idea that our Lord ordained no special form of Church government, we could readily accept it, but they distinctly set aside the idea that the Church of God, made up "of the whole body of the redeemed," has any organic existence at all by divine appointment.

The author of these views writes himself out of harmony with the teaching of our Discipline, which affirms that "the Church is of God, and will endure to the end of time." In accordance with that affirmation, every time we receive an applicant into membership we "thank God for founding the Church"—not the invisible Church, but the organized body of believers. The author also puts himself in opposition to our Thirteenth Article of Religion, which defines "the visible Church of Christ as a congregation of faithful men, in which the pure word of God is preached, and the sacraments duly administered according to Christ's ordinance."

Because our Lord left his disciples free to use any plan they might see fit to devise for carrying on the work of the Gospel, whether in a congregational or connectional capacity, is no just ground for saying the organized Church does not exist by divine appointment. If so, then, as Methodists, we are all wrong; and, besides, many expressions in the Holy Scriptures are mere words, without meaning. It is stated that in the early days of the dispensation "the Lord added to the Church daily such as should be saved." This Church, or the Church, had some sort of an organization, but if the setter-forth of the strange views is correct, we are bound to believe that the Lord added the converts to a mere "human device." The disciples believed that they were being added to the Church of God. At Ephesus Paul "called the elders of the Church," and when they were come to him he instructed them, saying, among other things: "Take unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the Church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." And he tells the disciples, in another place that "the care of all the churches came upon him daily." How did Paul come to be the superintendent of all the churches? He was not elected by the people. It was by divine appointment—not over a "human device," but divinely-ordained churches, some of which were organized before his conversion.

We are further informed that "the theory of a divinely-instituted Church brings with it the theory of divinely-ordained priests." We do not so see it. That divinely-called and ordained preachers are necessary to a divinely-instituted Church, and, as a matter of fact, precede the Church, we believe; but there is a difference between preachers and priests, and, as strongly as Methodists believe in the Church and its divine appointment, we have never known one to hold to the theory of Christian priesthood. That the two things do not always go together in the minds of intelligent Christians, we cite the fact that the Baptists who hold tenaciously to the theory of a divinely-instituted Church, and also believe in a divinely-called and ordained ministry, are far from believing in "Christian sacerdotalism." To them, as well as to Methodists, it is "an absurdity."

The utterances set forth to which we take exceptions—which possibly we may misunderstand, "language being but a defective mode of communicating thought"—are well adapted to breed mischief. Too many loose notions already obtain. Many people are getting to believe that not only one Church is as good as another, but that none are good, and that it makes no difference what a man believes, if he is honest. And the notion that the Church, or denomination in its organic existence, is but a device of men, is producing irresponsible cranks, who glory in the fact that though they belong to Christ, they belong to no Church. And the further notion that no Church, or set of men, has any right to lock a man's mouth by withholding license to preach, has turned loose upon an innocent public tramp preachers, utterly incapable of an intelligent presentation of the Gospel. That class of present-day evangelists who have but one idea find encouragement in every word that strikes at Church authority.

We do not believe for one moment that the conquest of the world for Christ depends upon the organic union of the Churches, nor upon unity the basis of which makes the Church nothing but a human institution. Rejecting the idea that the Church, as organized, is but a "device of man," we feel free to say that if union—on the supposition that it is desirable—is to be effected at the expense of Church order and organization, we had better drop all talk of union and go to work to save the Church and ministry as committed to us by our Lord; for, outside of an organized Church, with a duly-ordained and recognized ministry, all is spiritual anarchy.

Liberalism has gone to seed.

GENERAL CONFERENCE ELECTIONS.

Naturally enough, our Methodist people are interested in the coming General Conference—what it will do in the way of legislation, and the election of men to connectional offices. If what we hear is true, there is some electioneering going on. A note from a distant Conference informs us that "noses have been counted," and two men are "elected" to the Episcopacy. It may be that the referendum (on paper) has satisfied the electioneering brethren that their friends will get the required number of votes. But all the "noses" have not been counted. At least one has been overlooked. We have received but one letter soliciting a vote, and it was not for the office of Bishop. We are all interested in the welfare of the Church, and it is well enough to discuss in a frank and brotherly way the qualifications of men, but to solicit outright, or go into the trading business, is out of place in the Church of God. If some of our brethren feel that the Lord is calling them to come up higher, they had better pray to be delivered from their friends.

No county in Mississippi, or parish in Louisiana is dependent on the liquor traffic for "life, liberty or the pursuit of happiness," nor for honor or wealth. It is a blight and a curse, the prolific source of poverty and crime. Let us drive it from our midst forever.

THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE.

A large section of the Pacific Coast was shaken by an earthquake on the morning of April 18. The center of the disturbance seems to have been in San Francisco, a city of more than 250,000 inhabitants. The shock was quite as violent as that which occured in South Carolina some ten or twelve years ago, and far more destructive. The extent of the ruin wrought at San Francisco and towns immediately adjoining cannot at this date be stated. The reports first sent out, as in all like calamities, were exaggerated. Now, after the lapse of five days, estimates are considerably modified, but still the almost stagger belief. The figures now given out indicate the death of five hundred persons in San Francisco alone—how many in other towns nobody knows. The property loss reaches an enormous amount, estimated at between two hundred and three hundred millions of dollars.

The earthquake was followed by fire almost immediately, and such scenes of horror as followed are indescribable. The shaking of the earth broke the water mains, and the fire department was helpless. The people had simply to look on and see the fire do its work. House after house was blown up by dynamite in the hope of checking the flames, but to no purpose. The fire had its own way and simply burnt itself out. The greater part of the business section of the city was wiped out, and perhaps two hundred thousand people are left homeless and destitute.

This disaster is the greatest of modern times. Nothing can be compared to it in point of magnitude. The great Chicago fire of the early 70's was hardly half as extensive. The sympathy of the whole land is aroused, and relief is going forward as rapidly as possible, and was immediately necessary, for suffering was instant. Congress voted a million dollars to the sufferers, and everywhere, in city, town, and village, contributions of money and necessaries have been made, and all needy ones have been relieved. Already, it is said, thirteen millions of dollars have been contributed, besides provisions in abundance.

This terrible visitation should awaken the people afresh to the uncertainty of life and the insecurity of all earthly things. Surely, "in the midst of life we are in death," and "riches make themselves wings and fly away."

PERSONALS.

Bishop Morrison left the city last week for Louisville, where he went to meet the Board of Church Extension, now in session.

Delegates and visitors to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, to meet at Laurel, Miss., are requested to send their names to Mrs. Olive G. Hunt, who will provide for their entertainment.

The following changes have been made by Bishop Morrison in the Louisiana Conference: Rev. H. G. Davis goes to the Shreveport District; Rev. J. R. Moore to Minden Station, and Rev. T. J. Warlick to the New Orleans District.

Rev. C. J. Nugent, of the Kentucky Conference, is in the city visiting his sisters and other relatives. New Orleans was the home of his boyhood days, and he seems always glad to be here. We made his acquaintance more than thirty years ago, and it is a pleasure to meet him from time to time.

Rev. George Jackson is busy selling Bibles and other good books, and preaching. He is highly pleased with the instrument to aid his hearing kindly furnished by his friends, the money for which was raised by Bishop Morrison. He believes it will be a great help to him.

The Carrollton (Miss.) Conservative never fails to take notice of the work of the Church, and always in praise. Special notice was given of the Easter services of the large congregations, the singing, and the preaching. In describing the sermon by the pastor, Rev. C. P. Moss, it got back to the old way of putting it. The people "heard a powerful sermon." We note with pleasure the good account of our brother's work.

The Monroe papers give glowing accounts of the revival just experienced in that city under the ministry of Dr. Wilkinson. The preaching is characterized as of the highest, and meets with great success. Vast congregations, taxing the seating capacity of the Church, attend the services, and many are brought under the power of the Word. We rejoice with our brother in the great success with which he is meeting.

Among the brethren who are working for the Advocate, sending in clubs, are the following: Rev. J. A. Goad, 34; Rev. J. T. Abney, 21; Rev. W. R. Williams, 11, with more to follow; Rev. M. M. Black, 10. Other brethren too numerous to mention have sent in small lists with promise to add to them from time to time. Rev. G. W. Bachman, our Colporter, is always at work, and occasionally gives us a good lift, as he did not long ago, when he sent in twenty-one names.

Dr. P. H. Whisner, General Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, died in Baltimore early in the morning of April 22. He had been ill for a month or more, but it was not generally known that his illness was at all dangerous. For the past eight years he has filled the responsible office of Secretary of Church Extension, giving to the work the strength of his life, looking diligently and faithfully after all the business committed to his hands. He was a pure, high-minded man of God.

The death of Dr. J. N. B. Ahrens, which occurred in this city on the 20th inst., removes from the ranks of Southern Methodism a remarkable man. For many years he was identified with the interests of the Church as preacher and editor. He was especially useful among the German Methodists of the city and the Southwest. He lived a long and useful life, and was greatly esteemed for his learning and fidelity. For several years past, on account of age and infirmities, he lived in retirement, being ministered to by his children, the Rev. H. H. Ahrens and Mrs. Dr. John T. Crebbin. We extend to the bereaved ones our sympathy and prayers.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

The school at Mack is being taught this term by Miss Gussie Neblett, of Byhalia. She is a church girl, and interested in its work, besides being a teacher.

A lovely window, showing a fine picture of the Madonna in exquisite coloring, has been placed in the church at Holly Springs to the memory of Miss Emmie Fant. It is a costly tribute from her family, but she left the Church a character that is like a window into Heaven.

Rev. N. G. Augustus has recently closed a meeting at Pontotoc, which resulted in twenty-seven additions to the different churches. He was assisted by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, who is making a record for practicing his own preaching—and has thereby acquired a bit of persecution for righteousness' sake.

The Home Missioners appreciate the honor of having the proposed hospitals put in their care, as suggested by Mr. J. H. Sherard, and concur in his memorial to the General Conference. Our people are not intentionally negligent in benevolences—it is the promoter that is needed in starting, as well as the big hearts and pocket-books for sustenance.

The Church at Red Banks is bereaved by the death of Mr. John B. Ford, which occurred March 24, 1906. He had been in failing health for over a year, struggling bravely against encroaching weakness. The grief of the family is too sacred for outsiders, but the abounding sympathy of friends is theirs for all it can console.

In March the Methodist and Presbyterian pastors at Holly Springs "called" a Baptist evangelist, Rev. T. T. Martin, to assist in a combined meeting. His brotherly tact was most winning, and the old, old story of sadness and joy was told with the touch of a master's heart and head. He preached practical spirituality applied. There have been sixteen accessions to the churches.

Notwithstanding a scattered neighborhood, there is in the former Holly Springs district an historic Wesley Chapel, which continues an appointment, whether the attendance be few or many. In 1878, the community entertained the District Conference, presided over by Bishop Keener. Dr. G. E. Kelsey held his life-time membership there. Much repairs have been done recently on the building, and a new organ installed. The congregation is a delight to the preacher in a good fellowship that is of more than native growth.

Rev. S. A. Brown is earnestly warning his young people against the common forms of Sunday desecration, particularly the Sunday newspaper and the habit of meeting the train on Sunday. It is a spirit-filled life that can stand approved by its own discrimination—most of us need the caution of a very definite "thou shalt not," especially in regard to keeping the Lord's day holy. It is more than easy to get our religion "tainted" through misconstruing the assurance that the Sabbath was made for man.

BENJAMIN J. HENRY was born in Claiborne Parish, La., Dec. 14, 1871, and died at his home, near Arcadia, in Lincoln Parish, Feb. 2, 1906. He joined the Church at Old Salem, under the ministry of Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, July 9, 1893, at a quarterly meeting. He was led to conversion through the influence of a pious teacher, Prof. Bob Smith. He was happily married to Miss Annie Dye in January, 1893. He was a good husband, a fond father, a kind neighbor, a faithful church member and a devout Christian. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn their loss. But our loss is his gain. He has gone on to that home beyond the sunset's radiant glow. Some glad, sweet day we shall join him in that bright clime.

GEO. W. HIVELEY, P. C.

On the 4th day of December, 1905, there passed from earth to heaven little WILLARD WHITE, infant son of Brother D. L. White and Sister Frances E. White, aged 10 months and 10 days. He was a bright and precious child, and the light and joy of a happy Christian home, but it pleased God to call the little cherub home; so on the above date the angels visited that home and bore away the little darling to a fairer world, where he is safe from sin and pain and sorrow. He was sick but a short while, and in dying called loudly for papa and mamma. It was a sad Christmas that followed soon for mother and father and grandmother and the little brothers, but they submitted trustingly, knowing that God doeth all things for the best, and that the separation was only for a time, and that baby would await them in heaven. J. W. LEE.

THOS. N. LEE was born near Lookout, St. Helena Parish, La., on Feb. 10, 1839, and died at Greensburg, La., Feb. 24, 1906. He was married to Miss Mary Ruddy on March 3, 1859. To them were born six children, two of whom preceded him to the grave. The other four, with the wife, are left to mourn their loss. He was said to have been a loving father and a devoted husband, always having a kind word for them; hence how hard the parting now. Brother Lee joined the Confederate Army in 1860, and, I am told, made a gallant soldier throughout the four years of the war, surviving the dangers and hardships of this cruel war. He ever remained an enthusiastic veteran of the loved, but lost, cause. He joined the M. E. Church, South, about the time he joined the Army, and remained true to her until his death. He told the writer about two weeks before his death that he believed God had forgiven his sins of the past, and was with him to cheer and comfort his last days. He told his family that all that made him hate to die was leaving his wife alone. May He who promised to be an husband to the widow and father to the fatherless bless and comfort his bereaved family now in their sad hour; and may we all so live that by our life we may meet on that shore where sickness, sorrow, pain and death are felt and feared no more. J. T. HANEY.

Mrs. ZIPPORA OFFUT (nee Browning) was born in East Baton Rouge Parish on Dec. 24, 1851, and died in the city of Baton Rouge Jan. 21, 1906, and was laid to rest in Magnolia Cemetery Jan. 22; Brother E. K. Means preaching at the funeral. Our sister was happily married to Brother Alex Offut, to whom there were born five children, only one of whom now survives, Mrs. C. D. Bogan, of Howell, La. Sister Offut joined the M. E. Church, South, at Bethel Church years ago, and lived a consistent Christian life. During the later years of her life her membership was at Blackwater, where she loved to worship when her health permitted. She had been in bad health for some time, but bore her suffering with Christian patience and fortitude, and her death was not unexpected. She was meek and beautiful in her service to her Lord, and the Church and community is bereaved in her death, as well as her loved ones. But we all feel that our loss is her gain. She leaves an aged mother, a devoted husband and an affectionate daughter to mourn her death. J. W. LEE.

WILLIAM R. SMITH was born in Alabama on April 14, 1823; moved to Mississippi early in life, and settled in what is now Alcorn County, in the vicinity of Corinth, where he remained until his death, Jan. 15, 1906. He was married April 15, 1846, to Sarah Ann Cornelius, with whom he lived happily until her death in 1891. Three children were born to them, namely, Rev. W. Ira Smith, who died in June, 1905; Mrs. N. A. Mincy, Corinth, Miss., and Mrs. C. E. George, Honey Grove, Tex. He professed religion when a young man, and joined the M. E. Church, South, and lived consistently until death—about sixty years. He was also a member of the Masonic Fraternity. W. R. Smith was a good and true man. In every relation of life he feared God, and worked righteousness. He was intensely religious, being pious, prayerful and a diligent student of the Bible. He read the Bible through, consecutively, once, and sometimes twice, a year. Besides, he read religious books and papers. He was devoted to the Church, which he served as steward and a leading member for many years. His house was the preacher's home. When the end came he was ready, and died triumphantly. He had requested that his funeral be preached from Revelation xxii, 14, which was complied with by his pastor, Rev. J. D. Simpson. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." W. W. BURKS.

Mrs. SARAH ANN NICHOLS (nee Parish) was born in Hancock County, Miss., July 1, 1832; died March 5, 1906. She was married to Mr. James A. Nichols about 1855, with whom she lived until 1861, when, as a brave soldier, and one who was willing, if need be, to die for the Southern cause, he joined the army as a Confederate soldier, from which he never returned, having died the following year at Corinth. To this union was born two children—one son, who died while quite young, and a daughter, who still lives. She joined the Methodist Church in early life, and lived a consistent member, always doing what she could to make life pleasant for those with whom she associated. Her membership was held at Centenary, McComb, at the time of her death. The greater part of her life was spent in Marion County, but she moved to Pike County about six years ago, where she lived with her only daughter, Mrs. Martha Pittman, until God called her home. "Grandma," as she was familiarly called, will be greatly missed in the community in which she lived. She leaves a daughter and five grandchildren, besides other relatives and friends, to mourn her death. Her body was laid to rest in the Martin Cemetery, near Fernwood, in the presence of a large crowd of sympathizing friends, on the day following her death, the funeral services being conducted by the writer. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones, and help them to be reconciled to His will, for "the Lord gave and the Lord has taken away."

Your Friend Who Drinks

I WILL SAVE HIM

I HAVE A HOME CURE WHOSE PROOFS ARE FREE. THAT RESTORES FOREVER THE FARTHEST GONE. THAT CONQUERS THE DISEASE AND THE DESIRE. THAT REBUILDS NERVE STRENGTH AND AMBITION.

No one, except the victim himself, knows the mental sufferings, the noble fights and the ghastly falls of the drinking man. Others see only his transgressions and his frequent lapses. Again and again they watch him regain a foothold, that crumbles to sand. For the strongest Will Power Can NoNt conquer that devouring thirst, the trembling craving that is voiced by every nerve-cell of the helpless, hopeless victim of inebriety—the condition that leaves man no longer master of himself, but a half-crazed martyr to perverted appetite.

Advice and kindly words will not help your afflicted friend any more than a straw will save a drowning man. What you must do to rescue him is to "throw out the life-line," in the shape of an actual, tangible CURE for the disease.

To prive that I have such a cure, I will send in a plain wrapper, so that no one can guess its contents, a large treatment, sufficient to test its wonderful merit, free of all expense.

A marvelous change will at once be evidenced. The terrible, incessant craving will vanish, appetite return, the nerves grow steady, the haggard appearance will vanish, the eyes grow clear, and the sufferer will again be able and inspired to take his proper place in business and society.

I appeal to the WORST cases—I glory in such cures—cases that again and again have failed to yield to other treatments. My record is 100 per cent of cures—CURES TO STAY CURED. And I have the proof to verify my claims.

No matter how hipeless the case may seem, do not despair. Remember mine is a home treatment. There is no advertising the fact that it is being taken—no kindling of neighborhood gossip. Nothing but the blessed reality of a perfect cure.

Remember, I do not ask, and will not accept, one single penny of pay till I have proved that my simple home remedy is an absolute, unfailing cure. You take not a particle of risk and the gain is priceless.

Write this very day for free treatment, sent in sealed, plain wrapper.

AUBURN, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: After having tried to help build up Our Advocate by sending in a number of new subscribers, in swearing which I was assisted by Brother J. B. King, I shall now endeavor to make a report of our work.

Our people are well satisfied over our return to this charge for another year, and we are glad that we did not have to move. Brother Kilig was assigned to this work as assistant at our last Conference, but for good reasons Brother Adams separated Brother King's part of the work from Adams charge proper, which part now goes under the name of Auburn Circuit. Brother King has his work well in hand, and promises to do a nice work. He possesses the true spirit of enthusiasm and earnestness that brings success.

Our second Quarterly Conference is now a matter of history, being held at Johnston Station March 21-23. Brother Adams was on hand, though not well, and gave us two strong sermons that produced deep and lasting impressions. He always has the interest of God's cause at heart, and seems to forget physical sufferings as he throws himself into the work at hand.

We held a meeting at Johnston embracing the first Sunday in April, assisted by Brother J. W. Campbell, of Edwards, Miss., which resulted in three accessions to the Church and great good to the neighborhood.

The prospect at Adams is becoming very bright for a great spiritual awakening. The people are praying more earnestly than I have ever known them to before for a revival, and for the spirit of Christian unity. In fact, this is becoming the prayer and sentiment of every Christian heart. It is a real benediction to attend the weekly prayer meetings both at Adams and at the Auburn M. E. Church. We are hoping and praying that the bonds of Christian unity will be so strongly knit together between the two churches that they will of themselves remove every cause for friction in the future, and present a solid front for Christ and the Church. Pray that we may be led by the Holy Spirit in this matter that all we do may be to God's glory and the good of all concerned.

We have been hindered in our start at Ebenezer this year, but we are expecting success there also. We have found an opening in a neighborhood adjoining Ebenezer, where there are possibilities of organizing a new society. We purpose by God's help to do our best there.

Wishing the Advocate still greater success, I am yours fraternally,

H. P. LEWIS, JR., P. C.

REVIVAL AT COLUMBUS.

Dear Doctor Boswell: Second Church, Columbus, has just closed a gracious revival of unusual power. A series of services were begun on Sunday, April 1, by the pastor, Rev. R. A. Clark, who conducted them until the following Tuesday week with deep and growing interest, when Rev. T. B. Clifford, of Columbia, Miss., came in and took hold and continued till the 12th, with great acceptability and power. There were 10 conversions and a deep revival spirit awakened before Brother Clifford came. He took hold with a steady hand and did some good, fervent, helpful and strong preaching, which was greatly appreciated and attended with power and unction. As a result of the meeting 22 were added to the Church, the whole body quickened and much of the town brought under the influence of the meeting. Fifty-one have been added to the membership of Second Church since Conference, making now a total of 300 members. Second Church has been much burdened from its beginning with debt incurred in building the Church and parsonage. On the second Sunday night of the meeting, with a packed house and deep religious joy in the hearts of all the people, the enthusiastic pastor pushed up his sleeves and went at the debt with all his might, and hearty and good responses rolled in till, when they footed up the results, they had $1,201.00, while all the old debts only aggregated $1,150.00. The decks had more than been cleared in the storm of giving, which had raged but a few minutes. Second Church, First Church and some who belonged to no church vied with each other in the spirit of giving.

The rapid growth of Second Church necessitates the election of several additional stewards. She has the Senior League with 35 members, the Junior League with 40 members, the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Societies and the Juvenile Missionary Society, a fine Sunday school and a wide awake prayer meeting, and all these growing larger and stronger all the time. The people are greatly in love with their pastor, and the future of Second Church is radiant as the dawn. The Church building will have to be enlarged in the near future to accommodate the extended field of her usefulness.

EASTER IN RUSTON.

On Friday evening, April 13, all the available space of our Church was filled, to hear the magnificent rendering by twenty voices of "The Conquering King," a cantata in twelve parts, and also to hear some choruses by children. Mrs. S. D. Pearce, our organist and choir leader, is a skilled performer upon our fine instrument, and without pay has unsparingly devoted a large part of her time to the preparation of a high grade of music for the Sunday worship and to the training of the choir. A voluntary offering was made Friday night for the Church debt. On Sunday, the Sunday School, always good, even in rainy weather, was, on this bright day, particularly fine. Seventy-two were in attendance in the Primary Department alone. A very good collection was taken for the Japanese sufferers.

Two immense audiences heard the word preached at the regular hours of services, and a number of children applied for Church membership. At three o'clock in the afternoon a most impressive baptismal service was held, consisting of the baptism of twenty-two infants and small children. The number would have been larger had not some of the babies been sick and one been immersed in the ditch on the way. The writer will not soon forget the impressive scene of so large a number of parents presenting their babies to the Lord. Past years show that the ordinance of baptism for infants has, in this populous Methodist district, almost fallen into disuse, but we are having a revival of the rite.

At 4:30 o'clock p.m. an Easter service was held in the great chapel of the Industrial Institute, in which the students and many people from town participated, and on the occasion the writer also made an address. It is needless to say that the labor of the day was very taxing to him.

On Monday evening, April 16, Rev. J. M. Henry held a good audience for nearly two hours with his capital lecture on the Jerusalem journey. It was highly entertaining and profitable, and was followed by another debt collection. We enjoyed his lecture so much that we want him to return and deliver another.

A GOOD MEETING AT BOLTON.

Mr. Editor: I have just returned from Bolton, Miss., where I went to assist the popular pastor, Rev. I. L. Peebles, in a meeting. Brother Peebles serves an excellent people. I have never seen greater appreciation of a pastor in my life. I would mention some of the evidences of their appreciation, but the list is too lengthy for publication. Suffice it to say he is held in highest esteem by all the people, both in and out of Church. We had a good meeting, some additions to the Church on profession of faith, and one conversion that we know of. I left there feeling that I would like to be sent there when my four years are out in Wesson.

THE PARABLE OF THE TARES.

Golden Text: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

In this lesson we have one of the many parables to which our Lord likens the Kingdom of God, and some instances where the Kingdom of God is spoken of, it means to us more as a personal state of religion. We know what is meant when a Methodist testifies that he has religion, and it would be well if that term with its meaning never became obsolete. Any one of mature age can well remember in former times that first he became a seeker after religion, and after the blessing of God came he found peace and entered the ranks of the workers himself. How our hearts used to bound with happiness as we beheld the new converts working, trying to lead others to the Lord. Such revivals as were held in those times were lasting and permanent in effect. In these modern times the same result is aimed at by various methods, the best of which is personal work among the unconverted.

In this personal work we are like the man in the parable who sows the good seed of the word of God. No one will attempt to sow this good seed, unless there has been a bounteous harvest in his own heart. Direction for equipment for this work, personal work, is provided by the word of God: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

We go on in our study of the parable: The good seed is sown, and the ground is good; every evidence points to a good yield, but there are enemies. At one time in the world-life of our Lord, when He seemed to see good triumph over evil, He said in exclamation: "I beheld Satan, as lightning, fall from Heaven." This is the enemy that is ever at work to prevent the sowing of the seed, or failing in that, to prevent the reaping in the harvest time. This enemy comes in a multitude of forms, and comes in a way to make his fiery darts strike the most vulnerable point. He comes in the night. He comes while we are not on the alert. He loves to take us by surprise. When we yield, the tares are sown. Yes, the tares are sown, and next we find ourselves in deepest penitence because we have grieved the Spirit that dwelleth within us. Sin after repentance and confession is forgiven, for God says he is just and faithful to forgive us and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. "Being justified by faith, we have peace with God." We are forgiven and cleansed. The tares were sown, though, and they will grow with the wheat. The sin we have committed and been pardoned for will live in its influence, and it is only at the last, when the last effect of influence has ended, can we see and realize what great mercy God has shown us, for then the sin and its effect has waited until the harvest, the final judgment, and we then see it in all its sinfulness and far-reaching effect. Then will we see and know what is meant by the words, as sin abounds, grace does much more abound.

When the workmen of the parable went out to look over the growing grain with a glow of pride, they were shocked to see among the yield the flourishing tares, and they went at once to the farmer and told him and asked him if it would not be well to go out and at once pull up the tares. It was goodness of heart that made the farmer spare the tares until the harvest. We wonder sometimes that God, who is "angry with the wicked every day," does not remove them from among those of His children who try to serve Him. It is the goodness of God that He does not—goodness both to the good and to the wicked. Let us look at that godly home where every effort and example is exercised to lead the children in the right path. One among the children is wayward and hard to control, and grows up a source of grief and sorrow to a loving father and mother. He leaves home followed by earnest prayers and as earnest entreaties to try to do right; no letter is written home, but the love for him is ever the same, and they do not hear of him only from some evil companion, and sorrow is added to anxiety—but the home is ever ready to welcome back the wandering boy. It is the goodness of God that that boy is watched over in all his waywardness, and some day perhaps he returns to his home and his mother's heart. So we see that if the tares are violently torn from among the wheat, the roots of wheat and tares being intertwined, harm would come to the wheat.

What a beautiful study are all the parables of our Lord; how deep their meaning, and in every one of them is shown the love of the Father. Jesus said to the listening disciples: "Know ye not this parable? How then can you know all parables." At another time He audibly prayed: "Father, I thank thee that these things are hid from the wise and prudent and revealed unto babes;" and St. Paul speaks of "The mystery of godliness." How then can we know the parables in their fullest meaning? It is only through the guidance of the Holy Spirit that God has placed within us. "He will guide you unto all truth," said Jesus. How blessed are we with such a guide! Let us learn to know the Holy Spirit as we learn to know Jesus, for Jesus tells us that the Holy Spirit is sent as a Comforter when He left the world and returned to His home in heaven.

The goodness of God provides for all our needs and for us teach and learn that goodness from the parable of the tares.

Evil we must contend with as long as we are in the world. There is no discharge in that war, the battle will wax hotter and hotter until the victory is won. It is a blessed thought that we are never alone, the Captain of our salvation is with us always even unto the end of the world.

DRAM SHOP LAWS.

The following amendments have been enacted by the present Legislature to the chapter on Dram Shops, viz:

First—Providing a civil penalty by suit on bond for selling adulterated liquors and medicines commonly called patent medicines, which will produce intoxication.

Second—Fixing a minimum penalty of $100 or six months in jail, or both, for a second conviction for selling liquors after the first conviction and punishment therefor.

Third — Prohibiting absolutely the sale of liquors to females at any time and place.

Fourth — Prohibiting open saloons from selling liquor to anyone from 11 p.m. of one day until 5 a.m. of the next.

Fifth—Prohibiting the sale of liquor in any county established since 1892, or to be hereafter established until an election shall be held therein authorizing the sale.

Sixth—Prohibiting the sale of patent or proprietary medicines which contain sufficient alcohol to intoxicate, unless the receptacles containing the same have pasted thereon a certificate from the proper governmental officer to the effect that the sale of said medicine is not contrary to the Internal Revenue Laws of the United States.

This is all in addition to the various C. O. D. laws which have been enacted by the present Legislature.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION.

Adopted by Unanimous Vote of the Winona District Conference, April 19, 1905.

Education is an arm-power to the Church. The Church is the best agency for fostering education.

From the beginning, Methodism has encouraged learning, and has built her own schools in order to give expression to and to develop her high ideals of what real education is: Today the subject has a stronger hold upon our Church than ever before, while the Church has a clearer conception of its vast importance and a firmer grasp upon facilities and agencies for wielding this mighty arm of power.

Vanderbilt University stands at the head of our great system of schools, and merits and needs the hearty sympathy and generous help of every Southern Methodist.

Annual Conferences have united upon certain schools and colleges to do their own work. With commendable wisdom, following capable and far-seeing leaders, Mississippi Methodism (two Conferences) has united upon Millsaps College, and that great institution has given expression to and is a constantly enlarging development of her idea of a real college for boys. It is in the midst of great prosperity, and we are fully committed to make it greater every year. We pledge to it our constant care and undivided support.

The generous offer of Major Millsaps to duplicate all gifts to the amount of $25,000 annually is a standing challenge to our liberality. We approve the present efforts to add $100,000 to the endowment fund, and rejoice in the assured success of the movement. We record with gratitude the recent gift of $10,000 by Mr. Andrew Carnegie for the purpose of erecting a first-class library building, and also thank Major R. W. Millsaps —always its most generous benefactor—for duplicating that gift to maintain the library. His benefactions to the College have been not less than $100,000, and his skillful management of its finances and his constant thought and unremitting care for all its interests are beyond price. God has blessed him, and has made him a blessing to Methodism and to Mississippi. We honor him in our hearts, and pledge to him our best endeavors in developing his large ideas of a great church college.

With equal wisdom, North Mississippi Methodism has centered upon Grenada College as the school in which to work out her ideal of a great college for girls.

Good progress has been made during the past four years. The restriction placed by quarantines upon travel last summer hindered the canvass for students; hence the enrollment was not so large as that of the former session. But it is no small tribute to the management that eighty-six young ladies and girls were enrolled as boarding pupils. The management takes special pride in the large number of students, who, having tested the school, return to pursue further studies within its walls. The student body has done excellent work under competent teachers, who will not do less than thorough work. The Christian influence of the school is beyond cavil, and the scholastic training cannot be questioned. A large proportion of the graduates have found remunerative employment, and they are a positive force for good in their communities. Pastors have testified in this Conference that they are among their best workers. We have no hesitancy in commending the school without reserve to all Mississippi Methodists and their friends; and confidently ask their patronage, not alone because it is their school, but because of and chiefly for the superior advantages afforded there.

We are in hearty accord with the ideals and plans of our General Board of Education, and the deliverances of our General Conference in reference to the correlation of the schools of our Church. We believe in comity and federation among all Christians, especially among all Methodisms; particularly among Southern Methodists. Hence we believe that Conference schools should show mutual respect for the interests of each other. It is a compliment to the judgment of our trustees that Methodist schools in other states desire to secure members from our faculties. It is not creditable to those schools, when they make offers of employment, coupled with the expressed or implied condition that they bring students with them and canvass our territory.

We rejoice in the union of two Methodisms in Japan. Shall the schools of Southern Methodism in the home field seek to devour each other? It seems to us that our General Board of Education might do a real service to the Church by taking note of these things, and by giving the weight of its influence against such practices, and the undue invasion of the rights of Conference schools. We respectfully invite the attention of the Board to this complaint.

Millsaps College and Grenada College never canvass beyond the bounds of their Conferences; and we enter our protest against unwarranted violation of Conference courtesy and denominational comity.

We deplore the fact that our people in North Mississippi last year paid less than 65 per cent of the assessment for education. We urge the preachers-in-charge to bring up every dollar of the assessment this year. The full assessment represents less than our needs. We pledge the Winona District to pay its assessment in full, as it did last year.

We are in hearty accord with the Annual Conference in calling for the endowment of Grenada College, and pledge our earnest co-operation with the trustees in accomplishing that worthy and needed object. And, whereas the city of Grenada has guaranteed to give $5,000 to the endowment on condition that North Mississippi Methodists give a like amount, we propose that this District Conference shall now take steps towards meeting that generous offer.

We have heard with profound sorrow of the death of our honored brother, J. W. Griffis, long-time trustee and always faithful friend of Grenada College.

Immediately after the unanimous adoption of the above report members of the Conference subscribed $2,600 to the endowment fund.

REVIVAL AT LAUREL, MISS.

Mr. Editor: We have just closed a gracious meeting at our Fifth Avenue Church, some 16 accessions to our Church and a number of conversions. Rev. J. W. Chambers, pastor of Main Street Church, preached with the power and demonstration of the Spirit. The Church was greatly quickened and we already see an advance along all lines of work. The Epworth League, Aid Society, and Sunday school have taken on new life. On the Sunday before the close of the meeting a large increase in the membership of the League was noted. On Easter Sunday evening the Church was crowded to its full capacity. Four united with the Church.

There seems to be every indication of a successful year in all our churches here, and the harmony which exists between the pastors of the different churches is delightful. Recently a "preacher's meeting" was organized, which meets every Monday a. m. and is attended by the pastors of the different Protestant Churches. These meetings are spiritual and helpful and seem to draw the pastors closely together. They are also always attended by that consecrated layman, Norvell, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and one who is doing a great work here. Brother Chambers is in high favor with his people, and, altogether, the outlook is exceedingly hopeful for our Methodism in Laurel, far above what it has been in the past. Brother Chambers is in full and hearty sympathy with our work in the two Churches, Kingston and Fifth Avenue, and gives us all the help he possibly can. We feel greatly encouraged.

We know nothing about any form of gambling. We know only that gambling itself is wrong—that its effects are evil. We gather from the papers that, in some forms, it is on the increase, among both women and men, especially such forms as are popular in high circles of society. One form is called "bridge," which the New York World says is "the most fascinating, demoralizing game of cards ever invented," and which, "from a fad, has become a habit." "In New York," continues the World, "bridge is driving women into debt and illness, and breaking up homes." And still the game goes on, with the stakes getting higher and higher. It is all-absorbing. One is soon lost in the intricacies of its many leads, its subtle finesses and no alien thought is admitted to the interest of the game. A recent print sums up the situation in the following: 'Mere man is banished. Mere man sits down in the cafe and drowses through the dull afternoon with prosier companions, talking shop talk of the street. The hand that rocks the cradle no longer rules the world. It isn't rocking the cradle now. The nurse and the governess is taking care of the baby, and cradles have gone out of use. Baby has a bassinet. Baby lies under an ider-down quite gayly beribboned. Baby is drinking modified and Pasteurized-sterilized milk out of a hygienic bottle. Mother is playing bridge." And we boast of our civilization and religion.

Maxwell's Talisman, of Chicago, under the title of "Get an Acre and Live on It," has the following to say of opportunities on electric car lines: "During the last six months many real estate operators have taken hints from the 'Fact and Comment' department of the Times, and, instead of putting 25-foot or even 50-foot lots upon the market, have turned their attention to offering people of small means from half an acre to an acre of good land at a moderate price. A great many home-seekers have taken advantage of these offers, and put from $1,000 to $1,500 into little tracts of an acre each, with a small cottage on it as a home. Of course, acre lots are impossible inside of the city limits, or even very close to the city limits. The person seeking so large a lot must go to a considerable distance from the business center, but the extension of the electric car lines in so many directions enables even working people to live at a considerable distance from their place of employment. These electric cars run at a high rate of speed, and a half-hour in the evening will take a person a long distance from where he works during the day. A man who earns $2.50 to twice that sum a day, and who has a family of a considerable number of children, often finds some difficulty in bringing them up properly and giving them the kind of an education he would wish. Such an investment as this, saving rent of say $20 a month and yielding eggs and all kinds of vegetables as well as considerable of the fruit that go to make up the daily ration of each member of the family, will make his struggle in life much lighter. The more wage earners of all kinds, including those engaged in clerical occupations, who have $1,000 to $1,500 up to twice that sum invested in a home, the better it will be both for the wage earner and for all the rest of the community. A man who has such a stake in the country will be in every way a better citizen than the one who spends his week's earnings as soon as they come into his hand, if not a week before they are earned." There is an abundance of common sense in such talk.

UNITY, BUT ALSO INDIVIDUALITY.

Competent men are at a premium, always. Said a distinguished Bishop: "Give me a man, and I will guarantee all things else." The man himself is more to be considered than even the place of his appointment.

Sam Jones, on a poor circuit, was a prophecy of many conversions, "full collections," and a pastoral charge of good prominence. Many sent for Mr. Jones to aid in meetings. His "marching orders three times per day, the Divine "sufficiency," was the secret of his amazing success. "If they starve us to death, we will tell them we died of the fever," was proof of wit, but also of a purpose to stake all and see what would happen.

A college youth on a plain charge reported 150 conversions. A small upper room was his place of meditation, and an ordinary pony took him among the people. It was the man called of God and consecrated to duty. An evangelist (?) was not in all his thoughts. Like Timothy, he himself was doing "the work of an evangelist." His successor from the same college reported 300 conversions and numerous additions to the churches. The faith of the people in the "sent" ministry had grown.

Skilled legislation is in order, but "skilled workmen" everywhere are in demand, and the finest type of skill is not often developed by depending unduly upon "the other fellow." Too many times the man appointed to specific work is damaged by a second commission to divide the duty and to discount the legitimate worker.

In the economy of the kingdom the uninvested talent brings no return, and important personal duties, too often relegated to others, must bring depleted growth and diminished capacity to fulfill the purposes of a real life.

"Help us to help each other, Lord," is good doctrine and a noble sentiment, but all help and no individual toil makes poor progress and small development. St. Paul said: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And it was the Christ himself who affirmed, "I must work the work of Him that sent me," and no agent in the universe could take his place when he bowed himself in the garden and said: "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me."

"The foot cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee," but the foot has a place and mission in fact, which, if the hand should fail, the foot must perish and fail. Something distinctive can best be used of God.

Too much fraternity even, like too much familiarity, is hurtful to vigor and begets contempt. Variety, as well as unity, is the prevailing order in creation, and shall also, no doubt, obtain in eternity, since "one star differeth from another star." "We, being many," said St. Paul, "are one body," and the many is evident just the same as the one. The mustard seed sprang up and became a tree, and put forth branches. This prophecy of the Savior concerning his kingdom indicates division.

A mustard seed was planted in the conversion of Mr. Wesley in the city of Baltimore in 1784; it became a "tree," and later appeared the "branches"—the great Methodist North and South. And also of this mustard stalk was the Wesleyan Methodist Church of the Old World, and the Methodist Church in Canada, etc., to the number of about twenty branches, in which are found lodging multitudes by the million, of sundry nationalities.

Other churches likewise have sprung up and "put forth branches," and the fact that certain branches have assumed to represent the very best of the original tree does not spoil the truth that this prophecy of the Divine Christ concerning his Church is certainly being fulfilled as the centuries pass.

St. Peter was a "high churchman" of the first water at one time, and impressed that he represented "the only church" and "forbade certain ones," because they declined to follow with his company. But the Savior said: "Let them alone." Not even did he suggest "federation."

A true church or true Christian will bring something to pass, even if a bit out of line with everything that is going. Distinctive personality, even in churches, is truly refreshing, and to grow well, the branches, perchance, may be "pruned," but not of necessity united at the top, or compelled into harmony with things not congenial.

The Savior lingered long in Jerusalem, but "went his way" from his own country, where "they were offended at him," and it was apostolic to "shake off the dust" when conditions justified.

Fraternity is a duty when prudence will allow, and even self-respecting union in instances may occur, but an island at sea—a "narrow neck of land"—or absolute independence is vastly better than to be swallowed alive or to be trammeled by hurtful legislation or damaging association, and such is approved of God, even among the great churches, which, by his favor and help, have been instrumental in blessing the races and in saving the millions unnumbered who now dwell in the city of mansions.

NO STORMS IN HEAVEN.

MY EXPERIENCE IN A CYCLONE.

It was in Copiah County, Miss., April 23, 1883. The weather had been threatening for several days; the wind had been blowing hard most of the time, for perhaps thirty-six hours, with an occasional roar of distant rumbling thunder; also a quick, dashing shower of rain occasionally. My Presiding Elder, Rev. J. A. B. Jones, and wife and myself spent Saturday night with J. H. Catching and wife, near Georgetown. It was quarterly meeting occasion. Sunday morning came; the clouds ran low and fast; the wind blew hard at times. I had a presentiment that we were going to have a storm. I so expressed myself, but failed to impress anyone else with the fact. Eleven o'clock came. Brother Jones preached, administered the sacrament, called on me to pray, then dismissed the congregation. I looked at my Presiding Elder, and said: "Brother Jones, we are going to have a storm." "Maybe not," he said. "Brother Jones, you will hear from it," I said. About this time it began raining hard, and for fifteen or twenty minutes it rained as hard as I ever saw it. After the rain there was a little calm. Several people left the church; others waited to see what the weather was going to do. Brother J. H. Catching went for his buggy, which was seventy or eighty yards from the church. I left the church, walked into the churchyard, and was watching the clouds, when Brother Catching cried out: "Tell everybody to stay in the church; there is coming a storm."

I went into the house, told the people what Brother Catching said; then I walked to where brother and sister were standing, looking at a man who seemed to be running for dear life. We discovered in a moment that we were in the midst of a terrible storm. Trees began to fall around the church; two large trees fell, one at one end, the other at the side of the church—both partly on the house. I watched the corners of the house, and when I saw the house giving way I started to lay down in one of the aisles, thinking the benches would be some protection. I remember getting on my hands and knees—that is all. The next I knew I was flat on the floor, with, it seemed to me, a 2,000-pound weight on me. My head was caught between timbers. How long I had been there I know not. When I came to myself the first thing I thought of was my wife and children, who were fifteen miles away. I felt sure I was killed, or would be. The first words I uttered were, "What will become of my wife and children?"

I could not move. I heard no voices for some time. If ever a poor mortal fully realized his utter helplessness, I did. My head almost crushed, my body almost mashed flat—I could scarcely get enough breath to live. Prayed? Yes, of course I did. Scared? Who would not have been?

After a while I heard a voice; then I heard some walking on the ceiling over me; then I had a little hope of being rescued. I encouraged that hope. I cried, "Help!" as loud as I could. Someone (I think it was Whit Steel, a member of my congregation, and a nephew of the Rev. Elijah Steel, late a member of the Mississippi Conference, who died of yellow fever in 1853) said: "We will get to you as quick as we can."

I knew the men on the outside were working as hard as they could to save me. I was their pastor; they loved me. I loved them. After clearing away the roof, rafters and all—they tried to lift the ceiling off me, but could not. Someone thought of cutting me out; so an ax was secured from a negro who lived near-by, and in a short while I was rescued.

With a badly-broken arm, a fearfully-bruised head and body, I was taken to the home of Hon. J. H. Catching, where for weeks I cared for and able to be taken home. Mr. Good Presiding Elder, staid with me and gave me every attention I needed for five days. A large number of my ministerial brethren came to see me. Ten doctors volunteered their service; so you see I did not lack for attention. The good people of Crystal Springs and Hazlehurst sent me $30. Adams, Bogue Chitto and Wesson all thought of me in a substantial way. How I love these people. They grow on me still. Many of them have long since passed over the river, while God has permitted me to live and preach His Word. "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform."

For a long while I often found myself singing a song I had often heard my precious mother sing, the chorus of which is: "To the land, to the land, to the land I am bound, where there's no more stormy clouds arising." No storms in heaven.

Some time after that I was at a camp meeting at Topisaw. A Brother Alford was present. He was fearfully crippled in a storm a few weeks before. In an experience meeting he told of his experience in the storm. I said to him: "I was in a storm at Georgetown, and I have been a better man since." "So have I," said the brother. It takes affliction, trouble and sorrow to save some people. I know that I am a much better man today than I would have been had I had no trouble and sorrow. The good Lord knows what is best.

Someone said, "Through tribulations deep the way to glory is." Paul said: "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." Charles Wesley, the sweet singer, said:

"O what are all my sufferings here,
If, Lord, thou count me meet
With that enraptured host t'appear
And worship at thy feet.
Give joy or grief, give ease of pain,
Take life or friends away,
But let me find them all again
In that eternal day."

My prayer is: "Save, O Lord, save us at all hazards—let it cost what it may." One said a long time ago: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust Him."

H. P. LEWIS, SR.

NEATNESS OF SPEECH AND DRESS.

In the Christian Advocate (Nashville) of April 12 Will T. Hale thus describes John Wesley:

"His beautiful countenance, his delicate hands, his long natural hair, his neat attire made him, like Alexander Hamilton, one of the most charming men of his time."

As such, Wesley is a model for all of his followers, and, for the most part, all ministers are not slow in attending to themselves so as to command respect and attention.

There are in every community men and women of refinement and culture having literary tastes which every preacher should endeavor to win. In every congregation there will be a few, even in the backwoods, who will detect a "corner" of the "king's English." When a preacher stands up in a congregation and says such words as "tuck," "tote," "pack," "fairy," "mairy," "dissiff," "I seen," what can he hope except to be called "illiterate?"

It is related that Lincoln walked sixteen miles to procure a grammar, and, having it in his possession, studied it so completely that ever afterwards he was one of the most polished of speakers, and some of his speeches will be preserved as gems of English literature.

And every preacher should imitate Mr. Wesley in neatness of attire. No man has a right to afflict his congregation with the looks of a bear. The unshaven, or unkempt, unbrushed, uncouth preacher is a back number, and will sooner or later be relegated to the backwoods.

The writer received a letter once from a preacher, requesting him to look after his "frate." Another wrote of a certain gentleman as a "pillow" in his church. Both of these ministers were members of the Conference. This is the twentieth century, as Bishop Galloway used to say, and we should study to show ourselves approved as workmen that needeth not to be ashamed."

Twenty-five years ago, when this writer began to prepare for the ministry, a young gentleman began to prepare himself for the law. This young man came up from the plow-handles, and, knowing the defects of his mental training, having spent but a few months in school, and not able to attend some law school, gave himself diligently to his books, and with a particular interest in the great speeches of Calhoun, Clay, Webster and others, with the result that when he was admitted to the bar his first cases brought him honor and reward. He, although a common country boy, spoke in the language of the masters. Several years ago this young man was elected a district judge, and further honors await him. The ministry affords an opportunity equally as inviting for ability as the law. Let the young minister, whose eye may rest on this, "take due and timely notice, and govern himself accordingly."

CLERICUS.

A WORD IN SEASON.

Through Amos the Lord said: "I hate, I despise your feasts; and I will not delight in the odour of your solemnities; though ye offer unto me burnt offerings; and your meat offerings I will not accept; neither will I regard the peace offerings of your fatlings. Take away from me the noise of your songs; and the melody of your viols I will not hear. But let judgment roll down like waters, and righteousness like a mighty stream."

Nowhere in God's Word does self-deception find encouragement. When men don with impunity the mask of virtue while strangers to its essence, it is done in the full, clear light of the Word; and seed thus sown to the flesh bear fruit an hundred-fold. As a matter of course, in this the twentieth century, with its advanced thought, high moral standard and clear conception of what constitutes Christian character, such things as conscibusness, fault-finding or uncharitable criticism betray such an utter absence of the spirit of love and sympathy as to challenge the inference that they issue from hearts that are neither hungering or thirsting to be "filled with all the fullness of God." The laws of the "kingdom" are clearly defined, and yet obedience to them is not as free and hearty as it ought to be—for instance, the law of sacrifice, one of its fundamental laws, is too largely ignored, even by those who seemingly would gain the higher and richer experiences in religion. It suggests at least a want of entire devotion to God. The demand for sacrifice is not arbitrary on the part of God. The thing desired is righteousness of life, which is the condition of acceptable sacrifice. This principle is a universal one. In the natural world, the old is continually sacrificed to the new. It is a necessity—a process of revolution, which, in the religious life, under grace, becomes evolution. In the department of science the principle of sacrifice is seen to be basic. The geologist observes the constitution and arrangement of the organic matter contained in the hard crust of the earth, giving his strength and years to the arduous task of coaxing mother earth to unfold her secrets.

Jewish history is that of a nation whose refusal to render the sacrifice of devotion to the world-wide purpose of God resulted in national oblivion and the contribution of a name to the world as a perpetual by-word.

Napoleon won a great victory after spending a sleepless night over maps and charts. The cotton-stalk of abnormal growth produces lint sparingly. Posterity's health and happiness is conditioned largely by the self-sacrifice of its ancestry.

"In all ages selfishness has been like a flame consuming society," but self-forgetfulness in the service of others continually builds upon the ruins. Inevitably the lower must die, that the higher may live. One has only to glance at the record of current events in the daily newspapers to find the failure to observe this resulting in the downfall of a number of social and political satellites. This law of sacrifice underlies the supernatural, as well as the natural. It cannot be that the value of the "seen" is more real than that of the unseen (though, if the conduct of the majority of mankind could be accepted as a criterion the contrary inference would be justifiable). The necessity of sacrifices is as real in the one instance as in the other. Christ, speaking with authority, said: "He who would save his life must lose it," giving a rule that has yet to be improved upon.

The cogent reason for watchfulness along this line is that selfishness, avarice and comfort are constantly drawn up in battle array against anything that looks like progress.

"Heaven became impoverished, that man might become enriched," and the spirit of sacrifice in the Christian life is only the human response to the Divine attitude as uttered in the incarnation and atonement; and only in proportion to the degree in which this spirit obtains will the human life become the channel of regenerating and sanctifying power. Whatever belongs to the Lord, when withheld from His service, seems surcharged with corrosive power. There must be a willingness to give the best we have, liberally and unostentatiously; and also the relinquishment of pet notions and methods in favor of superior ones. This is frequently hard to do.

Finally, the spirit of sacrifice is the legitimate offspring of love, which "worketh no ill to its neighbor," and which is the essence of the Christian religion. With a full measure of this spirit, together with the mutual recognition of the interdependent relations between the ministry and laity, many of the vexatious difficulties will be removed, and the Church will enjoy greater freedom, and wield a mightier force in the achievement of her divinely-appointed purpose—the salvation of sinners.

May the Lord graciously grant us His Holy Spirit, that we may all discharge the responsibilities of time and earth in that manner best calculated to secure the salvation of the sinner and the glory of God. W. L. H.

THE APPEAL OF THE BISHOPS.

To the Ministers and Members of the Methodist Church, South: In view of the great disaster that has fallen on San Francisco and other cities and communities of the Pacific Coast, we suggest that collections be taken on Sunday, May 6, in all our churches, and that the amounts contributed be sent at once to the Secretary of our Board of Missions, to be distributed by him in relieving the wants of our ministers and people, and in restoring ruined churches and parsonages.

Signed by Bishops A. W. Wilson, O. P. Fitzgerald, J. C. Granbery, Warren A. Candler, W. W. Duncan, H. C. Morrison, C. B. Galloway, E. E. Hoss, E. R. Hendrix, A. Coke Smith and J. S. Key.

CALIFORNIA RELIEF FUND.

BY BISHOP O. P. FITZGERALD.

The acquaintance and confidence of the general public enjoyed by the officers of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and their facilities for such service, made it seem eminently proper that they should be made agents for the disbursement of the fund raised among our people for the relief of the sufferers from the recent disaster in California. When intelligence of that sore visitation reached Nashville, the connectional headquarters of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the seat of the Board of Missions, a meeting was called of the connectional officers of the Church, together with the pastors of our denomination in the city. At this meeting expressions of pro- for the immediate collection of funds to be ap- ofr the immediate collection of funds to be appiled to the relief of the sufferers. The suggestion was accepted, that the distribution of any funds that might hus be raised could be speedily and safely effected through the intelligent counsel and hearty co-operation of our chief pastors, with the resident brethren who represent our denomination in California. It was hoped that the responses of our people would be prompt and liberal, and we felt assured that to all concerned it would be in the fullest and most sacred sense a labor of love. And so it has turned out. From the fuller accounts received, bringing us the knowledge of the wider spread of the disaster, it was evident beyond rational doubt that the aid sought for was needed, and that there was no reasonable ground of fear that the sum secured would be excessive. All the donors to this fund seemed to be cheerful givers. Their satisfaction would be still greater if the sum transmitted were even larger. With what is sent herewith goes our kindly thought, with a prayer that the abounding mercies of a gracious God may now be especially manifested unto our smitten people in beautiful California, as she sits in the midst of this great sorrow and desolation.

LOUISIANA LEGAL CONFERENCE.

The Legal Conference of the Louisiana Conference met at the Advocate office on April 24, 1906, and organized by the election of Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer, President; Dr. F. N. Parker, Secretary, and Walter W. Carre, Treasurer.

Their next meeting will be held during the commencement of Centenary College, at Jackson, La.

CARD FROM REV. A. S. LUTZ.

The following card from Rev. A. S. Lutz, of Berkeley, Cal., will be read with great interest by his many friends in Louisiana:

Dear Brother Boswell: The disaster that has befallen us is beyond description. My church is filled with people, whom we are trying to feed and shelter. The suffering is intense. Men, women and children have been sleeping on the cold ground. The ruin in San Francisco is awful. Berkeley suffered very little, but we are caring for the suffering from the city. Relief is now reaching us. ALBERT S. LUTZ.

"Withhold not good from them to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it."—Prov. iii. 27.

PREPARATION.

It is time that we women wake up to the fact that Christ's "follow me" means preparation and study. We should not judge the time taken from our work for self-improvement, for all the time we take from our work to give to Christ comes back to us sanctified and ennobled by passing through him who is Lord and Master of all. If we study faithfully we may make the world stronger for what we know, and better for what we do, and sweeter because our love for Christ has sanctified both the knowing and the doing.

SERVICE.

Then we should realize that our knowledge is a sacred trust to be daily used for the uplifting of mankind. We are trusted to work for Him among those for whom He died. There is so much to be done, and so often we think when we have given money we have fulfilled our responsibility. That is only a small part of what is required of us. It is the giving of our time, the self-denials and the sacrifices—all these are more acceptable in God's sight than mere dollars and cents.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Conference Society will be held in Baton Rouge, May 5 to 8, and it is earnestly desired that every auxiliary will send a delegate. If we could lay aside all other business for a few days because we recognize the importance of this conference, it would perhaps help the Home Mission cause in our State more than anything we could do.

A HOME MISSION SOCIETY IN A FOREIGN FIELD.

At Monterey, Mexico, there is a Home Mission Society, with a membership of thirty-five, which enjoys the distinction of being the only Woman's Home Mission Society of the Southern Methodist Church beyond the boundary of the United States. It contributes to the support of the city missionary, paid for the new hymnals in the church, expended $120 on improvements at the parsonage, paid the rent of a room at Topo Chico for Mexican chapel services during the year, gave to several charitable objects and has on hand $363.43. The total amount raised during the year was $1,618.

MRS. JOHN B. PARKER,
Supt. for Louisiana Conference.

W. F. M. S.

The Twenty-seventh Annual Meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference, M. E. Church, South, was held in Alexandria, April 19 to 22. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. N. E. Joyner, pastor of the Methodist Church in Alexandria. The annual sermon, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, was preached by Rev. J. E. Wray, of New Orleans. Both were able and inspiring sermons, and awakened new missionary zeal in the hearts of all who heard them.

On Sunday evening Miss Alice Waters, a missionary from China, delivered an address on the "Darkness in China," and gave an account of the work being done there by the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions.

Tuesday evening was devoted to the study of the different countries occupied by the Woman's Board. Mrs. S. A. Montgomery gave a map talk on Corea; Mrs. F. A. Dicks on Brazil. Mrs. J. J. Holmes told of the work in Cuba, and gave a history of the work among the Indians. Mrs. N. E. Joyner, who has lived in Mexico for six years, told of some very interesting personal experiences in addition to her talk on the work there.

The business sessions were held Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Many of the auxiliaries showed an increase in the work over that of last year, while others have fallen behind. The Treasurer's report also showed an increase in funds over last year.

Mrs. F. A. Dicks, who has served faithfully for five years as Conference Corresponding Secretary, resigned, very much to the regret of the Conference.

Lake Charles was chosen as the next place of meeting. Shreveport and Carrollton Avenue also extended invitations for next year, but, as the meeting was held in North Louisiana last year, it was thought best to go to South Louisiana next year.

The Conference again pledged $1,500 for the support of Misses Helen Johnston and Ada Parker, now missionaries in Brazil. It was also decided to endeavor to secure a scholarship ($3,000) in the Scarritt Training School during the next three years. This is to be accomplished by getting 100 women to pay $10 per year for three years.

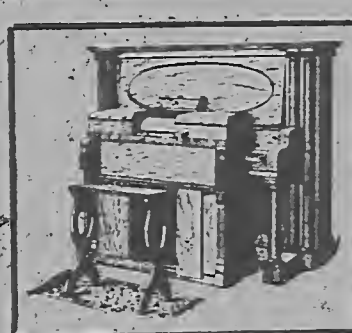
The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. S. A. Montgomery, New Orleans; Vice President, Mrs. Clarence Harris, Shreveport; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Ethel Beane; Recording Secretary, Mrs. N. E. Joyner, Alexandria; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes, Minden; Superintendent Press Work, Mrs. Edward Alvis, New Orleans; Superintendent Young People's Work, Miss Mary Wilkinson, New Orleans.

District Secretaries — Arcadia Dist., Miss Emma Turnley, at Minden; Alexandria Dist., Mrs. Paul Foster, at Opelousas; Baton Rouge Dist., Mrs. B. E. Eskridge, at St. Francisville; Crowley Dist., Mrs. A. P. Holt, at Crowley; Monroe Dist., Mrs. M. L. Meredith, at Monroe; New Orleans Dist., Mrs. F. A. Dicks, at New Orleans; Shreveport Dist., Mrs. M. F. Crain, at Shreveport.

MRS. S. A. MONTGOMERY.

Epworth League

Rev. G. H. Thompson, pastor, has recently organized an Epworth League at Brookhaven. We hardly know a place where the need and opportunity are greater.



At the date of this writing the Mississippi Conference Epworth League is assembling in McComb City. The programme is an interesting one, ending with Sunday exercises, consisting of an annual sermon, installation of officers, consecration services and address.

We, a few days since, attended the Missionary Institute of the Natchez District, held at Hamburg, Miss. It was one of the best meetings of the kind that we have attended. Rev. W. D. Dominick read a wise and helpful paper upon "The Epworth League and Missions." Among the young brethren of the Natchez District is Rev. Ira B. Robertson, who joined the Mississippi Conference in 1860. He is now superannuate, but he is young in spirit.

And now comes Georgia and says the Leaguers of that State must have an assembly on the order of the Texans. Shares are being sold at $100 each, in order to raise funds for the purchase of a suitable site. It would seem that the assembly fever is contagious, with Oklahoma and Georgia both moving in the interest of such a project. Well, brethren, we wish you the greatest success in your efforts. Come down to our meeting this summer and we will give you the benefit of the start we have made. We are only looking for 10,000 people this year, but they are the kind to put enthusiasm into your bones. So come!—(From League Department of Texas Christian Advocate.)

The Editor of this department is in receipt of a personal letter which he desires to acknowledge thus publicly, as he has done privately. The letter is from Brother Gus W. Thomasson, Editor of the League Department of the Texas Advocate. Among other things he says: "I note that your name appears again at the head of the League Department of the New Orleans Advocate, after an absence of several weeks, and, being interested in keeping in touch with the several editors of Advocate League Departments, I hasten to express my pleasure in your return to the charmed circle, which, I trust, will now be permanent. I have read much from your pen with interest and pleasure." And a word like this makes us take courage and go forward.

INFANT SALVATION AND PENTECOST.

In the Advocate of April 5 my good friend, Brother Honnoll, mildly criticizes my views on infant salvation. Before giving attention to Brother Honnoll's criticism, I wish to call attention to two typographical errors contained in the article criticized. In the caption we have "redemption" where I wrote "regeneration." In the body of the article we find "inhuman depravity," I wrote "inherent depravity." A sorry pen and a poor pensman were largely responsible for the errors, I reckon.

Brother Honnoll says "if regeneration removes depravity, the children of regenerated parents would not be depraved." I am a little surprised that Brother Honnoll did not see the "difficulty" vanish when he wrote the definition of inherent depravity. Here is his definition: "Children are depraved only in the sense of deprivation or loss, weakness through the effect of the fall." Are children deprived of the "law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus?" (Rom. viii. 2.) If so, it is restored in regeneration. This Spirit of life sheds abroad the love of God in our hearts. Rom. v. 5. If this love was lost to children by the fall, is it not restored in regeneration? If regeneration secures "unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness" (II Pet. i. 3), and these things were lost to infants by the fall, and depravity consists in this loss, obviously regeneration removes depravity. But does it necessarily follow that the children of regenerated parents are not depraved? By no means. Acquired moral and intellectual characteristics are not hereditary. Children do not inherit knowledge from educated parents, nor the divine life with all that that means from parents who have been born of the Spirit. As to the parable referred to by our brother, I admit that man was God's child before the fall, as much as after his recovery, as taught by the lost piece of money, and that the Gentiles, before departing from the worship of the true God, were as much His as when restored to His Church by the Gospel, as taught by the parable of the prodigal son. But such admission has nothing to do with the question under discussion.

I will now give my views as to Pentecost. Have read what Dr. Brooks, and a number of others, have written on the subject. I cannot agree with any of them. I am of the opinion that the disciples were born of the Spirit at Pentecost. It was their first blessing, and in a sense their first cleansing. Much that took place on that occasion takes place now in a true revival. Penitent believers were born of the Spirit. Sinners were convicted. Some would have us believe that the disciples were born of the Spirit before Pentecost. I have not space in which to discuss their arguments, but will give some reasons for differing from them on the subject. Evidently the Holy Ghost dispensation was inaugurated at Pentecost, and regeneration, as we experience it, was contemplated in Joel's prophesy, quoted by Peter. Could the disciples be born of the Spirit without receiving the Holy Ghost? I should think not. The Holy Spirit takes up his abode in those He regenerates, or those who truly obey God, under the present dispensation. Hear Peter: "And we are his witnesses of these things, and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him." (Acts v. 32.)

Evidently Cornelius and the congregation assembled with him were regenerated at their Pentecost. But it may be said that Cornelius was a devout man, before he heard Peter. So, I suppose, was Nicodemus before his conversation with our Lord. So was Luther quite a while before he felt the mighty power of the divine life in his soul. So was Wesley, before he had the assurance of his salvation. Receiving the Spirit and being born of the Spirit were evidently the same transaction in Paul's conversion. Now, Christ tells us that the coming of the Holy Ghost, and the performance of his office work, depended upon him going away himself. (John xvi. 6-9.) John tells us, in speaking of one of Christ's utterances: "But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive, for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified." (John vii. 39.) How, then, could people be born of the Spirit, when He had not been given? This gift of the Holy Ghost cannot, according to John's language just quoted, be limited to Pentecost; an unregenerate penitent believer has a right to expect it. Its main work, then, must be regeneration.

WHAT THE CHURCH OUGHT TO DO.

For as much as some of the brethren have undertaken to advise as to "what the Church ought to do," I also "will show mine opinion."

First—Do not make the districts too large. Bishop McTyeire, in his little work on church government, says in substance that the quarterly meeting has two elements—a conference, or administrative meeting, and a religious meeting. The mid-week quarterly conference minifies the religious element, and does not magnify the business meeting.

Brother D. W. Babb makes a strong plea for the religious feature of the quarterly meeting, urging the almost indispensable importance of a Sunday included. Twenty-four charges, as in the Corinth District, minifies the religious feature.

The presiding eldership is a strong connectional bond in our church polity. The strong churches and the weak churches, all, need the force of this connectional tie. Brother R. A. Meek strikes the nail squarely on the head when he says, "Whatever tends to weaken the presiding eldership tends to congregationalism."

Second—As to the Episcopacy: This, also, is a very strong connectional bond in our Methodist economy. Dr. Summers favored the larger number of Bishops. We do not contend for a diocesan Episcopacy—a Bishop for every State—but think it well to have a sufficient number to cultivate thoroughly our widening fields; to learn the wants of our diversified charges and to know the men who are expected to serve them.

Where will you find episcopal timber for so many Bishops, and how can you pay them? Rev. P. A. Peterson, on the floor of the General Conference in Nashville, contending for the election of five or six Bishops, said: "There are fifty men on this Conference floor who would make Bishops." As to the question of salaries, it should never enter the discussion when we are considering the needs of the Church. If the Church needs presiding elders and Bishops, they will be paid. Four new Bishops will not be too many to expect at the approaching General Conference.

Third—Let the memorial of Brother Sherrard, asking that Methodist hospitals be established and judiciously located, be adopted. And for the suggestion and inspiration of this noble enterprise, let us give credit to Sister G. L. Wrenn and other good women of the North Mississippi Home Mission Society.

T. C. WIER.

THE SUPERANNUATE ENDOWMENT.

I wish to ask all pastors who have taken collections in churches for the Superannuate Endowment Fund to please report results to me at once. I ask this for special and good reasons. The reports received show good returns. Will the preachers in charge and presiding elders be reminded that in all insatnices where this collection has not yet been taken that it is greatly desired that it be done as early as practicable.

The Christian Life.

THE WITNESS OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Some very visionary ideas are current in regard to the doctrine of the witness of the Holy Spirit. There are certain emotional people who take the language of Scripture so literally that they claim that this "witness" came to them in a sudden and startling manner; it was revealed to them in a wonderful vision or in a dream, or even in some cases by an imagined voice from heaven. On this extraordinary and transient experience they are inclined to base their hope that they are accepted "children of God." Does the great apostle, when he affirms in the magnificent eighth chapter of his Epistle to the Romans that "the Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God," place his main reliance on any such fitful and visionary experience? Nay, verily; it was not upon what might prove a shining and shifting foundation that he rested his everlasting hope, but upon the Rock of Ages. What he did, we should do. The less that we make our daily religious life to depend on transient emotions, and the more we make it a solid, intelligent principle of faith in Christ and the practice of Bible godliness, the better for us. A sensible Christian will seek for the evidence of his being an accepted child of God in the same way that he seeks for evidence in any other great, vital problem. He does it in some such method as the following:

1. In the first place, he is clearly conscious of a certain experience, not lasting for a few happy moments, but for months and perhaps for many long years. He knows perfectly well that he is not the same person that he once was, and that a marked change has taken place in his tastes, desires, principles and habitual conduct. He may never have been thrilled by any sudden ecstasy, but he can calmly and conscientiously say: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." I am conscious that I love the Savior who died for me. I do not claim to lead a sinless life, but I do hate and eschew sins that I used to be guilty of. Every mean thing, every selfish or cowardly or wicked thing that I do is my work; and every pure, noble, useful and holy thing which I do to please my Lord and Savior is His work. Once I was totally blind, but now I see. I do not see everything by an infallible perception, yet my eyes have been opened to see myself and my needs, and also to see Jesus Christ as the pardoner of sin and as the omnipotent Friend whom I can trust implicitly. I used to resist the Divine Spirit, and now I desire to be led by that Spirit. He has often led me. He has quieted many a fear. He has inspired me to many a noble and holy purpose. He has given me strength to resist many a temptation and to bear many a load cheerfully and to win many a victory. I am perfectly sure that some power out of myself and above myself has been working on me and producing certain spiritual results. Every result must have a cause. Satan could not and would not have made me what I am. My own heart could not and did not change itself. I can only account for all my spiritual experiences by believing that I have been led by the Spirit of God; and my Bible declares that "as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." Of this actual experience no one can outwit me or rob me.

2. There is a second method of discovering the true meaning and realizing the happy assurance of this "witness of the Spirit." Our Bible, as God's book, inspired by the Holy Spirit; and this book is the charter of Christianity. It not only reveals Jesus Christ, but describes the nature of the religion which He came to teach. It defines His commandments, and tells us just what it is to be a follower of Christ. It photographs the Christian character. The Holy Spirit, in this holy book, describes what regeneration is, and how it is produced; and what are the evidences and fruits of it. Now if I find that my character and conduct correspond in any good degree with this Bible portraiture of a true child of God, then I have a witness of the Spirit in my favor.

Suppose we take a silver dollar to the United States mint and compare it with the die in that mint. We discover that they correspond to each other. There is the eagle and there are the stars on the die, and the same eagle and stars are stamped on the dollar. We feel sure, therefore, that the dollar came out of that mint, and from that die. So a child of God opens the Bible which the Holy Spirit inspired and gave to him. He reads in it the requisites of the Christian character—repentance of sin, faith in Christ and obedience to Christ's commandments. He is conscious that he has repented, that he does trust Christ, and, though very imperfectly, is endeavoring to order his life in conformity with Christ's teachings. "My peace I give unto you," is Christ's promise; and such peace he has actually found. The fruits of the Holy Spirit are faith, love, joy, meekness, and other similar graces. If he finds these graces existing—in any good degree—in his own heart and daily life, then he has a strong assurance that he is an accepted child of God. There is a certain agreement between the religion which the H. S. Spirit has written on the Bible page and the religion which that same Spirit has inscribed on his own heart and character. Thus the Spirit witnesseth to his soul that he is a child of God, and this witness gives him the strength of a solid assurance. Instead of resting on transient emotion or a devout rapture, he founds his everlasting hope on what Jesus Christ has done in him and promises to do for him in this world and in the next.

The great apostle tells us that he had the witness of the Spirit that he was an adopted and accepted child of God. The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus had delivered him from the dominion of sin and death. There was an inward conviction, and an outward conduct; the two corresponded with each other. They both corresponded to the Spirit's description of true Christianity. Paul never could have written this magnificent eighth chapter if he had not actually known that Jesus Christ lived in him.—Dr. Cuyler, in Christian Advocate.

A LIFE WORTH LIVING.

The following paragraph, taken from the remarks of Dr. Chapman at the funeral of the late Rev. S. H. Hadley, the Water Street, (N.Y.) missionary, is worth saving. It gives an insight into the life and power of the most successful worker among the lowly and lost:

He preached a great salvation. No one was too far away from God for him, no life was ever too low in his estimation for salvation, and no one was ever too hopeless for him not to make an effort to lead them to Christ. He had an interest salvation for every wandering sinner.

The first time I ever saw this blessed man was here in the City of New York in a dive. I had been asked to see the city at its worst and I confess with shame that I set out to look at lost men and lost women with a spirit of curiosity, but when I had crossed the threshold of the first saloon and saw S. H. Hadley throw his arms about a drunkard's shoulders I lost my curiosity. When I walked with him into a house of ill-repute, behold him lay his hand upon the head of a fallen girl and bathe her upturned face with his tears, I had a new conception of what it was to have a passion for souls. And when I said good-night to him that night he took my hand and pressed it and said, "Oh! oh! oh! How can people so forget God." Then he said, "My Brother, always preach a Gospel that can save such as these." If there has been any tenderness in my preaching, I think I owe much of it to this dear soul Who lies before us in his casket to-day.

The last time I saw him was in the city of Syracuse, less than two weeks ago. He came to the hotel where I was stopping, and with a smile upon his face entered the door of the room where I was sitting and said, "Well, I thought I would just come and see you. I have nothing to do for a little while and we'll just visit together." He told the matchless story of his conversion as I have never heard him tell it before, and when his visit was over he clasped my hand and said good-bye. "We'll go South together and I will labor with you in Texas to save the drunkard," and I feel crushed to-day when I realize that this plan can never be carried out and that S. H. Hadley is gone from us.

Between these two extremes of our acquaintance stretched the most beautiful life I have ever known anything about. I have seen him praying with the lost drunkard, and pleading with the fallen woman. In California I was making an appeal just following his own address, when I heard a gentleman say to him, "Mr. Hadley, you don't know me, but I am Jimmy ———," and this great man said, "Are you? Your mother told me that I might see you out here, and she asked me to look for you. Let us get down on our knees and pray here," and they dropped right on their knees, and while I was pleading with the people to turn to Christ this wandering boy came back again into the fold.—Christian Intelligencer.

THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1906.

Some one has said "there is difference between religion and Christianity." That is true, but let it not be forgotten that Christianity is true religion.

Punctual observance of Church formalities, including paying and praying, will do us no good unless we are right with God. When right with Him, we are also right with one another.

No matter what sort of an appeal may be made to a man, nothing but a desire to do the will of God should ever enter his mind when he seeks to find a reason for his conduct.

Saul of Tarsus was willin' to do anything the Lord might command. There was no dictation, no reasoning, not even an expression of preference. Such should be the spirit of every Christian.

It is not wise to discount a man because his clothes are not gay and fashionable. To do so is to become a judge of evil thoughts. It requires more than the natural eye to see the man on the inside.

Men prompted to the performance of good deeds by pride, or self-interest, or a desire to do like other people, lose sight of the only motive that commands good works. This is why their good deeds produce no real satisfaction.

The Psalmist said: "I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than dwell in the tents of wickedness." How different from the successors of Diotrephes, who love to have the pre-eminence—willing enough to work, but must work where they can be seen and honored.

One who contents himself with religious enjoyment, under the impression that religion is designed to make men happy and carry them to heaven, has not measured the purpose for which God gave him a name and a place in the Church. He needs to be taught the way of God more perfectly.

It is doubtless true that lawless men run "blind tigers" in prohibition territory. This has given ground for the charge that "prohibition does not prohibit," and we hear much of it, but we seldom hear of lawless men running the same kind of shops in license towns. It is a fact, nevertheless. But nobody says "license does not protect." The sneering is all on one side, and indulged for the purpose of bringing a beneficent law into contempt, a thing of which intelligent men should be ashamed.

AS TO TRIAL FOR HERESY.

At this writing we do not know the result of the trial of Dr. Crapsey, of the Episcopal Church, charged with heresy. In advance of the trial, much has been said and written; no little of which is wholly without justification. As soon as it was known that the Doctor would be called to answer for his deliverances he was at once regarded as on the rack for opinion's sake. It was also said that, not Dr. Crapsey, but the Episcopal Church, is on trial, which is to say, the outcome will determine whether the Episcopal Church is liberal and will allow its ministers to enjoy and express their opinions, or whether it is narrow-minded, and will deprive them of their living. One writer has ventured to suggest that the Episcopal Church, in putting Dr. Crapsey on trial, has virtually put the New Testament on trial. All such talk is idle.

Why are men so ready to condemn the Church when it undertakes to deal with its ministers for uttering erroneous and strange doctrines? It is not so in other things. It is not so in politics. If a man in either one of the great political parties departs from the recognized principles of the party, he is forthwith read out of the party, and allowed no place in it. Let him persist in claiming his place while holding to political heresies, he is not only disowned, but discredited. Nobody seems to think there is anything wrong in this. Party opinions and party policies must be preserved. Wrong opinions will lead to policies that would wreck the party. Even so will wrong opinions of the doctrines of Scripture lead to wrong policies, and ultimately destroy the faith. Surely the principles on which the Church of God is founded are as worthy of preservation as the principles of political parties.

Certain things in our holy religion are established. On these things the Church is built. They cannot be set aside without undermining and destroying the whole fabric. The divinity and incarnation of the Son of God are two of the foundation principles. Set them aside, or prove them false, and Christianity, as a system of religion, has no solid basis. Peter's confession of these facts gained for him the blessing of our Lord: "Blessed art thou, Simon, Bar Jonah, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." It was upon this truth as confessed by Peter that the Lord proposed to build His Church.

The doctrine of the incarnation, it is asserted, was not known to our Lord, nor to the early Christians. If not, then some of the plainest words of our Lord are meaningless. "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God. * * * And the word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

The Episcopal Church accepts the Apostle's Creed, which distinctly states that Jesus Christ was God's only Son, conceived of the Holy Ghost, and born of the Virgin Mary. The doctrine was incorporated in the tenets of the Episcopal Church in the very beginning of its existence, and it has been consistently maintained all the while. Dr. Crapsey himself, in taking a place in the ministry, vowed to maintain it, and, at least in every morning service, as shepherd of the flock, he takes the lead in thus expressing the faith of the Church; yet he publicly denies the truth of the doctrine, asserting the whole theory of the incarnation to be "unthinkable." Denying the incarnation, he necessarily denies the divinity of our Lord. We can think of nothing more absurd than that of a man ministering at the altar of Christ, feeding his flock on spiritual food, and yet denying the authority by which he ministers.

We do not charge that Dr. Crapsey, and all who hold with him, are hypocrites. Nor can we excuse him on the ground that men of genius, such as he, are absolved from obedience to the rule of common honesty, by which ordinary mortals are bound. How he maintains his self-respect, by eating the bread of the Church, while defaming the head that supplies the bread, is best known to himself.

The end to which Dr. Crapsey has come is the logical end of destructive criticism. It is the destination of all who persist in following the lead of men who deny the infallibility of the Scriptures, and their final authority. No matter how sincere, or godly, or orthodox a man may be, if he allows himself to become tainted in the least, he is not safe. To doubt and deny one thing, will inevitably open the way to doubt and deny another, and on and on until all faith in revelation is lost, and the man stands an avowed infidel, or a self-despised deceiver.

Heresy trials may be out of date, and out of harmony with the so-called spirit of the twentieth century, but so long as the Gospel, in its purity, is necessary to the building of Christian character, so long must Christian men contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints. St. Paul said to Titus: "A man that is a heretic, after the first and second admonition, reject."

TIGHTENING THE SCREWS.

Years ago it was said by someone that "the people must destroy the saloon or be destroyed by it." The people seem to be awakening to that fact. The great cities, which largely dominate the country, are dominated by the saloon. This is not because the liquor dealers and their patrons compose a majority of the population, but because they stand together, and hold the balance of power, as ready to give their influence and votes to one party as another. And party leaders, though not always ready to make friends with them, are too often afraid to offend them.

The danger at present is not "scented from afar." It is right at the door. Our honest conviction is that the greater number of our people believe in the principle of absolute prohibition, but hesitate under the impression that it is impracticable. They are showing their willingness however to restrict the traffic as much as possible. Legislatures, State and municipal, are taxing the business as much as it will bear, and throwing around it such restrictions as would arouse public indignation if applied to any other line of commerce. Ohio, one of the liquor strongholds, has raised the license fee from $350 to $1,000 a year. Chicago has placed the license at the same figure. Other cities have largely increased the tax, and others are legislating, and will succeed. The screws are being tightened all the time.

High license, as a preventive or prohibitive measure, is a failure. It restricts the number of open saloons. That is about all the good it does. It does not lessen the amount of drinking, nor put the business in good hands. The qualifying term is out of place, in speaking of the liquor dealers as a class. Some are worse than others. All are bad. No good man will deal in stuff that demoralizes, and finally ruins his fellow-man.

High license, imposed as a restrictive measure—to reduce consumption of liquor, and consequently to lessen crime—is better than the system that imposes such a small tax as to allow one to go into the business who is barely able to purchase a jug of whisky. But to advocate and push the matter for revenue only, even though the object in view is good, is not right. It is contrary to sound policy, and will bring upon any people the condemnation of the prophet who said: "Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and establisheth a city by iniquity." The whole abominable business should be destroyed.

ARE WOMEN BETTER THAN MEN?

In one of the great cities of our country it is said that the men and women are about equal in number, and that in the matter of Church attendance the women outnumber the men seven to one. On the other hand, the figures show that men confined in prison outnumber women in exactly the same proportion—seven to one. What is true of this particular city, is perhaps true of all other cities, for conditions are much the same everywhere.

The facts stated have started a chain of speculative questions, thus put by a leading daily paper:

"Do men go to the penitentiary because they do not go to Church, and do women escape the penitentiary because they go to Church? Are women good because they go to Church, or do they go to Church because they are good? Are men bad because they do not go to Church, or do they absent themselves from Church because they are bad? And, again, why are women better than men? Is it because they are too timid to take the risk of lawbreaking, or because the Creator has endowed them with superior virtue? A great proportion of the population of the penal institutions are thieves. Is there any just cause why men should be less honest than women?"

It is hardly necessary to speculate on the subject. Men and women are of the same species, and of course have the same moral nature, and on the supposition that in a given community all have the same moral advantages, if one sex shows a tendency to evil, or to disregard advantages, it is because the one rather than the other gives way to evil influences, and not because one is naturally better than the other. Perhaps, if women knocked around in the world like men, and were exposed to like temptation, they would not only cease to attend Church, but would be quite as bad as men. Without figures at hand to prove it, we believe that we are inside the truth when we say that among the vicious classes of society the women are as bad as the men, and attend Church in no larger numbers. We think the same is true in that class of society that is wholly worldly, but not classed as vicious. In this class, though there may be no sinners against the State, there are plenty of them against society, and both men and women neglect God.

Take society generally, especially in the cities, it will be seen that there is a lamentable neglect of the Church on the part of men—due doubtless to several causes, but principally to the commercial spirit that has taken hold of the world. It has not yet reached the women to any great extent. But if prevailing conditions continue, and women enlarge their business spheres, it will not be long until, like the men, they will look after their commercial interests all the week, and lounge or dissipate the whole of every Sunday.

With the condition of things as pictured, it behooves the Church to be doubly diligent and faithful in presenting the truth, and forcing it upon the attention of the world.

AN APOLOGY TO THE PEOPLE.

In last week's Advocate we made some strictures on the conduct of one of the high officers of the State of Mississippi. We thought the case was such as to deserve notice in the official organ of the Mississippi Conferences. After what we said had been put in type we read, with great pleasure, that the official complained of had made full apology to the people of Mississippi, and expressed the profoundest sorrow that he had given any occasion to make them feel ashamed of him. It required great courage thus to acknowledge a fault, and ask forgiveness. May he have grace and strength to stand firm in the future.

PERSONAL.

Rev. L. W. Cain, Itta Bena, Miss., has been sick since the District Conference at his town, but he has rallied and is at work. His charge is in fine shape.

Rev. W. H. Jordan, of Lanesville, La., says: Things are moving on very nicely up here." Brother Jordan accompanies that statement with a list of sixteen subscribers, and has our thanks.

Dr. Richard Wilkinson, of Monroe, was in the city last week, and, in company with Rev. Theo. Copeland, paid the Advocate office a visit, which was much appreciated by the whole Advocate force.

During the absence of the Editor, who left this week for the General Conference at Birmingham, we expect much of the work on the paper to be done by Rev. J. E. Wray and Rev. Theo. Copeland and Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer.

Rev. C. C. Miller, President of Centenary College, met with a cordial reception at the Alexandria District Conference last week. The Conference voted him a welcome to the various charges of the district "in representing his great work."

We thank Brother Oats for his article in reference to the Orphanage. It will be read with great interest, and, we trust, will prompt the generous-hearted to refund at once the heavy cost of moving. Let every Methodist in Mississippi help!

We are sorry to hear that our old friend, and our co-laborer in the first months of our ministry, Rev. J. W. Poston, has been on the sick list for several weeks past. He is now improving, and hopes soon to be all right. He is one of the faithful.

Rev. W. T. Woodward reports the death of Brother Bascom Williams, of Hico, La., one of our faithful Methodist brethren. He was a brother of Rev. J. B. Williams, of the Louisiana Conference, with whom we sympathize in this bereavement.

Housekeepers must be watchful, for great efforts are made to sell the alum baking powders which every physician will inform you are poisonous to the human system.

The Government Report shows Royal Baking Powder to be an absolutely pure and healthful cream of tartar baking powder, and consumers who are prudent will make sure that no other enters into their food.

Rev. J. J. Prichett will preach the annual sermon for the Scarritt Bible and Training School on Sunday, the 6th of May. Commencement exercises on May 8 will close the thirteenth year of the school. We thank the Faculty for an invitation to be present.

A good brother desires us to tell him all we know about the Louisiana Conference minutes for 1905. A copy of the work lies before us, and there are ten packages in the office for the various churches in the city. The job is very neat. This is all we know. We thank Brother Evans for a copy.

Rev. J. A. B. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference, is at present in Lecompte, La., helping the pastor, Rev. N. J. Roberts, in a ten-days' meeting. Brother Jones, more than fifty years an itinerant preacher, is now on the superannuate roll, but vigorous for a man of his years, and is still warm in heart.

Rev. W. S. Shipman, of Amory, Miss., is much pleased with his work, and rejoices in "the signs of substantial development." He expects "a year of great prosperity." The Aberdeen District Conference will be held with his charge, beginning on Thursday, June 28. We thank Brother Shipman for a cordial invitation to attend.

The people of Bolton, Miss., are good to their preacher, Rev. I. L. Peebles. They have relieved him of the duty of taking up the collections, and he gives all his time to preaching and pastoral work. He has recently had the help of Rev. V. D. Skipper, who preached for him a few days—giving the people "good, strong sermons."

The last quarterly meeting for the Carrollton Charge, North Mississippi, was an occasion of great interest, having present the presiding elder and pastor, Revs. T. H. Dorsey and C. P. Moss, and, as visitors, Drs. W. L. C. Hunnicutt and W. T. J. Sullivan. The preaching was edifying and the tables groaned beneath the load of good things to eat. Dr. Hunnicutt did the preaching on Saturday, and Brother Dorsey on Sunday.

Brother R. W. Freeman, of Morgan City, La., is a veteran of the Civil War. He took part in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court House, and others. In two of these battles he was wounded, and surrendered with General Lee at Appomattox. He is also a veteran soldier of the cross—has been in the army a long time, and for many years an office-bearer in the Church—steward and Sunday school superintendent. He is at present a steward at Morgan City. He has been a constant reader of this Advocate for twenty-five years. All honor to the veteran!

A FIERCE DEMONIAC HEALED.

Demoniac is the proper name for the condition of this poor man, who was restored to his right mind by a word from the Lord. The confession from the demon that had taken possession of him seems to tell us that Satan was sending many of his emissaries to work around in the land in which Jesus was teaching and preaching and setting up His kingdom in the hearts of men. The Son of God was delivering a message of freedom from the bonds of sin and the devil, and this message was to be used to destroy the works of the evil one until the end of time. Satan knew this too well, and he was on the alert, putting forth every effort to counteract the work of good at the start. See what a firm foothold he had secured, even in the Sanhedrin, the members of which were sending spies to try to catch some word or action of the Lord on which to base an accusation, by which they could destroy him.

Were the demons that infested these Scribes and Pharisees any less fierce than the ones that came out of the Gadarene and went into the herd of swine? It seems not, for at times these eminent men were made to rend their clothes and to gnash on the followers of the Lord with their teeth. The Lord would have healed them as readily as He healed the poor man in our lesson, but they would have none of His healing. "He came to his own, and His own received Him not." Is it not more profitable to look on demoniacal possession in this light than to go into a long discussion as to whether the man was or was not crazy? The Son of God was on earth, with all the power of heaven. Then, why should not Satan call all the powers of hell to combat a movement that he knew would finally triumph over death, hell and the grave? No; the man was not crazy, as we understand that condition at this time in the world's history. He had a devil living in him, and it was permitted to be as a part of the condition of things set in order that we, as well as all others, should learn what is taught by the work of the Lord while here on earth.

"Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee." The poor man had left home because, perhaps, home had become unbearable to him. He was no longer susceptible to home's influence. This condition was not his all at once; the evil demon did not take his abode in the man at first permanently, because he was not in a condition, but the demon had gradually gained such an influence that the man had become unfitted to associate with his fellows, and had made his dwelling-place among the dead, he himself being dead to all good. There, alone, with only the indwelling demon to lead him, he became fierce and wild, and so strong that chains and ropes could no longer restrain him, and it was in this condition that Jesus found him. Jesus had just shown His followers His power in calming the roaring tempest and raging billows of the storm that came upon them as they crossed over the Sea of Galilee. Now they were to witness His greater power in giving peace to a poor mortal soul, harassed and tormented by a devil that lived within his restless body. As the winds and the sea obeyed a word from Jesus, it was by His word that the devil was cast out of the man and compelled to enter him no more. Before being cast out, with what hardihood and effrontery did this devil use the man's vocal organs in talking to the Lord (!), but testifying to Jesus' divinity: "Thou Son of the Most High God!" "Devils believe and tremble." Jesus even granted the devils' request, and permitted them to go into the swine.

After the man was restored to his former self, he followed Jesus back to the ship, and asked Jesus to be allowed to go with Him, but he was more needed at home, among his acquaintances, for they had even requested the Lord that He should depart out of their coasts.

As Jesus' parting words to the man who was delivered from the control of the devil was a command to spread about the great blessing received from the Lord, so is his command to us to do likewise. We have been delivered from the bondage of sin; we are no more servants, but free men through the Gospel. We recognize a natural tendency to tell of the great things the Lord has done for us. The Father has placed this desire in every renewed heart, and it is by the agency of men that God works for the common redemption. "It is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of His good pleasure." "Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee." Go work in the circle of your own influence. The best work is done where you are best known, even if "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country."

What a noble and blessed work is done by the father, as the head of the household, as he ministers at the family altar, and by his godly walk and conversation; and the mother—O what sweet memories come as we go back to childhood days! It seems that the soft hand is resting on our head now, as we were once learning first of Jesus from mother. With all this and with the witness of the Holy Spirit, can we keep from telling to others what great things the Lord hath done for us and hath had compassion on us?"

We owe it to the Lord Jesus, as we owe to ourselves also, to continually testify to the amazing grace that saved us who once was lost. Let us be active in this work and labor of love, so that when we are received into that place that the Lord has gone to prepare for us we can be able to talk over with those we have helped along the pilgrim way of how the "love of Christ constraineth us," and, all as one, give Him the praise and honor and glory.

CIRCULATION.

Last week 6,050 copies of the New Orleans Christian Advocate were sent out for circulation among its constituents. This week we print 6,150 of this issue.

QUITE A COMPLIMENT.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate,
New Orleans, La.

Gentlemen—It pleases us very much to say to you that we to-day have two inquiries, one from merchants and another from a consumer, about our LUZIANNE COFFEE, saying they had seen the notice of it in your paper. This is the first time we have ever had anyone to write us telling us about having seen an advertisement in the paper, unless we had something special to offer them, and we congratulate you upon it.

Yours truly,
REILY-TAYLOR & CO.'S LTD.,
Wm. B. Reily, President.

The above is one of several compliments paid us by appreciative advertisers. We are grateful to our readers who mention this paper when answering advertisements. It speaks volumes for the advertising medium, and redounds to the benefit of the paper by encouraging the advertiser.

WINONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Winona District Conference met in Itta Bena on Tuesday, April 17, 1906. The meeting was altogether pleasant, and was helpful to all who were privileged to be there. There was keen disappointment that Bishop Hoss was unavoidably kept from the Conference. Rev. Thos. H. Dorsey, P. E., presided with credit to himself, satisfaction to the members and profit to the Church. Eighteen pastors and twenty-six local preachers and lay members, and several elect women were present. Our only visitor was Rev. J. W. Raper, from the Greenville District, and our only connectional officer present was our own Rev. G. W. Bachman. Each of these brethren gave a good account of the special interests represented by each, and both made themselves generally useful.

Mrs. B. L. Jones, District Secretary of the W. F. M. S., and Mrs. Edwards, District Secretary of the W. H. M. S., presided during one afternoon, while the interests of those valuable organizations were considered. The societies are doing a great work, and reports showed them to be growing in power and usefulness.

Reports from pastors showed that the work in the district is prosperous and growing in all departments of work. Good revivals, resulting in conversion and additions, have been held in some charges, and others are planning, praying, working, expecting to accomplish like good things in their charges.

Revivals, missions, education and the circulation of church papers received special consideration. The Winona District stands for all the interests of connectional Methodism, and pays in full all the assessments for all purposes, giving thousands of dollars to specials.

There was preaching twice each day for three days, and large congregations heard good sermons preached by John Ritchey, C. P. Moss, W. M. Campbell, J. C. Park, J. W. Raper, W. M. Young. On the evening of the second day there were deep feeling and spiritual uplift on the part of nearly the entire audience, and there were shouts in the camp. This spiritual revival found practical expression next day in the subscription of $275 to the Superannuate Endowment Fund, which sacred interest Brother Raper presented, after he had preached, and in the subscription of $2,600 to the Endowment of Grenada College, in response to a guarantee from Grenada friends of $5,000, on condition that North Mississippi Methodists would give a like amount.

Reference to the report of the Committee on Education, printed in last issue of the Advocate, will reveal what the Conference said of education, Vanderbilt University, Millsaps College and Grenada College.

License to preach was granted to James Luther Nabors and to John G. Johnson.

J. J. Beck, W. T. Johnson, J. R. Bingham, R. B. Hutchison were elected lay delegates to the Annual Conference; J. H. Fraiser and H. H. Estes, reserve delegates.

The Conference accepted an invitation from Drew to hold the next session there.

Itta Bena has grown substantially since the District Conference met there in 1901, and the growth of the Church has kept pace with the town. Rev. T. B. Holloman, of the Mississippi Conference, has large investment here in three sons, who are factors in the business community, and in the life of Methodism. Rev. L. W. Cain, his official board and large membership laid themselves out for the pleasure of the Conference, and dispensed an abundant and charming hospitality. The only complaint was that there were not enough guests to supply the demand. SECRETARY.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE

Mid-Year Meeting, Grenada, June 12-15

Dear Brother: The programme for the Mid-Year Conference will be out May 12. It will be sent to you. The Boards have engaged the following help: Rev. H. S. Bradley, D.D., pastor St. John's, St. Louis; Rev. W. F. McMurray, D.D., Centenary, St. Louis; Rev. W. R. Lambuth, D.D., missionary secretary; Rev. W. B. Murrah, D.D.; Rev. H. M. Du Bose, D.D.; Rev. J. A. Kern, D.D., Vanderbilt; Mr. John R. Pepper, Memphis; Mr. J. B. Greene, Opelika, Ala., and Dr. Y. J. Allen, of China, or Dr. S. H. Wainright, of Japan. This, in addition to our own Conference speakers, will insure us a great programme. Will you not make plans to attend the Conference and bring with you some of your people? Keep this important meeting before your church. It means much for North Mississippi Methodism.

For whom is it intended? It is desired that each League will send representatives. It will be an Epworth League Conference. Sunday school officers and teachers are expected. It will be a Sunday school institute. All students of the Bible are provided for. It will be a Bible institute. For all interested in missions, it will be a missionary conference. All of these in one. Arrangements have been made with different publishers for an exhibit of most of the recent publications of missionary and other literature. A quartette choir of the best-trained and purest voices has been engaged.

For what is it designed? To save the expense of time and money of four different meetings. To help to develop a well-rounded, instead of a one-sided Christian worker. To give instruction and inspiration to all our preachers, lay workers and young people. There is no doubt but that this Conference will give a higher tone of Christian living and service in all our work.

The Conference will be entertained in Grenada College and in private homes. Ample arrangements will be made for all who come. For full information of cost of entertainment, etc., write to Rev. B. P. Jaco, Grenada, Miss. Respectfully,

W. W. WOOLLARD,
J. C. PARK,
B. P. JACO,
R. P. NEBLETT,
Committee.

I hereby urge the pastors to come to Grenada, to the great Mid-Year Meeting. Drs. McMurray and Bradley, of St. Louis; Drs. Kern and Du Bose, of Nashville; Dr. Young J. Allen, of China; Mr. John R. Pepper, of Memphis, and Mr. Greene, of Opelika, Ala., will all be there. These men are specialists in their line. May I also ask that each pastor have two or three of his leading members to come? Good men usually want to do the Lord's work, but many of them do not know how. These men named above have had much experience, and can tell us. You want to be there. Bankers, doctors, lawyers, teachers, druggists, farmers and even undertakers have great conventions to promote their business, and we must get our forces together to learn how best to do the Lord's work. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well, especially all work which touches the immortal souls of men. T. W. LEWIS.

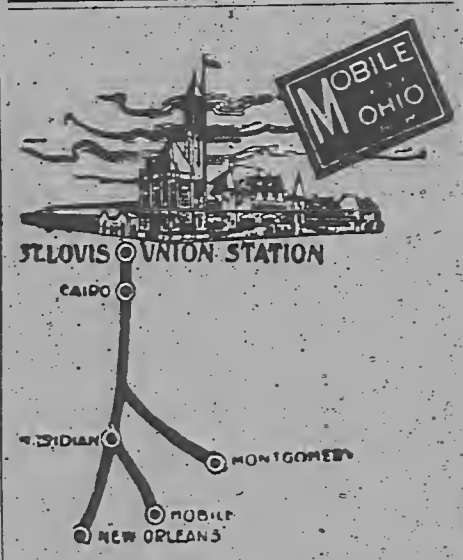
To Drive Out Malaria And Build Up the System

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. The Quinine drives out the malaria and the Iron builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 27 years. Price 50 cents.

DR. MURRAH AT CENTREVILLE.



Dear Dr. Boswell: Dr. W. B. Murrah, of Millsaps College, spent last Sunday with us, and preached three times, at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. The preaching was pure Gospel, and of a high order; strong and forceful. The people speak often and very highly of the Doctor's sermons. Our Church received quite an uplift, and the impressions made will remain long. W. H. SAUNDERS.

MOVING INTO THE NEW HOME.

Dr. Boswell: I will try to comply with your desire that I write an account of our new Orphanage at Jackson, and our move from Water Valley to it.

The first thing in order is to correct an error in your statement that we moved into the new Home with seventy-seven children. We moved in with ninety-seven. Three have come since; two of them were already in the home, but temporarily away. Besides these, there are six of the former occupants (temporarily away) yet to come in.

One little one died since we moved. He had been very sick, and the doctors had given him up three months before. A considerable number of new ones are expecting to come in. They have been accepted, but we have held them off until we could get into the new building on account of the crowded condition we were in in Water Valley. They may not all come. Sometimes other homes are found for them, and not infrequently those applying to get them in are unwilling to let them come on the terms we exact.

The writer of this is getting to be an old man, and has been moving all his life, having been a citizen of five States and one Territory, stretching over the territory from the Virginia southern boundary to the Pacific Coast, but the move he has made with the Orphans' Home eclipses them all for its hugeness. We had done all we could to prepare for the move, but it was a perplexing problem, and an ordeal of labor such as the writer never experienced before. To say that every one connected with the Home has been tired for weeks is putting it mildly—we are worn out.

The railroad gave us half-rates on our freight, consisting of four cars, costing us $112. Passenger rates given us were 2 cents per mile for all over 12 years of age, and 1 cent per mile for all under 12 and over 5. Our passenger rates aggregated $140. The drayage cost us $56, making $308 in all.

Thirty-five of the children were sent ahead, consisting of the larger boys, to do the work; two matrons, one man helper, nurses and babies. The balance, with the agent and manager and wife, and two matrons, boarded a special car provided for us, and a special engine brought us to Grenada, where we were connected with the regular passenger train. We left home at 6 o'clock a.m., and reached Jackson at 12:30 p.m.

A large delegation of the citizens met us at the train, and took the children to their homes, where they were cared for for several days, while we were getting in the furniture and arranging for them.

The people of Jackson have given us a royal welcome. They have supplied us with a large amount of provisions, and in every way showed us every possible assistance and kindness. We think we are with good folks.

The people of Water Valley expressed deep regret at our leaving, and many of them showed us marked kindness in the ordeal of moving, helping us in every way they could. Sister Woollard and other ladies of the Church supplied us with a bountiful lunch for our noon-day meal on the train. It was pathetic to see the children at daylight, as they formed a line and marched out shouting "Good-by" to the place that had sheltered them so many months, and had witnessed their joys and sorrows, and resounded with their happy songs, shouts and laughter, as well as sorrows and cries of pain.

The new building is large and provided with almost every imaginable convenience, and we think it handsome.

Come up, Brother Boswell, and see us, and preach to our children. They will give you a glad and intelligent hearing. We want all our people visiting Jackson to come to see us.

We hope the people will not forget that the cost of moving has taxed us to the full extent of every dollar we could raise, and that we are at great cost in fitting up and starting up in the new Home. We have outbuildings yet to put up. We need help.

The Methodist people of Mississippi should feel a pride in the Orphans' Home. It is one of the few Institutions we have that shows our people are not dead to the claims of benevolence and charity. Q. A. OATS.

WOMAN'S BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

To Delegates:

Arrangements have been made with the Southeastern Passenger Association for rates of a fare and one-third, plus 25 cents, on the certificate plan, from all points south of the Ohio and Potomac, and east of the Mississippi River, for our coming Annual Meeting at Opelika, Ala., May 23-31, 1906. Delegates and visitors from points north of the Potomac and Ohio or west of the Mississippi River are instructed to purchase tickets to the nearest point inside of the Southeastern Passenger Association, and there re-buy to Opelika, Ala., procuring a certificate of the standard form, which will be honored to this point on the return trip for one-third fare. No rates can be expected officially from the Southwestern Passenger Association, as we have not the required number of delegates from their territory.

Summer This Summer

IN COLORADO

Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. Time was when a visit to the "top of the Continent" was a great luxury, as high in price as in altitude, but not so to-day.

You can spend the Summer or a part of the Summer in Colorado and live as reasonably as you do at home, and the quick service and low tourist and excursion rates afforded via Rock Island lines bring the Rockies within your easy reach.

SISTER:—READ MY FREE OFFER

Wise Words to Sufferers

From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.

I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment with full instructions and the history of my own case to any lady suffering from female trouble. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it will only cost you about twelve cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask. It cures all, young or old.

If you feel a bearing-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, creeping feeling up the spine, desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, worries, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhœa (Whites), Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address MRS. M. SUMMERS, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A. for the FREE TREATMENT and FULL INFORMATION.

Thousands besides myself have cured themselves with it. I send it in plain wrappers.

TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhœa, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies of your own state or county who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all diseased conditions of our delicate female organism, thoroughly strengthens relaxed muscles and ligaments which cause displacement, and makes women well. Write today, as this offer will not be made again. Address

Brother T. J. JACKSON was born in Monroe County, Ga., Oct. 12, 1842. He came to Louisiana in 1858. Later he was married to Miss Jennie Jordan. To this happy union was born nine children—six boys and three girls—two sons having preceded him to the eternal world. Brother Jackson was converted when a 17-year-old boy while in the Confederate Army, and he lived a consistent Christian life till he became insane. Two years ago he was taken to Jackson, La., for treatment, and a short time before his death he was moved to Pineville, La., where he died on the 8th day of April, 1906. Brother Jackson was the light of the community in which he lived, and Marthaville felt, when he was carried away, that she had sustained a great loss. Brother Jackson has simply gone before, on the way we all must go. Like a traveler on life's highway, tired, he laid down to rest a little while in the shade of the Tree of Life, and the angel of death laid his icy hand on his quiet slumber and made it an eternal sleep. While his body lies in the old Pleasant Hill Cemetery, his soul rests across the river, in the shadow of the Tree of Life, where is always the glory of the great white throne and the melody of the choir invisible. Brother Jackson's remains were brought from Pineville and carried to the home of his sister, Mrs. Harrold, of Pleasant Hill, where his memorial service was conducted the following day at 1 o'clock p. m. Quite a host of relatives and friends were present at this service, which was conducted by the writer.

W. A. HART.

Mrs. EMMA M. DANTZLER, the subject of this sketch, was born in Noxubee County, Miss., April 5, 1848, and died at her home in Moss Point, Miss., March 23, 1906. Her maiden name was Bracey. Left an orphan at an early age, she was brought up by her grandmother, Mrs. Yates, in the Ex-Prairie neighborhood, near Macon, Miss. While still quite young she was confirmed in the Episcopal Church, but after her marriage to Mr. Thos. M. H. Dantzler, which occurred Nov. 17, 1865, she became a member of the Methodist Church, in which communion she died. Near twenty years ago Mrs. Dantzler came with her husband to Moss Point, Miss. Soon after this she transferred her membership to the Methodist Church of this place, and became a useful member of the same. She taught a class of grown young people in the Sunday-school. In this work she was faithful and efficient. The love of these young people for their teacher was expressed in a beautiful floral offering at her funeral. She was also an active and useful member of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society here. In her home life she filled well her position of wife and mother, making a happy and hospitable home for those she loved so tenderly. She became the mother of six children. Two of them died in Noxubee County in infancy. The others lived to be grown. But three of these, two sons and one daughter, died in quick succession, and are buried in Moss Point, the daughter having but recently graduated at the I. I. and C. One of the sons died only a few months ago, leaving a wife and two children. Thus our sister was sorely afflicted in her last days. But her faith was firm, and she continued steadfast to the end of her sufferings and sorrows. For about four months before her death, Mrs. Dantzler was a great sufferer in body. She resigned herself to the will of her God, and was kept in perfect peace amidst it all. When the end came she was ready and sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, leaving a husband, a son, Mr. R. B. Dantzler, Rayne, La., and two grandchildren to mourn their loss. We buried her in the beautiful cemetery here in sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection at the second coming of the Lord.

W. B. LEWIS.

Moss Point, Miss., April 20, 1906.

On Sunday, April 1, at 3 p. m., the writer laid to rest in the same grave at Blackwater cemetery Bro. D. L. WHITE and his beloved wife, Mrs. FRANCES WHITE, by the side of the new made little grave of Willard, their baby son, who preceded them but a few months and whose obituary was given last issue. Brother and Sister White both died of pneumonia, and so left their baby. They have three boys to mourn their loss and a host of relatives and friends. Brother White was born in East Feliciana Parish, Aug. 3, 1864, and died at his home, March 31, 1906. Brother White was a consistent and happy Christian, having joined the M. E. Church, South, years ago under the ministry of Rev. G. D. Anders, and has lived a life of faithfulness and loyalty to his Church and to his Lord. He was punctual and prompt in the attendance upon the ordinances of the Church, and prayed in the public services of the sanctuary and in his home. He was an appreciative listener to the Gospel, and his radiant face was an inspiration to the preacher. He was a cheerful and willing worker in the Master's service, and contributed liberally of his substance to the cause. He was loved and respected far and near. Sister Frances E. White, his precious wife, was born in East Baton Rouge Parish, June 17, 1868, and died at her home at 1 a. m., April 1, 1906, just twenty-four hours after her beloved husband crossed over into heaven. He was sick just three weeks and she only two weeks to a day. Sister White was converted and joined the Church when but eleven years old, under the ministry of Rev. R. T. Davis, and lived a beautiful Christian life, beloved and admired by all who knew her. She was a noble Christian and gentle wife and mother—one of those jewels of Christian excellence so rare in these days of rush and hurry. She was married to Brother White Feb. 16, 1893, and four children blessed their union—all boys—only three now remaining. Their patience and fortitude during those weary days were commendable and exemplary, and their death was beautiful. In passing out, they each heard the refrain of an angelic choir and mentioned the exquisite experience to their friends. No two people could be more sorely missed in the Church at Blackwater. But we laid them away feeling confident that all was well, and thanking God for their beautiful lives.

J. W. LEE.

IN MEMORIAM.

Whereas, God in His wisdom has removed from us our brother, R. A. Ridgeway, a most zealous worker in His blessed cause; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Sunday-school of Boyle, Miss., That in the death of Brother Ridgeway, we have lost one of our most worthy members, the school a most faithful superintendent, and his family an affectionate and devoted husband and father; and be it

Further resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family our profoundest sympathy in this hour of sorrow, and that these resolutions be printed upon our Secretary's book; a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and another copy sent to the bereaved family.

PARIS CHARGE.

Dear Brother Boswell: As I have not sent anything from my post of the work, I will try and write you a few lines. We are moving on very well on the Paris charge, notwithstanding bad weather and sickness. We have had some fine services on our work. We were gladly received by our Paris people. We got to the work on the 5th of January, and found the parsonage well supplied with everything that was good to eat and that would make a preacher feel happy. Since we have been here my wife has been sick most of the time, but during her illness the people would bring her everything that they thought she needed.

I find some fine people at all of my appointments, but I am sorry to say that the whisky trade is doing great harm in this country. I find on my work old men, whose heads are white, that do not belong to any church, and they are seen drunk. They stand in the way of the boys. I long to see the day when this jug trade will cease, as also blind tigers, in our little towns. So let us pray this year for a great revival.

We are improving our church at Paris by adding to it a belfry, and are going to paint it soon. It will cost about $50.

We expect to build a parsonage this summer; can't say yet where it will be located—at Tchula or Paris.

God bless the old Advocate, that cheers and saves. D. M. FLOYD.

MAXIMS OF KINDNESS.

Civility costs nothing, but it buys everything.

The seat of knowledge is in the head; of wisdom, in the heart. We are sure to judge wrongly if we do not feel right.

Good manners are a part of good morals.

Politeness is like an air-cushion. If there be nothing in it, it eases our jolts wonderfully.

Fine manners are the mantle of fair minds.

No card or cable can draw so strong or bind so fast as love can do with only a single thread.

Like snow, love levels all inequalities and covers all unsightly objects with beauty.

Children have more need of models than of critics.

In case of doubt, lean to the side of mercy.

All are not thieves that dogs bark at. Had even the wolf stayed in the woods there would have been no hue and cry about him.

There are follies which are caught like contagious diseases.

Unbecoming forwardness oftener proceeds from ignorance than impudence. Therefore be patient.

Every man is a volume if you know how to read him. It takes brains to appreciate brains.

Expect great things from God, attempt great things for God.—William Carey.

JOHN W. BOSWELL, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1906. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

WHOLE NO. 5294. "PROVE ALL THINGS; HOLD FAST THAT WHICH IS GOOD." VOL. 53—NO. 19.

I WILL this day try to live a simple, sincere and serene life; repelling promptly every thought of discontent, anxiety, discouragement, impurity and self-seeking; cultivating cheerfulness, magnanimity, charity, and the habit of holy silence; exercising economy in expenditure, carefulness in conversation, diligence in appointed service, fidelity to every trust, and a childlike trust in God. And as I cannot, in my own strength, attain this measure of wisdom and power, I make humble and firm resolve to seek all these things from my Heavenly Father in the name of His Son, Jesus Christ, and through the mystic and mighty energy of His Holy Spirit.—Bishop John H. Vincent.

Glances at the World.

Nothing in the history of immigration can compare with the tremendous rush of eastern Europeans to our shores during the present spring. The immigration station at Ellis Island, in New York Harbor, can deal with about 5,000 arrivals a day. There were times last month when some 20,000 immigrants were in ships in New York Harbor, where they were detained for several days awaiting their turn to be landed and inspected. The largest weekly record made in any former year was in April, 1903, when something over 28,000 people arrived. The arrivals for one week in the middle of last month were approximately 45,000. These figures are for New York alone. The guess at Ellis Island is now that we shall receive fully 1,100,000 this year, as againt 800,000 in the largest previous year. This relates to arrivals at the one port only. The total immigration for 1905 exceeded 1,000,000, and that for the present year through all ports is likely to be considerably larger. Mr. Watchorn, Commissioner of Immigration at New York, takes an optimistic view of the situation, and regards the very great majority of the new-comers as able-bodied and willing workers, who add to our national efficiency, and whose departure is a more serious problem for the countries they leave than their coming is a serious thing for us. At Washington, a pending bill is stiffening up the existing restrictions. It is a good bill, and meanwhile the whole subject is worthy of most careful study and investigation.—The Review of Reviews.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his famous "muck-rake" speech at Washington, used language which many persons have construed as proposing the most radical and confiscating attack upon property that had ever been heard of. That our readers may judge for themselves, we quote his exact language as we find it in the American Monthly Review of Reviews. Mr. Roosevelt said: "It is important to this people to grapple with the problems connected with the amassing of enormous fortunes, and the use of those fortunes, both corporate and individual, in business. We should discriminate in the sharpest way between fortunes well-won and fortunes ill-won; between those gained as an incident to performing great services to the community as a whole and those gained in evil fashion by keeping just within the limits of mere law-honesty. Of course, no amount of charity in spending such fortunes in any way compensates for misconduct in making them. As a matter of personal conviction, and without pretending to discuss the details or formulate the system, I feel that we shall ultimately have to consider the adoption of some such scheme as that of a progressive tax on all fortunes beyond a certain amount, either given in life or devised or bequeathed upon death to any individual—a tax so framed as to put it out of the power of the owner of one of these enormous fortunes to hand on more than a certain amount to any one individual; the tax, of course, to be imposed by the National and not the State government. Such taxation should, of course, be aimed merely at the inheritance or transmission in their entirety of those fortunes swollen beyond all healthy limits."

Rev. J. A. Randolph, while in the States, delivered several lectures on the Philippines. They were full of interest and information. From a synopsis in the daily paper of Corinth, Miss., we quote a few passages: "In the East, we own more than 700,000 square miles, of which 127,000 square miles is land, making a territory as large as the States of Alabama, Mississippi and that part of Louisiana east of the Mississippi river. The sea is almost as valuable as the land in that it affords means of transportation among the 1,400 islands constituting the Archipelago, and furnishes abundance of fish, oysters, etc., which form a large part of the natives' food. The production of Manila hemp is the most important industry of the islands, as it seems to grow nowhere else and there is hardly a limit to the amount there. There are other products, sugar, tobacco, coprax, rice, corn, etc., but the island will never compete with the South in the production of cotton, as the boll weevil is too prevalent. Coal abounds and gold has been found in paying quantities. There is also a vast amount of hard woods. There are seven million people, divided into some eighty races and tribes, with as many different dialects. He thinks the non-Christian tribes will gradually disappear, but has some hopes of the others, though with them the United States is engaged in a great experiment—that of trying to raise to a state of civilization a tropical people. To accomplish this we are giving them a good government, we are educating the rising generation, we are introducing American institutions, we are securing to them religious liberty and the Bible translated into their own dialects. Protestantism is flourishing. There are now more than two hundred native Protestant preachers and many thousands of church members. The largest return that we shall receive from the islands is in the right which we shall have—because of our interests—to a voice in all questions affecting the East, which will be the great market of the world and especially for the cotton and cotton goods from the South and the flour from the West. The attitude of the people is more friendly to the United States than ever before, due largely to the growing impression that we are giving them 'a square deal.' This impression has grown of late as the result of the visit of Mr. Taft and party, and of the discreet utterances of Mr. Bryan in his recent tour of the islands. Mr. Randolph spoke of the recent fight on Mt. Dajo, where his regiment, the 6th Infantry, was engaged. He spoke in complimentary terms of Gen. Wood and Col. Duncan, who, he said, were as incapable of butchering innocent women and children as anyone in the audience. He also showed that these Moros, who have been thieves and pirates from time immemorial, had become a menace not only to Americans, but to all the people of the islands; that they were Mohammedan fanatics, who never surrender; that nothing else could be done; that while it is unfortunate that a few women and children were killed, we should not lose sight of the still greater number of women and children whose lives will now be safe because this band of murderers has been annihilated."

WHAT THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OUGHT TO DO.

Mr. Editor: I have read quite a number of articles setting forth the opinions of the writers concerning the work of our General Conference, or, rather, suggesting what that body ought to do.

The majority of these articles are about the presiding elders and the districts. Why all this writing? It is suggestive of something. What is it? If there is anything wrong, it certainly ought to be righted. These articles suggest this to my mind—a state of dissatisfaction with the present small districts.

I think at least one-half of the presiding elders ought to be put into the pastorate, and the districts made twice as large as they are at present. The business men of our Church in some places say they can't understand the necessity for such small districts and such large assessments for so little real service.

The time has been when the Quarterly Conference was an occasion, but that time has passed, and may never return. The Conferences now are almost wholly given to business. The presiding elder comes in, hurries up the business and takes the first train and is gone. Maybe he preaches twice, but often it is only once.

We have about two hundred and eighty-five presiding elders; one hundred and forty-five of these can transact all the business of the Church, just as well as it is done now, and we will have one hundred and forty of our best men to put into pastoral work. Think of it, each Sunday through the year we have two hundred and eighty-five preachers sitting down doing nothing in the way of preaching—enough preachers to fill two hundred and eighty-five stations or circuits—this means fourteen thousand eight hundred and twenty sermons during the year. Seven thousand four hundred and ten of these might be saved through the Conference year, if the size of the districts were doubled.

But someone may say this would make the territory too large. To this I reply that a shoe drummer can cover a whole State, and why not a Methodist preacher do one-third as much? Any active preacher can hold one-third of the Quarterly Conferences in the Mississippi Conference and then have plenty of time to rest. I know whereof I speak, for I have traveled one of the largest districts in the Louisiana Conference, went into fourteen parishes, did most of my traveling in a buggy, and had plenty of rest-time. A strong, active man don't need four days in each week to rest.

V. D. SKIPPER.

SOME QUESTIONS OF THE HOUR.

Dear Bro. Boswell: I desire to call attention to two very important questions that are vital concerning the present and future welfare of our Church. First, the relation of our work of education to that of the State. It has been my privilege recently to visit most of our colleges in Missouri Methodism and obtain a conception of the status of the work from several points of view. While I rejoiced over much progress our brethren there have made, yet, I was made to almost weep at some things I saw. I could not fail to see the tremendous deflection of our Methodist patronage to wicked State institutions, presided over by faculties representing every creed and ism under the sun, which faculties have in some instances members not of the very best moral character. I said: "What will be the eternal hurt to our boys and girls, and what will our Church suffer in the days to come?"

As sure as you live, Brother Boswell, this is a tremendous question! But to particularize: Missouri, with a population of over three and one-half millions, has a well articulated system of State education, with heavy endowment, attractive and valuable preferments, and every glittering inducement that a wealthy system can offer young men and women. What is the immediate result? Why, their colleges are crowded—not only with Methodists—but every other denomination.

The State University, at Columbia, has nearly twenty-one hundred in matriculation, while in addition to several Normals, throughout the country, that are filled to over-flowing, others are being established in different parts of the State. True, some of our Church colleges there are doing good work. The Cottey Female College at Nevado, Mo., under the presidency of Mrs. V. A. C. Stockard, has an attendance of something below three hundred. The Morrisville College (co-educational) has something over two hundred in attendance. Central Female College, at Lexington, has its full capacity, and an excellent student body.

My host, Captain Rankin, one of the Curators, carried me through the buildings where I met the President, Bro. Smith, and some of the students. By the way, this campus is lovely for situation. It is on an eminence on the south bank of the Missouri river, from which a lovely view is had of the valley and hills beyond. But the queer fact is, that some of the unendowed colleges are having the best patronage.

Central College, at Fayett, the co-educational institution for the three Missouri Conferences, has considerable endowment and a magnificent plant, but unfortunately has very little over half the attendance of Cottey and Morrisville, the unendowed institutions of the Southwest Missouri Conference. This is a very significant fact—Church colleges are succeeding without endowment, and others are failing with it. Why this difference? Why, Morrisville and Cottey colleges, though inferior in rank to Central, and without endowment, have the ardent support of the preachers and laymen of that Conference, who have the moral and spiritual interests of their boys and girls at heart, and they work for these two colleges for love and not honor, as they work for a revival or the salvation of men.

Now, Bro. Boswell, this is the key-note to the situation. I make no charge against Central College, which has an able spiritual president; but unfortunate circumstances in its management have deprived it of much patronage it should have had in at least two Conferences in the State. Are Church schools patronized in preference to State institutions because of their superior intellectual advantages? No! It would be folly to assert it. Then for what is this preference given? Spiritual advantages, to be sure. Well, then let us be true to that principle which gives us this preference. Let us, as a Church, work for our colleges as we work for the souls of men. When we have a revival from the college halls to the homes of the people, then we shall have to "enlarge the place of our (college) tents," which will be filled to overflowing.

Then, and not until then, can we hope to stem the fatal tide that is pouring into State institutions with our precious boys and girls. At this time, just on the eve of our General Conference, the subject of federation should engage our attention, although it may be some time before active steps may be taken in that direction.

Space, however, forbids writing on this question. Suffice it to say that this writer was shown a memorial to the General Conference, by a presiding elder on the "border line," asking the Church for federation, giving as his reasons his experience on the "fighting line." I found, with few exceptions, the preachers and laymen in that part of Zion agree with him. He made me the startling statement, that "unless we federate, the time will come when the M. E. Church, South, must withdraw from all that 'border' country and plant her banner farther South."

This remarkable statement was voluntarily reiterated by another presiding elder, and several pastors of that Conference. Both sides are losing ground by fighting, but the work of "absorption" is going on just the same.

ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I think it can be reasonably said that the session of the Alexandria District Conference which was held at Bunkie, April 25-29, was one of the most successful ever held in the District, and that it marks an epoch in Methodist history in these parts.

Of the sixteen charges in the District, all of the pastors were in attendance save one; and these have, one and all, returned to their fields and are entering the revival work of the season with faith, zeal, hope, and love kindled into a brighter flame.

The disciplinary requirement that "prominence shall be given to preaching," was faithfully carried out.

The opening sermon was preached Wednesday night by the beloved Dr. Jas. A. Parker. It was an effort worthy of the man. How this scribe was carried back in memory to the good days of thirty years ago, as he made our heart to burn within us, as he opened up the Scripture and led us to Christ!

Brother Parker preached again Saturday night on "The Right of Jesus to Reign." Almost every other preacher in the District preached at some time during the Conference, and, to a man, they "magnified their office." There was no exploiting, no effort to boost a reputation; but on each occasion a sincere declaration of the glorious things that are most surely known and believed among us—just such preaching as God delights to honor.

Mr. Editor, it was a feast of good things! The Holy Ghost sent down from heaven was among us with power from the beginning, and every service was deeply impressive.

Of visiting brethren, we had with us President C. C. Miller, of Centenary College; Rev. A. W. Turner, of Grand Cane; Revs. P. O. Lowrey and C. D. Atkinson. Bros. Miller and Turner each gave us a sermon of great beauty and power. Bros. Lowrey and Atkinson ably represented the Epworth League work.

Sunday was a day long to be remembered. At 9 a. m. a love-feast was held, which was indeed a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. At 11 o'clock, Dr. A. C. Holder preached at the Methodist Church, while Rev. A. W. Turner preached to the overflow crowd at the Baptist church. At 3 p. m. a spirited sermon was preached by that young and sprightly octogenarian, Rev. George Jackson, after which a most precious communion service was held. At 8 p. m. we all went by urgent request of the Baptist congregation to their church, and listened to a great missionary sermon preached by Rev. N. E. Joyner, pastor at Alexandria and Conference Secretary of Missions.

The large auditorium was crowded, some going away, unable to secure seats.

The forenoon of Thursday, Friday, and Saturday were devoted mainly to hearing reports from pastors. A courageous and hopeful tone pervaded all of these. Many items of good news were related. The work of the district was shown to be advancing. Nearly all reports showed increase in membership by profession of faith and otherwise. Several church buildings are in course of construction and nearing completion. More liberal assessments for ministerial support have been made in nearly every charge, and in one the amount has been doubled.

License to preach was granted to William F. Roberts, and Rev. W. R. Whatley, now serving as a supply, was recommended for readmission into the Annual Conference.

The Conference exercised its "right of petition" by variously memorializing the General and Annual Conferences.

A most gratifying feature of the Conference was the attendance throughout of many choice spirits of the laity, which added greatly to the interest and spirituality of the session. Prominent among these were Dr. Paul Foster and his most excellent wife, of Opelousas. Sister Foster is District Secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and her reports showed that department of Christian work to be in a prosperous condition. The afternoons were devoted to the discussion of the various subjects of the programme. Nearly every department of Christian work was taken up and ably and thoroughly discussed. Brotherly love continued throughout. Some differences of opinion developed, but a sweet spirit prevailed. There were replies, but not a single retort. We saw and felt and knew "how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer, our beloved presiding elder, fully vindicated his long-established reputation as a tactful and sagacious presiding officer. No better conference hosts will ever be found than Brother Paul Brown and his royal people. Not one thing that could contribute in any way to our comfort or pleasure was forgotten or omitted. Resolutions to that effect were offered, and every man of us was a ballot box stuffed at heart when it came to voting on those resolutions.

Bro. Brown, assisted by Bro. C. C. Miller, will carry forward the revival by a series of services during the week.

The next District Conference will be held at Opelousas.

Fraternally,

H. B. THOMASON, Secretary.

CHURCH PUBLICATIONS.

Report of Committee on Church Publications to the Alexandria District Conference:

Dear Brethren:—We, your committe on Publications, take pleasure in calling attention to the marked improvements recently made in the mechanical appearance of our Conference organ, the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

These improvements place our organ among the most attractive of our church periodicals.

In addition to the mechanical improvements, Dr. Boswell is offering an unusually low club rate. In clubs of 20, the paper may be had at one dollar and twenty-five cents. Renewals also may be taken at the same.

In view of these mechanical improvements and the reduction in the subscription price offered through the club rates, we present the following resolution:

That we pledge ourselves to make an honest canvass for new subscribers. That we present the claims of the Advocate before each one of our congregations; that we heartily congratulate Dr. J. W. Boswell upon what he has accomplished as editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. That we request the editor and publisher to exclude from the columns of our official organ such advertisements as that of Dr. Hathaway & Co., Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and Vitæ Ore. Respectfully,

B. W. SEWELL.
J. M. WATSON.
N. E. JOYNER.

AGAINST LARGE DISTRICTS.

Mr. Editor: I desire to add my vote to those of Brothers Babb, Meek and Honnoll in favor of small, as against very large districts. This is decidedly the right view of the case, as it appears to me in the light of practical considerations. Preachers and people in our connection recognize the value of the service of the presiding elder in our economy. He is generally desired at the quarterly meeting in the pulpit, and in the chair, and in the social circle. In each of these places he is regarded as a proper and agreeable person, whose function no other can so well fill. I must think that it is a rare thing for any serious regrets to be expressed or felt that the presiding elder has to take the place on Saturday or Sunday or Monday which the preacher in charge could better fill. Generally, the presiding elder is selected for his ability in the pulpit, and his fitness to administer the departments of our itinerant affairs. He is taken from amongst the best and ablest men in the Conferences, just as the Bishops are. Will one object to the Bishop because he may not be so able a preacher as the pastor, or set aside his office because each Conference is assumed to choose as competent a president and to ordain as consistently as he? Let that be tried, and see how quickly and eagerly we will call for Bishops to pull us out of the mud. The same in the case of presiding elders. To minify their function in any particular will be to mar the completeness of our organization and lower the tone of our evangelical aggressiveness.

The districts should be arranged, as far as possible, with a view of giving Sunday service at each quarterly meeting. If only a week-day is embraced in the meeting, the people feel that the presiding elder has scarcely been with them. They hear him preach, shake hands with him, eat with him "the dinner on the ground," and he is gone to another meeting miles away to repeat the same rapid passage. In the large district the quarterly meetings are often so arranged that Saturday afternoon and half of Sunday, then Sunday night and Monday morning, are given to a charge—two meetings in three days, likely a third on the Friday preceding. In this rapid, defective patchway this official goes through the year, and at the end he knows less than he ought to know to make a full representation of the work and needs of his district. The more observing people feel this, and think they are paying for service they do not get. The business element is emphasized at this point. The salary of the presiding elder is a matter of sensative regard, and is looked at with the practical eye of the quid pro quo. The salary may be even increased, or at least kept at the same level by a less proportion of tax on a larger number of charges. But the increase of charges in the district has moved the presiding elder farther from the flocks and has so lessened the feeding power of his service that dissatisfaction arises and grows. The value of this service in the life and growth of the charges is rapidly lowered in the estimation of the people, who see and feel little of his movement.

No devices and turns in methods of administration will compensate for lack of vital elements in the natural and fundamental adjustments of the case. The more Sunday service we can embrace in the quarterly meetings and the more intimately the presiding elder can associate with the people, the stronger will he be amongst them and the more highly will his presence and ministry be esteemed by them. Districts properly limited will secure this. A district of fourteen or fifteen charges will enable the presiding elder to give a Sunday, or part of Sunday to each quarterly meeting, and to visit extensively and intimately amongst the people. In this way will he become most intimate with the preachers and render them the strongest aid in their work.

It is yet to be seen whether it was wise to drop out a district at the last session of the North Mississippi Conference. The motive was good, but the action of doubtful prudence. Reasonable adjustment could have strengthened the weak district, and thus the whole could have been made stronger. In pruning, let us be careful lest we wound the stock from which both stem and branch derive their life.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN.

Black Hawk, Miss.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS

The following were adopted by unanimous rising vote by the Forest District Conference at Philadelphia, Miss., April 28, 1906:

"Whereas our present presiding elder, Brother J. M. Morse, has faithfully and successfully served the Forest District three and a half years, and has satisfactorily presided over four District Conferences in this district; and whereas, according to the law of our Church, he will be removed from this district at the close of this Conference year; therefore, be it

"Resolved first, That we express to him our appreciation for his great work on the district, as a result of which all the interests of the Church in the district have rapidly advanced, and while we bow in humble submission to the law, we regret very much to have him taken from among us, and pray God to continue to bless the labors of his hands wherever he goes.

"Second, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication."

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The Fifteenth General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, convened in the First Church, Birmingham, Ala., Thursday morning, May 3, 1906. The opening exercises were conducted by Bishop W. W. Wilson, the senior Bishop of the Church. Dr. Jno. J. Tigert, Secretary of the last session, called the roll. Very few delegates were absent. Dr. Tigert was elected Secretary by a unanimous vote. Dr. Tigert nominated nine assistants, among them Dr. A. F. Watkins, of the Mississippi Conference, and Dr. F. S. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference. All the clerical delegates of Louisiana and Mississippi are present and only three or four of the lay delegates absent.

In the evening addresses of welcome were delivered, one by Governor Jelks, on behalf of the State of Alabama; one by Rev. J. H. Mecoy, on behalf of Alabama Methodism; one by Alderman Copeland, who represented the Mayor of Birmingham, on behalf of the city, and one by Rev. S. L. Dobbs, on behalf of the Methodists of Birmingham. Bishop Duncan presided, and Bishop Hendrix made the response on behalf of the Conference.

The members of the Conference are well distributed among the city hotels, and in a few instances in private homes, and, aside from having too many men in a room, the entertainment, as far as we have heard, is satisfactory. The Conference sessions are being held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South—a church, in some respects, superior to anything in Southern Methodism. The auditorium is sufficiently large to accommodate the whole body without any crowding. And though there are fourteen standing committees and several special committees, everyone could be accommodated with a room if the committees were not so large. But the number of members in each committee makes it necessary to seek rooms elsewhere. For this purpose other churches generously offered rooms, and they were accepted.

Only three days of the Conference session have passed. The first day was taken up in organizing and hearing the Bishops' quadrennial address, which was prepared and read by Bishop Galloway. The reading required one hour and thirty-one minutes. It was a statesmanlike message, and was listened to with the profoundest interest. It contained not only facts in regard to the work of the past four years, but suggestions of importance to the Conference, which suggestions will be duly considered. The second day's session was consumed largely in receiving memorials, petitions, resolutions and appeals. There was a perfect avalanche of memorials and resolutions asking for changes in the discipline. Some of the measures proposed are simple, and would do no harm to pass; others are radical and would destroy the foundations—a thing which men who profess love and loyalty to Methodism do not seem to see. And some of these measures are advocated by old men, who never, in all their forty or fifty years of itinerant life, were hurt by our great itinerant system. On the contrary, they were made by it, and, by virtue of it, occupy the position they do to-day.

None of the standing committees being ready with reports, the business session of the third day was short, and, according to previous arrangement, Dr. Young J. Allen, who has spent forty-seven years in China, addressed the Conference. His address was lengthy, but full of thrilling interest. It created a profound impression.

On the first day's meeting of the committees they had no papers in hand, and did nothing except organize. Half the committees met one day, and the other half the next. And, as half the committees were not in session on Saturday, but little was done, and, of course, little will be ready to be reported to the Conference on Monday. The Committee on Publishing Interests, to which this Editor belongs, did nothing except to receive and classify the papers referred to it by the Conference—and we received a number sufficient to keep us busy nearly the whole of the working time allowed us, unless we cut matters short by "non-concurrence."

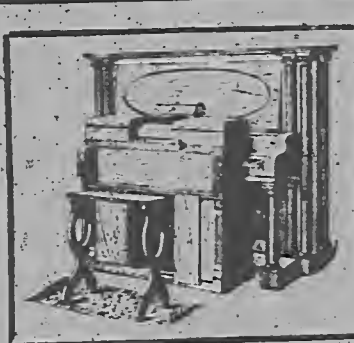
We have learned with immense satisfaction of the killing of two radical propositions by one of the committees. One was a proposition making it unlawful for a Bishop to transfer a preacher from one Conference to another without the consent of the Conference to which it is proposed to transfer him. The other was a proposition making it unlawful for a Bishop to make an appointment, except in the presence of all the presiding elders. The fight over these measures, we were told, was long and hot. Our own member on the Committee, Brother C. J. Leftwich, was in the fight, and on the right side. He looked at the matter from a constitutional point, and saw that if both Committee and Conference should pass it, the College of Bishops would be compelled to veto it. So one radical thing goes by the way of "non-concurrence."

Sunday was a great day in Birmingham. All our Methodist pulpits were filled by our Bishops and delegates, and also many of the pulpits of other churches. It was our pleasure to hear Bishop Hoss in the morning at the Five Points Church and Dr. Collins Denny at the First Church in the evening. Both sermons were great—full of the Gospel, and delivered in simple language that everybody could readily understand. They were spiritual and edifying. It was such preaching as makes the Gospel popular, and saves the souls of men. And in this great city the people have not forgotten how to go to Church.

NOTICE.

The members of the Conference Board of Education of North Mississippi Conference are hereby requested to meet at Grenada, Miss., June 9 to 10, to participate in the union meeting of the Conference boards there at that date—the Mid-Year Meeting. The committee in charge of arrangements will, no doubt, provide in the exercises an ample place for our Board. It is hoped that Dr. Murrah, President of Millsaps College, will be present to lead the cause of Christian education and urge the claims of our own schools. No other subject presses with larger demands or more urgent attention upon the conscience and liberality of Southern Methodism than this of founding and fostering our schools. It comes to this: Whether we will keep our place in the forefront of evangelical progress or be left out for lack of competency. What has been done and is doing in these recent years leave no doubt about results; only we must follow up these efforts and improvements with increasing energy until the fullest development is reached.

W. T. J. Sullivan, Chairman.



NOTICE.

All delegates and visitors to Annual Meeting of Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, to be held in Winona, Miss., June 16-20, will be granted the usual reduction of one and one-third fare (certificate plan) over all roads that will bring our delegates.

The delegates and visitors must secure from each road over which they travel a certificate showing full fare has been paid to Winona. Be sure to secure certificate from each separate road over which you travel. If your fare to Winona is less than seventy-five cents, no reduction will be given.

THE FATHER OF MISSISSIPPI METHODISM.

Every successful enterprise has its origin in the mind of genius and is pushed forward to the goal by the founder and his successors.

Every religious awakening has its origin in the mind and heart of some inspired follower of our Lord and is carried on to the glory and honor of God by his successors in the work.

Martin Luther led the great reformation of the sixteenth century: John Wesley was the founder of our world-wide Methodism, which has grown from a small company of Christian young men into a mighty army of dauntless soldiers who wear the name of "Methodist."

Many have wrought in the name of the Lord, gone into glory, and through their works live to-day, having immortalized their names by the life they lived.

But of all the blazing stars that have shone out in the world, none more beautiful than the father of Mississippi Methodism ever arose above the horizon of Christendom and tinted her skies.

Though like one just permitted to make its appearance, casting light and beauty upon the scene and caused to sink ere he reached his zenith, we can only cherish his memory, as history furnishes only a brief sketch of his life. But the light that gladdened the hearts of the pioneers of the Mississippi Valley still shine upon our Southern homes, as the great work is carried forward by heaven-inspired men who follow in the foot-steps of Tobias Gibson, as he followed in the steps of our Lord.

Methodism is not a mere receptacle; but a force. Neither is it a passive thing, inert; but an active principle. It does not seek ease and pleasure in flower gardens; or along pathways where other hands have wrought; seeks not to gather where others have strewn, or reap where others have sown.

When Isaac Watts' heart was stirred and he was inspired to write, "Am I a soldier of the Cross?" he was giving voice to the feeling that lies hidden far away in the depths of every true Methodist preacher's heart.

The woodman's ax has no sooner left signs of habitation than the Methodist preacher is at his side, with Bible and hymn book, ready to help bear the burdens and share the trials and privations of pioneer settlement. He remains during growth and development, and when the work is great, is ever ready to lay himself out for further advancement.

We have heard of the easy preacher of the city, who remained at ease during the struggles of one of our Mississippi towns; and when palace cars would bear him to the town, and luxuries were obtainable in the place which had attained some notoriety for its wealth, he was sent on an appointment to preach, and to his surprise small congregations met him from time to time. While upbraiding the little town, he was informed of the fact, that it was the first time they had ever heard of him. But while they were laying the foundation for the town, a stranger came leading his horse through the brakes, and introduced himself as a Methodist preacher, sent to preach at Clarksdale.

This has been the spirit of Methodism since the day on which John Wesley claimed the world as his parish—the mossfield, a graveyard, or shop as his tabernacle, and the stump of a tree, or his father's tomb-stone, his pulpit, and presenting itself in America since Feb. 5, 1736, when Oglethorpe anchored in Savannah river, and the company landed to begin settlement, by first building a house for worship.

Work in the East and northeast was progressing rapidly and God's approval was seen upon the labors of the heaven-inspired men under whose supervision the work was carried on. And in the year 1799 Tobias Gibson saw lying away to the West and Southwest a vast domain opening up by national treaties. He had served several places in organized Methodism, where far less hardships would have been encountered, and he would have had the association of his brothers in the Lord, instead of the ruffian of pioneer life. But his soul was aflame with the love of God for lost humanity, and the thought of this vast populace without the Gospel stirred his heart, and he was moved to visit this untouched region.

It was the same missionary spirit that fills every Methodist heart, and penetrates every avenue of Methodism, bringing success and blessings from above wherever the Grand Old Church has pitched her tents, that moved Tobias Gibson to visit Natchez.

He offered himself to go as a missionary—a living sacrifice on the altar—leaving his former associates in the work, and the scene of his labors, to go alone, he scarcely knew where, to plant the banner of salvation on the lower Mississippi.

In 1799 he set out from his native place and traveled on horseback 600 miles through the wilderness. On arriving at the Cumberland river, he sold his horse, purchased a canoe and embarked. A lonely sailor and soldier we see him, with a voyage of 1,200 miles through strange waters, coursing the channel of three different rivers. None but the brave would venture upon so perilous a journey for the souls of strangers. God was with him, and no doubt, there floated out upon the waves the echo—

"When through the deep waters I call thee to go,
The rivers of woe shall not thee overflow."

An unexpected visitor, with good news, came down upon Natchez, in the spring of the year. How he was received we are not told. But the facts warrant the assertion, that while some shouted for joy as he announced his mission, there were many enemies to be met, and discouragements encountered. But the resolute missionary pressed his way to success and triumph in the name of the Lord.

History tells us that after preaching for a time at private houses, he organized the first Church at the village of Washington, six miles distant from Natchez, in a school house. From here we see Methodism spreading over the valley until the revival-tide from the East is met in the valley of the Tombigbee.

The harvest was white, and Tobias Gibson the only laborer. In our imagination, we can hear his prayers. "Lord send more laborers into the harvest, for the harvest truly is great and I am alone." He went forth seeking as he prayed, until his prayers were heard and answered, and his work rewarded. Additional help was obtained after four journeys through the wilderness. The Minutes of 1800 show sixty co-workers as a result of Gibson's efforts.

We see at the school house in the village of Washington, Methodism, like a coral reef appearing above the rugged waves, spreading over this blessed Southland of ours, increasing in power and might, its numbers swelling into a grand army under the leadership of the Invisible King, and to-day the entire land rings with old-time Methodist shouts of "Thy kingdom come," and promises for the future to become the seat of American Methodism and lead the onward march in taking the world for Christ.

The man—tall, spare, of fair complexion, light hair and piercing black eyes. Such a combination is well called handsome when possessed by one of such character as the father of Mississippi Methodism. The expression of his countenance, cast of his conversation, and general deportment in private life were affectionate. But withal, he was grave and solemn; was a sweet singer, and put new songs in the mouths of his converts the moment they accepted his Christ. His candor was so softened by courtesy, and such was his character for piety and charity, that it is said a personal contest with him would have been looked upon as discreditable to any man. As a preacher, he was so instructive and pathetic that those who came under his pastoral care and were not converted to Christ were few.

His work increasing, and health failing as new fields opened up, and greater responsibilities falling upon him, additional help was so much needed that Gibson resolved to go in person to the Western Conference and plead his cause, procure the needed assistance and conduct his co-laborers to the field.

In September, 1802, he appeared before the Conference in behalf of the work in Mississippi. Four years had elapsed since he had clasped hands with an itinerant preacher. Bishop Asbury embraced him, and sent a young Georgian on the return with him.

In 1803 Gibson attended Conference the last time. He felt that the end was near, and desired to meet the brethren face to face again before they were gathered together at the resurrection. At this, his last Conference, he obtained other assistance; returned, despite his failing health, to the valley, and in the following spring ended his earthly labors, finished his course with joy, and entered into eternal rest—his final reward.

"During his ministry on the Mississippi, Gibson contracted a matrimonial engagement with a young lady of his church, whom he had received, and whose growth in spiritual life he had watched with much satisfaction." No doubt his anticipations of future life were delightful. But after he had fallen a victim to the insidious disease which terminated his earthly existence, his friends kindly advised that the engagement be consummated, which was discussed at the last meeting—painful and pathetic. They both reluctantly, though judiciously consented, with a pledge to meet each other in a world where there would be no parting. After the painful parting, the young lady went away to the home of a relative. But their separation was of short duration, and their reunion in the other world was much earlier than they had anticipated, for near the same time that the sad news went out from Walnut Hill that Gibson had ceased his labors and entered into rest, the young lady was liberated from her earthly sorrow, and called to unite with the heavenly choristers, to sing redeeming love in the realms of eternal joy.

At the news of Gibson's death, the whole country, from Walnut Hills to West Florida, was in sorrow, and to-day we feel inclined to lament his untimely death. But the Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away, and as our beloved fathers are taken away, and earthly ties are severed, heaven becomes more attractive, and ties binding our hearts to the place more strong.

So as the young shepherd was taken from his flock in the hey-day of life, hundreds of souls may thereby have been saved to rise up in the resurrection and call blessed The Father of Methodism in the Mississippi Valley.

ONLY BIBLE RELIGION NEEDED.

Strange views are being entertained about the Christian life, and we do not see any reason for them since it is recorded: "The way-faring men, though fools, shall not err therein." Isaiah xxxv. 8. It is thought by some, even taught too, that in order to thorough consecration, or in other words, in order to one's living a holy life, a life free from sin, he must await developments after he is converted or born again; he must seek another work of grace. Some brethren are so agitated about this matter that they are anxious for the General Conference to settle it, but we think that our General Conference is too wise to attempt its settlement, since we have higher authority than it for its settlement. It does seem to us that we are afforded room enough and light enough in the Bible to live much in advance of the highest Christians of any with whom I have ever met. Men are anxious to appear very good, when in reality its first principles are ignored.

Christ did not speak just simply to have something to say when he said in speaking of the way to heaven: "Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matt. vii. 14.) He meant much, and that too, that no one ever enters the way of life, or begins to be a Christian at all, till he is a whole Christian, for God does not deal with fragments of a human heart; it is the whole heart, or none at all.

I challenge any being to show proof from the Bible of God's dealing with bits or fragments of a human heart. Our Savior said: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matt. xvi. 24.) that is let him cease to claim himself—disown himself and turn himself over to Christ as His property, not in pieces, or fragments, but the whole self. Again he said: "If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." (Luke xiv. 26.)

According to these words of our Savior, no one has begun to be a Christian till he loves God more than he does his dearest loved ones, and too, better than he loves his own life. Till this is true of each one, he is not even recognized as being a disciple at all. He has not begun to be a Christian at all. O, my Father, help us all to become thy children—whole children, for thou will not have any other kind. But we are [illegible] whole children and as [illegible] may become whole men and women. Holy Father, help us [illegible] and bragging of ourselves, and worshiping ourselves, and make us thy children, and then we shall be thine and worship thee only, and shall show forth thy praise, and not ours. O, glorify to inspiring writer. A. B. Meyer.

LITERARY.

Hygiene of May contains one very valuable paper in line with its speciality. "Unwholesome Mental States as Factors in the Production of Disease," is a very practical discussion by the editor, Dr. Larson also has a paper on "The Art of Body Building," fully illustrated. Walking as a means for the promotion of health is taken up in an illustrated paper entitled, "Walking as a Fine Art," and another considers "The Formation of Walking Clubs." "Muscles, their Construction and Uses," is a scientific and technical paper by Prof. Gilman Low. Dr. Felix L. Oswald, who has been termed the "Prince of Hygienic Writers" considers "The Various Consumption Theories," offering some useful suggestions. "Suburban Versus City Life" contains arguments in favor of country life.

The editor takes up "the vaccination question," giving the pros and cons of the matter and reaches the conclusion that vaccination is not a preventive against small-pox, and that it has often been a direct cause of serious troubles.

In shorter papers we find "Blowing Soap Bubbles," "The Boston Raw Food Banquet," "Mental Strain—Worry and Death," with miscellaneous health hints, etc.

OUR INFIRMITIES.

Never do we feel them more than at the hour of prayer. Sometimes our thoughts scatter like a flock of sheep or stray and fight before the spiritual effort of stirring ourselves up to take hold on God. Who does not have times when [illegible] to use Jeremy Taylor's similitude prayer is like the rising of a lark against the east wind. We even give in maintaining the attitude of devotion, and [illegible] more its spirit. We know [illegible] arguments to cripple us we ask and [illegible] we cannot keep in the perpetual spirit and temper of devotion; we lack that calm faith which can leave its burden at the mercy seat, and be at rest.

In all this the Spirit helpeth us. He "helpeth our infirmities." Knowing the mind of God, He is aware of those things which it will please our Father to bestow, and which, indeed, are only waiting for us to ask them at His hand. These He suggests to us; for these He excites strong and passionate desire; with respect to these He leads us to pour out our souls in importunate and prevailing prayer. When next you are sensible of a mighty tide of desire rising up in your heart, bearing you forward on its bosom toward God, yield to it, let it have its blessed way with you. Though there be almost [illegible] to restrain us for the Holy Spirit is then taking us up into the purposes of God, and [illegible] not to ask those things which lie near His heart, and which are sure to be granted [illegible] of blessing ready to break. This is true prayer [illegible] part of man to tell out the [illegible] things which the Spirit is inspiring within.—F. B. Meyer.

Men of God are as needful to-day as when [illegible] with God on Sinai, or Paul in the midst of the Areopagus at Athens, and discovered the altar to the "unknown God." Every age [illegible] leaders, and as the [illegible] appointed for service, whose hearts are in His work as the rivers of waters, are the saviours of their age, and are in the vanguard of heaven's worthies.—Christ in Intelligence.

THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1906.

Changes in our economy, or in our ritual, should not be proposed without well-founded conviction that change is necessary. Nothing should be done that looks like a mere desire to experiment. There was never a time in the history of the Church when to experiment was without hazard. We cannot afford to experiment now.

Sam Jones set the example years ago of "holding meetings for men only." Ever since, third and fourth-rate evangelists cannot stop at a little town for a few days' preaching without holding "a meeting for men only." It impresses the idea that he has something good for men, or that men need a kind of preaching that women ought not to hear. And if there is, how did the boy evangelist find out?

* * * *

There are some who think the Church has lost its power and is on the decline. The fact that it is constantly increasing in numbers does not appeal to them as a thing worth noting. But, what can they say to the increasing number of charitable institutions; the enlarged gifts for benevolence, and the multiplication of missionaries who lay themselves on the altar of sacrifice? Dead or decaying religion does not produce such fruits as these.

We have heard so much about the "First Church" that it is getting monotonous. We met it a few years ago in the West. A plain little Methodist Church had been standing forty years or more. It was known simply as the Methodist Church. A new set of Methodists moved into town, built a shanghai house on a three-cornered lot, collected about twenty members, and called themselves the "First Methodist Church." The Baptists likewise had a First Church. Now it is a poor little town that hasn't got its First Church. It sounds big, that's all.

We would be glad to know that all who make a critical study of the Bible are dominated by the desire to get at the truth, and increase their spirituality. But we are not so persuaded—especially as to that class who undertake the study with a pre-conceived idea as to what the Bible is, and have but little experience in spiritual things. And, be one ever so honest and spiritual, if, in his investigations, he concludes that about two-thirds of the Book is unreliable, he cannot well help feeling that the remainder is not altogether satisfactory.

DR. CARRADINE AND THE SECOND BLESSING.

We have no disposition to engage in a controversy over the second blessing. So far as we are concerned, brethren who believe in it, are at perfect liberty to profess it, and enjoy it. But when a man like Dr. Carradine undertakes to establish the fact, and uses an illustration that undervalues the work of regeneration, and makes the second blessing a state of grace from which it is impossible to fall, it is time to interfere. The Times-Democrat of this city, in a report of Dr. Carradine's sermon on Sunday morning, of April 29, includes this paragraph:

"Dr. Carradine explained the doctrine of the second blessing in the simplest possible language. He gave one illustration: of a cheap phonograph which he tried to buy once, which cost him $10. He said that the machine broke down, after running a little while, and he took it back to the store. The dealer told him that was the way all the $10 machines did. They did not hold out. Dr. Carradine said that was the way with the salvation which came from putting away one's sin. The state of grace did not last, and the sinner broke down after a little effort. When the second blessing came the work was perfected, the spiritual strength was made firm, and the state of grace lasted forever."

The above statement may not be correct. If not, Dr. Carradine owes it to himself and the Church to explain. If it is correct, then it is clear that the work of regeneration, in his estimation, is as worthless as "a $10 phonograph."

Dr. Carradine's doctrine is that a Christian life which proceeds no further than simple regeneration "breaks down in a little while"—it "does not last." If his illustration is worth anything, it follows that the cheap and worthless regeneration must be returned like the broken-down phonograph, and the broken-down Christian must get something better—for which he must pay a higher price. The Doctor seems to forget that regeneration makes men the sons of God, and that the nearest and dearest relation a man can sustain to God is that of a son. To minify it, is to minify the whole work of grace this side of the second blessing. And the ultimate conclusion is that unless a son of God obtains the second blessing he will be lost. The idea of God casting off one of his sons is too absurd to think about. What sort of life are millions of Christians leading who are happy in the belief that they are born of God? And what will become of them?

Going a step further, Dr. Carradine declares that the second blessing puts the Christian in a state of grace that lasts forever. We have been laboring all along under the impression that the Doctor regarded himself as a thorough Wesleyan, but, as far as we know, Mr. Wesley neither minified regeneration and justification, nor taught that it is possible to reach a state of grace in this life from which it is impossible to fall.

Without arguing the doctrine of apostasy one way or another, we feel free to say that our observation leads us to believe that as many persons professing the second blessing backslide in proportion to numbers as persons who simply profess religion. We have no right to conclude that either one class or the other was deceived.

Dr. Carradine's sophistry, so manifest in his phonograph illustration, is unworthy of the man, and he should repudiate it forthwith.

THE DANGER OF IMMIGRATION.

It is a matter of immense satisfaction to many people that thousands of persons are coming to our shores from the old world. They see no danger. They consider only one phase of the subject. Every able-bodied man that comes represents so much labor, and labor earns dollars and enriches the country. The spirit is purely commercial—the very least thing to be considered when we see such vast armies coming—not every month, or every week, but every day.

But there is danger—not in the numbers, for the country can bear immigration, even at the present rate for years to come, but in the character of the immigrants. In some particulars our immigration laws are sufficiently strict. The afflicted in body or mind are excluded; so are paupers and persons of known bad character. But thousands come with strange religious notions, or no religion at all. They constitute a class to themselves, and are unapproachable. They never enter into sympathy with the social or religious life of the community. The Sabbath with them is without sanctity, and the manner in which they use it has anything but an elevating tendency. In sections where they get a foothold, buying small farms and settling, natives become dissatisfied and leave. In places, as in the New England States, whole townships have been given up to foreigners, and, of course, schools and churches are abandoned. This would not be so bad if the foreigners kept up the schools and churches; but such is not the case.

Nor would the prospect be discouraging if these strangers could be reached by our religious teachers. Indeed, the mission field would be large and inviting. But they cannot be reached, and time and money would be largely wasted in trying to save them.

In every man among the immigrants the politician sees a voter, and the commercial man sees a dollar. The Christian patriot sees a soul to save, but, failing in his work, he sees an influence turned loose that will in due time tell for evil in society. Financial prosperity is not always worth what it costs.

AN UNWELCOME GUEST.

Maxim Gorky, a Russian novelist of some notoriety, and suspected of being tainted with the spirit of anarchy, is at present visiting in the United States. When he first landed great respect was shown because he was looked upon as a "Russian patriot." He and his companion, naturally supposed to be his wife, secured lodging in the best hotel. While enjoying such accommodations, he was loud in praise of America—"the land of the free and the home of the brave"—the land his countryman, Kosciusko, helped to redeem. In a short time it was discovered that the woman with him was not his wife, but the wife of somebody else, or nobody's wife, and he was forthwith expelled from his lodgings, and found it impossible to obtain rooms at any other first-class hotel. Then he changed his tone, and began an abuse of America. As smart as he is, he has not learned the difference between liberty and license. But he has learned that a man cannot transgress the rules of social life—notwithstanding they may be unwritten—and maintain a good standing. The people have still some sense of propriety, and cherish righteous contempt for a man who will leave his wife on the other side of the world and pass himself off as the husband of an impure woman. And Mr. Gorky is now an unwelcome guest.

IF ANY MAN THIRST.

The saddest thing in this world is not a passionate cry for bread or water, but a soul that has no hunger or thirst. No language is adequate to describe the misery of men and women and little children in the path of a great famine which sweeps with desolating energy across the confines of a nation; infinitely more pathetic is the yearning of the human spirit which cries for satisfaction, and realizes that the world can never give the bliss for which it sighs.

How emphatic the word "thirst." It means all the needs of the soul and the deep cravings of mankind. Jesus here offers himself as a complete satisfaction to the wants of the world. The same offer is made by the same person in Isaiah: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

The thirst of the intellect for truth finds in Christ abundant satisfaction. "Ye shall know the truth;" and this statement embraces all the verities and interests that affect human life and destiny. We need no longer speculate about the origin of man and the universe, for Christ is the explanation of all things. The longing of the ancients for the fountain of youth, the elixir of life, is met and satisfied by him who said: "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

Christianity meets the thirst of the conscience by the revelation of the person of Christ. The Gospel does not come to us as a system of thought; it presents a Savior through whom we may obtain forgiveness of sins. The mission of the Holy Spirit is to renew, to strengthen the will, to purify the affections, to make duty a delight, and bring the whole man into harmony with the law of God. No other system of religion ever set before itself such a stupendous task. The sages and seers of this world may intensify our sufferings by description and classification; but we are still borne down by a bosom weight which no philosophy can lift.

Christ satisfies the thirst of the heart. "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God." The pathetic cry of David has found an echo in every devout life; for the material, the transitory, the visible do not fill the measure of man's discontent. "O that I knew where I might find him," is the pitiful plea of the patriarch of Uz, "falling with his weight of cares upon the world's great altar-stairs, that slope through darkness up to God." Nothing but the final theophany could still the disquieted and thirsty spirit of this old saint, who felt that he was a child of danger and a nursling of the storm.

An artist once painted a famous picture for an altar-piece and called it "The Fountain of Life." It represents the Savior stretched in his mother's arms. From the rock beneath their feet flow the abundant waters of salvation, which are received into a great cistern. Saints, martyrs, apostles, evangelists are drinking of the crystal fountain. A stream flows away among the meadows, where the thirsty multitude partake of the living waters and are satisfied. The gracious invitation reaches as far as the curse is found. The Hottentot in the dense jungles of Africa, digging with hardened, horny fingers the roots on which he subsists; the South Sea Islander, waging perilous warfare with the monsters of the mighty deep; the diminutive Eskimo wandering amid the ice castles in pursuit of the polar bear; and almond-eyed dwellers of Asia, emerging from the long night of barbarism—these all have an equal and inalienable right to the fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and uncleanness. The last invitation in the Book of God bears the same stamp of universality: "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

THEO. CRUMPTON.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Geo. H. Galloway, of Gulfport, Miss., is in Birmingham, attending the General Conference.

A note from Brother J. S. Rutledge, of Pine Grove, La., says that he is moving on very well this year.

Rev. S. J. Parrish, pastor of Parker Memorial Church, New Orleans, is attending the General Conference.

Rev. W. M. Young, of the North Mississippi Conference, preached a strong Gospel sermon at Rayne Memorial Church on April 29.

We are delighted to learn of the great success attending Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan's ministry in his new charge. He is a good and great man.

Rev. R. A. Meek is "bringing things to pass" as presiding elder on the Greenville District. Brother Meek is a success anywhere you put him.

The Methodist preachers of New Orleans recently published, in pamphlet form, a powerful Gospel sermon by Bishop Morrison on "Sins of Omission."

A card from Rev. L. M. Lipscomb states that the Columbus District Conference will meet at Shuqualak June 29-July 1. The programme will appear in due time.

Rev. R. W. Tucker, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, passed through the city last Monday en route to the General Conference, at Birmingham. He was a pleasant caller at this office.

Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer has just returned to the city from his District Conference at Bunkie. He was enthusiastic over the evidences of spiritual life among the brethren. Prospects are pleasing in many parts of the District.

Rev. T. E. Warlick, the newly-appointed presiding elder of the New Orleans District, arrived in the city last Saturday night. He worshiped with the Algiers congregation Sunday morning. We wish him great success in his new field of labor.

Rev. John A. Randolph, Chaplain in the army, after a few weeks' stay with his family and friends in North Mississippi, will soon return to the Philippines. He was booked to sail from San Francisco on the 5th of this month. We trust he may have a pleasant voyage.

On last Monday, at the regular monthly meeting of the New Orleans Protestant Ministers' Association, it was decided to raise funds to employ legal counsel, if necessary, to enforce the will of John McDonogh in the use of the Bible in the schools. The brethren mean business.

Rev. E. S. Lewis and Rev. L. D. Worsham, of North Mississippi, are attending the General Conference. Brother Worsham had the misfortune to be robbed one night last week. He was attending a meeting of the Salvation Army on the street, and was tapped by one of the light-fingered gentry during the service. Fortunately, the thief did not get his railroad ticket. Brother J. R. Bingham took up a collection quietly among his friends and received enough to pay his hotel bill. How much he lost we did not learn.

CONFERENCE MINUTES ERRORS.

New Orleans, La., May 1, 1906.

Dear Doctor: The Minutes of the Sixtieth Session of the Louisiana Conference present a very neat appearance and reflect great credit on Editor Evans. However, I wish to make mention of two errors as to the report from Crowley. There were received into church membership 35 "on profession" and 57 by "certificate and otherwise," making a total of 92. The Minutes report only 7 as received by certificate, etc. Under the head of Value of Other Church Property, the Minutes report $500, whereas it should be nothing.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

Mr. Editor: Please make statement from Many Charge, Shreveport District, correctly, as our Minutes are erroneous:

The "assessment for foreign missions" was $50 paid in full, as Minutes state; but $75 "special for Cuba" is not reported. My "stubs" show the amount was reported as "special for Cuba, from Mrs. J. G. Brown, $75."

J. A. PARKER, Ex-P. C.

Pine Grove, La., May 7, 1906.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Please mention in the Advocate an error in our Minutes. The Pine Grove charge shows but 3 additions on profession of faith, and our stub gives 30. It reports additions on profession of faith 30, by certificate 8, removal by death certificate and otherwise 12, infants baptized 20.

J. S. RUTLEDGE.

Athletic training that inspires boys to nothing higher than to make of themselves the best football and baseball players adds no more to the usefulness and wealth-producing power of men than race-horses do to the yield of the cotton and sugar-cane fields of the South.

It is said that a preacher destitute of humor will "miss many things." Among other things, "he will miss making after-dinner speeches." Let no preacher grieve over that loss. The world is not dependent on preachers who are good for nothing except to eat and make after-dinner speeches.

Old Brother King, an Arkansas friend of ours, used to say: "I want to see every man a good member of his own church." As a Methodist he fully exemplified in his own life that which he desired to see in others.

IN MEMORIUM.

ANNIE HORTENSIA was the fourth daughter of George W. Gibbs and Susan Steel Elder, his wife (both of honored memory), and was born in the home in Raymond, Hinds County, Miss. She was married in that same home to Colonel Wm. P. Dillon, of Jeanerette, La., Feb. 3, 1897, and in that same home departed this life Dec. 11, 1905, and thence went home to God. From that home of her babyhood, girlhood and womanhood, her body was carried Dec. 15 and buried at the foot of her mother's grave—the spot chosen by herself—there to sleep till the resurrection of the just. When the good mother went to the heavenly home, Annie, at such times as she was not in school, was the active and skillful and thoughtful helper of the elder sister, who became the housekeeper and care-taker for the family; and when the noble father passed away all responsibilities were jointly assumed, and faithfully, prayerfully were the younger members of the family watched over and provided for, and every advantage possible was given or offered. Between her and the elder sister there was the closest intimacy and the most devoted attachment. Both of them ever manifested the keenest and highest sense of honor, of integrity, of moral character. They abhorred that which was evil, and clave to that which was good. Their love was without simulation or dissimulation. She was a woman of attractive personal appearance, of bright intellect, well read, well informed, of fine conversational ability, of rare Christian character. Devoted to her Church (the Methodist Episcopal Church, South), which she had joined in her childhood, she was true to her vows, true to her God, and so was true in all the relations of life. Paternally and maternally, she was a descendant of long lines of distinguished ancestry, prominent in war and in peace, in State and in Church, and was ever careful to bring no reproach on their names. She honored her father and mother while they lived, and revered their memory after God had taken them. From January, 1882, to Feb. 3, 1902, she would occasionally note in a little book her experiences and observations. A few quotations must suffice:

"First Sunday, Jan., 1882.—Preaching by Mr. Strickland (E. R.), who, 40 years ago, was pastor of this church. He preached on the 'Importance of Improving Time.' God grant that I may this year live more to the glory of my Savior. I hope to grow in grace."

"Feb. 12.—Preaching by Mr. Drake (J. P.). Text: John iii. 4. The holy communion was administered. What a blessed privilege we have to testify to the death and sufferings of our dear Savior!.....Blessed Jesus, help me to say with the patriarch Job, 'Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him.'.....My desire is to be a Christian."

"April, 1882.—For three weeks a meeting has been going on in our Church. Mr. J. P. Drake, P. C., assisted by Messrs. Bradford, Callaway, Boggs and Daniels. This meeting has been of much benefit to me. I feel more and more that I love my Lord and that I have so much to be grateful for. I, a poor, sinful mortal, to be cleansed by the blood of my blessed Redeemer! God grant that I may never bring reproach upon the cause of Christ."

"Nov. 11, 1882.—I feel to-day that I can claim the promise given me in the Word of God, though I cannot tell exactly when or where I was converted; still I know it is so, and I feel the love of God shed abroad in my heart. For a long time this troubled me, and does sometimes yet; for so many persons can tell the moment they felt their sins forgiven. Not so with me. I felt that I was a sinner in the sight of God; but I can't tell when I first believed in Jesus. I can't remember when I did not love Him, but not then as now. I feel that I have grown in grace, but not as I ought or as I had hoped. I love the Lord. I love to work for Him."

"Last Sunday in January, 1883.—Where do I stand to-day? I feel that I have made some advance in my religious life. I want to be made perfect in love."

Some entries are passed by—too sacred to be made public. Sorrows and disappointments had come into her life.

"January, 1886.....'Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless His holy name!' Truly do I love my Savior and in Him do I live. Our pastor is returned. We hope to get our church built."

"Sept. 15, 1886.—Some months have passed since I opened this little book. Many changes have taken place..... Have just finished reading J. Fletcher's 'Appeal.' It has been of much benefit to my soul.....Have made some advancement in my religious life; have made a full surrender of myself to God; and, oh, what a sweet sense of His love I have felt! For several weeks I have been on the mountain-top; have felt like shouting aloud the praises of God.....I have had a more perfect access to the throne of prayer. I have prayed more, and, oh, what a sense of His presence! For a long time I worried about praying in public; but, with the help of the Lord, I will never refuse to open my mouth to praise Him who has done so much for me.....Our new church was dedicated the first Sunday in August by Dr. C. G. Andrews."

More might be quoted, but the want of space forbids. The foregoing excerpts show her deep religious fervor, zeal, prayerfulness and how close her walk with God. As a teacher in the Sunday School, as a member of the Aid Society, and of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and a church member, she was "not slothful in business," but was "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

Her marriage was a wise and happy one, marred only by her fragile health. Her husband was kind and true and tender and devoted. On him she lavished the wealth of her love. When her health failed, she and he fondly hoped for her ultimate recovery and a long, long future of wedded bliss. But it was not to be as they desired. Her sister, Lydia, writes:

"She had not been well for years, and so often and so long she had been subject to those peculiar numb attacks, caused by poor circulation..... The end came while she was with me in our dear old home, and in my arms she breathed her last."

Death came suddenly, but found her ready. Under medical advice, she was at the old home being nursed back to sufficient strength to take a trip to San Antonio, Tex., there to sojourn till health, if possible, should be permanently restored. The husband was arranging his business affairs to go with her, and the sister was preparing to go also. There was apparent improvement in her health. Hopes were aroused. She seemed so much better. Cheerful letters were written to her husband at Harriston, Miss., where their home had been for a few years; and, while he was gratefully reading the letters, a telegram was handed him—"Come at once. She is dying." She was already dead. Paralysis had gripped her heart and stayed its beating. She had gone to that home where there is neither headache nor heartache, sickness nor sorrow, "and there shall be no night there." There she has met the loved ones who had gone before, and there she awaits the coming of those that remain. Her "eyes see the King in His beauty," "the Chiefest among ten thousand" and "altogether lovely," and the longings of her soul are satisfied.

Brother GEORGE VINSON was born in the vicinity of Morgan City, La., Aug. 29, 1861, and died at San Antonia, Texas, April 18, 1906, and was buried from the Methodist Church in Berwick, La., the following day. Perhaps no funeral was more largely attended in the history of our Church at Berwick. Brother Vinson was married to Miss Rosa Amador, May 29, 1883. His widow and three children survive him. Practically the whole of his life was spent in the vicinity of Berwick. He never attended school and did not learn to read, nor could he sign his name, until after his marriage. The family preserve with sacred care the speller, which constituted his sole and only text-book. He began life as a "swamper" and his youthful environment was made up of that rough and rugged element which constitutes this manner of life. In partnership with C. W. Coleman he spent several years getting out ties. He began in a small way to buy timber lands, and by constant sobriety, diligent labor and natural business ability he soon became the owner of extensive cypress swamps. He established the Berwick Mercantile Company in 1900, built and operated two flurishing shingle factories; established the Louisiana Fish and Oyster Company in 1903, and became the largest real estate owner in Berwick. Every business venture was a pronounced success, and it was commonly said of him, "everything he touches turns to money." Unlearned in the schools, he died in the prime of life, amidst a career of achievement, far beyond the ordinary in the business world. His religious life was of short duration. In childhood he was baptized a Catholic. But his early contact with the morally corrupt priesthood disgusted him with religion in general. Yet he was generous with the churches, and none appealed to him for aid that left him empty-handed. He sent his two daughters to Mansfield Female College, and their connection with the Methodist Church soon drew from him a favorable attitude. When he became stricken with heart trouble he received with kindness the attention of the pastor, and talked sympathetically concerning his soul's condition. He soon grew anxious, and just one month before his death sought the counsel of Rev. A. B. Davidson, of San Antonio, and was converted and joined the Methodist Church. His last days were full of suffering, but he died in triumphant faith, full of joy and peace. His indomitable will, dogged determination, keen insight, and progressiveness, constituted a character the like of which is rare. Many friends feel keenly his untimely death. His loved ones sorrow, but not without hope, for they are conscious that he lives again; and they abide the time of their departure, when they may be with him in God's kingdom.

ROBT. W. VAUGHAN.

Miss MAMIE SUE ROBINSON was born in Kemper County, Miss., Dec. 10, 1877, and died at the home of her mother near Brandon, Rankin County, Miss., Feb. 26, 1906. She was the daughter of Rev. J. F. Robinson and E. J. Jinkins, Bro. Robinson being for many years a valuable and valued local preacher of our Church. She was converted and joined the Methodist Church in 1887 under the ministry of Rev. A. D. Miller, and never faltered in her allegiance to God. During a revival held in Brandon, in December, 1898 by Dr. B. Carradine, she diligently sought and obtained the blessing of entire sanctification. To the last she exemplified in her life this distinction of Methodist doctrine. Of her it may be said—though in a much narrower sphere, of course—what Rev. Jno. G. Jones said in his History of Methodism in Mississippi of Tobias Gibson; viz: "One such experience, supported by a consistent life and crowned by a triumphant death, outweighs all the dodging and caviling we have ever seen and heard against this doctrine by those who have no subjective experience of this state of grace." Miss Mamie received her initial education in the Steens Creek High School, and her business training in the Harris Business College, Jackson, Miss. In 1898 she taught at Whitworth Female College, and in 1899 entered the East Mississippi Female College, Meridian, as secretary and bookkeeper for Dr. Beeson, teaching stenography and pursuing her literary studies. She followed Dr. Beeson to the Meridian Female College. In 1904 she became the bookkeeper of the Meridian Male College, filling the position with acceptability until her health forced her to resign. In the fall of 1905 she went to New Mexico, in the vain hope of relief, but returned to Brandon, in January, 1906, passing away six weeks later. She was conscious to within a short while of her death, and spoke of it as a "going home." Her favorite song, and one for which she frequently called, was "O think of a home over there." Her life was not all sunshine, but it was a benediction to all. She scaled heights and caught views of God, not as yet attained by some. With great modesty she spoke of these experiences to but few. She is gone now, and I may relate one incident in her life known only to her most intimate friends. Under the great stress of work she had undertaken, her eyesight failed her and she suffered severely from neuralgia, as a consequence. One afternoon while engaged in her devotions, she felt drawn out to trust God for the restoration of her sight. She did so, and was perfectly restored, nor did she ever have to wear glasses again. The influence of this life will long be felt among her many friends.

B. F. LEWIS.

If the days consecrated to God's service be the test of a good life, then Capt. ROBT. M. McGEHEE has lived well. It can be truly said of him that he never shirked a duty or betrayed a trust. In the dark days of reconstruction, when strong, wise men were needed, he nobly responded to the call, and leaving his young wife and little babe, became the leader in the fight for white supremacy in Wilkinson County. Then he won the title which was lovingly given him for the rest of his life. He had the highest sense of his obligation as a citizen and responded to every demand made upon him. He was called to many positions of trust and responsibility and worthily filled each one. He was one who truly loved his fellow-men. No deed was too trivial, no service too great for him to perform for a friend. He was willing to wear himself out in their service. He could enter into the troubles of a little child, or counsel his older friend; all were sure of his loving interest and sympathy. An aged servant said with tears: "We have lost our best friend; no one can take his place." His generous hospitality was proverbial, and there was generally a guest at his beautiful home, "Bowling Green." He was no fair-weather friend. He entered deeply into the sorrows of others. In times of adversity and grief, he was first to offer help and sympathy. Yet, so unselfish was he, that he would not burden others with his own sufferings, and no one realized his serious condition. He joined the Methodist Church in his boyhood and was a steward, trustee and teacher in the Sabbath-school for many years. He was a stalwart Christian. He did not talk his religion, but lived it. He had resolved, "as for me and my house, we shall serve God." Though living some miles from the Church, he was a regular attendant upon all the services. His last act on earth was the study of the Sabbath-school lesson, and his open Bible was by his side when he breathed his last. He has learned his last earthly lesson, and has been promoted to a school on high, with the God whom he served for the teacher. Of his beautiful home life we cannot speak. The strong, loving husband, the tender father has been taken.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The Fourth Annual Session of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League convened in McComb City, Thursday evening, April 26. A most delightful programme had been prepared by the local League, after which refreshments were served in the basement.

Friday morning the Conference was formally called to order by the president, W. D. Hawkins, after devotional exercises. The following reports were heard:

President W. D. Hawkins' address; first vice-president, Prof. H. P. Todd; second vice-president, Mrs. Z. M. Davis; third vice-president, Miss Celia Mortimer; fourth vice-president, Rev. H. T. Carley; secretary, J. B. Holland; treasurer, Miss Daisie Magee; Era agent, Miss Annie Godfrey, and Juniors' Superintendent, Mrs. W. D. Hawkins.

The following papers on the Charity and Help Department were of special merit: "Co-operation with our pastors in visiting the sick and relieving the poor," by Mrs. W. A. Terry; "Inviting and welcoming strangers," by Mrs. A. N. Lyon, and "Our Brothers by the Way," by Miss Ethel Newcomb.

During the afternoon session the Literary Department was thoroughly discussed by Mrs. J. W. Liddell, Dr. H. W. Featherstun, Mrs. N. B. Harmon and Mrs. A. F. Watkins.

Many local reports were made, showing that encouraging conditions prevail throughout the Conference.

The evening session was given to a lecture by Dr. H. M. DuBose, which proved a masterly effort.

Saturday morning the Devotional Department was discussed by Rev. Robt. Selby, Dr. H. W. Featherstun and Rev. J. W. Shackford.

During the afternoon the Junior Department was ably handled in papers, discussions and demonstrations by Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Miss Florence Granberry and Mrs. W. D. Hawkins. Little Marjo Hawkins delighted the Conference with some pretty motion songs.

For the purpose of defraying the expenses of the Conference organizer, a subscription was made by various Leagues for $30.

Laurel was selected for the next Conference.

The following officers were elected: President, W. D. Hawkins, Meridian, Miss.; first vice-president, Prof. H. P. Todd, Crystal Springs, Miss.; second vice-president, Mrs. Z. M. Davis, Vicksburg, Miss.; Junior Superintendent, Mrs. W. D. Hawkins, Meridian, Miss.; secretary, C. B. Powell, Jackson, Miss.; treasurer, C. LaHatte, Vicksburg, Miss.; Era agent, Miss Lessie Rowan, Laurel, Miss.; Editor League column, Rev. H. B. Watkins, Hazelhurst, Miss.

District Secretaries: Meridian, J. B. Holland, at Meridian; Vicksburg, Miss Ethel Newcomb, at Vicksburg; Brookhaven, Virgil Howie, at McComb City; Natchez, W. A. Miller, Natchez; Forest, Lambert Neil, Forest; Jackson, Vaughn Watkins, Jackson; Seashore, to be supplied. Organizer, Rev. H. T. Carley, Hattiesburg, Miss.

The following report of Committee of Plan of work was adopted:

1. The Leagues of the Mississippi Conference shall have nothing in the way of a special missionary object to which missionary contributions shall go; but the pastor of each League may direct as he deems best the missionary efforts and contributions of the League.

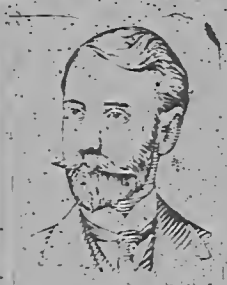
2. The president of the Conference shall address to the pastors a circular letter urging them to co-operate and direct and so use the Leagues as to get out of them the very best possible service in the matter of missions.

3. For the expense of the Conference, a per capita tax of 5 cents per year, shall be levied.

4. This Conference shall elect a Conference League Organizer, who shall visit the various District Conferences to secure the co-operation of the presiding elder, that ample time and occasion for the fullest presentation of the League's interest be given, and who shall visit as many of the Leagues and the charges which have no Leagues as he can, to further League work. A collection shall be taken at this Conference to pay his expenses.

5. The president of the Conference shall confer with the Sunday-school Board and the Board of Missions with the view of having the League Conference, the Sunday-school Institute and the Mid-Year Missionary Meeting held at the same place and during the same week, suggesting that the week selected include the fifth Sunday of the second quarter.

After an eloquent missionary address, Saturday evening, Rev. J. W. Shackford, of Nashville, the B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist Church delightfully entertained the Conference at their pretty new church, serving refreshments.



Sunday, at 11 o'clock, Dr. H. M. DuBose preached an inspiring sermon.

Mrs. Bessie Lipscomb conducted Sunday afternoon a Consecration Service, which was a blessing to all present.

Dr. DuBose conducted the Installation Service Sunday afternoon and also preached in the evening.

MAYHEW.

Mr. Editor: Immediately after the last Annual Conference, I moved to Mayhew, my new charge, and have been pushing forward ever since. I found a compact little circuit of four appointments with a total membership of little more than a hundred. Three of these appointments are on the railroad, and the other is only four miles from the parsonage. It is a delightful people to serve. The most discouraging feature is the little prospect of growth. Very few live within the bounds of the circuit that do not belong to some branch of the church. Not a single conversion has been reported in the last three years and but one in four years. Tihhee is now an afternoon appointment, and it seems that deaths and removals will make it necessary to abandon it altogether.

We have a cozy little parsonage located at Mayhew, which is an exceptionally pleasant place to live. The warm reception and the many tokens of appreciation made us feel at home from the first day. The light work and pleasant surroundings are certainly appreciated by one that has been in such a low state of health, and am glad to say that I have fully regained my strength.

The people are very proud of their former pastors. They have had a long line of able and worthy men. Among the number are Bros. Murrah, Harris, Spragins, Broyles, Duncan, Cameron, Oats, Borders, Vann and others.

We held a few days' meeting in Mayhew in January, which resulted in reviving the membership. Our regular meeting will be held in the fall. We began a meeting in Artesia the 11th of April, which lasted till the 22nd. We all felt the need of a revival and went to work, and it came. It will always come when we comply with the conditions. The merchants closed their stores for the day services during the ten days. Our congregations increased from the beginning. The Holy Spirit was with us in power. The membership was revived, many backsliders reclaimed and eleven were added to the Methodist Church with more to follow; two joined the Baptist. We praise God for the results. Brother Lipscomh, our presiding elder, has already won the hearts of the people of his district. There is no probability of his having to leave the stations on Sunday and go to the country to get an appreciative audience.

DR. PARRISH LECTURES.

On Thursday night, May 3, Dr. S. J. Parrish, of Parker Memorial Church, favored the people of Carrollton Avenue M. E. Church, South, with one of his delightfully humorous lectures—subject, "Sunshine and Shadows." The plea for "Temperence" was especially fine, carrying conviction to the hearts of the hearers. After the lecture, a collection was taken, said collection to be appropriated to the parsonage fund of Carrollton Avenue Church. Miss Ella Jamieson, Superintendent of the Junior League, secured the services of Dr. Parrish, and his kind response to the invitation is keenly appreciated by one and all who were fortunate enough to hear his eloquent lecture.

McHENRY AND WIGGINS CHARGE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: This will inform you that we are in the midst of our spring meetings, and so far the prospect is in every way good for a great year. For months in advance we engaged Rev. L. L. Pickett, with his co-worker, Rev. J. B. Harris, for at least ten days. They managed between them to come a little in advance and with a few days lap over gave two meetings, the one at Saucier and the other at McHenry. The Saucier meeting was a success. Quite a number were converted, from childhood to old age. Others were reclaimed, and there was also some definite work and experience along the line of entire sanctification. As almost everybody at that place belongs to some branch of the Church, there were but few additions.

The meeting at McHenry opened on April 1st and closed on the 12th. Every service from start to finish gave evidence of Divine power upon the people. The congregations grew until there was no sitting room. The altar was filled with earnest seekers, and then the front benches and chairs were used for the same purpose, and yet they came until all the kneeling space about the altar and to some extent down the aisle was occupied. The exact number of conversions is not known, but we think that at least fifty testified definitely to conversion. Others were reclaimed, and others sanctified according to I Thessalonians v, 23. Forty-two were received into the Church on profession of faith, eighteen of whom were baptized. Family altars erected, Sunday-school increased 35 per cent. and the church greatly edefied and built up, are some of the visible results. We will continue revival services with the home force for some weeks to come. Pray for us. E. O. PHILLIPS, P. C.

I believe that love reigns, and that love will prevail. I believe that He says to me every morning "Begin again thy journey and thy life; thy sins, which are many, are not only forgiven thee, but they shall be made, by the wisdom of God, the basis on which He will build blessings."—Thos. Erskine.

One of the greatest trials and miseries of this life seems to me to be the absence of a grand spirit to keep the body under control. Illness and grievous afflictions, though they are a trial, I think nothing of, if the soul is strong, for it praises God, and sees that everything comes from His hand. —St. Teresa.

DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.

Golden Text: "Be not drunk with wine wherein is excess."

Since the present year began, how pleasing it has been to follow our Lord, as it were, in our studies, through the land of Galilee and Judea, and sometimes beyond Jordan, where He was ever working the works of love and laying the foundation for His kingdom in the hearts of men. As we have gone from lesson to lesson, it seems as if we have been of the Lord's company of disciples, listening to His wondrous words and basking in the sunshine of his Divine presence. Lesson after lesson has brought us closer to the Lord, and we have looked forward to every next lesson, expecting more and more of the sweet benefits growing out of our increasing intimacy of the Savior's life and works. With these reflections pervading our mind, and like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, we have before us now a lesson of horror. Well do we remember the effect on our youthful mind, when we first heard of the cruel death of John the Baptist. And when our eyes have rested on that part of the Scripture, the same repulsion has come to us, even until now, when the holy Word has become to us so needful in our every-day life.

Well, what are we to get out of this sad event for a Sunday school lesson? Let us first consider what set of circumstances or what degree of influence can lead a human being to such an inhuman act. Our religion is progressive; our Lord has taught us by the figure of "first the blade, then the ear and then the full corn in the ear," that we are never at a standstill—we are either better men to-day than we were yesterday, or to the contrary. Observation has shown us that the contrary life of evil and worldliness is controlled by the same rule. If a man is bad to-day, and there is no influence exerted with him either from within, his heart, or from the outward, for good, he will be a worse man to-morrow. How blessed is the one, and how revolting the other, as we follow this thought through all time, and then through eternity! Tell the weak man who yields to seemingly small temptation that he is growing worse, and he will say, "Oh, no, I will stop before I get so bad as to grow worse day by day." So, then, we know that it is possible and even often occurs that one becomes so hardened in sin, and is past all control, except from the evil one, that he commits a crime even more heinous than the murder of John the Baptist by Herod. "The heart of man is desperately wicked. Who can know it?"

What led Herod up to where he could commit this awful deed? We know that he was a man that gave full vent to his evil proclivities. By inheritance, his nature was evil, for the Herod that was king at the time of the birth of our Lord was even more cruel and Satanic, and he was the present king's ancestor. Hereditary nature is hard to combat, and when it is a foundation, the after life is generally a course of adding evil to evil. The direct cause of the crime against John the Baptist was too much wine and a wicked woman. What could be expected from a man, evil by nature, inflamed by wine and incensed because his sins had been placed before his eyes for his own inspection; for John had told him that he was leading a life of sin, for which good work John soon found himself in the dungeon of the treacherous castle, from which he never came out alive, for his head was severed from his body and given to a woman as a reward for dancing to please the king. At least, that is what Herodias wants the world to believe, and not that she hated John for telling her and Herod of their sinful life.

The golden text, "Be not drunk with wine wherein is excess," is followed by the passage, "but be filled with the Spirit." In natural law two bodies cannot occupy the same space at the same time. Why should it not apply in the spiritual world? If we are filled with wine, which dethrones reason, how then is it possible to be filled with the Spirit? The use of wine or strong drink is, in its effect, like sin—at first not noticeable, but growing by usage, until, like a habit, they foster themselves until the victim is bound hand and foot, so that only the grace of God can deliver him. "Ye are the temple of the Holy Ghost"—then let us not defile that temple. Let us fully appreciate this greatest of blessings, the gift of the indwelling Spirit.

A close application in the study of incidents related in the Scripture effects a reality in our minds so that we are, transported, in a manner, among the people and to the places spoken of; with a saddened heart, we go with the disciples of John as they tenderly care for his poor, headless body. We have often thought of how Jesus must have been grieved when He was told of the cruel death of John. We wonder at the strange providence of God when a good man is taken away in the very midst of work for the Master, and we can only say, "It is the Lord; let Him do whatever He will." Meditate on the seeming triumph of evil over good, as Herod, the man of pleasure, triumphs over John, the man of principle. It is best to meet the fate of John for doing right than to have an end like that of Herod.

What an accounting there must be given by Herodias, that her influence over her daughter was exerted so wickedly? Who can know the extent of a mother's influence?

Herod seemed troubled over the strange and cruel request of Salome, but we cannot hope that it came from anything but fear. Penitence and remorse, prompted by fear, is not lasting. A broken spirit and a contrite heart invokes pardon, and God is gracious to all such, but at the last day, when John the Baptist and Herod the King stand before the bar of God, who will triumph?

The whole world moves farther away in the forgetfulness of God, and into the disregard of the Savior's love and sacrifice, but the gates of hell shall not prevail against His Church.

Summer This Summer

IN COLORADO

Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. Time was when a visit to the "top of the Continent" was a great luxury, as high in price as in altitude, but not so to-day.

You can spend the Summer or a part of the Summer in Colorado and live as reasonably as you do at home, and the quick service and low tourist and excursion rates afforded via Rock Island lines bring the Rockies within your easy reach.

REVIVAL AT EAST END, MERIDIAN.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The evening of the day that our revival closed, at East End, Meridian, was visited by the terrible tornado, and amid the confusion and disorder occasioned thereby, I delayed sending to the Advocate an account of that meeting. Later, as I saw its widening and deepening effects, I concluded that delay would enable me to record a more accurate account of its results. Two months have passed and the revival still goes on.

We began by a week of prayer and song before Brother J. A. Bowen, of Winona, who conducted the revival, reached us. Each evening these services were conducted by one of the respective pastors of the city, Revs. J. E. Carpenter, C. F. Emery, and L. E. Alford, who entered into the meeting with the spirit and zeal, as though it were their own. Bro. D. G. W. Ellis, an honored superannuate of the Mississippi Conference, preached once for us and rendered other valuable service, as also did Rev. J. D. Nusome, a superannuate of the North Mississippi Conference, and Brother Moody, pastor of 7th Avenue Church. The pastor preached on Sunday, Bro. Bowen reaching us on Monday and preaching three times a day for nearly two weeks. The meeting took fire at once and has never cooled. Thirty-five persons were added to the Church, numbers were converted and many back-sliders reclaimed, and every department of church work built up.

Our congregations are large and exceedingly attentive; the prayer meeting is larger and better attended than ever before; the Women's Societies have added new members and their contributions are increasing; the Sunday-school is the largest and best perhaps, in its history; and the Epworth League is on the boom. It now numbers 71 members, new members, 35; devotional meetings held this year 38, public meetings, 4; all the departments are in operation; number of visits to the sick and strangers, 288; number of boquets distributed, 104; number of visitors brought to church services, 104; amount of money expended to assist the poor, $33.70; 25 garments of clothing have been distributed to the poor.

The organist, pianist and nearly every member of the choir assists the pastor in his work. The members are enthusiastic. Nearly every member of the Sunday-school, old enough, is a member of the church.

The pastor and other Methodist Churches of the city heartily co-operated with us in this grand work. Bro. Bowen often remarked that he never saw such a band of brethren as were the presiding elder and pastors of the various churches, nor a sweeter spirit existing between churches of a city. To these were largely due the success of the meeting. Bro. W. M. Sullivan, our beloved presiding elder, was with us and contributed to our success.

Bro. Bowen preached one of the best and most appropriate series of sermons that I ever heard for a protracted meeting. Being a pastor himself, he knows and appreciates the burdens of a pastor. I believe that he is the most satisfactory helper in a meeting that I ever saw. With him, instead of anything for a move, nothing must move unless it moves right, which is along Bible lines. The work accomplished by him at East End is the most satisfactory and abiding that I have ever had. It continues to widen and deepen.

JOHN W. CHRISLER.

Meridian, Miss.

HEBRON CIRCUIT.

Dear Bro. Boswell: I have entered upon my fourth round of appointments on my work. One third of the Conference year will soon be gone; the opportunity for doing good and forming good resolutions within that time will soon be recorded in the past record of the lives of both pastor and people. No doubt that many on other charges than mine have made some good resolutions. I will say to all, let us put all our good resolutions into practice and for a revival of pure and undefiled religion. Let the revival begin at home. Home is the corner-stone, the only and the strongest, the surest foundation for all good for man through time and eternity.

If you have not begun the revival at your home by erecting the family altar, begin now; erect it at once, pray earnestly at least once a day for loved ones at home. Let wife and children hear you pray, and live, so they can have confidence in your prayers. Pray for your pastor; let your family hear you pray for him. You do not know how it will help your pastor to hold him up on the strong arm of fervent prayer. Then, prove to him that you have prayed for him by punctual attendance at your Church, and when you go to Church, enter the house of God at once, and, if not in time for preaching, help to sing the sweet songs of Zion; have a few short and fervent prayers. Dear brethren, quit standing around the Church door gossipping about everything except religion.

Do all you can to help your pastor to get up his Conference collections. If you have subscribed so much, pay it as early as possible, so that when a call is made on him for his prorata share, he can remit a good part, if not all. Then look to the amount due him for his support; it makes him feel good. very few pastors have bank accounts. All true pastors love their people whether they pay up all assessments or not, but all love needs strengthening, and that is an efficient way to strengthen your pastor's love to you, and yours to him. "Love always begets love."

I am glad to say that my Conference collections are about canceled, with cash and bonafide subscriptions, and, as for my part, I am all right thus far. As for the home where I make headquarters, I could not find one more agreeable and pleasant than I find in the home of Bro. W. A. Easterling and his most estimable and lovely family.

My congregations are on the increase; generally good behavior and good attention. Since my last correspondence to the Advocate, we have had an abundance of rain. Streams have been overflowed, causing many farmers to have to do much of their work over. But we are in nowise discouraged: behind the darkest cloud there is always a silver lining which enables us to look forward into the future in faith, hope and charity.

F. A. LANE.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE.

The Missionary Institute for Corinth District met at Belden May 24 and 25. Brother Harris was present and able to discharge the duties of his office well.

Despite the absence of several preachers, the Institute was a success. The programme was carried out, and a number of very interesting subjects were discussed by those present.

One important feature of the occasion was a survey of the mission charges in the District. Reports from those places were encouraging in some respects; all being financially able to become self-sustaining circuits, and should be now. So we look forward to the day when these will be leading in Home Mission work. New light was thrown upon other phases of the work.

The preaching was done by the following brethren:

On "The Vanity of Worldliness," by Rev. M. L. Ward. "Foreign Missions," by Rev. O. L. Savage. "Infant Baptism," by Rev. W. C. Harris. "The Possibility of Final Apostasy," by Rev. B. P. Fullilove. All the subjects were ably treated.

The Institute was attended by an appreciative congregation of all religious denominations of Belden, who seemed to enjoy the occasion.

Rev. J. D. Boggs and his generous-hearted people succeeded in making us feel at home. Brother Boggs is doing well at Belden. He is a perfect fit, serving a people who love their preacher. Some of the Belden folks would vote for the removal of the time limit.

We found Bro. Boggs situated in a comfortable home built since he came to the place, for which many of the people give him credit.

The many kindnesses shown us by these good people will never be forgotten. The Lord reward them all.

REVIVAL AT ROSEDALE.

Dear Bro. Boswell: We have just closed an interesting meeting at Rosedale, where I have been assisting Bro. Price for the last two weeks. Sinners were converted and Christians edified.

Rosedale is noted for worldliness, and first-class people. Strange as it may seem to the people in the hills, I preached to more old people here than I ever did before to the size of the congregation, and Bro. Price says that he did not bury a single member of the town last year, though he was the only resident minister.

Bro. Price is in love with his people; has large congregations, and he is preaching to them as but few men can preach. It has been a great feast to me to be with him and his family.

REVIVAL AT CHARLESTON AND OAKLAND.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have just closed a fine meeting at Charleston, and are in the midst of a very promising meeting now at Oakland. Our meeting at Charleston was well attended by the entire town, and at times some were turned away for lack of room. Our whole membership was renewed, and recommissioned; our Sunday School put on new life; our prayer meeting was built up, and we are all happy in the Lord. God visited us in his old-time power, and men, women and children went to the altar and prayed for God to save them. Twenty-six joined our church; several will join other branches of the Church. We baptized four children. The preaching was done by Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss., and I voice the entire people when I say it was well done. He is the best help in a meeting I ever had. He knows how to preach the old-time Methodist doctrine and how to stand by the law of the Church.

I find that the people are always glad to pay a man when he does good work. As for me and mine, we want the best consecrated help we can find, and then we are only too glad to pay for it.

We will send you a list of twenty or more new subscribers in a few days. J. H. BASS.

We see always what we are looking for, and if our mind has become trained to look for trouble and difficulty and all dark and dreary things, we find just what we seek. A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY.

A large number of your readers sent me recipes for removing stains from my dress. I thank them all. In answer to inquiries regarding the fruit business, I would say, I made $121. last week, sold directions to 121 families; people pay $1 for directions quickly. I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh and costs almost nothing. I feel it my duty to give my experience, as anyone who will try, should make one or two hundred dollars in a few days right round home. I will mail a bottle of fruit and complete directions to you, for 21 two cent stamps, which is only the cost of bottle, fruit, mailing case, postage, etc. Address Francis Casey, No. 53 E. 125 St., Block 10, New York, N. Y. With a bottle of fruit for people to see and taste, you should sell hundreds of directions.

Let the Edison Phonograph Sing Sacred and Old-Time SONGS

Hundreds of individuals look upon the Edison Phonograph as something inseparably connected with minstrel, vaudeville, or concert-hall performances. No greater fallacy could exist. The Edison Phonograph provides any kind of music, no matter what your taste or preference may be. At the Edison factory in Orange, N. J., special attention is being paid to the issuance of sacred music each month, and many of the sweetest and most satisfying hymns are now included in our catalogues. Torry and Alexander, the famous evangelists now conducting revivals in this country, were greatly aided in their work in England by the Phonograph Records of which taught this inspiring melody to thousands. The American record of this song (male duet) can be bought of any Phonograph Dealer for 35 cents. Other sacred duets, with orchestra accompaniment, at this price are: "I Need Thee Every Hour," "I Love to Tell the Story," "Crucifix," "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," "O Morning Land," "When the Mists Have Rolled Away," etc. Also the following Male or Mixed Quartettes: "Lead, Kindly Light," "Nearer, My God, To Thee," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "Refuge," etc.

Then the old-time songs; those that father and mother heard when young and that to them always seem better than any others. The Phonograph will render them as often as you like.

Ask any Phonograph dealer to play some sacred or old-time songs for you, or write to us for Catalogues and name of nearest dealer.

POPE'S COMPENDIUM OF THEOLOGY.

VOLUME I.

While attention is centered on the General Conference, and church papers are crowded with suggestions for this body, it seems a bit impracticable to be setting forth impressions of a work on systematic theology. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." I have just completed a great book, and am moved to tell a little of what it has meant to me that someone else may find the pleasure and profit in it I did.

The work is no new one, though read but infrequently, I believe, by our preachers. It is Pope's "Compendium of Theology," a work filling three volumes, of which the Catechism, studied in the third-year classes, is a condensed and rather sketchy abstract.

The first volume alone is the basis of this review. Before taking up the work itself, a brief word about the distinguished author is not amiss. British Wesleyanism never produced a man better fitted to write a great work on theology than William Burt Pope. His naturally strong, deep mind was made mighty by study, deep and hard, especially by untiring application to the Word itself. He read the Bible through an incredible number of times. For years he read a book a day. Sometimes he read the Pentateuch or the Gospels without intermission. I have read that he read the whole Bible through at one sitting. A peculiar incident led him to this remarkable devotion to the study of the Word. While a young man he entered a drug store and called for a medicine. The clerk took down an unmarked bottle and poured out the drug. "How do you tell them apart?" asked Pope, noticing that many of the bottles on the shelves had no labels. "I know my stock," replied the clerk. The future theologian and philosopher turned away. Did he know the Book? Could he, when the night of error fell upon the Church and the world, put his hand forth to the remedial text? He set himself to know the Book. His verbal familiarity is remarkable. He calls no scattered texts to uphold his propositions. At his command they march in battallions, each in the rank of its connection with the subject in hand. But this is the least of his knowledge of Scripture. He drank in of its spirit, until dark hints and obscure references brightened in the eye of his heart, to flaming beacons along the way to the ultimate Truth.

The keynote of the author's style is his command of the primal element, clearness. One who knows only the Catechism is agreeably surprised at the lucidity of the rolling sentences and the clear depths of the striking generalizations and the plainness of even those tortuous paths by which the argument must sometimes ascend to its lofty conclusions. The elevation of the style is remarkable. In all places it is lofty. Sometimes it is grand. And, occasionally, when following out the conclusions of mighty verities to the utmost verge of thought and apprehension, it grows to a sublimity, passionate in potentiality, and falling only short of awful in the majesty of its calm repression.

The plan of the whole work can be gathered at a glance from the table of contents of the Catechism. The first volume deals with the Canon of Scripture, God, and God as related to the Creature in creation, and Providence.

In the preliminary remarks the limitations of the science of theology are set forth. They are limitations such as must ever arise when Infinite Truth is getting itself expressed to and through the finite mind. Our revelation of the Supreme is fragmentary; yet it is true of the Supreme as He is. We have but one page of a great book; its page begins and ends, so to speak, in the middle of a sentence. Hereafter we shall know more of this book. There is a limitation, of qualification as well as of quantification. There is an impress upon theology which results from its adaptation to human faculties. The Bible is pervaded by the condescension of God in seeming to take from the fingers of the Supreme. When God chooses He descends by accommodation to the limitations of time and space, but they are no modes of His own Being. Mere duration is not His eternity,—neither is it an "eternal now." It is Being, Consciousness,—creating time and things,—transcending time and things by all the measure of his infinity. In the same way his immensity filleth all by no extension of his essence through space. Wherever He is present at all the whole God is present, and He is present everywhere—or rather, all is everywhere present to Him. The mode of His Being transcends space as it does time. Exhausted with efforts to traverse the abysses of such concepts, the mind falls back upon itself—exhausted, but enriched by an apprehension of the unknown and unknowable glory of its God.

Theology is but the subtle interpretations of the manifestations and complex relations of the Divine perfections in and to creation, providence, and redemption. The skillful theologian lays the foundation of his system of justification in the attributes. Genevan philosophers laid the foundations of predestinarian fatalism in an attribute of sovereignty. Mr. Pope consistently lays the foundation of his interpretation of Remonstrant theology in the attribute of freedom. It is opposed to Calvinistic sovereignty as a higher manifestation of sovereignty. As understood by those who use the term, sovereignty is an attribute controlling things and creatures, and God. For instance, all power or omnipotence is demanded by sovereignty to be exercised always and everywhere. What is done in the universe that requires power must derive its origin immediately from the All-powerful, for sovereignty demands that there shall be no exercise of power except by the All-powerful. Here is fate, necessity, god behind the god, reducing creation and history to the outworking of a lifeless mechanism, which, add to it what titles of love and warmth we will, remains forever loveless and warmthless. To this notion of sovereignty Mr. Pope opposes freedom. "The display of the Almighty powers must be, if the Divine freedom is maintained, forever restricted. The Infinite cannot exhaust Himself, the actual must ever fall short of the possible. It is granted that the will of God is His act,—but it is equally certain that He may will not to act—infinite varities of beings are not in existence that might be." To deny God freedom limits omnipotence. What He has done is the limit of All power! Omnipotence is not power acting to its extreme capacity, but power to act to any capacity. Behind infinite power there is a guiding heart and mind, able to exercise even this dread perfection of to restrain it. "Behold these are but a part of His ways."

Similarly the relation is traced between freedom and the other omni attributes. There is a poetry of beauty as well as sublimity of truth about the conception of a God limited in the exercise of His powers neither by their lack or their vastness. It affords grateful relief from the sterile heights of an adamantine fatalism and the arid wastes of a lifeless materialism.

The first volume closes with the discussion of creation and providence. Various forms of error that have sprung from human efforts to explain or avoid the creation are met and overthrown. Atheism is dismissed as impossible in practice. The Bible, which demonstrates everything about God except His existence, does not enter into discussion with the atheist, for the reason that it does not suppose the existence of such a man. The fool who hath said in his heart, "No God," is after all only the wicked who has said to God, "Depart from me, for I desire not the knowledge of Thy ways." Judgment of the presentation of the doctrines of providence must be reserved until the kindred themes of sin and redemption have been examined.

One rises from the perusal of the first volume of this great work, anxious for what is to follow; he feels that he has added to his store of thought somewhat that will last him while life lasts, nor fail him utterly while immortality endures. For truth is eternal, and if, pressing through the crowd of words and thoughts and the many books, we can press on her white garment but a fleeting touch we feel the healing of the virtue that goeth out of her as it thrills into our souls.

WALTER G. HARBIN.

A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF WILLIAM McKENDREE.

William McKendree was born in King William County, Virginia, about forty miles northeast of Richmond, July 6, 1757. His parents, John and Mary McKendree, were both natives of Virginia. His father was a planter and William was brought up in the same occupation.

The McKendrees were Episcopalians of the sort that have almost everywhere taken to Methodism so readily.

They were earnest people, and Methodism struck them at a time when it was stirring to its depths the heart of a continent. McKendree was converted under John Easter, a mighty man of God, whose message moved the hearers with overwhelming power.

McKendree's sorrow for sin was profound; his surender to Christ was complete. A new song was put into his mouth with the inflow of new life into his soul. Ever afterwards that new song was sung, but by him in tones that were clear and sweet.

To him conversion meant passing from death unto life; from darkness unto light; from the power of Satan unto God—a change of heart, a change of master, a change of life.

Bishop McKendree's early life seems not to have been distinguished by any very remarkable incident. He grew to manhood at a period in our Colonial history unfavorable to mental culture.

There were very few schools then in Virginia competent to give a good English education, while only three or four colleges had been founded in America, and only one in his native State. His education, therefore, was such as the common country schools could afford. But when he entered the ministry he had a fair rudimentary education—had taught school. This, with a sound mind and a refined taste, gave great accuracy to his selection of words.

He was only twenty years of age when the memorable struggle of our Revolution began. When the call for volunteers was made he went to the defense of his country. He became a soldier, and faithfulness to duty soon brought promotion and he became an officer, who showed his love for his fellowman by taking such an active part in this great war which resulted in our independence. He was of great service to Washington at Yorktown. So we see he was not only a great help spiritually, but in whatsoever his hands found to do.

His work as an itinerant was hard—riding on horseback for hundreds of miles and oftentimes walking long distances, sleeping on the ground at night. He crossed the Alleghenies Mountains sixty-two times on horseback, and made an average of one sermon a day for forty-seven years.

Like Bishop Asbury, his predecessor, he never married. When questioned in regard to this subject he would say: "I have never found time for matrimony."

McKendree's call to preach came soon after his conversion, and had all the marks of a call from God. He said that to him it was as distinct as his call to discipleship. The divine message was as a fire in his bones.

The church took him and held him to her heart as a good mother, giving him (as he said) full work and full pay. At first he received fifty dollars per year, then later eighty and on until he received a round hundred.

To show how earnest he was about having his own heart right with God before entering the sacred stand we quote the following paragraph from his diary:

"Oct. 2. Being already at my preaching place since 8 o'clock, I have been with Jesus in this beautiful forest in deep exercise. My Book is sweeter than common. O, what spirit I find in the Word of the Lord! I read it much and with great delight—often on my knees. I take my flight on wings of faith and love, mounting higher and higher, until I reach the celestial world. One-half an hour humbly prostrate on my face to converse with eternity; such deep views and such bright conception of eternal things I never had before in all my life. But I must go; the congregation is assembled and my watch says eight minutes to twelve o'clock. Farewell, sweet and solemn place. Lord Jesus, go with me! Amen!"

The Lord did go with him and blessed him and his labors, honored him with a long life and great usefulness.

As a presiding elder he did a great work in the West. It was a time when a revival of religion swept over the West and Southwest, and aroused the whole Methodist family in Europe and America to new and more vigorous action.

He founded a plan to carry the Gospel to those communities where it had never been received. He employed all the local preachers he could find and put them into active work.

In the presiding eldership he developed and demonstrated his executive ability. It may be truly said he worked his way to the Bishop's chair, though he never sought it, for he accepted the place with reluctance.

He preached at the Light Street Church on the Sunday before the General Conference began its session in Baltimore, May, 1808. His text: Jeremiah viii, 21-22.

"The congregation (he said) was overwhelmed with a shower of divine grace from the upper world."

Bishop Asbury, who was present, was heard to say that "this sermon will make McKendree a Bishop."

On May 12, the date upon which the resolution to elect one bishop was passed, McKendree was elected by the largest majority that any Bishop had ever received, except Bishop Asbury, receiving ninety-five of one hundred and twenty-eight votes.

He was the first native American Bishop. He was now in his fifty-first year, and in the full ripeness of all his powers.

His course was a trail of light through the twenty-seven years that followed until his death in Sumner County, Tennessee, March 5, 1835, when Methodism lost one of its greatest supporters.

Truly are we indebted to Almighty God for the great work of this devout man. Surely he was to Methodism what Washington was to his country—a father.

THE CHURCH PAPER.

HOW TO CIRCULATE IT.

We Hope the Preachers Will Not Skip This.

By the Late Rev. J. O. Peck, D. D.

My work on the above topic is cut out for me. The editor does not want any of my "theories." But my experience. How does he know that I have no "theories" that are worthy of his paper? But cheerfully I give my experience on one of the most important collateral duties of the pastor. I did not dream, when I was making the historic experience, that I would so often hear of it and be asked to give the repetition of it.

I did have large success in securing subscribers to the church papers within whose patronizing territory I was pastor for twenty-five years. I believe the church paper my best and most effective assistant pastor. I believe any other paper displacing the Herald or the Advocate (according to my locality) to be undermining of the Methodistic intelligence and loyalty of the members of the church. Hence [illegible] church papers became a conviction, a passion. I felt it a duty, a part of my pastoral work, as much as the conversion of souls and the building up of the saints in a living. Yes, I conceive me to be a strong reinforcement in effecting these results. Hence I threw my brains, mind, tact and enthusiasm into getting subscribers for the paper. I worked for it as I did for a revival, and on the same ground—that it was necesary to the highest success of my pastorate. And it was.

If you want it in a nutshell. I worked to get subscribers with all the tact and enthusiasm I could if I had owned the paper and received all the profits. There you have it. I was a partner in the concern. I received my dividends in a more intelligent and devoted membership. The modus operandi was as follows:

1. I took the paper into the pulpit. I opened it wide and showed it to the people. I expatiated upon its beauties, its benefits, its departments, its necessity to any member who would be an intelligent Methodist, and know the current history of his church. I warmed with my theme and exhorted. I appealed to their loyalty. I excoriated the disloyalty that lifted the church papers and took outside papers, especially if they were cheap. I told of the bread they were taking out of the mouths of hungry superannuates, widows and orphans of our church, to put money in the coffers of outside publishers. I portrayed the fact that the paper was worth five cents a week—all it cost—to any family in the prepared exposition of the Sunday school lesson. I swept the whole key-board of incentives to take the paper. Then when the iron had been made hot by striking, I struck to weld it by taking subscribers on the spot! I got all I could on Sunday as a religious work. I used blank cards often in the pews. I nailed their ears to the paper with a pencil.

2. I followed up this bombardment from the pulpit by a renewed attack at close range in the prayer meeting. I repeated this effort in the prayer meeting at intervals. I always gained some at the close of a warm prayer meeting.

3. I next put a clean copy of the paper in my pocket and started on my pastoral visitation each afternoon. By this time I had made a list of all who ought to take the paper, but had not subscribed. With this list and the paper in my pocket I began sharpshooting at close range. I went to the house, the store, the shop, the factory. I pulled out my paper and my list. I submitted the question. Most surrendered at once when thus individually appealed to. The few that hesitated I stayed with till they "saw a great light" and subscribed! Only here and there an obtuse or stingy soul escaped.

4. There wer always a few poor people who could not afford to take the paper. On Christmas or New Year's I would state this fact to the public congregation and ask the well-to-do to send a Christmas or New Year's gift to these poor, that would come every week in the year. This always met with quick response.

5. At the close of the revival each year I appealed to all new converts to take a church paper. I explained the benefit, and urged on them the duty of taking a church paper, as they were now to be Methodists.

6. Finally, I attended to this work personally. I no more allowed some indigent woman or aged preacher to do this for me than I invited them to lead the revival for me. When I found such agent (appointed by a predecessor for the revenue he got out of it), I always relieved him or her, and gave back the commissions quadrupled.

This is my "experience." It fills me with joy to recall it. Hallelujah! It was a good work for Christ. There is no patent on the experience. I ask no "royalty" on its use. It would be a good thing if the General Conference would pass a regulation that no person should be appointed a member of the official board who does not take a church paper.—Zion's Herald.

PERSONALS.

Rev. J. C. Parck has recently held a series of meetings in his charge which resulted in many conversions and several accessions to the church.

Rev. Charles C. Wier, Agent for the Louisiana Conferance Orphange, called at the Advocate office on last Monday. Brother Wier is looking well, and speaks encouragingly of his work.

Dr. F. N. Parker writes us that his district work is moving along nicely. He is getting ready for his District Conference. Dr. Parker is a leader of men and one of the strong preachers of our church.

The Seashore District Conference will be held at Gulfport June 5-9. Rev. M. M. Black will preach the opening sermon. Rev. M. L. Burton is presiding elder of the district.

One of our lay delegates, Brother Geo. J. Leftwich, of Aberdeen, was called home on Saturday last by urgent business. The rest of the delegation are all in place, and in good health and spirits.

The new church at Holly Springs, on the Wesley Circuit, will be dedicated the first Sunday in June. The pastor, Rev. Thos. J. Martin, Sr., extends an invitation to all former pastors to be present.

It will be gratifying to the many friends of Rev. J. W. Bell to know that he is doing a very fine work at Minter City, North Mississippi Conference. He is one of the very best preachers and pastors in that Conference.

Rev. J. W. Shackford, representative of the Young People's Missionary Movement of the Asheville Conference, spent several days in New Orleans this week in the interest of his work. It is probable that several from the city will attend the Conference.

A note from Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir says: I have a list of ten ames, just half of my club, that I am going to send to you soon. Our District Conference, recently held at Bunkie, was a "starter," moving us out to work for the ADVOCATE. Doctor, you are giving us a good paper.

A note from Rev. R. H. Wynne, at Ruston, La., says: If any brother has one or all of the three following copies of the Methodist Review, which he is willing to part with, November-December, 1894, September-October, 1900, October, 1903, I should be glad to communicate with him in regard to purchase of same.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Winona, Miss., writes: "Everything is ready for the great meeting to begin here Sunday, the 20th inst. Rev. Sam P. Jones will reach here on the 19th. Prof. Tillman, of Atlanta, Ga., is here organizing a choir. The large tabernacle to seat 5000 is ready, and we are expecting great crowds during the week."

During the past week the following brethren from Mississippi and Louisiana have been attending the General Conference: Revs. J. E. Thomas, W. A. Clark, R. H. B. Gladney, N. G. Augustus, J. T. Murrah, W. L. Duren, G. W. Bachman, W. W. Drake, C. B. Carter, R. H. Wynn, E. P. Craddock, Theodore Copeland and S. J. Parrish. Brother H. T. Harkey also, a layman from Tupelo, Miss.

MONTROSE HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The commencement exercises of Montrose High School will be held May 27, 28 and 29. Dr. W. C. Black, of Hattiesburg, will preach the commencement sermon on Sunday, the 27th. Lieutenant R. P. Hobson is expected to deliver the annual address. The graduating exercises will be held Tuesday, the 29th, at 11 o'clock. The following are to graduate: Misses Elna Loub, May and Ruby Neill, Aquilla Bury and Mr. C. D. Risher.

LETTER FROM BROTHER WILLIAMS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Our good old mother, the Holly Springs district, daughter of the Memphis Conf., M. E. Church, South, was born between the dates of 1852 and 1858. She was married to the North Mississippi Conference in Water Valley, 1870, and died at her post of duty in Grenada, Dec. 9, 1905. To her were born multiplied thousands of sons and daughters, of whom a great number remain, but some have fallen asleep, her children being scatterd from Maine to California and from Canada to Mexico. Few, if any, had the opportunity to administer to her during her dying moments. Her death coming unexpectedly, without warning, has caused a great shock to her children. But she has gone. She is no more! She sleeps beneath the cypress, the willow and the myrtle. We all knew she had not been in robust health for some years, but still she continued to shoulder all the duties laid upon her. We cherish her memory here. We consign her body to the grave and her spirit to God, who gave it. May her influence for good roll on like the mighty Amazon till it loses it course in the great ocean of eternity. Yes, you are gone, but not forgotten. Her influence will live in the hearts of men while the years come and go. May the soft winds of coming years chant a gentle requiem over her slumbering ashes till time shall have run its course; then we hope to meet her beyond the grave. If she had died from spiritual degeneration or any other natural cause we could easily give her up, but such was not her fate. She was cast overboard, and, like poor Jonah, "swallowed by a whale!" We thank Brothers Babb, Meek and Lagrone for sympathy and condolence during sad hours of bereavement and trust that dear Brother Lewis may not pass through the fiery trial. Her loving son,

W. R. WILLIAMS.

Ashland, Miss.

A WORD ABOUT LOCAL PREACHERS.

There are seven local preachers on the old Vancleave work, and I am personally acquainted with them all, and can safely say that local Methodist preachers are the best set of men in the Church, for they have proven it. They do manual labor for the support of themselves and families; they contribute toward the support of Bishop, presiding elder, pastor and Conference collections, and they are ready to assist the pastor in conveying the presiding elder around, and ready to help get up the Sunday schools and to run them; they help in class meetings and prayer meetings, and they are at work trying to get the people to attend church and subscribe for the Christian Advocate. They can come in from the field at noon and at night, weary and tired, to prepare their sermons to preach on the following Sabbath, and often go away from home, preaching from one to six times a month on the pastor's circuit or out in the destitute scopes of the country filling appointments for the pastor without any salary. Praise God for them! Kind Father, multiply them.

JAMES KING, L. P.

There is a caution in the Scriptures against being in haste to get rich. There is another just as important: "If riches increase set not your heart upon them."

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

Single subscriptions, $2. Fifty cents commission on all new subscribers; 25 cents on all renewals.

Clubs of ten, $1.50; 25 cents commission on each subscription.

Clubs of twenty, $1.25; 25 cents commission on each subscription.

Renewals may be counted in the clubs.

Professing Christians who do not aspire to and reach after the very highest attainments in grace have but scant appreciation of their privileges and opportunities. If this lack is due to indifferent or inefficient preachers they are to be pitied. "If the blind lead the blind both will fall into the ditch."

Let us preach the Gospel. There is only one. But we may bring forth from the good treasure of our hearts "things new and old." The Gospel is exhaustless.

Nobody is so insignificant as "to count for just one." No boy ever got into mischief and escaped the consequences alone. No one ever undertook good that he did not soon influence some one else.

SUPERANNUATE HOMES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

We announce with pleasure that we have had three valuable sites donated to our Conference for the purpose of building homes for our Superannuate preachers.

Dr. E. L. McGehee has given three acres of land near Covington, La., in easy access to church and school. Covington is Louisiana's noted health resort and is a rapidly-growing community. This property is very desirable for the purpose to which it is given.

Two valuable lots have been donated by Brother Abel in the town of Ponchatoula, one of the most prosperous towns in Louisiana. Our church is thriving there, and the property is in easy access to the church.

Captain S. B. McCutchen has given three acres of land in the suburbs of Shreveport, which lies along the route of the extension motor car line, adjoining the property offered as the site of new Centenary College. This is a most desirable location.

Now for the money to build these homes. Brethren, will you kindly present this cause to your people? They will cheerfully contribute. Give them the opportunity. We have had only one response to our recent appeal. Unless the preachers take up this cause, we cannot build these homes. We will publish in the Advocate from time to time the contributions received. The following cash subscriptions have been received: Prof. H. B. Carre, $5; Morgan City-Berwick charge, $185.45; Columbia, $20. Total, $210.45.

Let others rapidly follow. Any layman who desires to contribute to this cause, and has not had an opportunity of doing so, may send his contribution to Captain S. B. McCutchen, Shreveport, La., and due acknowledgment will be made.

Faithfully, ROBT. W. VARDAMAN, Agent.

HERNANDO MEETING.

The writer enjoyed a rare privilege when, on April 30, in the afternoon, he was so cordially received at the parsonage in Hernando, Miss., and royally fed at the cheerful board of Joe. B. Randolph, whose good wife knows how to dispense a liberal hospitality most gracefully. At night a good audience greeted us in the elegant new brick church, and we began the meeting. It was so refreshing to meet and shake hands with old friends and worship together. Well, I never saw the like—the way those people came to church, rain or shine. There was not a service missed, not a small attendance during eleven days of rain and cold. The Randle University School, under the presidency of Prof. Burks, furnished good attendance, although in a week of its commencement. The business houses closed their doors and the men came to church. Of course, it was a good meeting. There were some ten or twelve who professed faith in Christ, seven who joined the Methodist Church, and six children baptized. Several others expect to join the church also. The other pastors, Revs. F. M. Cooper and W. E. Lee, were regular in attendance, and willing helpers.

Brother Randolph is quite popular, and no wonder, for he not only gets acquainted with people, but keeps so by industrious movements. He is certainly a hustler. He is systematic and does things orderly and accurately. I wondered at his activity until I saw what his wife was doing in church work, and then I knew he had to move or be run over. Her work among the children is extraordinary.

I shall not undertake to describe that abounding hospitality I met everywhere, the Christian fellowship, and spiritual feasts we enjoyed. I want to go back and try it all again.

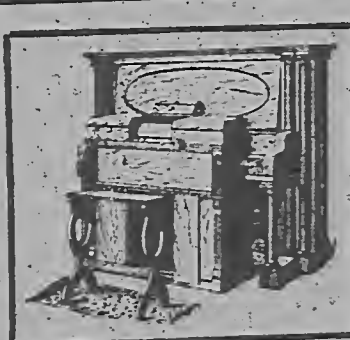
B. P. JACO.

WINGS OF A DOVE.

What made the psalmist wish for the wings of a dove? He was restless and discontented. Perhaps he was tormented and afflicted. He was weary of the strife of tongues. It is hard to sit still and bear insult, injustice and contention. It is natural to think that a change of situation might be salutary. Many a good man has wished for the wings of a dove. But this desire for change is often a symptom of a bad condition of the heart.

There are many restless people. They are forever changing. They fly from city to city, from one business pursuit to another, from one church to another. Here is one who thinks he may find more congenial brethren in another church. Here is another who has grown tired of the form of service in his own church, and thinks that another church will afford the very service he needs. Here is another who seeks a change of pastors or a change of music. And worst of all, it is all too common to find one who is under a cloud in his own Conference, and it occurs to him that if he could be transferred to a new field where he is not known he could have a new start and escape from the hindrance of his past record.

But rest is not found in flying. The trouble is not with the climate, or the latitude, but within. The same mind will produce the same discontent in every city, under every sky, on every planet. The wings of a dove are powerless to cure the evil of a discontented mind. How often have we seen the unhappy man who had made trouble for himself in one Conference flying to another only to find the old trouble following him.



What a happy lesson the apostle found: "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith be content." Where did Paul learn that wonderful lesson? Not in the school of Gamaliel. Not from the classics, with which he seemed to be familiar. He learned it at the feet of the Nazarene, who said: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"The world can never give
The bliss for which we sigh."

Are we restless? Perhaps our environment is not congenial. Perhaps we have done or said something which has disturbed the harmony between ourselves and our neighbors. Are we ashamed to meet some fellow-man and look him in the face? Do we sigh for the wings of a dove to carry us to a more congenial atmosphere? Perhaps the man who cannot find contentment at home cannot find it anywhere. Be at peace with God and that will bring you into harmony with all that is good. With a heart filled with the love of God one can adjust his affairs with his enemies or else bear their reproaches. Wings of a dove will not be needed when we have the wings of faith and love.

"Content with beholding his face,
My all to his pleasure resigned,
No changes of season or place
Would make any change in my mind.
While blest with a sense of his love,
A palace a toy would appear;
And prisons would palaces prove,
If Jesus would dwell with me there."

Some men take up too much time in trying to impress an idea. They put it one way, then turn it over and put it another way. A few, not satisfied with two ways, try it three or four times. When through, they have taken as much as five minutes to say a thing they had already said in one minute. No wonder they are long-minded, and too often tedious.

TUNICA AND ROBINSONVILLE.

Sunday School and Epworth League report to the Second Quarterly Conference, Tunica and Robinsonville Charge, April 30, 1906:

Dear Fathers and Brethren—We have one Junior Epworth League at Tunica, which was organized the first Sunday in February, with a membership of 18; two have been added since, giving us now an enrollment of 20. Every member attends every meeting; our average attendance, counting visitors, children only, has been 22. The Leaguers are doing good work. They have raised over $20 for the Orphans' Home, and as a result of their service Easter Sunday night, which was conducted by them, they turned over to the treasurer $8.50, one-half of which was sent to the treasurer of the Conference Epworth League Board, as directed. They have carried flowers to the sick, assisted the ladies in special ways and are of great inspiration to the pastor.

We have three Sunday schools, all doing good, solid work. One of these, at Hollywood, has been organized since the last Quarterly Conference. We have in this newly organized school four officers and teachers and 21 names on roll as scholars. The attendance has been such that more literature had to be ordered last week. All of our schools are organized into Missionary Societies and are contributing to missions in more ways than giving dimes.

An interesting Teachers' Meeting at Tunica holds its sessions on Monday night of each week. More good has come from this gathering and council of teachers than anything else.

In our Tunica Sunday School we have a "Home Department" of 24 members, under the supervision of a good woman, who was glad to take charge of it and be of some benefit to the work, as she could not attend the regular sessions of the school. We also have a "Cradle Roll" of 11 names, in charge of another good woman who cannot attend, but was much pleased to know that she could do even that much work.

Careful instruction is given the children and special attention given them by pastoral and systematic visits to the public schools. At Tunica a "Band" has been formed among the boys, principally those in the school. We have now 32 members with whom we go fishing, play ball and join them in their sports that are right, and are in this way being brought into touch with them more closely, and indirectly with the older people, than could be possible otherwise.

Fully one-third of our public preaching services are composed of children under 15.

Very sincerely, THE PASTOR.

Church finances for the quarter:

Incidentals, $14.50; Sunday School literature, $13.28; for the poor, $4.50; ministerial help, $28.75; furnishing churches, $27.50; song books (Methodist Hymnals), $20.80; district parsonage, $8.50; Orphans' Home, $1.00; Millsap's College, $0.53; Junior Epworth League, $8.50; insurance, $10; domestic missions, $22 (in full); Bible cause, $1; foreign missions, $20; specials, $1; over to Home Mission Society, $18.00. This gives a total of $375.08. Two-thirds of the remainder of Conference collections are provided for in good subscriptions.

The pastor's salary was reduced $57 from last year's assessment.

GILDEROY ON INFANT SALVATION.

I have just read some deliverances of Gilderoy on the state of infants, and as it seems from the main portion of those deliverances that he was criticising an article of mine which appeared in the ADVOCATE of March 22, I would like to make some reply.

Brother Gilderoy commences his criticism by saying, "I see that some of the younger men have gone to writing again about the sin and salvation of infants. I had thought we had gotten past that, but just as long as the idea remains that infants are liable to go to perdition, on account of what they have inherited, just that long will men hold to the idea of infant regeneration as necessary to infant salvation." In reply to this I simply state that I know of no one who teaches that infants, "as such, are liable to go to perdition on account of what they have inherited." Again he says, in speaking of depravity, that "regeneration does not set us free from it, nor does sanctification." Admitting that this is true, for the sake of the argument, it does not set aside the main contention of my article—that children are born in such state as to need regeneration.

My friend Brother Gilderoy's main argument in support of the contention that regeneration does not remove depravity is the fact that regenerated parents produce depraved children. This fact is without force, as an argument, when we consider the fact that acquired characteristics are not hereditary. Education removes ignorance, but education is not hereditary. The life of God is imparted to those who receive the gospel, but this life is acquired, not natural. It supersedes spiritual death, the main characteristic of depravity, thereby removing it. But this divine life, not being natural, is not hereditary. It is true that God has not arranged "to subvert a law of nature by a law of grace;" if by "a law of nature" is meant natural attributes of mind and body, bestowed on us for our good, but which must be kept under proper subjection by the child of God. Depravity does not consist in these laws of nature, but in the absence of another law, by which these laws may be properly regulated. "The law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death" (Rom. viii. 2). Are infants born with this "law of the 'Spirit of Life" in them? or do they need it imparted in a new birth? To say that infants do not need the new birth because as such they cannot comply with the conditions, is about equal to saying that infants are not born in such state as to need a knowledge of the Gospel, because as such they cannot comply with the conditions necessary to the obtaining of this knowledge. Infants who die in infancy, I fully believe are saved. As to how they are saved we are not informed. As I have said before, they are in a justified state, or innocent. It may be that they are regenerated in death. The doctrine that they are regenerated at the time of death is not opposed to any truth we know, and it makes possible a scheme of salvation for all men, in which regeneration is a necessary work. I do not remember what the standards teach as to regeneration being a co-operative work, but if Gilderoy can prove by them that it is, he will prove too much. That is, he will prove that an inspired writer gave an untruthful description of regeneration. Here is John's description of the work that he gives in speaking of people who were regenerated in his day: "Which were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." (John i. 13.)

The sinner seeks pardon, but when that is obtained, he is passive in the new birth.

If I should say I know nothing as to how infants who die in infancy and some heathen are regenerated, it would not break the force of my main contention. A doctrine plainly revealed should not be rejected, even if it is vitally connected with matters purtaining to our salvation, or the salvation of others of which we may know nothing. As I have written more than I at first intended, I will not further discuss the subject just now.

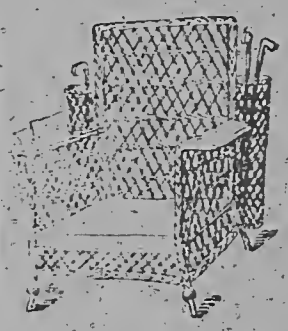
CORRECTION.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I notice that the last sentence in my communication on the contributions of our church at Wall Hill was so changed as to give it the appearance of a criticism of the Board of Missions of our Conference, also an indirect appeal to that Board for help. Neither was in my mind when I wrote, or expressed, in what I wrote. No doubt you was prompted by feelings of brotherly kindness when you made the change. Will you please publish this correction?



Yours truly,

J. M. HUGGINS.

THE HYMNS OF CHARLES WESLEY.

What simple strains are these, to live so long,
To move so many in so many lands,
When self-appointed arbiters of song
Are all effaced like scribblings in the sands.

In dens of London, choked with sin and shame,
The beggar and the burglar stop to hear,
And in the night, beneath the street lamp's flame,
The ruined woman feels a burning tear.

In mines of Cornwall, underneath the sea,
The grimy laborer hears their martial tread;
Their fervent call from coming wrath to flee
Above the ocean thunders overhead.

Amid Missouri forests, dark and lone,
And by Mississippi's turbid waves,
In nameless churchyards, bramble-overgrown,
Their converts fill a thousand thousand graves.

Among the rude huts of the pioneers
Those hymns awoke the wilderness at dark,
Above the cries of wild beasts, fraught with fears,
The panther's growling and the gray wolf's bark.

So I remember, when a barefoot boy,
I thrilled to hear thy wondrous trumpet call
To Zion and its days of deathless joy,
Its crystal river and its jasper wall.

And, led by Thee, I saw its clustered palms,
Its shining summits with their diamond skies,
A Beulah land, with everlasting calms
And lilies wet with dews of Paradise.

These hymns have raised the peasant from the sod,
Have made the rude, half-savage nature sweet,
Have reared a score of kingdoms unto God,
And laid a million hearts at Jesus' feet.

—WALTER MALONE, in the Independent.

GOOD ADVICE FOR BRIDES.

A country vicar in England was noted for his excellent fatherly advice to young couples he wedded. He had printed cards for advice, which he used to distribute, besides giving guidance verbally. One of the cards was for the man, and the other for the woman. That to the woman ran as follows:

"When you marry him, love him. After you marry him, study him. If he is honest, honor him. If he is generous, appreciate him. When he is sad, cheer him. When he is cross, amuse him. When he is talkative, listen to him. When he is quarrelsome, ignore him. If he is slothful, spur him. If he is noble, praise him. If he is confidential, encourage him. If he is jealous, coax him. If he cares naught for pleasure, amuse him. If he favors society, accompany him. If he does you a favor, thank him. When he deserves it, kiss him. Let him think how well you understand him, but never let him know that you 'manage' him."

GRANDPA'S PANTHER STORY.

"Grandpa, did you ever see a panther?" inquired little Ben Hardcastle, looking up from a show-bill which he had been examining.

The old man leaned back in his stout hickory chair, laid aside his newspaper and, taking off his spectacles, polished them with his red bandana.

"Why, yes, Ben; did you?"

"No, sir, but Billy Bruce says they are going to have a big one in the show at the Crossroads Saturday."

The old gentleman laid his hand on his newspaper, then reconsidered the matter.

"We did not have to go to shows to see them when I was a boy; these mountains were full of them."

"Oh, grandpa!" and Ben's face was aglow with the anticipation of a story.

"A panther gave me quite a lively chase once," continued grandpa. "It was just about your age, I suspect. How old are you? Twelve? I was just a little past that age, and about as fearless a lad as was to be found in this neighborhood. I could ride any horse that I could mount, and shoot father's flintrock rifle as well as he could. I had often been sent on errands to the courthouse, a distance of ten miles, and when one evening in June old 'Aunt Binny,' a negress owned by my father, was taken violently ill with 'cramps,' or, as she called it, 'the misery,' I did not think it anything out of the ordinary that I was sent posthaste for the doctor.

"It was about 3 o'clock when I left home, and though I knew it would be night before I could get back, I was not at all uneasy, for I had often been out at night, and the road was good; the moon almost full, and the weather mild. I was instructed to ride until I found the doctor, and to send him straight to our house; after that I was to purchase a quantity of gum camphor, and return. I was fortunate in regard to the doctor, for I met him before going a great distance. My mission was soon accomplished at the courthouse, and as it was getting dusky, I turned my face homeward. The way was very lonely, and led almost directly up the mountain for a mile, then down-hill through the timber; in many places the tall pines and sycamores met overhead, making almost impenetrable shadows, but I was perfectly familiar with the road, and 'Mag,' the big bay mare, was also a reliable. As I started down the mountain an owl hooted dismally, and though not given to superstitious fear, a feeling of I knew not what oppressed me. I was not afraid of wild animals, knowing full well that it was not the season of the year for wolves to be dangerous, and bears, though occasionally seen, were only a menace to young lambs.

"I was getting a little more cheerful and better accustomed to the shadows when there broke upon the still air a cry such as I had never heard before, and to my dying hour I will never forget it; the mare started, affrighted, I could scarcely hold her. It sounded as though a woman in distress was calling: 'Oh—oo—oo—oo—oo—!'

"With difficulty I restrained the animal, for she was wild with fear. Again sounded that piteous appeal; surely some one must be in trouble, and I answered the cry as nearly as I could. When it came again I answered; then there was a crashing in the treetops and an immense panther or cougar, sprang [illegible] Mag started forward, not a bit too soon, for [illegible] claws almost grazed her hindquarters.

"It was a race for life now, one and another, 'Mag' obeying her instinct and [illegible] ing the onslaught. I cannot tell [illegible] how far the creature followed us, but just as we reached the edge of the woods, with a baffled snarl it desisted, and I turned my saddle as we galloped into the clearing. There in the top of a gnarled old sycamore tree it was sharply outlined, a [illegible] four feet in length, its tawny sides quivering in the moonlight.

"'Did you kill it, grandpa?'

"'No, Ben, I did not, but my father did, and for many years its soft, furry skin graced as a rug in our house, but to tell the truth, I never admired its beauty, for I could never look at it without a shudder.'—Christian Observer.

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1906.

The aloe blooms but once in a hundred years; but all through the silent century its texture is in preparation and moves along the lines of development and maturity. None of us can tell for what God is educating us. We fret and murmur at the narrow round and daily task of ordinary life, not realizing that only thus can we be prepared for the high and holy duties that await us. Let us not grow weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.

God uses many and diverse methods to hide pride from man. When Gideon marshaled his army of two and thirty thousand soldiers to resist the invading host of the Midianites, the Lord said, "The people are too many." He knew how prone the Israelites were to vaunt themselves against Him, and that they would say "Mine own hand has saved me." So the number was reduced till only three hundred were left. Not quantity but quality counts in God's estimate of human forces.

It is said of Cromwell that when he had gathered some raw recruits, being much in doubt about their courage, he determined to put it to the test before employing them in active service. He therefore placed a number of soldiers in ambush, in a wood through which he had occasion to lead his new regiment, and when these rushed out suddenly upon the new levies all the timid among them turned and fled. These Cromwell sent to their homes as unfit for service, and so commenced the training of the men who became known to history as his "Ironsides." Without courage it is impossible to fight the good fight of faith, or to conquer the strongholds of spiritual wickedness.

By labor show your talent. This is the voice of God's providence to every soul that has dreamed of greatness, or of the possession of unfolded powers and abilities. Express what you are by what you do. A great actor has remarked that whatever is excellent in art must spring from labor and endurance. That sentiment may well be written on the shield of every aspiring youth. Greatness is from culture rather than from genius. It is absurd for any man to blame his tools for bad work. Shamgar used an oxgoad. Samson's offensive armor was the jaw-bone of an ass; while David slew the Philistine giant with a pebble from his sling. True genius displays itself in accomplishing grand results with imperfect instruments.

"THE SPIRIT OF COMMERCIALISM."

There is no doubt in the minds of those who think at all that we are in a very commercial age. Indeed, the spirit of commercialism is dominant, and there are but few who are not more or less affected by it. Life, with most people, is a scene of ceaseless racket, of the rushing crowd, of the struggle for gain and pleasure, with scarcely a sober thought above things that are wholly material.

We are borne along as on the bosom of a swollen stream, and about as helpless to steer our course, or make a landing, as the chip that is swept irresistibly on by the swirl of its angry waters. We hardly have the time to think whither we are going, or what the end will be. There are those, however, a few, who have not been caught by this angry flood of materialism that is sweeping in every direction, and, to such, a few things are apparent. Beyond all question, there can be no development of those qualities that go to make a true man. There is no time for it: and besides, for the man who is wholly engrossed with material things, there is no outlook for the soul towards those things that are "unseen and eternal." The material and the spiritual are so opposite, that what promotes the one tends to the hurt of the other. There ought not to be any antagonism here, for we have bodies that must be fed and clothed; and besides, many material blessings that are needful. If a man's aspirations are to culminate in the skies, he is also frequently reminded that they have an earthly footing. We are spirits that have bodies, and the true philosophy of life is to maintain a proper balance between the two, doing the things that pertain to this life: yet never forgetful of the interests of the life to come. The difficulty with most of us is, that we allow the temporal to overshadow the eternal, and so become earthly, sordid and selfish. To avoid this, a man needs to separate himself from his environment by sheer force, and spend a while each day in taking an inventory of his possessions, and find out how he stands related to the eternal, as well as his relation to the best things of time. In other words, he needs to cultivate a closer acquaintance with himself. Most men know more of business, politics and matters material than they know of themselves. Money in many places counts for more than manhood, and political policies for more than principles. The best, the highest things pertain to character, and character is the only thing we take with us when we go hence. Let busy men stop and think, and take time to be alone with themselves and with God, for only in this way can the power of the world be broken. They may leave behind them less of the things that perish, but they will take with them more of the imperishable and eternal.

ST. PAUL, THE PREACHER.

Wherever St. Paul went he won souls. At Lysta, Timothy; at Philippi, a company of women; at Athens, a member of the Areopagus; and at Antioch, Corinth, Ephesus and Rome, multitudes. Think, too, how his preaching transformed communities, corrected abuses, founded churches, and raised up leaders. Measured by results, St. Paul is the very prince of preachers.

We shall fail to get a correct idea of St. Paul's preaching, if we take his epistles (great as they are) as samples of his ordinary sermons. These epistles were called out by special needs of special churches at special itmes. It is a mistake to think of St. Paul as merely a theological controversialist. We must look to St. Luke's writings if we would see the preacher, before whom all nationalities bowed.

In the Book of Acts is recorded the "outlines" of quite a number of St. Paul's sermons. For instance, the one delivered at Antioch, where the Apostle recounts the historical preparation for Christ; the discourse at Athens, in which he argues the one living God; on the castle stairs of Jerusalem the sermon was entirely experimental, "a great testimony;" and, in the presence of Agrippa, Paul argues the resurrection from the power of Christ already shown to him.

A mere glance at these abbreviated sermons reveals the two predominant characteristics of St. Paul's preaching: First, he is a student of the word. In the pious home at Tarsus and later at the feet of Gamaliel how he must have been nourished in the rich inspirations of Hebrew literature and history. How he must have saturated himself with the Old Testament, for he quotes it at every turn, and as though it ran in his veins. G. Campbell Morgon says, "The livest preachers are those who are most familiar with the Bible without note or comment." The preaching that has stirred and fired the lazy, selfish masses, and uplifted populations out of degradation has always been the preaching of men who lived with the Word of God. Witness Luther, Knox and Wesley. Think how Moody reached the worst classes and forces of our great crime centers, with that well-worn Bible under his arm, which he had pondered and prayed over, until its truths were inwrought into the very fiber of his soul. Young brethren in the ministry, give yourselves to the steady, hard, lifelong effort to master the greatest Book in the world.

And, second, St. Paul is pre-eminently an experimental preacher. As he pleads before the rabbi and the rabble, the philosopher and the prince, the Jew and the Gentile, he always argues the truth of the Word with the tremendous conviction of personal experience. In the Epistle to the Romans his magnificent argument is sealed in the seventh and eighth chapters by his personal testimony to the power of the principle he has declared. The early Methodist itinerants (of whom the world was not worthy) told with such spiritual passion what God had done for them, that rude huts and wild wood thrilled with the rapturous echoes of the "great salvation." They knew "the secret of the Lord." They saw "the light that never was on sea or land." Their hearts burned and their faces shone, for "the joy of the Lord was their strength." There is nothing on earth that tells like a heartfelt experience. St. Paul "knew Him and the power of His resurrection." "It pleased God to reveal His Son in Him." St. Paul's Great Companion gave new splendors to every purpose of life and new heights to all the hopes in this world. Whenever he mentions the magic word, the divine name—"Jesus, blessed Jesus,"—language leaps from St. Paul's heart "like a river out of a cliff." No wonder under his preaching was "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power."

The General Conference.

At the end of nine days the General Conference is able to report progress. How many measures have been introduced looking to amendments, changes, additions and subtractions—all with a view to the improvement of the laws of the Church, and their efficiency, we are not able to tell. Of course, they are tabulated by the Secretaries, but the number has not been stated. Hardly a chapter in the Discipline has escaped the eye of the Church legislator. Somebody has found a defect somewhere, and this is the time to remedy it. The great majority of the proposed changes are never effected, and not a few receive scant consideration.

Resolutions and memorials have been introduced affecting every order in the ministry of our Church. Memorials asking the transfer of the licensing of preachers from the District to the Quarterly Conference came up. There was a strong sentiment in favor of the change, but debate on the question was cut off by a move for the "previous question," and the measure failed by a small majority.

From various sections of the Church came a request to allow unordained preachers in charge to administer all the sacraments. Other requests, more modest, asked only that they be allowed, while in charge of a work, to baptize and perform the rite of matrimony. This measure was finally passed, modified by allowing him to baptize in the "absence of an elder." This is a radical measure, and in some parts of the Church, if the preacher takes advantage of the authority, he will place himself in opposition to the law of the State. A move is on foot to remedy the evil by providing that suitable persons be ordained to the office of deacon when admitted on trial. That would be far better than the law just passed.

Memorials also came up asking that a Bishop be not allowed to transfer a preacher from one Conference to another without the consent of the Conference to which it is proposed to transfer him, and also not to allow a Bishop to make an appointment except in the presence of all the presiding elders present at the session of the Conference. These measures were argued as strongly as it was possible, but they failed. They involved a constitutional question, and had they passed the Bishops would have been compelled to veto them. But for the third restrictive rule (Rule 3, page 22, of the Discipline of 1902), it is possible the propositions would have received a larger vote. It will take a long time to make our people generally see the necessity of this hampering our General Superintendents, and they will never see it so long as our Bishops exercise the transfer power judiciously, and take counsel with the brethren in making appointments.

Questions affecting the "time limit" of the pastorate have not yet come before the Conference for discussion. They have been threshed out in the Committee on Itineracy, and reported. They will be up in due time. The Committee reported adversely to the removal of the time limit, but recommend that the pastoral term be extended to six years. It is possible that this recommendation may pass, but the proposition to abolish the "time limit" will be overwhelmingly defeated. The lay element is against it.

The Committee on Episcopacy, in the report to the Conference, recommend the election of three Bishops. The laymen sent in a petition to the Committee, asking for four or five. The Conference will settle the question, and, as all the members of the College of Bishops will be retained on the effective list, it is possible that not more than two will be elected. Certainly the Conference will not elect more than three. There was some talk of electing a missionary Bishop, but there was no memorial or petition to that effect, and the Committee's report said nothing about it.

A widely-extended call came from Texas for the establishment of a tract society. The Conference sympathized with the call, but could not, or did not, see the way clear for the establishment of a society, but authorized, under the direction of the Board of Missions, the inauguration of a system for the supply of tracts. To carry out the purpose, a committee styled "A Board of Managers of Tract and of Evangelistic Literature" was ordered, and the sum of $10,000, styled "the Tract Fund," was authorized, half of which is to be applied to the development of a literature suitable for distribution, upon the selection and approval of the Board of Managers; the other half to be held as a permanent fund to be added to by donations, bequests, etc.

During the past week we have had the pleasure of hearing several interesting talks from visiting strangers. The first was by a colored man, who has spent fifteen years as a missionary in Africa. He detailed at length his experience in the Dark Continent. His talk was at times thrilling and pathetic, at times amusing, always interesting. Another talk was by Rev. Dr. W. J. Sparling, fraternal messenger from what was until recently the Methodist Church of Canada. That Church was merged some time ago with two or three others in the Dominion. The united body, if we have been correctly informed, has not yet been named. Dr. Sparling is a well-fed, good-humored and sensible Canadian. He brought a cheering message from his cold country. It was warmly received by the vast concourse of people who heard it.

On Friday evening the fraternal delegate from our mother Church, the Wesleyan Methodist of England, was heard. He delivered a great speech. The messenger, Rev. Dinsdale T. Young, is of commanding appearance, tall and well-proportioned, not handsome, but clean-shaven and fine-looking. He is far above ordinary, looks deep into things and expresses himself in choice language. He is scholarly, and, judging by his deliverances in regard to the doctrinal teachings of Wesleyan Methodism, is not the least tainted by higher criticism. He is thoroughly evangelical, as clearly shown by his masterly sermon on Sunday morning on the "Primacy of Jesus Christ." We seldom hear better preaching than he gave us. Other fraternal delegates are yet to be heard—Dr. Matthews and Vice President Fairbanks, of the M. E. Church.

The most exciting debate of the Conference occurred on Friday and Saturday over a proposition, brought forward by Dr. W. F. Tillett and Dr. W. R. Lambuth, to restate our twenty-five Articles of Religion. The proposition came upon the Conference suddenly and without warning. It was like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. It was not only surprising, but had the effect of a shock of electricity. It was grievous, as well as amazing, to a large number of the brethren. It was hailed with delight by many more. The matter was argued at length by Dr. Tillett, the Conference according him all the time he needed. Other speeches, pro and con, followed. The session closed on Saturday without reaching a vote. On Friday, by formal invitation, Bishop Wilson addressed the Conference on the subject. He was not expecting to be called on, and, of course, had no prepared speech to make. But he was not unprepared. A life of training, and a life of consecration to Methodism, her doctrines and polity, prepared him to meet any emergency, and such a speech no General Conference of modern times has ever heard. He seemed to be inspired for the occasion. It was a dramatic scene, such as Methodists, perhaps, will never again witness. Other Bishops were called out, but only Bishop Hendrix spoke at length. We are sorry to record the fact that he placed himself in opposition to Bishop Wilson.

TEXT OF THE RESOLUTION.

"While reaffirming our absolute faith in our Twenty-five Articles of Religion, we do not believe that in their present form they meet the existing needs of the Church as a statement of the doctrinal system of Evangelical Methodist Arminianism. Believing that the different branches of world-wide Methodism that are represented in the Ecumenical Methodist Conference can and should unite in the preparation of such a statement of our common faith as is needed, and believing that this General Conference should take such steps as may be necessary to secure in the early future the co-operation of other representative Methodist Churches in the preparation of a new statement of our faith, we therefore offer the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the College of Bishops be requested to appoint a commission of five members, one of whom shall invite other branches of Methodism to unite with us in the preparation of such a statement of our faith, and such an expression of our doctrinal system as is called for in our day; and this commission shall represent our Church in the preparation of the same."

THE VOTE FOR REVISION.

The vote on the proposition to appoint a commission to consider the expediency of revising our Articles of Religion was reached on Monday morning, about 11 o'clock. The two orders, clerical and lay, voted separately, and the vote was taken by yeas and nays. The clerical vote stood: For commission 83, and against 56. The lay vote was 68 for and 51 against.

It should be understood that this does not necessarily mean that our Articles of Religion will be revised; and it should also be understood that should the Commission agree on revision, it will require a three-fourths majority of all the members of the Annual Conferences, and a two-thirds majority of a succeeding General Conference to effect it. So, should the result be finally for revision, it is a long ways in the future.

The thing, however, we have no doubt is a strike at the foundations of our faith. We seriously doubt the soundness of the faith of the prime mover in the matter.

MRS. HARRIET NEWEL GIBSON.

Died at her late residence, Summit, Miss., March 15, 1906, MRS. HARRIET NEWEL GIBSON (nee Bonney), aged 83 years, 9 months and 15 days. Sister Gibson was the only daughter of Peres and Nancy Bonney, late of Holmesville, Miss. Sister Gibson was born in Portland, Maine, and when six years of age came with her parents to Mississippi and settled in Holmesville. I was intimately acquainted with her parents, served as their pastor five years, and, if I mistake not, officiated at their funeral when they passed away. I have known Sister Gibson since my young manhood days. Truly one of the most remarkable women, in many respects, it has been my pleasure to meet, was this dear departed "mother in Israel." Thoroughly interested in her fellow-creatures, and having a heart that beat in sympathy with all mankind, she was beloved by all who came in touch with her—the old, the young, the rich and poor of whatever clime or race. Hers was above all else a beautiful Christian character, and she influenced for good nearly every life that came in contact with her. She had a child-like faith in God, and it was her custom to leave all matters pertaining to her affairs in His hands. Hers was a singularly pure and Christian life, she having full and abiding faith in the precious promises of her Saviour, never wronging, by word or deed, a living soul, and when the end came, it was as calm as her life had been. It was noted of her that under no circumstances could she be prevailed upon to utter an unkind word, or to reproach anyone; but generous of kindness, benevolence and charity were part of her daily life, and in consequence of such rare attributes she claimed as a warm friend every one who came within the radius of her genial and benign influence. She was a life-long, zealous member of the M. E. Church, South. She loved her church, she loved her pastor, she was helpful to her pastor. Many times have I, when her pastor, gone to her humble, consecrated home, with a sad heart, because of the languishing state of Zion, just to have a good, old-time religious talk with Aunt Harriet. She truly enjoyed talking of Jesus and his love. It was to me an inspiration to visit her home and pray with the family. Thank God for such godly women! How I wish we had more of them. But she is gone—yes, she is gone from earth's sorrows, troubles, toils and sufferings. She was married 60 years ago to Major Gibson, who passed from earth many years ago. Nine children were born to them—two of them preceded her to the grave, five daughters and two sons surviving. May her many prayers in their behalf be abundantly answered in the salvation of all her children. Her pastor, Rev. L. Carley, assisted by Revs. I. A. Anding, of the Baptist Church, and H. H. Messenger, of the Episcopal Church, paid touching and tender tributes to the saintly character of the deceased. The funeral was a large and imposing one. All the stores in town were closed in honor of the revered memory of the deceased. "Her children rise up and call her blessed." "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." H. P. LEWIS.

Vicksburg, Miss.

ETHELBERT BARKSDALE JOHNSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Johnson, was born in Hinds County, near Jackson, Miss., Aug. 1, 1878. At 9 years of age he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, confessing Christ with boyish diffidence, but openly and with full assurance of faith. Later he became a student at Millsaps College, and then at Tulane University, from which he was graduated in pharmacy with high honor. Engaging in his chosen work at Jackson, Miss., he was at once recognized as a man of unusual ability and faithfulness in the business world, and of irreproachable character as a gentleman and a Christian. On April 19, 1906, after a short illness, he died in great peace. Ethelbert Johnson was an unusually fine character. Quiet, unobtrusive and modest, with none of the craving for notice and applause which belongs to the self-centered type of man, he was nevertheless a man of great force and energy, and absolutely faithful in all relations in life. He was obedient and affectionate as a son, tender and loving as a brother, true and unselfish as a friend, high-toned and honorable as a business man, clean and consistent and earnest as a Christian. No nobler young man could be found in Jackson; none of more stainless life or higher standard. A deep sense of serious loss was felt when he was called from us. Such young men are of more worth to a city than any merely material resources or development. The community is sensibly poorer when such pass away.

WM. H. LaPRADE.

Mrs. TELULAH E. DOBBS was born near Summerfield, Ala., June 1, 1852, and died at the Methodist parsonage in Coldwater, Miss., March 19, 1906. She was the youngest daughter of the late Col. R. A. Baker, for some years a well known commission merchant of Mobile, Ala., and a prominent layman of the M. E. Church, South. His home was one of generous Christian hospitality. Summerfield was a center of education for Methodism, and a community of delightful religious atmosphere. Amid such favorable surroundings, Mrs. Dobbs passed the years of childhood and early became a member of the Methodist Church. In later years she joined the Presbyterian Church. At the age of eighteen, she was happily married to Mr. Richard Dobbs, of Mobile, Ala., a devout Christian, a member of the Baptist Church, and a successful business man. He died leaving his family in good circumstances. Mrs. Dobbs was of attractive person; most amiable disposition, and possessed of much strength of character. Reverses following her husbands death, she addressed herself courageously to the task of maintaining herself and bringing up and educating her two boys, Robert E. and Richard. Last fall, her home at that time being at Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, she was assailed by a serious malady, requiring surgical treatment. After a second surgical operation in a Chicago hospital, as soon as she could travel, she came to us at Coldwater, Miss. For several years she had earnestly desired to visit her two only living sisters, the wife of this writer and Mrs. M. A. Reynolds, a sister-in-law. Her letters during this time had breathed the sentiment of sweet and tender affection, and of a beautiful Christian spirit. She longed for the touch and sympathy of kindred hearts, and for religious association and comfort. The sisters now met for the first time after many long years, and the dear invalid one was like a child, after a long absence coming into an atmosphere of rest and home. Specially did she enjoy our family worship; wishing it held near her bedside or in her room. For a time, we were hopeful of her improvement, but unfavorable symptoms appeared after several days. She grew rapidly worse toward the last and died after having been with us something over three weeks. Her two sons from Chicago, and a near relative, Mrs. Mallett, from Shreveport, La., came in time to look on the face of the loved one before she was laid to rest. The funeral service, conducted by Rev. J. T. Murrah, of Senatobia, marked a coincidence of touching pathos. While but a lad himself Bro. Murrah had lived a neighbor in their girlhood to both Mrs. Dobbs and Mrs. Mallett, near Summerfield, Ala.

T. C. WIER.

Little ETHEL IRENE MORK was born July 1, 1898, and departed this life, Dec. 26, 1905. A sweeter, brighter and more lovable child I have never met. How feeble are words to carry consolation to hearts bereaved of a beloved daughter? A tender clinging vine, interwoven in sweet memories from the hour the angel first gave her to your home; a gentle spirit of light that flitted in and out like a gleam of sunshine. No one can fill her place in the home, no one will take her place in your hearts. And you would not have the void filled, even if you could. It will be a sacred though in the years to come to parents and friends that she shed radiance in the home as long as she did. It will be a blessed recollection that she grew up to love and to be loved by those who will ever so tenderly cherish her sweet and pure memory. Sweetly rest until Jesus shall come to gather up his jewels. Unto Him who doeth all things well we humbly bow in meek submission, looking forward to a glorious reunion in the "sweet by and by."

TYLERTOWN CIRCUIT.

Dear Dr. Boswell: At the last Conference, which met at Gloster, I was appointed to Tylertown Circuit, and by the fourth Sunday in December I was at my post.

I found that there were five churches on the work, somewhat scattered. My presiding elder has since relieved me from one of them, so that now I have only four. The parsonage is located at Tylertown. A railroad having been recently completed to this place, it is building up very rapidly, and it promises to be a good town in the near future. I am trying to build up the cause of Christ and the interest of the M. E. Church, South, along with other things. We have a good church here with about sixty members, of which we are very proud. Our members compare favorably with the best I know of anywhere. We have a good Sunday school, and we have recently organized an Epworth League with all its departments, which cannot but be a great force for good in our church. Our young people are anxious to help their pastor in all his work. We are praying for a good revival here this year.

At China Grove we have a good old church, which was built in 1861-66. Here our membership is large and scattered. We are using every means to rally our forces here and to make this grand old church the mighty agency it was in former years in the salvation of souls.

Water Holes is perhaps one of the oldest churches in the Conference. Its organization dates away back. The building, however, is comparatively new, and does not stand where the old one did. Our membership is small there, but faithful. We are confidently expecting a gracious revival there, which, indeed, has begun already. Three fine young people have been received on profession of faith.

Summer Chapel is a new church, which is a good representative of what a very few persons can do who love Christ and his work. We have in all about fifteen members, who built a house at a cost of $1,000, and who pay this pastor $120.

Our congregations are good at every point on the work, and increasing all the time. We are getting along well with our Conference collections. God is blessing us greatly, for which we give him praise. Your brother in Christ,

J. E. WILLIAMS.

Tylertown, Miss.

HAZLEHURST.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I am glad to report progress in our work at Hazlehurst. Not only was our reception here cordial, but we have received the most open-hearted kindness from these people every day of our stay. We feel safe in saying that no parsonage in our Conference has to its credit the receipt of more thoughtful attentions than ours. Our church has during the past few months received several much-needed improvements, which have added greatly to its comfort and beauty. We found them on our arrival using for the first few times a new furnace, which had been put in at a cost of $400 during the closing days of the old conference year. One month ago we expended another $300 on a handsome church organ and chair furniture, and before this letter is published we shall have placed an order for a handsome carpet, which is to cost $400. At our first Quarterly Conference we recorded our Bishops' assessment paid in full, and are now ready to make a like report for the assessment for Conference claimants, with a fair percentage for missions in hand. Our Board of Stewards have made ample provision for pastor's salary, and are working a systematic method for collecting it. We have no reason to doubt full payments along all lines.

Our Sunday school has steadily improved, and has been our greatest source of rejoicing. Our superintendent is very faithful, and our teachers efficient and earnest. Our weekly teachers' meetings have been occasions of interest and profit. We are making preparation now for a delightful Children's Day.

Our congregations have been good, although we have many people who need to move up along this line.

I have never been any place where more young folks attend church than here.

Bro. Geo. H. Thompson, of Brookhaven, came to us on Monday, the 22d ult., and preached for us twice per day for ten days. We have very few stronger preachers anywhere than he. His services made a deep impression on the town generally. Many hearts were rededicated to God and our church greatly revived. Twelve young men and young women gave their hearts to Christ and were received into the church on profession of their faith. A number of others will follow. Up to this date we have received forty into the Church by profession and certificate. We have many causes to rejoice, but we do rejoice most of all that the Gospel is now "the power of God unto salvation."

Some months ago burglars entered the parsonage during the night two nights in succession, they were after the presiding Elder, who was spending the night with us), and managed to secure my watch and chain. Before I had time to realize the loss a member of our church here called on us, and, for my friends, presented me with a very handsome gold watch and beautiful fob. These shall go with me through life, the reminders of this generous people. Yours cordially,

H. B. WATKINS.

RINGGOLD, LA.

Dear Brother Boswell: We are moving on nicely. The outlook for the Wesley Circuit is improving. Congregations are large and attentive. I expect a revival at each church and full collections on all claims. Our members are taking the Advocate, and I hope to secure as many as thirty subscribers.

Sincerely,

THOS. J. MARTIN, SR.

Ringgold, La.

SULPHUR, LA.

Dear Doctor: We began a meeting at Vinton, La., on April 2, which lasted ten days. We were assisted by Rev. S. L. Riggs, of De Ridder, La. Its influence was felt throughout the town. Our beautiful church was crowded; on Sunday we had to use the Sunday school room for additional space to accommodate the people. Had an old-fashioned altar service, which was frequently crowded with penitents. After a season of deep conviction and agonizing prayer for pardon, shouts of praise and testimonies of new-born souls were of daily occurrence. Six family altars were already in existence, and seven more were erected. Eight or ten professed conversion, and fifteen were received into the church. A number of Christian Advocates were taken.

On the 1st inst. we began a meeting at Sulphur, assisted by Rev. J. E. Denson, of New Iberia, La. We continued for ten days a most excellent meeting; a number were at the altar for prayers, four children baptized and the church was greatly revived. Eighteen united with the church, among whom were some of the choice spirits of the town. Respectfully,

J. J. KELLY, P. C.

A SCIENTIST'S OPINION OF PRAYER.

A naturalist should be the last man in the world to object to the efficacy of prayer, since prayer is itself one of the most potent of natural forces. The cry of the young raven brings its food from afar without any exertion on its part, for that cry has power to move the emotions and the muscles of the parent bird, and to overcome her own selfish appetite. The bleat of the lamb not only brings its dam to its side, but causes the secretion of milk in her udder. The cry of distress nerves men to all exertions, and to brave all dangers, and to struggle against all or any of the laws of nature that may be causing suffering or death.

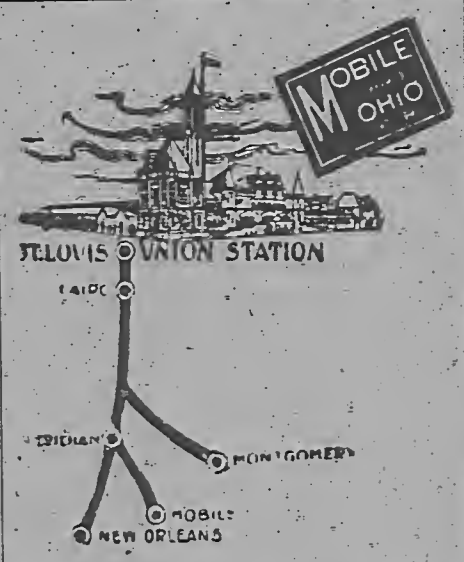
Nor in the case of prayer are the objects obtained at all mechanically commensurate with the activities set in motion. We have all seen how the prayer of a few captives wrongfuly held in endurance by some barbarous potentate may move mighty nations, and cause them to pour out millions of their treasure to send men and material of war over land and sea; to sacrifice hundreds of lives in order that a just and proper prayer may be answered. In such a case, we see how the higher may override the lower, and may cause even frightful suffering and loss of life in order that a moral or a spiritual end may be gained. Are we to suppose then that the only Being in the universe who cannot answer prayer is that One who alone has all power at His command? The weak theology which professes to believe that prayer has merely a subjective benefit is infinitely less scientific than the action of a child who confidently appeals to a Father in heaven.—The Late Sir James Dawson.

IF THOSE WHO SUFFER WITH

FITS

Will write to me I will tell them how they can be cured of this terrible disease.

I will send the names of hundreds who have been cured, and a booklet describing the disease and how it is cured.



I have devoted 50 years to treating Epilepsy, and there are few cases that my treatment will not cure. If you are a sufferer, or know of one, write me at once. My advice and book is free.

REVIVAL AT MERIDIAN COLLEGE.

For many weeks our Christian workers have been praying for a revival in our College and community more far-reaching than anything we have ever had, and God has heard and answered our prayers. Our pastor, Brother Gladney, has been preaching some deep, logical, heart-searching sermons all the session, and the President and Faculty have been doing deep teaching, and the Christian workers and class leaders have been doing personal work; so the ground was well prepared and much good seed already sown. When Rev. Joseph Smith, of Redlands, Cal., came to us he found things ripe for a good meeting. He was not very well physically, and was in great anxiety of mind about his son in San Francisco, whom he had not heard from since the great disaster. While he could not stay with us but one week, yet during that time nearly two hundred souls were converted, reclaimed or swept into Canaan. The work was deep, and, I believe, will abide. The preaching was not sensational, did not appeal to the emotions, was quiet, logical, clear, heart-searching, with unction and in the spirit. Brother Smith is a fine teacher of the Word. His style is clear, convincing, deep, yet simple enough for a child to understand. We write this one week after the meeting closed, and the revival spirit still abides. A public prayer meeting is held by the students in each College every morning before breakfast. Groups of students hold prayer meetings at noon and at night. Among the converts were several Cuban girls, who went immediately to work to bring their schoolmates to Christ. We are praying that they may carry the Gospel home to their countrymen, who are hungering for the true Gospel.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Beginning with evening service and the sacrament of the Lord's supper, Tuesday, July 3, the District Conference will hold through the three days succeeding.

If practicable, the Bishop assigned to our Annual Conference will preside. Rev. M. B. Sharbrough will preach the first sermon.

Wednesday will be given to the work of a Preachers' Institute, requiring for its success primarily the attendance of all the pastors. As some of the lay delegation may not be subscribers to the Advocate, the pastors will kindly and repeatedly stimulate these brethren to secure representation from each charge. This is important, we will have a discussion to involve the four years' administration, closing with 1906.

We will make the record of this Conference as full as we can, and every pastor will be called to furnish full statistics of his work.

Following are the committees:

Admission—T. B. Hollomon, W. T. Griffin, W. J. Ferguson. Orders—J. T. Leggett, I. L. Peebles, J. W. Campbell.

Station pastors please arrange to remain over Sunday. Greenville will be a good host.

REVIVAL AT NEW ALBANY, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have just closed a very helpful revival at New Albany. The Rev. W. L. Graves, of Houston Station, preached for us for nine days. My people were very much pleased and edified with his preaching. Backsliders were reclaimed and sinners converted. We have had sixty-nine additions to our charge this year up to date by letter and on profession of faith. The Lord has done great things for us, whereof we are glad. We mourn the death of J. H. Armstrong and H. V. Sneed. The outlook is hopeful.

Summer This Summer
IN COLORADO
Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. Time was when a visit to the "top of the Continent" was a great luxury, as high in price as in altitude, but not so to-day.
You can spend the Summer or a part of the Summer in Colorado and live as reasonably as you do at home, and the quick service and low tourist and excursion rates afforded via Rock Island lines bring the Rockies within your easy reach.

TWO GREAT REVIVALS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The first Sunday in April I began a revival with Brother J. H. Bass and his people at Charleston, Miss., and continued two weeks. The merchants of the town closed their places of business and attended the services. Prof. Wallace, the principal of the school of that town, notwithstanding a member of the Baptist Church, contributed much to the success of the meeting by marching his school to church every day. The meeting was in every way a success—said by the people to be the best they have had there in many years. There were many conversions, 27 additions to our church and several to the other churches. All denominations worked together in the unity of the Spirit. Next we began at Oakland, a prosperous little town on the I. C. Railroad, which is part of the Charleston charge. They had not had a revival there in so long that the greater part of the Church had gotten away from duty and into sin. The pastor and I continued the hard fight for twelve days. Brother Nunn, the pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of that place, and his people fell into line with us. The revival was truly union in spirit and results.

Prof. W. D. Gooch, a good Baptist brother, the Principal of a fine school there, helped the meeting greatly by bringing his school to the revival daily. He did faithful work in the meeting, and is loved by the people as their teacher.

Both pastors and their people were very much pleased over the results of the revival. Church members gave up card clubs and dancing. There were thirty-two additions to the Methodist and the Cumberland Presbyterian Churches on profession of faith. One of the best services of the meeting to my heart was on the last Sunday, when Brother J. H. Bass baptized five infants.

Senator James Moore, whose home is at Oakland—a man of intelligence and a devout Methodist—accompanied me to the depot as I left, and said: "It is the best meeting that has been held in Oakland since the war, except one, about twenty-five years ago."

It has never been my pleasure to help a pastor more universally loved among his people than J. H. Bass. The common talk among the people is that they are going to have him another year.

I thank God for success in the great revival work. Have not had but one or two failures in ten or twelve years. I prefer hard fields, where help is most needed. In such places I get closer to God, and realize greater power, and have better meetings. This has always been my desire. I remember—when I was a pastor—to have asked my presiding elder to give me a work full of sinners, where there was plenty to do. He did so. I had great times and got a good support. So I contend that if a preacher will do his duty, the people will take care of him.

May the Lord make this a great year in the salvation of the people and the upbuilding of the Church.

Truly, W. D. BASS.

Corinth, Miss.

REVIVAL AT JONESBORO.

Dear Doctor: I have just returned from Jonesboro, La., where I spent one week with Rev. S. D. Howard in a revival meeting that was considered by all who attended first-class for the short time that we spent in the meeting. There were six accessions at the last service.

Brother Howard has done a fine work on the Jonesboro charge, and has the favor of his own people and of other denominations.

The Preachers' Institute for this district was held here from the 17th to the 19th of April, and was one of the most successful that I have ever attended.

On account of sickness quite a number of the preachers of the district did not attend, but those who did seemed to enjoy themselves, and were a great blessing to my people. The institute was a great success. Our presiding elder, though a young man, is a general, and knows how to march his boys in to battle and to hold them to the contest with unflinching confidence and purpose.

We do not want any more horse-swapping in this district just now. Brothers Warlick, Randall and Wynn did some choice preaching. Brother Bowman, from Homer, gave us a fine sermon at the close. We had some old-time shouting during the meeting. There has been no legislation here against such as yet.

We are nearly as badly worried over giving up Brother Warlick as I was in moving my hog and potatoes.

If any of the Louisiana preachers get to a point in their revival meetings where they are puzzled and do not know what to do, they should write to Brother Bloss Williams. Before I close, let me express my gratitude to Brothers Lay and Hively for coming a day in advance and pailing in my front yard.

Doctor, I am growing in grace and trying to get ready for another hay-ride next Conference.

G. D. ANDERS.

GLENMORA, LA.

Dear Doctor: I will write a few lines to the dear old Advocate, as I have not written anything since entering upon this (my new) work.

We received a very warm welcome from the dear people of Glenmora charge. The larder was well provisioned, and everything put in readiness to welcome us at the parsonage. Since Conference I have been busy trying to locate the boundaries of my field of itinerancy, and have at last ascertained somewhat the area, which is very extensive. However, the field occupied is not new, as it embraces the "old Dry Creek" work. Of course, others have gone before—thank God! Well, we are trying to spread out and cover the ground.

Our presiding elder has made his first and second quarterly rounds. The first held at this place was very good; a liberal assessment was made by the stewards for the pastor in charge. Our second meeting, held at Melder on the fourth Saturday and Sunday of April, was indeed a most glorious time. Dr. Sawyer preached four most excellent sermons. It was surely a "red-letter" day at Melder. At the closing service Sunday night, there were penitents at the altar, and the power of God was manifest. These services were, indeed, a feast of good things and a spiritual up-lift to many. The quarterly visits of our "beloved" are looked forward to with much delight and satisfaction.

We are meeting with some degree of success on this (I started to say hard work, but no work is hard if God helps us) work, for which I thank the Lord and take courage.

Large congregations have greeted us at each appointment, who are anxious to hear the Word. The field is surely "white unto harvest."

The Spring Creek Church has been ceiled. At this place we have recently organized a splendid Sunday school, with Brother Louis Havens as superintendent. The other schools are doing fairly well.

We are praying and expecting a genuine revival all over our work this year. Pray for us, brethren.

Fraternally,

A. R. HOFFPAUIR.

Sunday School

FOR SUNDAY MAY 27.

FEEDING THE FIVE THOUSAND.

Golden Text: "My Father giveth you the true bread from heaven." (John vi, 32.)

It is difficult for us to have in mind that He who is the source of all strength, and to whom the weary and heavy-laden are bid to come, should Himself be tired and weary.

The twelve apostles had been with Jesus, learning from Him and perfecting themselves for the duties of the future, and after two years of this schooling it seems that He had sent them in pairs out over the country on a trial trip. Our lesson begins with an account of their return, and they had been telling Jesus how they had used the power given them over unclean spirits, and how they had cast out devils, and, more than all else, how they preached as they only could, after having been taught hy the Lord himself.

This report from all the twelve must have taken some time, and they were all weary and must have longed for a sweet, old-time conference with the Master. Jesus knew all this, and said to them: "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest awhile"—and, describing further, the verse continues, "for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat." So the Lord and the twelve tried to secretly enter a ship to get away for awhile, hut they were seen hy some, and they must have told it, so that many ran along the shore, keeping in sight of the ship; as they followed, many joined them in the chase, and it seems that the Lord concluded it was useless to seek retirement at that time, and landed where a great multitude had run afoot out of all the cities. There were 5,000 men (one writer says that there were many men, besides women and children). When Jesus came out and saw the great number of people, and how eager they seemed to be near Him and to hear Him speak of His wonderful way of life, He was moved with compassion towards them, for they seemed to Him as sheep having no shepherd. And He began to teach them many things, among which, no douht, was that He had come as a shepherd to lead them and to feed them with the bread that came down from Heaven. He was soon to show them his power in feeding them, satisfying bodily hunger.

The sun was low down in the sky, and night was fast coming on, when the discourse ended and the disciples came to Him and asked Him to break up the meeting and let the people disperse, so they could separately procure food, because they were in a wild, desert place, and some distance from any inhahited neighhorhood. Jesus told them they could give the people something to eat, and they need not go away in search of it. The Shepherd intended to feed His sheep—they were to have a practical lesson as to how the Lord provides when man can see no way of providing. The disciples were astonished, and told Him that it would take a much larger quantity of food to satisfy the great multitude than they had at their command—only five loaves and a few little fishes.

Jesus gave direction that the multitude should be seated in companies of hundreds and fifties, in preparation for a great feast. He then allowed his disciples to share in the performing of one of the most wonderful miracles recorded in the Scriptures. He took the five loaves and two fishes, and, looking up to heaven, blessed them and hrake them, and gave to His disciples to set before the people, and they did all eat and were filled. At what time the quantity of food was multiplied over and over again, we do not know; but we do know that our Lord provided in the face of a seeming impossibility, and we also know in our own experience that just as strange things have been done for us in answer to our earnest prayers. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." (1 Cor., ii, 9-10.)

"Come ye yourselves apart, and rest awhile." How sweet the words, and how sweet they come to us when weary and tired of life's continued battle, and we long for quiet and peace, when we can commune with our blessed Lord—

"I love to steal a while away
From every cumbering care,
And spend the hours of closing day
In humble, grateful prayer."

What a privilege in having a close intimacy with the Master! There are things and matters hetween us each, individually, and our Lord that only we know about. Who knows how I love my Lord, hut my Lord and me? Who knows of the many things that I have to tell my Lord about, but my Lord any me. Enter into thy closet, and don't forget to close the door—hecause you must be shut in, and many distracting things shut out. That quiet room at home is the place where you must go, yourselves apart, and there the Lord will he waiting for you. Our Lord is ever the same—"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever,"—and he feeds us now as he fed the five thousand then, for do we not all pray, "Give us this day our daily hread?" and do we not also receive the living bread that came down from heaven?

If we are not led by Jesus, we indeed belong to that flock that is scattered, having no shepherd. "The Lord is my Shepherd," and "He knows His sheep hy name."

"Now, the God of Peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the Everlasting Covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever and ever." Amen.

CHARLESTON, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have just closed another great meeting on this charge, making the second one this year. Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, began with me at Charleston on the first Sunday in April, and we closed out at Oakland on the firth Sunday with forty-one added to our church and about twenty-five or thirty to the other churches. The preaching was of a high type, and well received by the people. Some of the people at Oakland said that it was the best meeting they had had in twenty-five years.

This charge is in a firm condition now in every sense of the word. The Sunday school work is doing well, and our people are now ready for good work and consecrated living. We are out of debt, having paid off the old parsonage debt this year, and the members have all put on new life. When spirituality runs low in the church, and the members get cold and indifferent, the best thing to do is to get some good man to help us hold a good revival, and it will put things in order quicker than anything we can do.

Of course, the pastor may hold his own meetings, but I have found it best in most cases to get help when I can get the right kind, and I notice our leading congregations always have help in their revival services.

A good meeting will always pay its own way and leave the pastor in a much better shape to do his work. The stewards feel more like work and the members are more willing to pay their dues when they see that the church is doing them good. Missionary money is easier to collect, and everything works in harmony when the people are religious.

Let's have revivals in all our churches.

Inclosed, I send you twenty new subscribers. Pray for us.

DURANT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The eleventh session of the Durant District Conference convened at Belzoni, Miss., May 8, and although Belzoni is the most inaccessible point of the district, still there was in attendance 12 preachers and 8 lay delegates. We had as visitors, Bro. J. W. Raper, of the Greenville District; Bro. L. W. Cain, of the Winona District; Bro. J. M. Alford, of the Mississippi Conference, and Pres. Clifton, of Grenada College. It was delightful and pleasing to look into the faces of these brethren, and to have them join us in our deliberations.

Our first sermon was preached by Bro. W. N. Duncan, of Pickens, Miss. He used as his text, Isaiah vi, 1-8. This was a thoughtful and earnest sermon, with which all were well pleased. At 8 o'clock p. m. of the same day Bro. W. B. Pinson preached a very Scriptural sermon on the sinless life. This, too, was good.

Thinking our General Conference was already over-burdened with memorials, resolutions, etc., our District Conference had pity on that body and did not send them either memorials or resolutions.

At 11 a. m. of the second day, Bro. J. W. Raper preached a very helpful sermon from Rom. vi, 22, and at 8 p. m. this scribe presented missions to an indulgent audience, all of whom stayed awake during the sermon. As a further evidence of the indulgence of that audience, they listened to Bro. Raper for about 30 minutes more while he presented to them the interest of the Superannuate Endowment Fund. They gave to this fund about $250. But, even yet, this audience could not go. Bro. Clifton was next introduced to this smiling and kind-hearted people. He, too, received a cheerful hearing while he pointedly, practically, and wisely talked to them about the necessity of educating our girls. No, he did not take a collection, but he made threats looking to that end, and the people actually "smiled again."

Much enthusiasm was manifested in the discussion of those questions considered by the Conference. Everyone seemed to get pleasure, and we hope profit, out of these discussions.

The names of the following local preachers were called and their characters passed: D. N. Foose, W. M. Commander, J. W. Hall, W. D. Hull, W. D. Bass, C. J. Clark, and A. T. Buck.

The names of the following were called, their characters passed, and license renewed: W. R. Colton, J. R. Bright, S. B. Mayers, and S. R. Hinderson.

W. N. Duncan was recommended to the Annual Conference for Local Elder's Orders, and S. B. Myers was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The following were elected as delegates to the North Mississippi Annual Conference, to convene at Corinth, Miss., in December: P. Williams, T. A. Howell, W. H. Smith and W. N. Duncan. Bros. J. B. Streater and J. F. Wilburn were elected as alternates.

The District Conference unanimously passed the following resolution:

"In consideration of the kind hospitality of the good people of Belzoni in their entertainment of the District Conference, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the members of this Conference, do hereby extend to them our heartfelt thanks for their kindness, and we pray God's richest Spiritual, as well as temporal blessings upon them."

The next District Conference will meet at Ackerman.

J. T. LEWIS, Sec.

(The following reports are published by request of the Durant District Conference)

Your Committee on Temperance beg leave to submit to you the following report:

We have no hesitation in saying that Temperance as used in the literature of the Church means Prohibition. This word Prohibition is the word which expresses the view and law of the Church on the drink habit and the whisky business: so that an anti-prohibition member in our Church is out of harmony and out of order. We say frankly and with all emphasis that no one should allow himself to be a member of the Church of Christ who favors the drink habit or saloon. We do not see how any sincere mind can contemplate the desolating destruction wrought by the whisky demon, not only in the loss of property, but more in the blasting of families and the wreck of souls, without a shock of horror at the awful sight that will make him an eternal enemy to the whole whisky business.

We regret that the Legislature recently in session in Jackson, Miss., could not find itself able to devise a consistent law for the destruction of the C. O. D. traffic in whisky. But we rejoice to know through the public press, that the Express authorities in the United States have ordered their agents not to receive for shipment into prohitition territory in Mississippi C. O. D. whisky packages. This response from so high and honorable a source to the growing temperance sentiment of the country is specially gratifying and deserves the praise of all good men. The facts, that have transpired in the prosecution of the drink question in Mississippi in the last twenty years satisfy us that there is no debasing criminal degradation to which the advocates of whisky will not descend in order to promote their nefarious and debauching business—a business that despoils and traduces every virtue and feeds and nurses every vice. It blasts the best hopes and efforts of man and unfits him for employment in places of trust: so that the woman and her children are often reduced to abject poverty and want by the rejection of the man rendered unfit for any work by his indulgence in drink. Indeed there is not a path or a field in human life that has not been despoiled by the trail of this deadly serpent. The picture of frightful ruin wrought before our eyes by this agent of evil is so appalling and is so destructive of all the interests of human souls in this world and that which is to come, that we, as consistent Christians and good citizens, must be eternal and intense enemies of any and every form of the drink habit—the saloon, the blind-tiger, the private, moderate drinking. We have a profound and sincere regard for the interest and reputation of the enterprising and growing town in which this session of the Durant District Conference is held: we appreciate the courtesy and hospitality of its citizens in opening their homes for our entertainment while here, and we pray the Divine blessing upon them always. But the existence of five saloons is a blot on their fair escutcheon. May this blot soon be washed out so that nothing may remain to discount the good name of so fair and hopeful a town in the great and prosperous Delta. We suggest to the good citizens here, that the elimination of whisky from many towns in Mississippi has greatly contributed to the domestic and social peace and harmony of the citizens, and has in every instance promoted the legitimate productiveness of their business enterprises. It is often claimed that the presence of the saloon is an advantage to the business of a town. If this were true, there should not be so low a stage of business in this town, while the five saloons flourish. Never was a more sinister falsehood perpetrated on good citizens than this vicious claim: That the saloon promotes righteous business.

We respectfully move the following resolutions, to-wit:

First—We declare ourselves firmly and unalterably devoted to the maintenance of the law and sentiment of our Church against strong drink, and to the use of all proper means for the destruction of the dire destroyer of both property and life.

Second—We hold that the current use of intoxicants in the country is evil, and only evil, working the most calamitous destruction of all interest of human kind both in this world and the world to come.

Third—This state of the case compels all consistent Christians to wage relentless war for the utter destruction of so deadly an enemy from which no possible benefit can come to mankind.

It is conceded by all that the real power in all Sunday school work is a thoroughly converted, a really regenerated membership, including all of every age and station together; a pastor, parents, teachers and superintendent in like condition; added to this, the anointing with the Holy Spirit for the special work for which God has called us, as individual workers to a common end, the training of the young mind for God, for home and heaven. Without this power all effort is a failure, all organization an empty chasm, every utterance an empty sound. With it, success is the inevitable result. This is the motive power that makes the pastor, teachers, parents and superintendent, also the League, prayer meeting and every department of church work, as well as the Sunday school, go.

We not only suffer oftimes for this Divine assistance, but we have many hindrances to a successful career in Sunday school work, viz: lack of real discipline in the home. The average boy in the average home, while yet in his "tender 'teens," feels that the Sunday-school is for "kids," and not for him. Although he is yet in knee-pants, he is in all kinds of mischief, such as playing marbles for keeps, having egg-boilings on Sunday and every other mischief to which all children are prone, and which are not ruled firmly, yet kindly, at home.

Second. Apostasy—The church being filled with unconverted people, they fail to grasp in full the great necessity of pushing in the name of God to their full strength the Sunday school interests of our great Church. May the Lord help us to lead all the members of all our churches of every faith and order to a sound religious experience, and not only know they are saved, but also to know their place and be ready to fill it.

Third. Inconsistency and incompetency in the mind, life or character of parents, teachers, superintendent, or pastor, one or all, often gets in the way of a good, strong and progressive Sunday school.

Ah, how true that many who would otherwise be Samsons in Israel are shorn of their locks of power by the Dililah of inconsistency and incompetency!

W. B. PINSON.

CHUNKY, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: It is with pleasure that I read the Advocate. Such pieces as are written by Bro. H. P. Lewis, Sr., and others are of great help to the soul, and when we think of the life and death of Uncle Murdock McDonald, we are reminded that some of our best preachers are going home, where they will rest from their labors and hardships of life. I was Uncle Murdock's pastor for two years, and can say of him, a truer man never lived; he was so kind to his pastor. The old and young will never forget him. He spent the night with me many times while pastor. He did me so much good spiritually, and would always ask me if we had anything to eat, and said many times he could not sleep while studying about his pastor and family, and he never failed to pay something every time he came.

My little boys knew what Uncle Murdock was to our home. They would run and meet him before he could get to the house. Their little hearts were made to feel sad when they heard Uncle Murdock was dead. One of our little boys, that thought so much of him, died since we left Walnut Grove. I feel that they are in heaven, waiting and watching for us.

Uncle Murdock had such a nice family. He had three sons at Union, Miss., doing well, and children raised up by such a father, it is to be hoped that they will carry on the good work and see that the Church which their father loved so much has all attention necessary, so that the smiles of heaven may ever be upon them. Children, grieve not, but love God, love your church, help your pastor, and you will do what I have often heard your dear father say. This was what he craved to see. The last hours he spent on earth were sweet.

CARROLLTON AUXILIARY.

The Carrollton Avenue Auxiliary of the W. F. M. S. held its seventh anniversary meeting and social on Friday afternoon at the residence of the President, Mrs. Jacob Cohen, in Carrollton Avenue, New Orleans.

The meeting being opened with the singing of a hymn, Rev. W. W. Holmes led in prayer, and was followed by a Scripture reading by Mrs. L. E. Wicht, and the reading of a poem by Mrs. C. W. Bentley entitled "We Cannot Find the Door." The usual routine business was then gone through with, after which the Recording Secretary read her annual report, which proved very encouraging, showing the Auxiliary to be in a very prosperous condition.

Miss Mary Wilkinson, delegate to the Annual Conference, W. F. M. S., read a comprehensive report of the work of the Twenty-seventh Annual Meeting held in Alexandria April 19-22.

Mrs. S. A. Montgomery, State President of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, made an impressive talk, and, among other things, laid particular emphasis on the need of more spirituality and fervent prayer, and a greater knowledge of the work. The membership, she said, had fallen off, and she appealed to the members to give more time to a systematic study of the Bible and literature bearing on the subject of missionary work (referring her hearers to an editorial by Rev. J. E. Wray, printed in last issue of the New Orleans Christian Advocate). Mrs. Montgomery stated that the Annual Conference had resolved to appeal to each individual member of each auxiliary within the bounds of Louisiana to make it a personal duty to bring in at least one new member, and in this way it is hoped the membership will be doubled during the ensuing year. After laying stress upon the importance of systematic tithing, Mrs. Montgomery said that more trained workers were needed, and accordingly it had been decided to raise $3,000 with which to establish a scholarship at the Scarritt Bible and Training School. This is to be accomplished by getting 100 women to pay $10 a year for three years.

After the singing of a solo by Mrs. M. Randolph, the meeting was closed in due form, and those present enjoyed a social hour, which was rendered delightful by the kind hospitality of the hostess, Mrs. Jacob Cohen.

W. H. M. S.

The District Conference of the Meridian District met in Central Church, Meridian, April 4-6, the first day being given over to the work of the Woman's Home Mission Society, the second day to the work of the Foreign Missionary Society. Miss May Kendall, as District Secretary, presided. Only a few delegates from other churches were present.

The morning session consisted of the singing of familiar hymns, reading of the Word and prayers. After the regular organization, reports were made from the various churches, that from the West End Church being so encouraging as to deserve especial mention.

We were then favored with an excellent paper by Mrs. Cope, whom the Conference gladly welcomes back to her first love. Encouraging talks were made by Revs. Sullivan, Emery and Carpenter, after which the Conference adjourned to meet in the afternoon.

At 3:30 o'clock the opening devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Cope, after which Mrs. E. J. Harris read a paper on "Our Press as a Factor in Church Work," impressing upon those present the importance of using both the secular and religious press in our work. Mrs. Ellen Webb followed with an impressive talk on tithing from a practical standpoint, convincing her hearers that this is the only way to pay our Lord His dues.

Miss Streeter, well-known as an educator, read a splendid paper on "Our Schools as Character Builders," followed by Mrs. E. L. Alford on "Our Cuban Work," and Mrs. Dunham Smith on "The Mill Problem."

Mrs. Crisler then furnished us with a paper on "Our Work on the Pacific Coast," after which adjournment followed, with songs and prayer.

In the evening Rev. J. E. Carpenter preached an edifying and inspiring sermon from Joshua, 24th chapter, 26th and 27th verses.

In spite of the fact that there were representatives from only a few churches, we were impressed with the earnestness and zeal of those present, and we believe that all will go forward to renewed efforts for greater success in the home field.

MRS. E. J. HARRIS,
Supt. Press Dept., Mississippi Conf.

PERSONAL.

At Rayne Memorial last Sunday Rev. C. C. Weir preached a stirring sermon to a large congregation, and got a good collection for our Orphans' Home.

Rev. Sam Jones is holding a meeting at Winona, Miss. Ample preparations were made, and large crowds are in attendance. Much interest is being manifested.

Rev. T. J. Warlick, the newly-appointed presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has made a fine start. Last Sunday he delivered two powerful sermons at Parker Memorial Church.

Rev. S. J. Parrish, of Parker Memorial Church, preached the commencement sermon for the Central Institute at Franklinton, La., on Sunday last to the largest audience ever assembled in the Institute.

We are under obligation to Rev. J. E. Wray and Rev. Theo. Copeland for their efficient work on the Advocate during our absence, and we hereby tender them our hearty thanks, with the assurance that we will call on them again when in need.

The Sunday school at First Church observed Children's Day last Sunday. There was a very large congregation and an inspiring service. Notwithstanding the disadvantage of having no church building at present, the First Church Sunday school is in a flourishing condition.

"Advocate Day" was a great day with Rev. Robt. Selby, of Main Street Church, Hattiesburg. He secured and sent us forty-eight subscribers. That was a splendid hour's work. Lists of subscribers were also received from the following brethren: Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. M. L. Ward, Rev. J. H. Bass, Rev. J. O. Bennett and Rev. T. J. Martin. The brethren have our hearty thanks.

The following brethren from Louisiana and Mississippi attended the General Conference last week: Revs. J. M. Henry, Richard Wilkinson, H. M. Moore, C. W. Crisler, J. W. Crisler, J. H. Felts, J. R. Countiss, D. P. Bradford, J. D. Borders, Robt. Selby, H. G. Davis, Theo. Copeland, H. A. Gattin, W. W. Graves, W. S. Shipman, L. E. Alford, H. G. Hawkins, L. M. Broyles, L. I. McCain, R. O. Weir, S. A. Brown, L. M. Lipscomb and H. W. Vanhook. If there were others we failed to see them.

FREE SCHOLARSHIPS FOR YOUNG PREACHERS AT VANDERBILT.

We are in receipt of the April number of the Vanderbilt Bulletin, which is published monthly during the college year by our central University. The number at hand is devoted to the Biblical Department, which is doing valuable service to the Church through the excellent training it is giving to the young men who are entering the ministry.

The work of the Department is being broadened as rapidly as possible to meet the growing need of the Church for a diversified ministry, fitted to meet the demands of our modern complex society.

Three years ago the School of Biblical Theology and English Exegesis was added; last year the School of Religious Education, and the hope is now entertained that it will soon be possible to offer courses dealing with various mission fields at home and abroad.

The entrance requirements have recently been changed so that students who have not had collegiate training may enter, if in the judgment of the faculty they are prepared to pursue the courses with profit.

The student of moderate means is encouraged to attend by the financial help offered, both through free scholarships for college graduates, which yield enough to cover the cost of board in Wesley Hall, and also through the Sustentation Loan Fund, which is available for those not receiving scholarships.

We are happy to note an increase in the attendance, the present year's enrollment in the Biblical Department being ninety-six. The Junior Class is the largest in the history of the Department. Among the students we note the following from Louisiana and Mississippi: Adolph A. Bernard, Wm. L. Doss, Jr., James T. McCafferty, Osborne W. Bradley, Theo. Marvin Bradley, Robt. Paine Fikes, James Slicer Purcell, Jr., Carroll H. Varner, Claude M. Simpson.

The present number of the Bulletin contains the names of the 551 former students of Vanderbilt University, who are now in the itinerant ministry of the M. E. Church, South.

Those desiring further information are directed to address Prof. H. B. Carre, Secretary of the Theological Faculty, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

NOTICE.

Will the brethren who subscribed to the D. Cameron Fund please remember that the Conference appointed me Treasurer of the Fund?

I would be glad to hear from the subscribers as they are able to pay part or all of their subscriptions. J. C. PARK, Treasurer.

Greenwood, Miss., May 18.

NOTICE.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that Rev. Isaac L. Peebles, while pastor of the Methodist Church in Hattiesburg, Miss., to which I belonged, was blameless in his Christian character, diligent, faithful and successful in his work; and, as far as I knew, acceptable to our people, and if again sent back to them as pastor, I think would be loyally received. J. P. CARTER,

Lieutenant Governor of Mississippi.

"Who is on the Lord's side?" This question was asked many centuries ago by Moses, but it falls on our ears to-day, not merely as a note of ancient history, but as a call to present duty. There are still two sides. The enemies of the Lord still trample His laws under their feet and fight against His kingdom. We are either among those who defend His cause and bear the reproach of His name, or among those who fight against Him and try to overthrow His truth. It behooves everyone to make sure that he is on the right side, for many have been deceived.—New York Christian Advocate.

IS IT CONSTITUTIONAL?

So far as I have heard from both preachers and laymen, there is general regret and alarm over the action of our General Conference in the appointment of a Committee to act jointly with committees from other branches of Methodism in a restatement of our faith and doctrines. So far as I can learn, the purpose of such action was kept as an inviolate secret in the hearts of the few until such times as they might spring it as a surprise, and then under such supposed conditions as would justify their acting on the authority of a mere majority vote of that body.

There was a general feeling of fear and unrest over the supposed danger of radical changes in administration. Yet no one ever thought it even possible, or that any one so much as dreamed of an attack upon our articles of faith and our standards. We thought that if there was anything in our Church absolutely secure against the aggressions of any set of men, and made so by the very constitution of her being, it was her articles of faith and her standards in theology.

The first restrictive rule is as follows: "The General Conference shall not revoke, alter, or change our articles of religion, or establish any new standards or rule of doctrine contrary to our present existing and established standards of doctrine."

While under the prescribed conditions there might be claimed the right to add to our standards of doctrine, no such right applies, under any condition, to restate or to substitute our articles of religion. Nor could even the shadow of such a right exist except by the consent of the whole membership. While there are constitutional provisions made for the change of every administrative restriction, this one is absolutely safeguarded by this conclusive restriction: "Excepting the first article."

And yet our General Conference, without the sanction of the two-thirds vote of its own body, required in the initiative in the allowed changes, and without so much as consulting the Annual Conferences, has proceeded to do what it was clearly without authority to do, and that the Annual Conferences could not grant authority to do. It is not only unconstitutional, but is revolutionary, and there is little wonder that the movers in this action felt called to state that they were Methodists.

No one is deceived into a quiet quiescence to this act of the General Conference by the flamneous preamble to the resolution, which expresses the intent of a mere majority of that body. Here is what they propose: "Resolved, That the College of Bishops be requested to appoint a commission of five members, one of whom shall be a Bishop, which shall invite other branches of Methodism to unite with us in the preparation of such a statement of our faith and such an expression of our doctrinal system as is called for in our day; and this commission shall represent our Church in the preparation of the same."

Here we are to have five men, with full power to restate, or to substitute both our articles of religion and our standards, and in doing so to represent the Church from which they have received no legal authority to act in this matter. Let us hope that five men are not to be found in the Church of sufficient temerity to assume the unlawful enterprise; and yet if they should be found, let them be enjoined in the common law courts of our country.

I am not reaching after conclusions in this matter; the General Conference and the whole Church have been very plainly told by the author of this resolution that the time had come when we should superannuate our twenty-five articles of religion. Yes, they are to be kept in the Discipline, but just as we leave the names of our worn-out preachers on the Conference roll—to be honored, but not to be used.

In the meantime, what are we to do during the four years these five wise men are digging the graves for our superannuated articles of religion and our standards? Is the great Methodist Church and her ministry that has revolutionized the thought and the theology of the Christian world to remain superannuated until the united wisdom and piety of the great commission shall rejuvenate the whole body? Will not four years of death cause hopeless putrifaction? And to what shall we ask members coming into our Conferences to subscribe as an expression of their faith? To that which is worn out and ready to pass away, and then to that which is to come?

And, then, suppose the other branches of Methodism, who will now have a chance to discuss this matter, and to reach conclusions, shall say, as not a few in our own branch hope they will say: No, brethren, we have no authority to do this thing, and we are perfectly satisfied with the old, tried and true paths of Methodism? Into what sort of a hole will our General Conference have poured itself?

GOD AT HIS PALACE GATE.

It is related of a wise Eastern ruler that when he died he left word to his people that his son would be their king, and though they had never seen his face, they would judge of his government by his acts. The people promised obedience. The influence of the new ruler was wise and kind, and like the beams of the sun it streamed out of the royal palace, bringing joy to every subject.

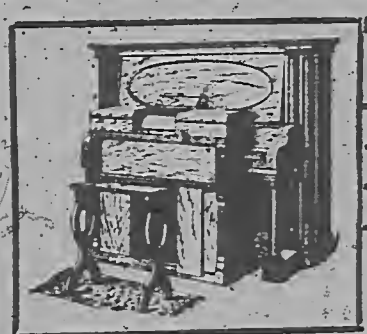
The people marveled and said, "We see him not; how does he understand us so well?"

They came to the palace gates and said, "Let the king suffer us to see his face."

The king came forth to them in his royal robes, and when they saw him they rejoiced and said, "We know thy face."

He had walked so often with them as their friend, showing love and kindness to all, that when they saw him in the palace, his kingly robes did not disguise him. They knew him.

In the incarnation our King comes to the palace gate and lets us see His face. "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory of the only begotten from the Father, full of grace and truth."



God was in the world before, ruling in love and wisdom. We did not recognize or know Him; but we felt His power and received of His grace. He was among us, as we might say, incognito. He was with us all the while, ruling and defending us, conquering all His and our enemies—our loving, wise and ever-mindful King. But in the incarnation of Christ He revealed Himself; He made Himself visible to us; He permitted us to realize who the one that had been our benefactor really was, and something of the depth of the love He felt.—*G. THINGS THAT S'PRISE YOU.

There 's lots o' things that s'prise you
When you 're little, just like I:
When you bump your head they tell you:
"Oh! you 're too big to cry!"
But when there 's pie for dinner,
And you want another bite.
The big folks say: "Oh, no, indeed:
You are too little, quite!"

Then when there 's company, you know,
They wash you up so clean,
And tell you little bits o' folks
Must not be heard, but seen.
But next thing that you know about
You hear 'em say: "Now, dear,
Stand up and say your little piece
For Mrs. Smith to hear."

That 's just the way things s'prise you
When you 're little just like I;
But I s'pose you 'll understand 'em
When you 're older, by and by.

A LITTLE TEACHER.

It is scarcely possible to say how much good a little child can really do when all the heart of that child is in the effort. To illustrate this point, a French pastor told this story of a little girl, a member of his congregation:

This little girl had learned to read the Bible. She used to read portions of it to her mother.

"I wish that I could read," said the mother, "but it is too late now. I am too old."

"No, mother," was the little girl's quick answer. "It is not too late. You shall learn how to read. I will teach you."

She kept her word. Day after day she sat patiently, and taught her mother. There was never a more earnest or a more patient teacher. Some of the neighbors, when they heard of the little teacher, wanted to be taught too. So a class of women, many of them old women, gathered each day around the little girl teacher.

"There I found her," concluded the pastor, "going over the primer patiently, page by page, line by line. Each time that the lesson was over, she read them a chapter from the Bible."

What a noble little teacher! And such a work as was accomplished through her earnestness and faithfulness! Dear little workers, it is within the power of each one of you to be a teacher, to help some other one to a knowledge of Jesus. Often we may teach just by our example. Others, seeing our earnestness and faithfulness in the professions we have made to God, will be led to become Christians too.—The Little Workers.

ONE KIND OF A HERO.

"Dear me! If only I could get up and be like some of these men, if I could be a real hero!" Felix said it often to himself, as he read of great and good men, until his heart glowed with admiration. He was lying on a couch, this poor little boy, to whom had come very early in life a sad injury. He lay there week after week and month after month; and soon it would be year after year, for there was no hope of his ever getting up from it in the health and strength which blesses other boys. As he watched their play he felt it keenly, but without quite the pain which might have come with the thought that he never could do anything to be like the heroes he loved; for Felix had a brave little soul, and was more anxious to do something which he felt to be great than to seek for amusement.

He talked it out with his mother one day—all his admiration and his longing to follow the example of his favorite heroes. "I would do anything," he said, clasping his thin hands. "I would not care how I had to suffer or what I had to give up. Oh, mamma, it's ten times harder to lie still."

"Then, dear, if you have the harder thing to bear, and you bear it well, why are you not as great a hero as any one of your great men?"

The idea was so new, so great, and so astonishing that Felix could not take it all in at once. He did not reply, but lay gazing at his mother with large, thoughtful eyes.

"I mean it," she said. "If you have more to suffer, more to give up, why are you not, if you bear it patiently and give up without murmuring, more of a hero than those you read of?"

She went quietly away, leaving Felix to think out the wonderful thought by himself.—Exchange.

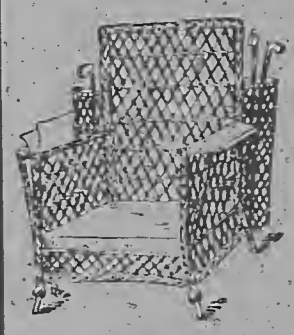
A STORY OF TWO LITTLE GIRLS AND A DOLL.

I wish to tell the young readers of the Advocate a Christmas story about two little girls, one in America, and the other in India.

During the year 1905 a little girl in America, five years old, took sick with rheumatism, and suffered much. While she lay sick her mother and the ladies and young people of the church dressed a number of nice dolls, and collected a number of toys and pieces of cloth for a box for the Poona Marathi schools. The little girl heard her mother and grandmother talk about the box, and she wanted to know what it was for; so they told her about the little children in the Poona city schools. The little one was very much interested and asked many questions, and wanted to know whether she could not send a doll to some one in the far-away land. She seemed so concerned about the matter that her mother sent out to a store for some undressed dolls, and allowed her to select one she liked best. Then a dressmaker was engaged, who sat by the bed and dressed the dolly according to the little girl's directions. When it was ready, the little girl had it nicely wrapped in paper, and her name pinned on it, and it was packed with the other dolls, and sent to India, where it landed a few months before Christmas. I put it away very carefully with the rest of the things which had been sent, and was careful that the white ants did not destroy it, or eat its clothing.



A week before Christmas I went into one of our city schools, and gave the little Hindu children a treat. We went three weeks before, as it took us three weeks to give all the treats we planned. In this school there is a little girl who is about nine years old, and is very poor. One day I went to the school, and found this child sitting shivering with the cold—it gets quite cold at this season of the year in Poona, like a sharp frosty morning at home. The little one had on only a little cotton cloth, but was trying to learn to read. She has a mother, but her father is dead. The mother goes out every day, carrying a basket on her head. When she sees a person buying some goods, she steps up, and asks him to let her carry them home for him in her basket. For this work she receives two cents, if she carries them one mile. You see that the mother must work fast, if she would earn enough to support her family. She lives—or I should say did live—under a tree; and when it rained she had no place else to go. A few months ago this woman and her little girl gave their hearts to God, and I wish that you might have heard the mother pray. They wished to be baptized, but some of their relatives came and told them that they would persecute them; so they became afraid, and are still waiting. Will you pray for this woman and her child? Why was this little girl born in India and the other one in America? Why were you born in a Christian land? When the little girl received her doll, I cannot tell you how happy she was. So you see this little doll made two little girls happy—one in America, and one in India. Which do you think was the happier?—Mrs. A. M. Stephen, in Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Respect for old things, whether opinions or practices, no matter how true and useful, should not blind a man to the importance of new ideas and new ways. Ever onward, is the watchword of enterprising men, and they are the men the world depends on to do things.

Too much headliness in one who is set to rule in the Church is likely to lead to serious blunders, for no man is infallible. On the other hand, one who is headless will be so loose in administration as to inspire the contempt of those under his care. We want neither a tyrant nor one who is "all things to all men" in high office.

A boy friend of ours, well-to-do in the world, at the close of the war was left with nothing save a piece of land. He concluded that the world owed him a living without work. He got it, not at his own table, but as a neighborhood tramp. He ate heartily, and always as an unwelcomed guest.

The Christian Life.

PRAYER FOR A BOY OR GIRL.

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray thee, Lord, my soul to take;
And this I ask for Jesus' sake."

But while I live, I want to be from quick and angry passions free,
With gentle thoughts, and happy face, and pleasant words in every place.
I pray, whatever wrong I do, I'll never say what is not true;
Be willing at my task each day, and always honest in my play.

Make me unselfish with my joys, and generous to other boys;
And kind and helpful to the old, and prompt to do what I am told.
Bless every one I love, and teach me how to help and comfort each;
Give me the strength right living brings, and make me good in little things. Amen

Burges Johnson.

THE CHRIST OF PERSONAL EXPERIENCE.

We must find that the Christ is the vital principle of everything that makes life worth living. In every duty, in every impulse to the good, in every approving voice of conscience, in everything that tends upward in any department of our nature, we must realize that we are face to face with the kingdom of God. Its life and its law is the Christ. Because he is formed within us, our very consciousness of self must come, as did his, to be habitually interfused with a sense of the divine presence. In some sense and in some appreciable measure, we must be able to echo his own words: "I and the Father are one."

Such an experience will bring a great calm to souls tossed by the unrest of the age, at the same time that it furnishes incentive and direction to absorbing religious zeal. It will set things in proportion. Act and motion, creed and conduct, self and society, will fall in to place. It will give perspective to the theoretical problems which center about the person of Christ. We shall gaze at them without timidity; we shall put no false emphasis upon tradition, or upon our own reasonings, for we shall occupy the standpoint of realization. We shall conquer sin, too, and win the world to Christ, because the presence goes with us.—Prof. George A. Coe.

SUFFERING, A SETTING FREE.

Things are what they are used for. The artist uses a stone, and it is a statue; the mason uses a stone, and it is a doorstep. Man, the savage, is ruled by things—rivers, hills, forests—they make of him what their own tendencies suggest; and on the other hand, man, the citizen, man civilized, rules all things; makes of them what he pleases. Now, let this great user, man, this one moral force, be called upon to go down into the vale of Baca, into the vale of misery. He finds there all the circumstances of suffering, poverty, sickness, bereavement, sin itself. What then? These are things, and he is man. Let him rule them, not be ruled by them. Let him take down there a religious, trustful nature, a pious, cheerful heart, and there is more promised than just that his cheerful piety shall be able to support him through; he shall exercise his human right of ruling and of using these things, and his cheerful, trustful heart shall come out with a perfect joy and a more certain faith than he had carried in. He shall not come out half-dead with thirst, just able to drag himself up to the fountain at the end, but it shall be as David so beautifully says: "He shall drink of the brook in the way; therefore shall he lift up his head."

There is something very beautiful in the truth that suffering, rightly used, is not a cramping, binding, restricting of the human soul, but a setting of it free. It is not a violation of the natural order; it is only a more or less violent breaking open of some abnormal state, that the natural order may be resumed. It is the opening of a cage door. It is the breaking in of a prison wall. This is the thought of those fine old lines of an early English poet:

"The soul's dark cottage, battered and decayed,
Lets in new light through chinks that time has made;
Stronger by weakness, wiser men become
As they draw near to their eternal home."

—Phillips Brooks.

FORGIVENESS.

No duty is more emphatically enjoined by our Savior than that of forgiveness. In the prayer that he taught us to pray, the plea for our own forgiveness is based on the exercise of this duty by us toward others. Furthermore, it is the only petition in that comprehensive prayer on which any comment is made by the Lord. "For," said he, "if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will forgive you; but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses." In view of this, how dare any offer this petition with enmity in his heart, and what a fearful imprecation does he call down on himself by doing so! Only if we forgive shall we be forgiven.

Also, forgiveness is a prerequisite of successful prayer. Jesus says: "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any." It is in immediate connection with this that the assurance is given that the answer to prayer, in a sense, anticipates the petition itself. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."

"How many times must I forgive?" asked Peter. "Until seven times?" doubtless thinking it a great stretch of magnanimity on his part to propose seven times as a limit. But what a rebuke did he receive when Jesus replied, "I say not unto thee, until seven times, but until seventy times seven." Practically without limit.

"If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him, and if he repent forgive him, and if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, 'I repent,' thou shalt forgive him." How difficult it is for poor, unregenerate human nature to appreciate this admonition; and how much more difficult even to appreciate the practical observance of it! But how Christ-like it is, and how blessed! Like the "quality of mercy that droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven on the place beneath, it is twice blessed, it blesseth him that gives and him that takes." And like the exercise of most Christian duties, the reflex benefit to the doer is far greater than that conferred on any other, as God's blessings exceeds any that we can bestow. This is especially true in the matter of forgiveness, in that the call for its exercise on our part is so faint and infrequent in comparison with our need of forgiveness at the hands of God.—H. C. Jackson, D. D.

A LIVING CHRIST.

He is not a dead Christ. He does not mock us with promises He cannot or will not fulfill. Of the earth earthy, and knowing our needs, of heaven heavenly, and knowing His own power, He carries on His heart the weight of our burdens that we may have rest, and gives us His peace that we may not be troubled or afraid, if we go to Him—if we go!

What does the resurrection of the Christ teach us but that for all there will be a resurrection into new life? Old things will pass away, and we shall enter upon a more advanced stage of existence of which this life is only the threshold. It will not be to fold our wings and sit and play upon harps and viols throughout eternity, but to be co-workers with God in all that He finds to do for His great family in this world, and, perhaps, in other worlds.—Christian Work.

The tendency of opinion in many quarters is toward pessimism. If we turn to philosophy we find the revival of the old doctrine that life is not worth living, that man is a failure, and that all things are going from bad to worse. Over against these dismal notes we hear the jubilant shouts of the embattled hosts who have marshaled under the banner of the cross to conquer and redeem a resisting world.

Notwithstanding all the defects and inconsistencies in our ritual, as pointed out by some of the brethren, we have managed as a Church to get along fairly well. Now that our people are contented, and far better informed than ever, we see no necessity for change just to meet the objections of those who have no sympathy with Methodism. Were we to employ our enemies to expurgate our ritual, and fix it to suit themselves, they would then have more sympathy with us than they have now.

The principle of sacrifice stands at the very threshold of the fascinating study of life, and is found at every turn of the bewildering maze which marks life's upward pahtway of struggle and survival. In the vital functions of vegetable and animal life there are clear foreshadowings of the part which sacrifice plays in the great tragedy of existence. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me."

How hard it is to see God in the minute and personal affairs of our lives; we think of Him as making a record of the starry host, but cannot realize the Bible truth that He knows the number of hairs on our heads. It seems a grand thing that God fed the hungry thousands of Israel in the desert, but not that He feeds the hungry sparrows. Not only does God dwell in the crystal palace of a dew-drop, but He delights to make His abode in the humble and contrite heart.

Perseverance is the secret of every successful life and work. Many of our most prosperous men began life in a low estate: they had two willing hands, a clear head and a determined will. They have reached their position by no sudden flight. Rung by rung they crept up the ladder. It is a long journey from the first saved shilling to the millionaire's wealth; from the rude chalk profile to the famous painting on the walls of the Academy; from the boy's halting verse to the immortal poem.

NOT AMENABLE TO MORAL LAW.

All theologians, as far as we are informed, hold to the idea that every human being, however insignificant, if rational, is amenable to Divine law. But a new school—not of theologians—teaches that men of rare genius are exempt. A certain artist, a man thoroughly expert in his line, it is said, seemed to be lacking in common honesty. He habitually failed to meet his obligations. At one time he was engaged to execute a piece of work at a large price. The work was to be completed within a specified time, and about one-fourth of the price was paid in advance. Other payments were to be made as the work progressed. By the end of the specified time nearly the whole of the stipulated price had been paid. From time to time, when asked how the work was progressing, he replied, "satisfactorily." But when the time was up, it was found that the artist had hardly begun the work. When the demand for the work or return of the money was made, he declined to do either. Suit followed, and his fellow-artists defended him on the ground that he was "a great genius, and exempt from the demands of the moral law." It seems like folly to record such a statement. But it was put forth in earnest, and deserves notice.

It is frequently the case that men of genius are erratic—their peculiarities taking different turns. But no matter what turn, nor how wicked, if the doctrine stated is true, they are justifiable and without sin. It is frequently noted that professional men of rare talent are addicted to drink, but, being men of genius, they are exempt from the demands of the law that requires men to be sober. Is it not a fact that, though none of us wholly excuse the indulgence of such men, we are never surprised?

God's order of family life is frequently disregarded by men and women of rare genius on the stage—star actors and actresses. And it is more than a joke that some of them never gain notoriety and large patronage until they have secured one or two divorces. None of us, of course, sanction their misdoings at heart, but do we not act so as to impress them that they are quite as respectable as the best? Certainly, we approve only their genius. They look further and conclude that we do not disapprove their immorality. Is it not natural for them to think themselves exempt from the obligation of the moral law?

If men of genius are to be held as exempt from the law of honesty, or sobriety, or chastity, there is no reason why sinners in any other line should be held responsible. But such doctrine is false, and dishonoring alike both to God and man. If it is really entertained by men of genius, the sooner they are undeceived by treatment proportioned to their misdoings the better.

A CAKE OF BARLEY BREAD.

Gideon had reduced his army to 300 men, and the Midianites lay along in the valley like locusts for multitude. According to all human probabilities, there could be but one issue—the children of the East will inevitably defeat and even annihilate this little band of defenseless warriors, and crush the rising hopes of Israel. At this juncture the intrepid leader and his servant went to the uttermost part of the enemy's camp, and behold there was a man telling a dream to his fellow. A proper interpretation of this dream led Gideon to conclude that, though there was a ludicrous disproportion between the means at his command and the work he was to accomplish, yet behind him was the unseen, but mighty energy of God's Spirit that swept him on and made him invincible. This encouragement is needed by every man who prosecutes the path of duty. I can do all things, said the great Apostle, through Christ who strengtheneth me. He giveth power to the faint, and to them that have no might He increaseth strength. The cake of barley bread teaches us that God can never be short of instruments. Gideon, who threshes corn to-day, will thresh God's enemies to-morrow, and write his name on the shining scroll of fame. Shamgar, who drives his oxen along the furrow, converts his goad into a weapon of war more deadly than the modern rifle, and six hundred of his foes bite the dust. With the jaw bone of an ass Sampson smote a thousand men. With the 300 men that lapped, Gideon defeated the combined power of the Midianites and their allies, and scattered them like chaff before the wind.

God can work by the feeblest means. A tallow candle fired from a rifle will go through a door; the penetrating power is not in the candle, but in the force behind it. If we wanted to upset a tent, we certainly should not resort to a barley cake. If we had to cannonade an encampment we should not use biscuits for ammunition. History abounds with examples and illustrations which remind us that God is not necessarily on the side of the strongest batallions. He has chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; he has chosen the weak things of the world to confound the mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised have been chosen to put to naught things that are, that no flesh should glory in his presence. Nearly everything great in this world has been accomplished by a few men, or perhaps a single man, who had faith and vision when everybody else saw only difficulities and objections. Solemn and alone, our Supreme benefactors have moved like sentinels along the highways of progress; many of them have been driven into exile or incarcerated in loathsome dungeons. These weak and humble instruments of God shine like stars of the first magnitude in the firmament of the past, and their memory and shining deeds the world will not willingly let die. To accomplish his work, God frequently uses unexpected means. He reverses human judgment in a thousand ways; and hides himself in thick darkness, and gives account of none of His doings. If God be for us, who can be against us? Let us not despise the humble instruments which bear the impress of almighty power.

THEO COPELAND.

Let us preach the Gospel. There is only one. But we may bring forth from the good treasure of our hearts "things new and old." The Gospel is exhaustless.

The idea that doubt as to the truthfulness of some story of the Bible is fully made up by "embracing more firmly the spirituality of the Psalms and the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount" is the latest defense of the higher critics that we have seen. By the way, the author of that idea tells us that the "higher criticism" is but another name for "interpretation."

The General Conference.

The Conference has been doing some real hard work during the past week, and most of it might be characterized as conservative. Every real radical measure has been voted down except two. The vote by which unordained preachers in charge of work were authorized to perform the rite of matrimony and to baptize was a departure from Methodist traditions. It would have been better had the Conference authorized the ordination to deacon's orders all preachers admitted on trial. The action of the Conference in authorizing a commission with a view to a revision of our articles of religion was radical.

The discussion of the proposition to do away with the time limit of the pastorate was long and animated, and some of the speeches were very fine. Dr. Frank Richardson, of the Holston Conference, who was so radical in his views on limiting the transfer power of the Bishops, and limiting the tenure of office of presiding elders, was on this question in line with the rank and file, and made an extra good speech. So did several laymen. On the question of extending the time from four to six years the debate was short, for its fate was practically settled by the vote sustaining the time limit. The matter, judging by the vote, was nothing like as strong as its friends supposed. The question, we trust, is settled for many years to come.

Much time has been taken up in discussing Sunday school and missionary matters. Very important changes have been made in reference to Children's Day—too lengthy to note in this connection. The whole missionary machinery seems to have been overhauled. A new department has been added, called Home Missionary Department, and a secretary is to be elected for the department. The work will have special reference to city misions. Young men trained (or supposed to be) will be approved by the Mission Board, and nominated by the Board for appointment by the Bishop to mission work in the cities, and probably in other places will get the mission work to do, possibly over the protest of Annual Conference boards. The Annual Conference boards of mission will count for nothing so far as city mission work is concerned. Thus we see it now. A close study of the matter may cause us to see it in a different light.

The consolidation of church papers, discussed so much during the past few months, received full consideration in the Committee on Publishing Interests, and on the Conference floor. But nothing was done, nothing could be done, nothing can ever be done until the Church purchases all the papers, and that proposition throws the matter so far into the future that there is no use talking about it. We are just now where we started with nothing to stand on except a recommendation to consolidate wherever practicable.

During the week we had another treat in the way of African eloquence. It was from the fraternal delegate of the Colored M. E. Church. He was a brother-in-black, indeed, for he was black. He showed good common sense—and he said "Common sense beats the world." His convictions on the race problem are sane, and in accord with the general sentiment of the South.

On Friday evening the fraternal delegates from the M. E. Church, Rev. Dr. Matthews, of California, and Vice President Fairbanks were heard. It was not our privilege to hear them, as we were called away just at the time they were to speak. Mr. Fairbanks entered the Conference about 10 o'clock Friday morning, and such a reception we never saw accorded to any man, and at six General Conferences in succession we have seen fraternal delegates introduced. The Conference went wild. When silence was restored some sweet singer began to sing "My Country, 'tis of thee I sing." The Conference joined in heartily. Everybody seemed happy.

The election for Bishops and connectional officers began on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Intense excitement prevailed from the beginning to the close, Friday afternoon. Dr. John J. Tigert was elected on the first ballot. Dr. Seth Ward was elected on the third ballot. From that time on until the close of the twelfth ballot excitement was high. Dr. Kilgo, of North Carolina, and Dr. Denny, of Baltimore, leading, sometimes climbing up, and sometimes falling back. Dr. James Atkins got a fine vote on the first ballot, but lost time and again, until on one ballot he received only one vote. Everybody thought his chance was gone, but he rallied on the tenth ballot, and on the twelfth there was a stampede to him, and he was elected.

After the election of Bishops followed the election of connectional officers. Dr. Gross Alexander was elected Book Editor and Editor of the Quarterly Review. Dr. Winton was re-elected Editor of the Christian Advocate. Dr. E. B. Chappelle was elected Sunday School Secretary and Editor. Dr. Du Bose was re-elected Secretary of the Epworth League and Editor of the Epworth Era. Dr. John D. Hammond was re-elected Secretary of Education; Dr. W. R. Lambuth, Secretary of Missions, and Smith and Lamar were re-elected Publishing Agents. The elections give general satisfaction; even the defeated brethren are in a good humor.

GENERAL CONFERENCE ADJOURNS.

The General Conference adjourned at 5 p.m., Monday, the 21st inst. It embraced sixteen working days and three Sundays—the shortest session on record, excepting the session of 1850, in St. Louis, when the Conference was cut short by the prevalence of cholera. Of the work done during the closing days, we will give a short notice next week.

LIFE SKETCHES OF NEW BISHOPS.

The following short sketches we taken from the Daily Advocate of May 18:

BISHOP TIGERT.

John James Tigert, D.D., LL.D., was born in Louisville, Ky., November 25, 1856, son of John and Mary Van Veghten Tigert. He passed his early years in Louisville, where he spent ten years in the High Schools, and was for two years student in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Graduated at Vanderbilt University in 1877, with degree of S.T.D. Received the degree of D.D., from Emory and Henry, and LL.D., from the University of Missouri. He was married to Miss Amelia McTyeire on August 28, 1878; was tutor and Professor of Moral Philosophy in Vanderbilt University from 1881 to 1890. From 1890 to 1894 he was pastor in Kansas City, Mo. Elected Book Editor and Editor of the Methodist Quarterly Review in 1894. He was a member of the General Conferences of 1890, 1894, 1898, 1902, and of 1906, and has been Secretary of the last three of these. He was a member of the Ecumenical Conference of 1901. Bishop Tigert is the author of the following books: "Handbook of Logic," "Theology and Philosophy," "The Preacher Himself," "A Voice from the South," "Constitutional History of American Episcopal Methodism," "The Journal of Thomas Coke," "The Making of Methodism," "Theism: A Survey of the Paths that Lead to God," "The Doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America" (two volumes); also numerous contributions to American and English reviews. He edited Summer's "Systematic Theology" (two volumes), McTyeire's "Passing Through the Gates," Bank's "Manual of Christian Doctrine." He was a member of the Joint Catechism Commission. Elected bishop on the first ballot, May 17, 1906.

BISHOP WARD.

Rev. Seth Ward, D.D., son of Samuel Goode and Sarah Ann Wyche Ward, was born in Leon County, Tex., November 1, 1858. His boyhood days were spent in farm work. He was educated in public schools. Licensed to preach November 6, 1881, in his native county, then within the bounds of the Northwest Texas Conference, which Conference he joined the next year. He married January 5, 1886, to Margaret E. South. In recent years he has belonged to the Texas Conference, in which he has held appointments at Huntsville, Houston, Galveston, etc., besides some years spent in the presiding eldership. Elected Assistant Missionary Secretary in 1902. Received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Southwestern University at Georgetown, Tex. Elected bishop May 17, 1906.

BISHOP ATKINS.

James Atkins, D.D., was born in Knoxville, Tenn., April 18, 1850, and is the son of James and Mary F. Atkins. Was educated at Riceville Academy, Tenn. Received the degree of A.M. from Emory and Henry College in 1872, and the degree of D.D. from Trinity College, Durham, N. C. Joined the Holston Conference in 1872. Married Sept. 14, 1876, to Miss Ella M. Branner. Served pastoral charges from 1872 to 1879. Was President of Asheville Female College from 1879 to 1889; President of Emory and Henry College from 1889 to 1893; and again President of Asheville Female College from 1893 to 1896. In 1896 he was elected Sunday School Editor. Originator of Bible Teachers' Study Circle; also author of "The Kingdom in the Cradle," and of various books and pamphlets bearing on Sunday school work. Member of five General Conferences. Elected Bishop May 17, 1906.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

JOEL EUGENE PRATH, infant son of J. M. and Lillian C. Prath, was born May 11, 1905, and died May 5, 1906. From these dates we see that his earthly life was a brief span. It was more pleasing to the Father that little Eugene should be one of the company of thousands of children who are before the throne than that he should live on this earth, and so one day the angels came and took him home. We bow our heads in submission to God's will. The Man of Sorrows and the One acquainted with grief will comfort those who are sorrowful if they trust in Him. C.

MRS. LAURA SULLIVAN, wife of R. E. Sullivan, recently deceased, was truly a good wife, a good neighbor and a true friend. There are many who will miss her guiding and helping hand, for, like Dorcos of old, she was full of kindly deeds. Hers was a life of much and protracted suffering. She often lamented not being able to attend church more than she did, on account of her afflictions. Having been an active church member for a number of years, as well as a witness to Jesus' saving power, we have every hope that she is now where there are no more toils, sorrow or suffering—her soul at perfect rest. While, as David said of his child, we can't call her back, we can all (thank God) go to her. We tender our sympathy to the bereaved husband. R. F. H.

LYDIA EVELINE JONES, wife of Rev. M. R. Jones, was born Nov. 10, 1868, in Jackson County, Miss., and departed this life near the home of her childhood April 26, 1906. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when quite oyung, and was shortly afterwards converted. In 1897 she professed to have entered into the experience of sanctification. A more gentle and beautiful character I have never known. She was a woman of few words, but her consistent life impressed all who knew her that there was divine life and power in her every-day experience. Her husband asked her a few hours before her death how it was with her soul, and she said that her faith was taking stronger hold upon her Savior. She leaves an aged father, devoted husband, two little children and other relatives to mourn her death. May the God of all comfort support the bereaved in this time of great trial, is my prayer. R. H. BARR.

Escatawpa, Miss.

JOHN WHITE GRIFFIS, son of Jesse and Jane Griffis, was born in Grenada County, near Hardy, Miss., March 3, 1846, and departed this life at his home in Grenada, Miss., on Monday morning, April 16, about 7 o'clock, and thus ended the career of a useful citizen. Although quite young, he answered the call to arms and rendered signal service in the Civil War. He received a wound at Atlanta, and carried in his body the balance of his days the effects thereof. The coming of the war cut short his education, and at its close confronted him with the difficult proposition of rebuilding the destroyed fortunes of the Southern people. He was quite successful in business, rising gradually from one place to another until he stood at the head of large commercial institutions. He was a member of the M. E. Church, South, exactly thirteen years, having joined under the pastorate of T. B. Malone on April 16, 1893. He was made steward of the church and used his means to support its institutions. One of the last things he asked of his pastor was to take charge of the work of renovating the inside of his church at his own expense in order to entertain the Annual Conference, which he could not attend, owing to failing health. In 1886 he was happily married to Miss Cora Mullin, of Grenada, Miss., who was a true helpmeet and devoted companion, sharing all his joys and cares in life, and now mourns his departure and cannot be comforted, because he is not. O God, our help in ages past, and our eternal home, support human souls under such trials! BEN P. JACO, P. C.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

All who are Christians, and who as such have a profound reverence for the Holy Scriptures and a deep interest in their circulation, will be pleased to know that the American Bible Society has enjoyed a largely augmented income during the year just closed, which was so much needed for the unhampered prosecution of its work. The gifts for the year ending March 31st from auxiliaries, legacies, church collections and individuals amounted to $204,537.48, which is $38,013.06 in excess of the receipts of the previous year. Of this excess $14,994.60 were from legacies and $23,018.46 from the living. The gifts from individuals total $58,337.47, an increase over the previous year of nearly $13,000, which is very gratifying, as is also the fact that the church collections have also increased nearly $8,000, for it shows that many more churches than heretofore have put the Society on their benevolent lists and will probably retain it on the lists so that annual offerings may be reasonably expected from them in the future. The Officers and Managers of the Society realize that their prayers to God and their appeals to His people have not been in vain. They have been greatly relieved from the embarrassment which they have experienced in recent years on account of the lack of sufficient funds to carry on the work of the Society, which is an ever growing work, the demand for Bibles increasing year by year, particularly in connection with foreign missionary work.—Christian Intelligencer.

MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR.

Is not a new and untried remedy. More than ¼ of a Century attests its wonderful curative and health-giving properties, and serves to show that it has no equal as a cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick-Headache, and all other ills arising from a

TORPID LIVER.

Being strictly a vegatable compound, it has no harmful or even unpleasant effects. Its action is gentle but none the-less thorough—cleansing the stomach and bowels of all impurities, and toning up the entire system to a healthy condition—leaving the person feeling good, because every organ is made to perform its part perfectly.

LETTER FROM MRS. PAUL FOSTER.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I fear Bro. Thomason did not understand my report just exactly right at the District Conference in Bunkie. Though there has been an increase in the amount of money collected, there was a decrease in membership, and in our own district (Alexandria), with its sixteen charges, we have but five auxiliaries, with seventy-nine members, twenty-nine subscribers to the Woman's Missionary Advocate, and twelve to Little Workers, and the total amount of money remitted to the Treasurer from our district is $235.40, being $61.75 less than last year, and one society disbanded.

Please pardon me for calling attention to this, but while we are very thankful for what our Father has enabled us to accomplish, still we do not think the work is prospering as it should, so long as there is a decrease in membership.

We trust the brethren will see to it that a Woman's Foreign Missionary Society is organized on every charge. It will help on the revival.

Brethren, pray for us.

MRS. PAUL FOSTER,
District Secretary.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The District Conference for the Meridian District, Mississippi Conference, will convene at Leaksville June 14-17. The Conference will open at 10 o'clock a.m., preaching at 11 a.m., on the 14th, by Rev. F. M. Williams. We will have preaching twice each day; so brethren, come prepared to preach.

The following are some of the committees. Others will be appointed and announced at the opening session.

License to Preach—H. L. Norton, H. A. Gattin, W. A. Hayes.

Deacons' and Elders' Orders—L. F. Alford, B. W. Lewis, R. A. Breland.

Admission on Trial—L. F. Alford, F. M. Williams, D. Searborough.

Quarterly Conference Records—D. Ellis, E. W. Breland, S. N. Young.

Let all the pastors see to it that the local preachers have written reports, and that the Quarterly Conference records are presented for examination.

Time will be given to the representatives of the schools and college to present their interests; also to all connectional men.

We will have a sermon on missions on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. M. M. Black.

I beg of all who attend to come praying for a great revival. There will be preaching on Wednesday evening, the 13th, by Rev. B. W. Lewis, of Buckatunna.

Mr. Editor, we will be delighted to have you come and spend a few days with us.

FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 3.

THE GENTILE WOMAN'S FAITH.

(Mark vii, 24-30.)

Golden Text: "Great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt."—Matt. xv, 28.

To-day's lesson teaches us that there is a boundless power in faith that takes a whole lifetime to comprehend. The affairs of every-day life tend to weaken our confidence in our fellowmen, making us doubt that honor still lives. So we cannot learn the lesson of faith from man. Faith is the gift of God. God plants it in our hearts, and there, with other graces, like Hope and Charity, it will remain until called into action by volition. The true attitude of the child of God is that of the man whom Jesus was about to heal of disease, who replied, when asked if he believed: "Lord, I believe; help Thou mine unbelief;" or like the twelve, who said, after having been taught the lesson of forgiving seventy times seven, "Lord, increase our faith." Faith is a priceless treasure. Jesus was ever on the watch for it. On one occasion He said, "I have not found so great faith, no not in Israel," and on another He said, "When the Son of man cometh will He find faith on the earth?" If the Lord could not find faith among "the chosen seed of Israel's race," He did not hesitate to acknowledge it when evidenced among the Gentiles.

Our lesson shows us faith where we would least look for it. The fruits of this incident is intentionally manifold. We Gentiles are encouraged and comforted, and His own race is excited to jealousy. What a great field for study is faith. With faith we can please God; without faith it is impossible to please Him.

This woman, who heard of Jesus, left her sorrowful home and came to the Lord with a prayer born of faith, and a knowledge of Him to whom she prayed, for did she not say in crying after Jesus, "Thou Son of David?" She had even a knowledge of His lineage. She knew that He had never yet turned any away without first giving what was asked. So great was her faith, and so urgent was her need, that she would not be ignored, and persistent even to having a ready reply to a seemingly cruel statement from the Master. "Send her away," said the disciples, "for she cryeth after us." Jesus replied, not to the disciples, but to the woman: "I am not sent, but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." This fact from the mouth of the great Physician did not discourage the pleading mother, and she came close to the Lord and worshiped Him, and said only this: "Lord, help me!" What volumes are contained in these three words, "Lord, help me." All of a mother's love and devotion, all of a trusting faith, all of an anxious pleading of one who knew Him and of His power over disease and unclean spirits! Still farther did Jesus put this faithful one to the test by telling her that "The children first must be filled; it is not meet to take the children's bread and to cast it to dogs." This saying was enough to daunt the spirits of the most persistent, but the reply of the woman was as ready as if she anticipated the most fitting rejoinder. She said: "Truth, Lord, but the dogs eat of the crumbs that fall from their master's table." Jesus said: "O woman, great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt." The woman went home and found her daughter well.

There was a reaction in the minds of the disciples as the woman left rejoicing, after they had besought the Lord to dismiss her as a troublesome hanger-on. It is not for us to know who receive the blessings of God. There are many wrestling in secret. There was no one present, but Jacob and the angel after wrestling all night, and at the break of day, as Jacob prevailed, the angel said, "Let me go." I will not let thee go till thou bless me," said Jacob. Was Jacob worthy? In only that his faith sustained an all-night struggle. So, in the deep, dark night of unanswered prayer "men ought always to pray and not to feint." We know not how to pray as we ought, but God tells us in his holy Word that the Spirit, that sweet Comforter, makes intercession for us with groanings that cannot be uttered; there is no language sufficient to tell us of the force and power of these groanings of the Spirit, as He is helping us to obtain the blessing desired of the Father.

Our love for the blessed Redeemer and what we know of His love for us tells us that He intended to grant the poor Syro-Phoenician woman's request from the first. He wanted to teach His disciples and us the boundlessness of His love and mercy.

As we look on the loving deeds of our Lord while on earth we see a double motive — that of benefiting those under immediate need, and a lesson to all of His goodness and mercy. He gave even His life, and "poured out His soul unto death" for us, even while we were yet sinners. With the knowledge of all this, and ever learning more and more of His goodness, with what patience He must bear with us that have little faith!

The woman with the afflicted daughter allowed nothing to stop her appeal for help. "Lord help me," was a wail from her almost-despairing soul. Hear her! Whatever was done for the afflicted daughter was done for her. A prayer of this kind, prompted by love, could not fail to reach the heart of the Master, and be answered.

Our Lord was ever teaching His followers that all men everywhere were His children, and that He came to save the world without regard to race; even God's own chosen nations were to be the messengers of His redeeming love. "Other sheep I have, not of this fold," He said, and it took a vision, interpreted by an angel, to make Peter understand that Jesus was sent unto the Gentiles also. Whoever learns this, or anything else of Jesus' mission, must be taught of the Spirit. "He will show you the things of Christ." Let us take a lesson today of importunate prayer; let us remember that "prayer is the Christian's vital breath." Faith is the victory that overcometh all things, and if we have only enough to put us on our knees before God, never uttering a word, we will build on that foundation until we are strong in faith and enabled to produce its fruit—good works.

ADVERTISERS, ATTENTION!

New Orleans, La., May 21, 1906.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate,
New Orleans:

Dear Sirs—I am surprised at the results obtained from my advertisement in your paper. I am running practically the same advertisement in papers all over the South, including some of the largest dailies, and from none of them do I obtain so many answers.

The value of the New Orleans Christian Advocate to advertisers seems to be out of all proportion to its circulation. I attribute this to the fact that you exclude trashy advertisements. Your subscribers, therefore, have confidence in the statements of your advertisers.

Sincerely,
E. W. VACHER.

(The above is one of several testimonials gratuitously given the Advocate. Mr. Vacher came into our office the other day and made a verbal statement in effect as above, and congratulated us. We asked him to put his assertion in writing, which we reproduce. Our actual circulation is 6,200, distributed throughout the States of Mississippi and Louisiana. has he any interest in the paper. ex-Mr. Vacher is not a Methodist, neither cept insofar as his advertisement is concerned.)

A Baptist opinion of Dr. Van Dyke is given in the Watchman: "From a little distance Dr. Van Dyke looks like a very young man. In appearance he strikingly resembles the late Richard Montague, D.D. His light hair, thin, keen face, and alert movements belie his years. In his black gown a stranger would take him for the most youthful of the assistant ministers of the Church. As a preacher he is incisive and forcible, rather than fluent. His eloquence and power lie in his tremendous earnestness. Every fiber of his spare frame is alive. He not only has something to say, but something to say to those who are before him. At times the force of his utterance thrills like an electric shock, and it seems as if he would fairly reach down into the audience and grasp you by the collar in his intense desire to influence and to stir to right action. His language in preaching sometimes has the literary quality of his books, but is chiefly remarkable for its directness and unconventionality. This is plainly owing to a difference of aim. In the preface to 'The Blue Flower,' I think he prays to be kept from writing a book with a moral. On the other hand, the moral earnestness of his preaching is distinct and almost overwhelming."

Conformity to sound moral principles is not enough to entitle one to be called a Christian. A man may live a correct life outwardly, and at the same time be a pagan.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

Summer This Summer
IN COLORADO
Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. Time was when a visit to the "top of the Continent" was a great luxury, as high in price as in altitude, but not so to-day.
You can spend the Summer or a part of the Summer in Colorado and live as reasonably as you do at home, and the quick service and low tourist and excursion rates afforded via Rock Island lines bring the Rockies within your easy reach.
Our Booklets and Folders give the whole story.
WRITE TO-DAY.

Centreville, R. I., Sept. 17, 1902.
"On a recent journey to Alabama I have heard from a Jesuit Father of Mobile College, some wonderful cures from eczema, etc., from the use of Tetterine. I have several people of my congregation that are suffering from eczema, tetter, etc., for a number of years. Please send me two boxes by mail. I want to see what your Tetterine will do for them. I enclose one dollar.

MIRED IN SIN.

Much of such skepticism as is current among young men spring not from the head, but from the heart; it is begotten not of reflection, but of an evil life. Men do not believe in immortality because the life they are living on earth is a life not worth prolonging endlessly. Men do not believe in goodness. One is speaking of the way in which multitudes of young men are living and of their superficial beliefs. Happily, every man, deep down in his soul, knows that God is best, and that he ought to be good. Many a young man thinks he is mired in doubt when he is really mired in sin. He knows the truth, but he will not accept it and live by it. He knows what is right, but he will not do it. The only way out of such religious difficulties is suggested in the words of Jesus: "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine." "He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." The one service to render to multitudes of young men in this materialistic age is to bring them face to face with God and duty, and there in the stillness of their own souls let them settle their destiny. The lesson which, above all others in home and Church, needs to be impressed upon the youth of our day is that not money and not power and not knowledge, but goodness, is supreme; that, as Tennyson sings, "'tis only noble to be good."—The London Independent.

GLADNESS GOD'S IDEAL.

Gladness is God's ideal for his children. He means them to be sunny-faced and happy-hearted. He does not wish them to be heavy and sad. He has made the world full of beauty and full of music. The mission of the gospel is to start songs wherever it goes. Its keynote is joy—it is good tidings of great joy to all people.

We are commanded to rejoice always. This does not mean that the Christian's life is exempt from trouble, pain and sorrow. The gospel does not give us a new set of conditions with the hard things left out. The Christian's home is not sheltered from life's storms any more than is the worldly man's home. Sickness enters with its hot breath the circle where the voice of prayer is heard, as well as where no heart adores and where no knee bends before God.

In holiest home sanctuary the loving group gathers about the bed of death and there is the sorrow of bereavement. Nor is grief less poignant in the believer's case than in that of the man who knows not Christ. Grace does not make love less tender, the pang of separation less sharp, the sense of loss less keen, or the feeling of loneliness less deep. God does not give gladness to His children by making them incapable of suffering. This would be to make them incapable also of joy. For sorrow and joy come on the same stalk. A heart may be so dulled in its feeling as to be insensible to grief, but then it is no longer capable of love. Divine grace makes the heart all the more tender and the capacity for loving all the deeper; hence, it increases rather than lessens the measure of grief when separation comes. But the gladness of Christian faith is something which lies too deep to be disturbed by the waves and tides of earthly trouble. It has its source in the very heart of God. Sorrow is not prevented by grace, but is swallowed up in the floods of heavenly joy. That was what Jesus meant when He talked to His disciples of joy just as He was about to go out to Gethsemane. He said their sorrow should be turned into rejoicing, and that they should have a joy which the world could not take from them; that is, a joy which earth's deepest darkness could not put out. God's goodness is not the absence of sorrow, but divine comfort overcoming sorrow—sunshine striking through the black clouds, transfiguring them.—J. R. Miller, D.D.

HOW TO LIVE THROUGH THINGS.

Let us fix our eyes on the end of the journey. Travellers to Rome will go through a great many places that are not Rome. Even so travellers going to heaven will go through many places that are not heaven. Foolish as it would be for a man to express himself as disappointed in Rome because he did not find a Forum in Florence, even so foolish it is for Christians to express doubt or dismay about God's dealings because they do not find it all heaven in their earthly estate. So Joseph Mazzini wrote in one of his essays: "Pain and joy, deception and fulfilled hopes, are just the rain and the sunshine that must meet the traveller on his way. Button up your coat around you from the first, but do not think for a single moment that one or the other has anything to do with the end of the journey." It is God's wise dealings which gives us the experience of many things before it brings us to the crown of all things.—Sunday School Times.

A PLATE OF SOUP.

Something happened last winter, in Paris, that I shall place side by side with the widow's mite of the Gospel. You will remark the profound analogy, the close spiritual kinship of these two cases.

In the icy north wind of December a shelter was raised where warm soup was given to the unfortunate. A very old woman, who had long awaited her turn at length sat down and was served. Before she touched her portion, she noticed that a young robust workingman beside her had already consumed his with an avidity that betrayed that he was famished. At once she pushed her plate toward the workman and said to him, "I am not hungry: will you eat this?" The workman accepted.

But some one had noticed all that had passed. As they went out, he took the old woman aside and said to her, "You were not hungry then?" "Oh, yes," she answered, blushing, "but I am old and can bear it, and that poor young man was more in need of it than I."—Charles Wagner.

In this world the one thing supremely worth having is the opportunity to do worthily a piece of work the doing of which is of vital consequence to the welfare of mankind.—Roosevelt.

THE CONFIDENCE OF PRAYER.

God is never unwilling to bless His children. He does not need to be begged or persuaded or pleaded with. He is lovingly eager to crown and crown our lives with good things. We have His promise as to this, and we should pray in joyful recognition of His promise, not in doubting entreaty. When a corporation makes public announcement that a dividend has been declared and will be paid upon application, it is for those who are entitled to the dividend to claim it, not appeal for it. Prayer is a claim, not an appeal. There are blessings that God will not send unless we pray for them; but that is because, for our good, He has conditioned His sending of them upon the merit of the Son and the promise of the Father, we are to make it the more confidently.—Sunday School Times.

GREAT HUMILITY.

If there is one tribute more than another that distinguishes the true Churchman from the man of the world, it is humility. When we see a man marked out from his fellowmen by the profound respect with which he is generally regarded, and the tribute of sincere affection paid to his character by his brother Churchmen, we may rest assured that humility is the soil which has nourished the chaste and beautiful flowers of respect and affection. Alas, that there should be so little of it! How earnestly we should all strive to obtain it, and with what sincerity pray "that all mankind should follow the example of His great humility"—"who made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men."—Southern Churchman.

No cloud can overshadow a true Christian but his faith will discern a rainbow in it.—Bishop Horne.

LETTER FROM GILDEROY.

Well, I was greatly pleased with all that the General Conference did, and much more pleased with some things it did not do. I think we got three good men for Bishops. There seemed to be some difficulty in selecting the last stick of Bishop timber. The few remaining sticks were so nearly equal that it was hard to decide which one to take. The Holston (or, as Bishop Asbury spells it, the "Holstein") man came in on the home-stretch and got the vote on the final ballot. He is a good man for the place. I wanted to see Dr. Tigert made Bishop, but I did not want to loose him from the Review. He has made us a fine Review. I got spoiled on Reviews in the days of A. T. Bledsoe. It has been difficult for me to find a Review to my liking since his day. I know but little of Dr. Ward. All I know of him is in his favor. He is from Texas, and I am glad of that. Texas is the biggest thing in all Southern Methodism. She ought to have a Bishop or two of her own home-raised product—men native to the soil.

The reports of the proceedings of the General Conference in the secular papers were the fullest and the best I have ever seen of a religious gathering. I suppose the reporter was the Burrow of the Midland Methodist. He knows how to report, and what to report. Church meetings ought to have their own reporters. The Daily Advocate came every day—often two and three numbers at a time. I subscribed for it, but friends in Birmingham, knowing that I lived in a corner, sent me extra copies. I have the Daily on file. Some great speeches were made. The fraternal messengers were at their best. Dr. Young J. Allen made a great talk on conditions in the East. That was a great speech made by Dr. Tillett on a restatement of our creed by all of the branches of our Methodism. That was a wonderful and masterful talk by Bishop Wilson in opposition to it. I rose to the heights with him and shouted for joy, but I voted with Dr. Tillett. I am for the restatement, and have been for some years past. Any way, the wheat of this subject was all pretty well thrashed out in the General Conference, and we need not be flailing over the old straw in the papers for the next four years. We would not get enough grain to pay for the labor and the space.

I have rewritten the twenty-five articles many a time for my own instruction, and in an effort to help a young preacher to understand them. I did not hurt them by putting them in other words, nor did I change the sense and meaning of a single one of them. A restatement of them will not hurt the articles, and it may help some poor, struggling soul to a better understanding of them. There are comparatively few young preachers, or old ones either, as big of brain as John Wesley or A. W. Wilson. The restatement needs to be made for the weaker folk.

That great speech of Bishop Wilson's and the speeches of others of the Bishops were contrary to the established usages and precedents of our Methodism, and they may be cited as pretexts to disturb us on other subjects in the years to come. A tender regard for what is written or for the unwritten law of usage would have led the Bishops to decline the privileges of the floor, even at the request of the Conference. If the Conference may invite the Bishops, or others not members of the body, to speak on pending questions, it might also invite them to vote on these questions. The privileges of the floor to speak on pending questions are about equal to the privileges of the ballot to vote on them. The Bishops can express their dissent in a veto. In this case the General Conference was carried away by the exhilaration of its own momentum. The heights of the arguments brought on a dizziness of the heads of the members. Any way, it was a great occasion, and those were great speeches. Some of them will go down in history to generations yet to come. This action is an event, and it may be the beginning of an era in the history of world-wide Methodism. Let us hope that God is in this movement and that the Holy Ghost will guide in the completion of the work begun in Birmingham.

The removal of the time-limit was not a very great or grand question. If it had been done it would not have changed anything, except that it would have allowed the Bishops to have sent a few exceptional men to a few exceptional places for a longer term than four years.

Yours, GILDEROY.

Lula, Miss.

LARGE DISTRICTS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Please allow me a word on the current topic at the head of this paper?

What I have seen, with slight exception, seems to me to be based upon sentiment rather than reasons. Sentiment is pleasant to indulge at times, but is often very much in the way of advancement. I think a much better principle by which to consider this question is economy. There is no good reason for saying that the consideration of money has no place in this discussion. The fact is, God is the most rigid economist known to the world of intelligences. Not a leaf, a speck of dust, a drop of water, escapes from Him, or its place in the manipulation of the universe. Therefore, let us look at this question in the light of economy.

There is a more important economy than that of money. The judicious disposition of life's capacities is of much more importance than the financial interests. Can a man oversee the spiritual interests of twenty-five or thirty appointments with the aids he has? It is well, in the consideration of this question, to remember, that oversee does not mean to do those things that are necessary to the building up of the district, but to see that others do them. How can this be done? By talking to the pastors and the officers in the Quarterly Conferences, being strictly cautiously, and at the same time earnestly, devoted to these things. Let there be a stiffening up of purpose, and a closer application of energy by those who have these interests in hand; less loitering and light and useless occupation of time. This is much more important than a Saturday and Sunday Quarterly Conference. The careful use of the presiding elder's time is the thing to be considered at a meeting, more than the time of the week.

The economy of time is something, too. Saturday and Sunday, out of seven days, is scarcely giving one's entire time to the work. Certainly there is some writing to do between times, and a few other things to be done, but in the work of the district there are likely to be three or four days of each week lost on the Saturday and Sunday plan. It will probably be said, that those days should be used in reading and study. If a district is given him that will be proportioned so that he can do that, the saying is correct. But districts are not made with reference to study and reading. I have heard of one ex-presiding elder, who made, week in and week out, three new sermons. I have not had the pleasure of hearing any of said sermons and don't know on what designs they are constructed, but I can testify to the fact, that while acting as presiding elder, I did not make three sermons a week, nor an average of one.

The Saturday and Sunday plan is over-rated any way, in my opinion, and I have had eight years' experience, and ought to speak with some reliable information. As I have seen it, the laymen attend those meetings on Saturday, if at all, and return to their homes Saturday afternoon. In a great majority of cases, this is so. They could then attend on another week day as well. The presiding elder's work is narrowed down to the church where he is carried by the preceding Conference, with very little exception.

The economy of money is another consideration. It is not reasonable to cast this question away without thought. Last year the North Mississippi Conference handled in the various interests of the church, according to the Minutes, $214,067, of which amount, $103,876 was paid for superintendence. This includes all salaries. I suppose our Conference is an average. What other enterprise pays such a per cent. of its income in salaries? I am not complaining that the preachers are paid too much, but would give them enough to do to pay for their hire.

CORRECT STATEMENT.

The following is a stenographic report of statement made by Dr. W. F. McMurry during the taking of the ballot for the election of Bishops at the General Conference, May 17, 1906. It is given here to correct a misapprehension in the minds of some who misunderstood Dr. McMurry's words. Rising in his place, Dr. McMurry said:

"A question of privilege, if you please. I do not believe any honor can come to an itinerant Methodist preacher greater than the honor implied in the expression of his brethren by their votes that he is thought worthy, by even a few of them, of the chief office of our Church. I have no language to express the appreciation that I feel toward brethern who have been kind enough to consider so unworthy a servant of the church as myself in relation to this chief office. I felt when we adjourned at the noon hour that the wise course for the General Conference to pursue would be to make a decision among those who had received a large number of votes for the place remaining to be filled. I was frank enough to speak to several of my friends the sentiment I felt. I have been not a little uncomfortable, and I was so impressed during the long, hot hours of the afternoon, as I realized that possibly enough votes were being cast for me to prevent the General Conference from reaching a conclusion on this subject. I honestly thought that the wise course would be to drop the names where few votes were being cast and to make a selection in other quarters. It would have been entirely agreeable to me at any time for my brethren to do as my brethren who are nearer to me by Conference relation than any other have done on some ballots. Conscious that this is a delicate situation that I occupy—a matter on which, perhaps, I have no right to speak—I have had it in my heart to say this—that I believe it would be a wise course if we could get together in this election, that the General Conference might go forward with its work. And I hope no brotherly consideration of me will impede the progress of the General Conference, looking to that end."

ON THE WING.

Dear Dr. Boswell: On May 2 I left home to attend the Sunday School Institute, held at Columbia, an old, historic town, situated in Marion County, Miss., near Pearl River. One branch of the G. S. and I. Railroad passes through there, making a great contrast in the appearance now and 1870—when I last saw it, until the convening of the institute.

I was accompanied by Sister Saida Pridgeon, one of my Sunday School scholars at old Hebron Church, in what is now Hebron Circuit. We arrived in Ellisville, Miss., in due time to dine, and spent several hours very pleasantly with Brother W. J. Dawson, who is stationed at that place.

We got aboard the south-bound train on the Northeastern Road, due at 4:26 p.m. We arrived at Lumberton about sunset. While it is a station, and Rev. E. H. Mounger, an old wartime preacher, is domiciled in the parsonage there, I confess that, after looking over the town, I had not the faintest conception of its appearance. I found many stately residences, several large mercantile establishments, and everything indicated thrift and enterprise on the part of its inhabitants. A few minutes' walk from the depot, we found ourselves comfortably entertained by Mrs. Julia Lane, who was our hostess, also a daughter-in-law of this scribe. We spent our time very pleasantly until Friday, when we again got aboard the train on the G. S. and I. Branch, bound for Columbia, where we arrived about 3 o'clock p.m. I found my eldest brother at the depot, awaiting our arrival to conduct us to his home. Twenty-four years have passed since I last paid him a visit. The pleasure of visiting daughter-in-law and brother, and attending the institute, hearing the lectures of Dr. and Mrs. Hamill, meeting a number of old acquaintances and brethren in the work, made it to me as delightful a trip as I ever took.

On May 5 Sister Emma Easterling, a delegate to the institute, arrived at Columbia on the morning train from Jackson, where she had been attending the State Teachers' Association convention. I met Sister Emma and conducted her to the home of my brother, where we spent our time very pleasantly until our return on the 9th.

The Institute did not convene till Monday night, May 7. I wish every Sunday school superintendent—yes, every teacher and parent—could hear Dr. and Mrs. Hamill lecture. I think it would engender more zeal and foster a greater Sunday school spirit than now exists.

It is sad, indeed, to note the indifference of parents in our Sunday schools; most of them are too lazy and cold spiritually to go themselves or arrange for their children to go. The consequence is that in many localities in towns, as well as in the country, we see boys and girls going to the bad for want of religious training. So few parents seem to realize the great responsibility that rests upon them and the value of souls intrusted to their care. Methinks I hear many children say: I never heard my parents pray.

More anon. God bless you and the Advocate.

PERSONAL RESULTS OF BIBLE STUDY.

For fourteen years I have written Sunday school lessons for the Sunday School Times without missing a single week. They have been written from all continents, on both ends of the world.

What are the results of such study?

1. An ever-deepening impression of the immeasurable richness of the Word of God. As literature, the Bible is rich in felicitous and intense expression. It has more of the essence of poetry than any other book. It has enriched our language incredibly. It ennobles the humblest reader till his horizons reach to infinity and his roof domes over all the stars. The world bears evidence of wisdom, power and adaptation to our education and needs past our finding out, much more past our creation. The more we study and use the world, the richer in wisdom, power and adaptation it becomes. It is so with the world. The world and the Word are both evidently from the same source. The world's sparrows, lilies, clouds, seekers of hid treasures, sowers of grain, relations of sons and fathers, husbands and wives, are admirable, though feeble expressions of those spiritual relations portrayed in the Word. It is no wonder that Paul prays that the eyes of the understanding of his Ephesian converts be enlightened, or that the Psalmist prays: "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law." Human faculties, without vivifying grace, are not sufficient for these things of infinite mind.

2. The best ideas and ideals for the human race are in the Word of God. No human poet ever dreamed, no philosopher ever evolved from the depth of his consciousness, no optimist ever imagined the things God has prepared for them that love Him. He that begins with a rectification of the man's nature, the addition of faculties by a new birth; goes on by the constant illumination and leading into all truth by the present activity of the Holy Spirit and the stimulus of truth newly discovered by every student. The ideal is the spirit of a just man made perfect in a perfect state. It is no wonder that under such conditions one comes into experience that are, as Paul says, "impossible to word" in the poor speech of men; that we are told that, by taking the necessary preliminary steps of being strengthened by the Spirit in the inner man, we may thoroughly comprehend the length and breadth and depth and height of the love of God that passeth knowledge, and be filled in every faculty with all the fulness of God. To these unspeakable heights the Bible leads up by a thousand steps.

3. The Word is still alive with effective power. The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, they are essential life. They are alive themselves. A word spoken into a dead ear makes it hear, to a dead Lazarus makes him come forth. Essential life does not die. The effect of the words "Let there be light" still throb through the celestial spaces. So all the other words of Christ keep us effectively alive and life-giving in the realms to which they are addressed as when first spoken.

The potencies of the Old and New Testaments happened as sample cases, and are recorded for us to exercise our minds upon till we comprehend the doing of the like.

4. Study of the Word makes the Psalmist's experience modern: "Oh, how love I thy law!" (Psalm 199, 97-105.)—Bishop H. W. Warren, in the Sunday School Times.

ONLY A BROKEN KNIFE-BLADE.

A ship was once wrecked on the Irish coast. The captain was a careful one. Nor had the weather been of so severe a kind as to explain the wide distance to which the vessel had swerved from her proper course. The ship went down, but so much interest was attached to the disaster that a diver was sent down. Among other portions of the vessel which were examined was the compass, which was swung on deck; and inside the compass-box was detected a bit of steel, which proved to be the small point of a pocket-knife blade. It appeared that the day before the wreck a sailor sent to clean the compass had used his pocket-knife in the process, and had unconsciously broken off the point and left it remaining in the box. The bit of knife-blade exerted its influence on the compass, and to a degree which deflected the needle from its proper bent, and spoiled it as an index of the ship's direction. That piece of knife-blade wrecked the vessel.

Even one trifling sin, as small as a broken knife point, as it were, is able to rob the conscience of peace and happiness.—Rev. John McNeil.

A LETTER FROM "CIRCUIT RIDER."

Dear Dr. Boswell: I indorse in toto the article in the ADVOCATE of May 24 from Dr. Jas. M. Weems on the action of the General Conference in the appointment of a commission to act jointly with commissions from other branches of Methodism in a restatement of our faith and doctrines.

The action of the Conference was a surprise to me, and I believe to Methodists generally. I did not know that Methodists anywhere were "calling in our day" for "a restatement of our faith and doctrines," or "for such a statement of our faith and such an expression of our doctrinal system as is called for in our day."

Who it was that "called" upon those preachers and laymen, or whose "calling" it was that influenced them, is yet to be learned. Certainly they were not called upon by Methodists to take such a step. It is greatly feared they heard some voices which they mistook for Methodist voices. It reminds me of the farmer who called hogs one morning and a fellow on the adjoining plantation thought the Lord was calling him to preach. Methodists have not called for a restatement of our faith and doctrines, and I am afraid the General Conference mistook the voice. I would certainly like to know to whom "called for in our day" refers? Never having heard a Methodist make such a call, I would like to be enlightened.

It not only seems that the General Conference ignored the first restrictive rule, but that the twenty-five articles of religion are "behind the times" in doctrine, clearness, etc.

I suggest the following restatement of a few of our tenets:

1. "There is but one living and true God, everlasting, without body or parts; of infinite power, wisdom and goodness; the Maker and Preserver of all things, both visible and invisible," etc.

Restatement: "There is only a single existing and veritable Deity, endless, not having corporeal organization or divisions; of immeasurable capacity, sagacity, and benefit; the Producer and Maintainer of every material and spiritual substance, the one and the other of that which is perceptible and imperceptible, or distinguishable and indistinguishable," etc.

2. "Holy Scripture containeth all things necessary to salvation; so that whatsoever is not read therein, nor may be proved thereby, is not to be required of any man, that it should be believed as an article of faith, or be thought requisite or necessary to salvation," etc.

Since the above is out of date, and hard to be understood (and since some do not know what Methodists believe), let the committees change, as follows:

"There is in the Bible everything essential to rescue; whatever cannot be found between its sacred lids is not to be subscribed to by any descendant of Adam and Eve, or regarded as a condition to get to heaven," etc.

3. "Christ did truly rise again from the dead, and took again his body," etc.

Restatement: "Jesus certainly was resuscitated in the grave, and seized once more his material organization."

4. "The offering of Christ, once made, is that perfect redemption for all the sins of the whole world," etc.

Restatement: "The presentment of Jesus, once presented, is that indeficient recovery, conciliation, and remuneration for the unrighteousness of the entire cosmos."

5. "We are accounted righteous before God, only for the merit of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, by faith, and not for our own works or deservings; wherefore, that we are justified by faith only, is a most wholesome doctrine, and very full of comfort."

Restatement: "We are considered uncorrupt before God solely on account of the worthiness of Christ, by belief, and not for our own performance or earnings; wherefore, that we are vindicated by assent only, is a salutiferous tenet, and occupied to the brim with consolation."

It seems to me that the above "restatement" ought to satisfy all who "reaffirm belief" in our doctrines; but who desire a restatement, "as is called for in our day."

A "restatement" similar to the above would be so much more elucidative to Methodists! Sinners would tumble over each other seeking the Methodist Church!! The whole Christian world would renounce their befogged creeds and unite with Methodists!!!

Seriously, it would give the writer pleasure for every branch of Methodism to turn a deaf ear to the pleading of our General Conference; even the colored M. E. Church, which looks to the "mother" for light.

Let all who desire versatility and restatement read our catechisms and standards of doctrine. Our articles of religion cannot be improved upon. They are clear and "up-to-date" enough, and are as immutable and impregnable as Jehovah.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The 14th Annual meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society came to a close on the night of May 8th. The meetings were held in the First Christian Church of Baton Rouge, owing to some repairs that were being done on the Methodist Church. The whole session was one of interest and enjoyment and profit. The President's message, read on the opening day, was full of encouragement, and stressed the fact that a constant devotion to God was a necessary requirement in all officers and members who wished to do the best work.

Addresses of welcome were given by Rev. E. K. Means, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Baton Rouge, on behalf of the church, and by Mrs. E. L. Woodside, for the Ladies' Aid, whose guests we were on this occasion. The response was given by Mrs. Crow Girard, of Lafayette.

A very profitable and enjoyable feature of the meeting was a review of the books in the Home Mission Reading Course, led by Mrs. E. R. Kennedy. Most of these books treat of the social problems that confront the church, and tell in a graphic way the hardships and temptations that stand in the way of the advancement of the poor, and offer solutions to the perplexing questions of how to meet these conditions. These books were ably reviewed by Mrs. E. A. Lyons, Mrs. J. B. Parker, Mrs. R. C. Holt, Mrs. R. H. Harper, Mrs. Dan Gillman, and Mrs. E. R. Kennedy.

The reports of the Treasurer and the Corresponding Secretary showed an increase in membership, and a gain in finances. During the past year three parsonages have been helped to the extent of $100 each, and we have obligated ourselves to assist two more this year to the amount of $350.

If the women of Southern Methodism could be made to realize the importance of their 10 cents per month paid into this Home Mission work, every woman in the church would become a member of this Home Mission band. It deprives you of very little, perhaps nothing, my sister, to give this dime, and by withholding it, you are causing many, many of God's children to suffer—causing it because you are withholding your little mite from the Lord's treasury.

Mrs. J. B. Parker, Superintendent of press work in Louisiana, gave an illustrated talk on her work. This department has grown and developed under her wise leadership, and the "Monthly Bulletin" is now read in most of the auxiliaries.

Encouraging reports from the district secretaries and representatives of auxiliaries were given.

Mrs. E. E. Russ made a talk on the need of information about Home Mission work, and stressed the importance of reading the organ of the society, "Our Homes." As a result, many present pledged themselves to raise a certain number of subscriptions during the next year.

Mrs. E. E. Riggs, President of the New Orleans Teachers' Association, gave a lecture on "Compulsory Education," and urged the co-operation of the Woman's Home Mission Society in this great work for the children.

Mrs. J. B. Hobbs' paper on "The Foreigner in New Orleans" has created a world of favorable comment, and enlisted thought and sympathy on this grave question that stares in the face the Christian people of New Orleans, as well as all of God's thinking people.

The annual sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. W. E. Boggs, of First Church, Shreveport. It was a masterful discourse from the text, "The world is the field."

The work of the Home Mission Society was presented on Sunday night by Mrs. E. A. Lyons, President of the Louisiana Conference Society. A feature of this session was a lecture by Prof. J. B. Aswell, Superintendent of Education in Louisiana. He spoke of the duty we owed the children, and how interdependent are the homes, schools, and churches. He urged the necessity of the home-training under good mothers, and spoke of the God-given privilege of leading one of these little ones into light and truth.

Two new Home Mission auxiliaries were organized before we left Baton Rouge. One at First Church, the other at Second Methodist Church.

The election of officers was held at the last afternoon session of the Society. Before the votes were cast for president, Mrs. E. A. Lyons, who has been our president for fourteen years, asked to be relieved of her office. She stated that other very urgent duties surrounded her, and she felt she should give up this office, although her heart would still be with the cause of Home Missions, and she would never lose her great interest in the work in our Conference.

Mrs. Carre, first vice-president; Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. C. Holt, treasurer, and others spoke of the great work Mrs. Lyons had accomplished, and her influence on them in this cause.

A standing vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Lyons for her long and earnest work with us. Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, former corresponding secretary, was elected by a unanimous vote to fill the vacancy. After a few words from Mrs. Kennedy, expressing her hesitation in taking up the work that so able a president had lain down, the election proceeded, and the following officers were named: Mrs. W. W. Carre, first vice-president; Mrs. E. E. Russ, second vice-president; Mrs. B. C. English, third vice-president; Mrs. X. M. Zable, recording secretary; Mrs. J. B. Hobbs, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. C. Holt, treasurer.

It was then in order to name the next meeting place, and it was decided to meet March 22, 1907, at Lafayette, La.

THE CHILD'S MORNING HYMN.

Jesus, keep me all this day
When at school and when at play;
When I work and when I rest;
Bless me, and I shall be blest.

Keep my body free from pain,
Keep my soul from sinful stain;
Bread supply for daily need,
Help me on Thy truth to feed.

May I do all things I ought,
May I hate each evil thought,
Let no false or angry word
From my lips this day be heard.

May I serve Thee here below,
Serve Thee when to heaven I go,
Serve and love and trust in Thee
Now and through eternity.

GRANNY.

The door slammed with a noise which shook the house. Upstairs the children stirred in their sleep. The hot color slowly faded from the woman's face as she stood and listened to the sound of heavy feet dying away in the distance.

"I've angered 'im," she said at length, and she sank wearily into a chair. All the defiance had left her voice; a sob trembled in its place. "I've angered 'im, and now—now 'es gone to the public-ouse."

"E'll come back again—the men always do," said Granny, speaking in curious cracked tones from the corner by the miserable fire.

"Ay, 'e'll come back; but 'ow?" asked her daughter, bitterly. "I've angered 'im, as if things wasn't bad enough already. But when the children cry for bread a woman must speak, or go mad."

The last word broke from her like a cry of pain. It let loose the silent misery of the long day. She put her elbows on the table, and buried her face in her hands.

She was a slatternly-looking woman, with faded hair and hopeless eyes. Poverty had weakened her body; care had broken her spirit. Her married life had been a story of slow deterioration.

From her corner Granny watched the bowed figure at the table. Her own emotions were no longer easily stirred. She had outlived her old griefs, and few sorrows could touch her again. Time had by no means dealt with her kindly. She looked an unlovely figure, as she sat by the dying fire with her shawl drawn tightly across her thin shoulders. Her eyes were dull and faded, and innumerable wrinkles covered her yellow face. In that crowded home, where bread was scarce, it was almost inevitable that her presence should be resented. She was quite aware of that fact. She knew the meaning of her daughter's growing irritability, of the sharp answer and the half-veiled hint. Sometimes when her son-in-law was in one of his worst moods he told her the truth in brutal words. But Granny kept her mouth shut tight, and bore it all without complaint. The only fear that she had never outgrown was her fear of the workhouse. She regarded it with unreasonable horror. To her there was agony in the thought that she might one day become an inmate of the great gloomy-looking building which stood on the hill outside the town. Sometimes her fear haunted her sleeping and waking. Her fancy surrounded the place with all the terrors of a prison. Latterly this dread had never left her; it had kept growing every day. For weeks her son-in-law had been out of work. It was bitter winter weather, employment was scarce, and he was only one of the many who tramped the streets all day, and at night went home to their wives with empty pockets. To-day the work-house had loomed larger than ever in Granny's imagination. The rent collector had called in the morning; he was a hard man, and Granny, sitting silent in her corner, had heard in fear and trembling. That day, too, there had been no dinner for the children when they came home from school. In the afternoon her daughter had gone out on another of those errands which had become so frequent of late, and when she got back, there was no wedding-ring on her finger.

A child's cry. It was the cry of the child she loved—the baby girl who had come unwelcomed into that poor home a year ago. But Granny had taken the little stranger to her heart and grown to love it with a passion which she had never felt for any living thing before. Perhaps the fact that they were both so unwanted helped to account for this experience which had brought such sweetness into her sunless life. She did not care particularly for the other children; the baby absorbed all her new-born affection. In Granny's eyes it was the prettiest thing in the world. Her arms were never tired of holding that light burden. She would sit for hours talking to it in some unintelligible language of love, her wrinkled face grown soft and tender, the sweet instincts of motherhood astir within her heart once more. Sometimes the baby's little hands would lead her gently back through all the sorrow-laden years of the past to the sunny land of childhood and the days when she had walked near to the kingdom of heaven.

Again the feeble cry came from the room above. The sound roused the weeping woman.

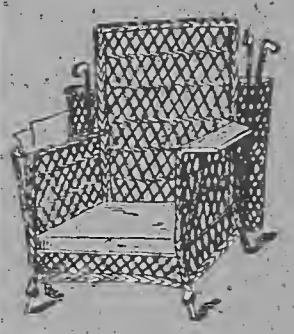
"The child's ill!" she exclaimed; "To-day at the dispensary the doctor says: 'Why don't you give 'er the food I ordered? She'll never be well till you do.' But what's the good of talkin' like that? Food?—there ain't food for no one in this 'ouse."

She rose to her feet, wiping her eyes with the back of her hand, but Granny was before her.

"I'll go," she said, and with a new fear come upon her she mounted the stairs. The child had been ailing for days: why was she not getting better? With tender, trembling hands she lifted the tiny form from the bed. How pinched and white the small face looked in the dim candle-light. With a rush of tenderness she strained the baby to her heart, crooning over it inarticulate words of love. Presently it fell asleep again, but it was long before Granny stirred. Born of her fear for the child, a new thought had taken possession of her mind. She tried to drive it away; she struggled to get free from the clinging horror of the suggestion: her whole being rose up in passionate revolt against this demand of love. And still the thought grew, and grew.

All night she lay awake battling with the hideous thing, and when the gray dawn stole into the room she knew that she was conquered. She knew that on the morrow she must go up to the big house on the hill, so that there might be one less in the crowded home. It was all for the sake of the child she loved; she said to herself that there would be more food for the baby when she had gone away. To-morrow—not to-day—she must feel the child in her arms one day longer. Afterwards they would be empty, always empty!

All day she sat in her corner as usual; all day she held the baby in her arms. Every hour her love took deeper root; every hour her treasure slipped from her grasp. And the night drew nearer and nearer. When there was no longer the baby to hold, Granny went early to bed. A sudden weakness had come over her; she was very, very tired. And to-morrow she would need all her strength. She crept into the room where the baby lay asleep. It was her last look, for as soon as morning broke she was going to steal away to meet her fate at the work-house gates. For a long while she hung over the bed. A tear fell on the child's face. Once she had thought that her tears were all dried up. She was roused at last by a sound from below. Hurriedly she pressed her lips to the baby's forehead; then she turned away and went blindly from the room.



* * * * * * *

Next morning Granny was late in coming down. At last, with the baby in her arms, her daughter went up to wake her. Some rare feeling stirred in the woman's heart, and rebuked her impatience.

"Wake up, Granny!" she cried. "'Ere's good news! Tom 'as got work at last."

She bent over the bed, and put her hand on Granny's shoulder. The baby held out its arms, and crowed with feeble delight. But Granny still slept on.—London Christian World.

MY PRAYER.

Be pleased, O Lord, to give me rest,
As some tired bird within its nest.
The tempest winds have driven far
From sheltering rock and friendly tree—
May I not find my rest in thee?
I beg for rest.

Be pleased, O Lord, to give me rest,
As some scared doe with heaving breast
Outwinds the pack, and, safe at last,
Sinks into sleep and feels no fear
Of panting hound or huntsman near.
So let me rest.

The ox afield through burning heat
Plods his short day with cloven feet;
Then, turning to his master's crib,
Finds food for oxhood there and strength.
May wearied man not find at length
His food and rest?

The sailor whom ill winds have driven
On trackless seas, neath trackless heaven,
Finds somewhere friendly port wherein
His stress-worn barge may safely land
Within the bar or by the strand.
May I not rest?

I do not pray the rest of death,
Or senile years with shortened breath,
In this my simple, honest prayer;
I seek that rest in thee which makes
Men true and brave for others' sakes.
Grant me this rest!

OUR TITHES.

What we are waiting for and longing hopefully to see is the consecration of the vast money power of the world to the work and cause and kingdom of Jesus Christ; for that day, when it comes, will be the morning, so to speak, of the new creation. That tide-wave in the money-power can as little be resisted, when God brings it, as the tides of the sea; "and like these also, it will flow across the world in a day." Oh, for the uprising of this tide! In the history of America there have been many revivals, and each has had its own distinctive peculiarities. There has been a revival marked by attention to the preaching of the Word; there has been a revival like that in 1858 in New York, marked by a wonderful outpouring of prayer. Each has had its own peculiarity. What I would like to see now is a revival that shall be marked by Christian giving, by sacrifice for Christ. I say "sacrifice." Men wait until the cup is full, and give the overflow to Christ, and call that "sacrifice," forgetting that the whole contents of the cup are His. We hear a great deal of "systematic benevolence." I wish it were more systematic—and of "the Lord's portion." But what is "the Lord's portion?" The Old Testament tithe? No, no; the New Testament Levites are the whole church, the New Testament priesthood are the universal priesthood of believers and the New Testament tithe is all that a man has. So let us look at ourselves as stewards.—Rev. William Taylor, D.D.

BROTHERHOOD AND EXPERIENCE.

There is no way of helping men but by bearing what they bear. No man will lighten a sorrow of which he has not himself felt the pressure. The saviors of society have still to be crucified. Jesus Christ would never have been the Lamb of God that bore away the sins of the world unless He Himself had "taken our infirmities" and "borne our sicknesses." No work of healing will be done except by those whose hearts have bled with the feeling of the miseries which they have set themselves to cure. You must take blind beggars by the hand, if you are going to make them see; and you must not be afraid to lay your white, clean fingers upon the feculent masses of corruption in the leper's glistening whiteness, if you are going to make him whole. Get down in order to lift, and remember that without sympathy there is no sufficient help, and without communion with Christ there is no sympathy.—Alexander MacLaren.

GOD'S SAINTS.

Many of Paul's letters are addressed to "the saints." Therefore it is important to know what constitutes a "saint" from the Apostle's standard—what class of people he had in mind when those letters were sent out, and who in the world to-day can personally appropriate the blessed promises which they contain. In the New Testament the name is used fifty-seven times, applied to persons of various classes and conditions of worldly prosperity. Not until the fourth century was the term limited to a few persons constituting a kind of spiritual nobility, which is not scriptural. Who, then, are "the saints?" Those who are "in Christ Jesus;" the faithful ones in Christ.

It was a cold, bitter day in mid-winter; the gray, lowering clouds portended a heavy storm. Some people were journeying through a bleak, unprotected country, when they came to a beautiful place. The house was homelike in appearance and exceedingly attractive to these wayworn travelers. One of the party suggested that they ask shelter until the storm was over, which they did, and were most cordially welcomed. Their every need was anticipated, and comforts were provided for them. For days the storm raged. Some of the company joyfully accepted the providential deliverance, conforming to the customs of that home, the standard of which was evidently of the highest type of culture. Others of the party were restless and discontented, complaining of this and that, but most of all grumbling about the storm which had driven them to secure shelter instead of pushing on; their hearts and thoughts were all of the city of their destination.

These travelers represent two classes of Christians; neither class is without sin, both have sought the shelter of the cross, both have faith in Christ. But in the first class are those who are living in Christ Jesus; their whole being is for Him; their life is conformed to the Sermon on the Mount as the Magna Charta of his kingdom; not to earn a place in it, but because they love the King, and He has said: "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments." Their hearts are not in the world, wishing for its pleasures and possessions; they are entirely loyal to their King, and His interests are theirs. The most wonderful part of their life is its growing beauty—the glad surprises on the way as now and again they catch glimpses of the glory of their King.

Those of the other class are a type only too familiar; they want both the blessings of Christ's kingdom and all the alluring pleasures offered by the world. They are always asking: "Why cannot we have and do these things: wherein is the wrong?" The result is disastrous to service and to happiness.

There are most marvelous promises given to the saints; one in particular is very precious. It is variously expressed, but the idea is the same. "The saints shall judge the world." How exceedingly improbable does that seem to many an oppressed one! But it is true, as God's Word is true; and now is the opportunity to prepare for the responsibilities and honors which await Christ's people at His coming. It rests the heart, and imparts fresh inspiration to look forward to the future when Jesus shall indeed reign from shore to shore, and with Him those who have been faithful; having shared with Him in the humiliation, they will also have a part in the glory.

Knowing these things, it is of the utmost importance that His people avail themselves of all the advantages given for the highest development of character. If they suffer, they will understand how best to sympathize with suffering; if they are persecuted, in the coming ages they can render just and merciful judgment to the oppressed. The Lord sends to each one personally that which will best prepare him for this life in the future; if he will so live in Christ Jesus as to discern the daily lesson and profit from the teaching, there will be no need then of the words of regret: "If I had only known the time of my visitation."—H. M. McClusky, in Christian Work.

AN APPEAL.

The books of the ADVOCATE Office show that many dollars are due us on subscriptions. The publisher is sending out this week many bills. We hope those who receive them will promptly respond. What each person owes is small, but in the aggregate the amount due us is large, and we need the money. The printers' wages must be met every week, and monthly bills must be paid. What is called the "dull season" is right upon us, and all that is due us is needed. We appeal confidently to our friends to pay up and renew. It will tide us over, and we will be glad and thankful. If you cannot pay all, send us what you can spare. If unable to pay anything just now, say so, and we will patiently wait. We do not care to lose a single friend. Let us hear from you soon. We will feel comfortable.

THE LAST DAYS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The last days of the General Conference were not exactly tame and uninteresting, but they were not so full of excitement as they had been. Supreme interest centered in the elections. It really seemed as if some brethren thought they had something at stake, or something to be gained by exercising their right of franchise. This is said of men—laymen and preachers—who had no aspirations, and no ground to expect any kind of an office. They had friends and desired to see them promoted. This was all right. But it was all wrong to lose interest and go home after the elections. We suspect, though, that the delegates who remained were in a better condition to consider and transact business after they had fought and won, or fought and lost, than they were during the excitement.

Very much of the important work was done during the last week. It was in this time that the propositions to revise our ritual—especially for the baptism of infants, and the burial of the dead—were considered. With one or two memorials the committee failed to concur, and the report was easily disposed of. In others favorable reports were made by the committee, but they were contested in open Conference, and failed to pass. The result was the appointment of a commission to "revise the ritual, and report to the next General Conference," an easy way of putting off a hard piece of work.

Another effort was made to amend the law by which unordained preachers-in-charge were authorized to perform the marriage ceremony. But so determined were the majority to confer authority on the preacher-in-charge (the disciplinary term is used, instead of the popular word, pastor) that the best to be done was to give him authority to perform the rite of matrimony where it "does not conflict with the civil law." In states where "ordination" is required, as in North Carolina, and in Arkansas, where the filing of a preacher's credentials with the county clerk is demanded, it is feared there will be trouble. It is likely also there will be trouble when the unordained preacher ceases to have charge of a work (for then his authority, both to baptize and to perform marriage, will cease), for some are sure to assume that, having authority once, they have authority ever. The whole thing was a blunder. It was giving authority to men to do that which should never be done except by men who have been tried.

In our notes last week we failed to state that the effort to consolidate the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Boards was a failure. We are not thoroughly informed as to the influences brought to bear to prevent it, but we suspect that the women themselves had a hand in the matter. We know they were excited about it, and bitterly opposed to the proposition. It is perhaps, well that the measure failed. Yet we have heard that in some places there is hurtful rivalry. If that be true; let the good women correct the evil.

About the close of the Conference the Board of Missions held a meeting, and elected the two Assistant Secretaries—Rev. W. W. Pinson, of Louisville Conference, for the Foreign Department, and Rev. Jno. R. Nelson, of the Northwest Texas Conference, for the Home Department. To the latter will be committed a most difficult and delicate work—the work of looking after city evangelization.

The subject of education was carefully considered, and advance steps were taken along all lines. Enlarged appropriations were made for carrying on the work of the Board, including assistance for the two schools for colored people—Lane College at Jackson, Tenn., and Paine Institute in Georgia. Arrangements were also made for holding an annual Theological Institute for colored preachers, such as is held every year at Vanderbilt University for our own preachers. The Correspondence School was endorsed, and will be continued.

Vanderbilt University came in for consideration. The matter was thoroughly investigated. There were memorials from the Tennessee and North Mississippi Conferences, and from the Alabama, asking the General Conference to inquire into the status of the institution and its relation to the Church. The proposed change of charter, and the action of the Board of Trust in 1905, eliminating all the Bishops, except five, from the Board, had stirred up much feeling. From private sources we learned that the Committee on Education "had a stormy time" over the question. But wise conclusions were reached. So well matured was the report that no discussion followed on the Conference floor, and it was passed without opposition. This is not to be taken as final settlement. The Conference ordered "legal steps to be taken, if necessary, to perfect the transfer of the University from the patronizing Conferences to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." A commission was also appointed to inquire into and determine the present relations of the University to the Church, and also to determine the relation of our Bishops to the University. The Commission consists of five eminent jurists.

The final action of the Conference towards our Church literature was liberal. The Quarterly Review and Epworth Era were provided for. The Pacific Methodist Advocate was well endowed. The Book Committee was authorized to furnish the Christian Advocate with all the money necessary to make it a first-class paper. This meant not only improvement in the material and mechanical make-up, but for editorial assistance and contributions.

The Sunday School Committee, at the suggestion of the Sunday School Board, recommended the establishment of "a chair of pedagogy" for Sunday school workers in Vanderbilt University. This chair is to be maintained by a small appropriation annually from the "Children's Day Fund." No appropriation is to be made from this year's collection. The ultimate purpose of this measure doth not yet appear. There has been much talk of late, of not only training Sunday school teachers, but paying them for their work. To attain this end may be the aim of those who projected "the chair of pedagogy."

We begin the new quadrennium as a Church in good condition, and with bright prospects. We pray the Great Head of the Church to direct us in our work, and to give us great success.

WHAT WE MAY EXPECT.

It is well known to our readers that commissioners from the several Methodist bodies in the United States having missions in Japan were appointed to consider the matter of uniting all the Methodist forces in that Empire into one separate and independent Church. The commissioners met several times, but failing to come to any satisfactory conclusion with the smaller bodies, some non-episcopal, and another with a limited episcopacy, the two larger churches, the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, effected a union, and arranged for a General Conference in 1907. Now comes an article from the Rev. R. J. Cook, D.D., Book Editor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he informs the public that the action of the commissioners is "unconstitutional." He bases his contention on the ground that to authorize the Conferences in Japan to unite with other bodies in forming an independent organization is to authorize the division of the Church, which the General Conference has no constitutional right to do.

The Doctor does not contend any too strongly for his position—in fact, before closing his article he almost gives up the point by saying that, though the action may be neither constitutional nor unconstitutional, it is non-constitutional—that is, there is no law for it or against it.

But the law point involved does not seem to trouble Dr. Cook so much as the fact that part of the great Methodist Episcopal Church goes to help make "the Methodist Episcopal Church in Japan," thus spoiling forever the dream of his life—not a world-wide Methodism, but a world-wide Methodist Episcopal Church. He says: "By this division of the church the dream of an Ecumenical Methodist Episcopal Church, which, like the kingdom of God in the vision of John in the Apocalypse, shall embrace all tribes and tongues and nations and peoples, vanishes forever away, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, no longer world-wide, becomes a provincial church, limited, cribbed, confined within well-defined boundaries — the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States."

The Doctor's article gives ground to expect that the next General Conference of his Church will undertake to undo the work of the commission. Besides this, we may read between the lines of the extract quoted above and see that Dr. Cook will never be satisfied with anything short of the organic union of all the Methodisms in the United States. And we may expect him to work with that object in view. If he represents the sentiment and purpose of Northern Methodism, we clearly see that it is the purpose of that Church to give up nothing, but to take everything in sight. Fraternity and federation will not half-way satisfy.

AS TO ADVERTISEMENTS.

A respectful request comes to us from one of the District Conferences in Louisiana to discontinue certain advertisements which we run occasionally in our columns. We would be glad to comply with the request, not only as to the advertisements named, but to all others as well, but we cannot. We publish no advertisements of choice, but of necessity. At the same time we are perhaps more careful than we get credit for. We do not publish all that are sent us. As to those complained of we may say that, while we do not hold ourselves responsible for all the advertisers print, we do not believe that they are swindlers. We do not knowingly print a swindling advertisement nor an improper one. Several times we have been caught in a trap, but have escaped as soon as we found ourselves deceived.

To one and all we must be allowed to say that the Publishing Committee allows us space for advertisements. They are necessary to the existence of this paper. Without them it could not live.

If brethren and sisters will put us in the way of securing home advertisements sufficient to fill the space allowed us, we will gladly give up all foreign patronage. Personally, we believe in advertisements. We never pick up a paper or a magazine, if we have time, that we do not scan the advertisements as closely as we do other matter. We find out what is going on in the world, and have been immensely benefited.

Years ago, when we were as "poor as a church mouse," an advertisement in a Baltimore Methodist paper led us to the best and cheapest market, and it put money into our hands. We trust that the advertisements we carry in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE not only help our advertisers, but our readers.

COLLEGE COMMENCEMENTS.

Whitworth College, June 10-12. The sermon will be preached by Dr. Richard Wilkinson Sunday, June 10.

We thankfully acknowledge receipt of invitations to attend the exercises of all the above-named schools.

PERSONAL.

Rev. P. H. Howse, writing from Caseyville, Miss., says: "We are moving up nicely on several lines." He hopes soon to get his people "interested in the Advocate."

We had the great pleasure on Monday last of a visit from Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, a veteran of the Mississippi Conference. We were glad to see him in good health and buoyant spirits. His visit was greatly appreciated.

Rev. R. T. Nolen, Trenton, Miss., not content with sending us one hundred subscribers, is still working. Monday morning's mail added a few more to our list. We have been told that "he picks them up wherever he finds them."

Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, of Glenmora, La., is rejoicing in hope of a rich harvest of souls. He has planned a series of meetings, and "the prospects are bright." He is also working on a growing list of subscribers for the Advocate.

Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan and Dr. T. C. Wier have been exercising themselves in behalf of the Advocate—the former sending in a list of twenty-one new subscribers, and the latter eighteen new and seven renewing subscribers. They have our thanks.

A good brother writes to this office a word of encouragement. He says: "I take several church papers, but our dear old New Orleans Christian Advocate is more interesting and helpful to me than any other." It is good to know that we are helping even one soul along the journey of life.

Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Rev. Albert S. Lutz, formerly of the Louisiana Conference, to Miss Hattie Inez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Simpson, of Greenwood, La. The marriage will take place June 6, at 8:30 p.m. They will be at home, in Berkeley, Cal., after July 1. We congratulate our young brother on his good fortune.

On May 22 Mr. W. B. Campbell and Miss Elizabeth Fischer were married at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. John Fischer, 522 South Broad Street, New Orleans, Rev. W. W. Holmes officiating. The contracting parties are members of the Carrollton Avenue Church. Brother Campbell is our Sunday School editor, and is an efficient worker among the young people of the upper section of our city. May the riches of grace accompany them throughout their married life.

Rev. W. H. Lane, pastor of our Church at Decatur, Miss., now in his third year on the charge, is endeavoring to make it the best year of his ministry. Congregations are large and attentive, and the spiritual interests of the work are improving. Everything moves along smoothly and well. Among other good things Brother Lane is doing is work for the Advocate, which, he says "is a pleasure." His efforts were rewarded with a list of twenty subscribers, for which we are duly thankful.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Children's Day exercises at Carrollton Avenue Church on Sunday last were delightful and successful. The ladies of the Church took special pains to train the children. An enthusiastic looker-on—one competent to pass judgment—tells us that the rendering of the programme "was simply perfect." Carrollton Avenue Church is a live charge, has a live pastor, a live League, a live Sunday school and missionary societies. No wonder the day was a success. We rejoice in the prosperity of the charge. This little notice is based on hear-say. If any other Church has had a day worth telling about, we would be glad to publish the account in the ADVOCATE.

When a Christian man concludes that he has reached a stopping-place in grace he ceases to aspire, and begins to lose ground. There is no stopping-place. Go forward, is the divine order.

Many millions of tins of Royal Baking Powder are used yearly in making biscuit, cake and hot breads, and every user of it has rested in full confidence that the food would be light, sweet and wholesome.

And results have always justified this perfect confidence.

Was there ever another such record for any article of food in the world?

THE MID-YEAR CONFERENCE.

The North Mississippi Conference, at its last session, wisely concluded to hold the meetings of all the Boards and Conferences for the year at the same time and place. Accordingly, the Mid-Year Meeting of the Conference Board of Missions, the Epworth League Board, the Sunday School Board and the Board of Education will be held in Grenada, beginning the 11th of June, and continuing five days.

The programme is extensive—some would call it exhaustive. Forty-one persons are advertised to take part in the exercises—a half-dozen or more being booked for several addresses. Speakers from St. Louis, Memphis, Nashville and Opelika, Ala., are engaged. One speaker, Dr. Young J. Allen, is from far-away China. Such a meeting was never before held in Mississippi. It will be interesting and profitable, and we trust our preachers and young people will take advantage of the opportunity by the scores. Grenada College will have closed its year's work, and the great majority of the attendants will be entertained in the college building. We expect great results to follow. Let everybody go who can.

MRS. TELLULAH E. DABBS.

The Advocate of May 17, publishing this memoir, printed the name Mrs. Tellulah E. Dobbs. The name should have been Mrs. Tellulah E. Dabbs.

On April 30, 1906, the death angel visited the home of Brother Warner B. and Fanny J. Cooper, and plucked therefrom a beautiful flower, VERDE O'REILL, who was 6 years and 6 months old the day of her death. The going out of a month and day was the going out of the life of this promising little girl, who had been under treatment for some time. All that loving hands and medical skill could do was done, but the Lord claimed His own. "He took thee from a world of care, an everlasting bliss to share." She was a loving child, and carried sunshine wherever she went. It was the writer's privilege to visit the home several times during her sickness, and we found her cheerful and contented, bearing her affliction with patience. Her body was laid to rest in the Mount Pisgay Cemetery, near Quitman, Miss., in the presence of a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. It was with grief we gave her up, and we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. Brother and Sister Cooper have strong ties in heaven. The Lord blessed the home with six children, three of whom have passed over the river in young life, and await the coming of dear ones.

Middleton, Miss.

Sister SUSAN NAOMI ETHERIDGE (nee Thrash), wife of W. C. Etheridge, was born June 7, 1858, and departed this life May 6, 1906, and went home to God. On the 8th day of February, 1877, she was married to Mr. W. C. Etheridge. This happy union was blessed with eight children, of which seven survive. She was devoted to her church (the Methodist Episcopal Church, South), which she had joined at the age of 12; was true to her vows, true to her God, and so was true in all the relations of life. She was highly esteemed and loved by all who knew her, especially by her Christian friends of the Marion Church, who realize their loss. In her home life she filled well her position of wife and mother, making a happy and hospitable home for those she loved so tenderly. Hers was a pleasant and happy home here, but the Lord has prepared a better place in those mansions above. She having been at all times so good and kind made it very hard for her devoted husband and children to give her up, but all bow in humble submission to the Divine will, looking forward to that happy union at the great white throne, where there is no more death, nor heartaches; but where all shall join in songs of everlasting praise of the blessed Redeemer. S. N. YOUNG.

Vimville, Miss.

On the 17th of January, 1906, MRS. NANNY E. ALLEN (nee Pasmore) died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Bell, Rankin county, Miss. Sister Allen was born in Jackson, Miss., on the 13th of February, 1846. Her father, Francis Pasmore, came from Maryland. Her mother, Nancy Patterson, came from Mariana, Fla. Her parents moved to Rankin county, Miss., when she was a child, and here she spent the balance of her life. She joined the Methodist church at Wesleyana before she was grown. On the 18th of December, 1867, she was married to Eli Allen. To them were born eight childreu. Two of these died in their infancy. The husband and two sons died four or five years ago. She loved God and the church. She was faithful in her attendance on the ordinances of the church and cheerfully gave to objects of benevolence an' charity. In her life shone forth the graces of Christianity. She had that abiding faith in God that directed her in life's duties and sustained her in its trials. She leaves two sons, two daughters and one sister, all members of the Methodist Church. Other relatives and a host of friends mourn over her departure. But they weep not as those who have no hope. She was ready and wanted to go when the Master sent for her. Several days before she died she told her sister and daughter that she was going to die and that she was ready to go and wanted them to meet her in Heaven.

As I saw her peacefully fall to sleep in Jesus I thought:

"It is not death to die,
To leave this weary road
And join the brotherhood on high
To be at home with God."

LAMAR, MISS.

Dear Advocate: Yesterday was a banner day for Lamar. We enjoyed the best Children's Day that it has ever been my privilege to participate in from many considerations. First, we had a record-breaker for attendance—only two persons in town not present. Who can beat that? Next, the programme was well rendered by the school. Sisters Oliphant, Sawyer and Treadwell accomplished their task in training the children. The recitation delivered by Miss Lizzie Bass was simply excellent, and a treat to all who were so fortunate as to hear it. Then last, and I think best, the collection was beyond my sanguine expectations. (We received eight dollars.) I preached especially to the children after the other exercises were over.

The Holly Springs Circuit is a historic circuit, made up of some of the best people in the world, but our population is small. Numbers of our best citizens have vacated their farms and moved to the towns, and turned their elegant homes over to the negroes. Therefore, our congregations are not large, but those that we have are loyal and substantial. We have our work very well in hand, having collected the most of our assessments for foreign and domestic missions. We are praying for and expecting a great revival throughout the work. The pastor is happy and I think the people are satisfied. We are neighbors to Rev. W. R. Williams, of Ashland, and we are proud of him. Enjoyed his "obituary" in last week's paper so much. Let us hear from you often. W. R.

With best wishes for all, we close. W. R. GOODLOCK.

THE MID-YEAR CONFERENCE.

GRENADA, MISS., JUNE 11-15.

The Grenada College will entertain this conference at $3.50 for board and lodging for the whole meeting. The railroads will give reduced rates on the certificate plan. Let every preacher or other persons attending procure a certificate for each ticket purchased and present such certificate to B. P. Jaco immediately upon arrival, to be signed by him and vised by agent at Grenada. Please notify W. L. Clifton when you will arrive. If you wish to board for less than whole time notify him so that special arrangements may be made for you. A great meeting is expected and many guests. Those who speak first may engage quarters first. Don't wait until it is too late.

Cordially. B. P. JACO, Sec'y.

MID-YEAR MEETING.

Special attention is directed to the above announcement. Sunday School workers, Epworth Leagues, and young preachers are earnestly requested to go to the Mid-Year Meeting. Look at the bill-of-fare: Mr. J. B. Greene and Mr. J. R. Pepper, our foremost Sunday school workers. Mr. Greene has shown how a town of average size may support a great Sunday school. Mr. Pepper has mastered the situation in a great city. These men will be there. Dr. W. F. McMurry, our greatest pastor, and Dr. H. M. Du Bose, our League Editor, will give us methods of work. Dr. H. S. Bradley, of St. Louis, will lecture on the Bible; Dr. J. A. Kern, on "Pastoral Theology," Dr. W. E. Thompson, on "Work in the City," and Dr. W. R. Lambuth, on "Missions." It is worth a trip to Grenada to see and hear Dr. Young J. Allen, who has spent forty-seven years in China. He has recently been in Conference with the President concerning our relation with China. In addition to this list, our own Dr. Murrah will speak, and rising young men like R. A. Meek, J. R. Countiss and others will take part. COME!

LESSON FOR JUNE 10, 1906.

PETER'S GREAT CONFESSION.

Matthew xvi. 13-28.

Golden Text—"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matt. xvi. 61.

There comes a time in the life of all followers of Jesus Christ when they must decide once and forever, and that with all the strength of soul and force of mind that God has given them, the great principle contained in the confession of Peter, the divinity of Jesus Christ. Every republican form of government and many limited monarchies are founded on the principles contained in a constitution. Any laws enacted contrary to the principles of the constitution are null and void. In forming these governments as based on a set of principles it is very evident that men have followed and imitated the teachings of the lowly Nazarene and the Church that He founded and of which He is the head.

"Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God" is a fact not revealed unto men by flesh and blood. The mighty truth of it is given to us; and loyalty to Jesus does not admit of doubt in any form.

In this lesson our Lord appears as a great teacher. As His class is before Him, it is presumed that the recitation has been prepared. A recitation is the process of fastening on the mind that which has been reasoned and studied. He asks a question of the class, the answer of which is expected to be correct, then the teacher explains further, going into the deep reasoning of the matter in hand.

After asking how He is then known, and who men suppose Him to be, they give the proper answer, and to show that the popular opinion is in error, He asks of those who know of a truth: "But whom say ye that I am?" Peter gives the proper answer, and it is on the truth contained in this answer that the Church will be built, —not on Peter, but on the great underlying principle that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God; that is the rock, the foundation-stone of the Church, against which the gates of hell shall never prevail. The Teacher goes on teaching in metaphor, saying: "I will give thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven" (remember, He is speaking to Peter only as the spokesman of the class before Him). What is the Gospel, but the key to the kingdom of heaven? To preach the everlasting Gospel has been the sole object of His having first chosen these twelve, and then having taught them by all of his wonderful words and works of love and mercy. "Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven." Whoever is converted by the preaching of the Gospel on earth, the same is rejoiced over in heaven by the angels.

The hearts of His chosen ones must have been filled with joy as He showed them the part they were to have in forming his kingdom. They were not to rejoice long, for He began to tell them that the time was drawing near when He would be delivered into the hands of His enemies, and would be crucified, but be raised again the third day. Consternation filled Peter when He heard of such dreadful things happening to the beloved Master, and so far forgot himself as to rebuke his Lord. Poor Peter, was he so much to blame from our point of view? It seemed that now was about the time when the world would know and bow before its King. So it was, but not in the world's way. The Master was even then triumphant, and He was only telling them that He was soon to triumph over the last enemy—death. Not, as yet, knowing these great truths, and only looking at the foretold calamity as putting an end to the Lord's physical existence, Peter said: "Be it far from thee, Lord; this shall not be unto thee." Peter was exalted above measure like we all are at times, and he was to undergo a long process of humbling, beginning at once, and the least of the process was not when he denied to the little maid that he knew Jesus. There is too much of human nature in every word and act and mistake of Peter for us even to condemn him. Let us, rather, rejoice that, with all his errors and faults, he was loved of the Lord; and as we hear and write of this great love of our Master, let us brush away the tears and take courage and go forward.

At this time Jesus could see the cruel cross looming up in the very near future, and, teaching lessons from all things, He taught, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me." Lord, we will, gladly; and if the cross be heavy, we will remember that Thou hast said, "Cast thy burden on the Lord, and He shall sustain thee." Let us try to lose a life of worldliness, to save a life of consecration to His service.

Each of us is a living soul, created by God; we now possess our soul. if we should lose our soul, what would recompense us? If we should gain possession of the whole world, would that be sufficient to make up for the loss of our soul? Or, if we should lose our soul, and it were possible to buy it back, what would we give to have it again for our own?

"For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of His Father and His angels; then shall He reward every man according to his works." After these words of Jesus He made the startling announcement that "there be some standing here that shall not taste of death till they see the Son of Man coming in His kingdom." About six days after this was this prophesy, in a measure, fulfilled, of which we will learn in our next lesson.

SKEPTICISM.

It is better to believe everything a man says than to believe nothing. The crucial test comes and the true things accepted on faith will greatly aid you in life's battles in time. Believe everything rather than reject everything.

Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the greatest Fever medicine and Life Saver in the whole world. If you believe this and accept it as a truth, you will be the immense gainer thereby, and if you doubt it and wholly reject it you may be the loser to the extent of your very life.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The attention of all who expect to attend the Meridian District Conference is called to the schedules of the railroads. We have but one train a day each way over the Alabama & Mississippi Ry. The West-bound train leaves Vinegar Bend about 7:30 or 8 o'clock in the morning, and arrives at Leakesville about one hour afterwards. The early Mobile & Ohio train, which leaves Meridian at 2:40 a.m., arrives at Vinegar Bend about 5 a. m. By coming on that train the brethren will avoid the necessity of spending a night at Vinegar Bend. However, if any one should prefer to make the trip in the day and not break a night's rest, they can get splendid hotel accommodations at Vinegar Bend. The early Mobile & Ohio train will get you there in plenty time for breakfast, and the Alabama & Mississippi will land you in Leakesville in time for the opening of the District Conference, Thursday morning, June 14th. The east-bound train leaves here at 3:15 p.m. and makes connection with the M. & O. trains both ways. A daily mail hack makes the round-trip between Leakesville and Merrill on the M. J. & K. C. R. R. This hack leaves Merrill in the morning and arrives here about 11 a. m. It starts back to Merrill about 12:30 p. m., making connection with the trains on that road.

SISTER:—READ MY FREE OFFER

Wise Words to Sufferers

From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.

I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment with full instructions and the history of my own case to any lady suffering from female trouble. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it will only cost you about twelve cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask. It cures all, young or old.

If you feel a bearing-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, creeping feeling up the spine, a desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, weariness, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhea (Whites), Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address MRS. M. SUMMERS, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A. for the FREE TREATMENT and FULL INFORMATION. Thousands besides myself have cured themselves with it. I send it in plain wrappers.

TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation. In young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies of your own state or county who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all diseased conditions of our delicate female organism, thoroughly strengthens relaxed muscles and ligaments which cause displacement, and makes women well. Write today as this offer will not be made again. Address

IN COLORADO

Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. Time was when a visit to the "top of the Continent" was a great luxury, as high in price as in altitude, but not so to-day.

You can spend the Summer or a part of the Summer in Colorado and live as reasonably as you do at home, and the quick service and low tourist and excursion rates afforded via Rock Island lines bring the Rockies within your easy reach.

Rock Island System

Our Booklets and Folders give the whole story.

BATON ROUGE, LA.

My Dear Doctor Boswell: Baton Rouge Methodism is keeping pace with the great State of Louisiana and with the Capital City. This is saying a great deal, for no State in the Union is making greater progress in development of natural resources, in educational achievements, in moral and spiritual advancement.

The Methodist Churches here are gaining both in members and spiritual force. Both have modern, well-organized, graded Sunday-schools, with every department of work represented. The home department is meeting with great success. Scores are studying God's Word who never could have been reached without this department. Both churches have a large Cradle Roll which is proving a great stimulus in arousing and holding the interest and sympathy of the parents. Second Church recently observed Cradle-Roll Day with fine success.

Both churches have live, active Epworth Leagues, and Second Church has both Junior and Senior Leagues. Both have recently organized Women's Home Mission Societies, which promise to be a great force for relieving the poor, assisting needy preachers, etc.

Last Sunday was a profitable and edifying day with us. Children's Day Service was held in the morning at 11 o'clock, and my people were delighted and built up in the faith in the evening by a strong and helpful sermon from the beloved and venerable Geo. Jackson. He is the youngest old man I ever knew.

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life for which the first was made."

Brother Jackson always brings us a benediction. His simplicity of manners, his frankness of expression, his warm and brotherly heart, all conspire to make him a favorite wherever he goes. Indeed someone has not inaptly styled him the "pet of the Louisiana Conference." I believe he has more homes and hearts open to him than any other Methodist preacher in the State of Louisiana.

Our beloved presiding elder, Rev. R. W. Tucker, has returned from the General Conference, and resumes his duties with his accustomed zeal and wisdom.

Great excitement was created among the good women of Louisiana, especially in New Orleans, last week, by a bill presented in the Legislature of the State, which, if enacted into law, would virtually kill the good effect of the present "age of consent law" now in force. The bill is to amend the law of 1896 "so that prosecutions may be instituted and sustained only in cases where the victim is of undoubted chastity." The women, who are ever alert when their interests are involved, quickly detected the evil threatened, and made their influence felt at once. The member who introduced the bill explained that it was put into his hands by another with the request to present it, and that he did so, without having read it. He asked unanimous consent to withdraw the bill. It was granted, and the bill is dead. It is fair to say that no member of the present Legislature will undertake, knowingly, to present another such measure.

The people of Georgia were mightily stirred a few weeks ago. They had good cause. Father Sherman, a Roman Catholic priest, son of the famous General Sherman who marched his army through Georgia, and left nothing behind, concluded that he would like to go over the same line and see the path his father trod—a very natural and very innocent thing. Nobody would have cared or said anything against it, had he quietly taken the track alone. But a United States army officer furnished him a military escort, and like his father, he started through Georgia at the head of an army. The Georgians witnessed the beginning of the march, and they saw also the end of it. The Georgians felt insulted and outraged, and protested. President Roosevelt sympathized with the Georgians, and ordered the escort to return forthwith to their barracks. As he had no jurisdiction over Father Sherman, he was left alone to proceed or go back. He did not proceed.

The Reed Smoot case is still a burden to Congress and to the people. The people especially, are groaning under it. For two years the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections has had the case in hand—has investigated, and doubtless has every particle of evidence obtainable, and yet has made no report. For political reasons we suppose, the report is being held back. In the meantime, to the disgust and shame of a very large proportion of the people, if not a majority of them, Mr. Smoot holds a seat in the Senate, and on Committees, and votes on all questions that come up. Petitions for his expulsion, by the cart-load, have been sent to the Senate, and they are still going in. Petitions with perhaps twenty thousand names have been sent in during the past week. It is understood that a majority are in favor of unseating Mr. Smoot. The hitch is in the manner of doing it—whether by expulsion, or simply to declare the seat vacant. Either way will satisfy the people—what they demand is to get the Mormon apostle out of the Senate. They do not believe that, as a Mormon, he can be loyal to the government.

The Russian Parliament, or Douma, as it is called, which met only a few weeks ago, for the first time in the history of the Empire, seems doomed to a short life. The Parliament it appears, composed of men from all classes of society, is wholly unprepared to meet the emergencies and responsibilities of the hour. Instead of enjoying and making the most of what they have, they are making unreasonable demands of the Czar—demands which he will not grant. At this writing it seems necessary for the Czar to disband the Douma, and again assume absolute control. A bloody revolution may follow. The Picayune of this city, commenting on the situation says: "What the Douma would do were it granted unlimited power is clearly indicated by the policy outlined in the reply to the speech from the Throne. It would promptly release all malefactors, bomb-throwers and assassins; it would confiscate the private property of everybody owning property and distribute it to the peasants; it would abolish all martial law and presumably all military forms and military service of compulsory sort; it would, in fact, set up an impracticable socialistic republic. It is, of course, not expected that the Czar will tamely submit to such a programme. Had the Douma refrained from passing the resolution, practically setting aside the fundamental laws and demanding the resignation of the ministry, which is in no sense responsible to it, it might have been practicable to temporize, but a revolutionary assembly cannot be temporized with. It must either be promptly suppressed or its control must be submitted to and accepted." The Empire is indeed in a bad way.

The Railroad Rate Bill, after long debate, pending which its integrity and very existence were threatened by various amendments, has at last been passed. That which led to the final vote was "a remarkable" report on another matter, brought in by Mr. Garfield to the President, and by him submitted in a special message to Congress. "The purpose of the bill is to bring under better governmental regulation the business of carriers concerned with interstate commerce. The agency through which this increased control is to be exercised is the Interstate Commerce Commission. Heretofore, as respects railroads, the Commission has had the power to investigate complaints of excessive and discriminating rates and to pronounce such rates unreasonable. But it has not had the power to substitute what it would consider a reasonable rate. It was the President's desire that the Commission should be authorized to substitute and put into force such a rate as it would regard as just and proper. This contention of the President was at length conceded, and the debate narrowed itself down to the question to what extent the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission should be subject to review by the courts. All kinds of amendments providing for so-called "narrow review" and so-called "broad review" were made the subject of voluminous Senatorial debate. The President believed it well that the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission should have dignity and authority, and that such a body would be really more competent to deal with rate-making questions than the United States judiciary, which is not, in the nature of things, very well fitted to adjust technical matters of commerce. Nevertheless, it was recognized by the President that the actions of the Commission must be inherently subject to an appeal to the courts of law, and that in any case the courts themselves would ultimately have to decide upon the extent and the nature of their own jurisdiction. The President was of opinion that the Allison amendment, which declared the authority of the courts to review the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, could not so operate as to increase or diminish the powers that the courts would in any case possess. It was the Allison amendment that was finally accepted, and which helped to carry the bill through the Senate."

TO THE YOUNG PEOPLE OF NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

The Mid-Year Meeting to be held at Grenada, June 11-15, promises to be the most notable gathering of young preachers and church workers ever held in the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference. It is backed by the Conference, is under the direction of four of the principal Boards of the Conference, has more money to secure speakers than any workers' assembly has yet had, and has a larger number of specialists, experts and able speakers from a distance than any similar meeting heretofore held.

The only possible reason for failure in this meeting is that the young people may fail to appreciate the wonderful opportunity now brought to their very doors. It will be more than a Bible school, more varied and interesting than a League Conference, Sunday-school Institute, or other meeting devoted to one cause.

I appeal to young preachers because the Conference Examining Committees will be there to help instruct them, because speakers have been secured with special reference to their needs, and because physicians, lawyers, teachers, bankers, and even farmers have their annual meetings for mutual enlightenment and encouragement. We, who have the greatest work of them all, cannot afford to be left behind in the march of progress. The Annual Conference is too full of routine business for satisfactory work in any other way.

I appeal to young people in general because most older persons care little for a meeting of this kind; and because there has never been such opportunity for intelligent service on the part of consecrated lay members as comes to us in the varied religious, charitable, and moral institutions of to-day.

If attendance justifies, this is destined to become an annual school of methods in all varieties of church work. If we fail this time it is doubtful whether the Conference will vote funds for further experiments, and the 45,000 Methodists will thus publish to the world that they have not sufficient enthusiasm in their work to assemble for a Conference in its behalf.

Let us literally overflow Grenada College with guests—delegates to the Mid-Year Meeting.

IS NOT THE CHURCH NEGLECTING THE TEACHERS?

The idea is no longer ridiculed by intelligent people that teaching is, indeed, a true, noble and exalted profession, under which lie eternal principles and into which the strongest and most courageous souls may throw the energies of a lifetime. It is a science which involves all sciences, physical, mental and moral. It is an art, the Great Teacher being its chief exponent. But, while the world has long demanded that the doctor be skilled, the lawyer trained, the minister educated, it has been content to believe that birth alone was sufficient for the teacher. For years our colleges and universities, church and state, have said, Come all ye who stand before the bar and plead for human rights or sit upon the bench and judge the laws of human government; come and let us train you in the science and art of pleading, and teach you the basic principles in the government of man. If you would relieve pain, cool the fevered brow, stanch the flowing wound, or bind the broken limb—come, and, under a skilled physician, learn to administer the healing balm, or, under a master-hand, learn the art of surgery. Should you be called to preach the unsearchable riches at home or abroad, the theological schools say, Come; let us teach you and train you for your mighty task. But where, oh where, until comparatively recent years was there a school that did extend a welcome to the ones who taught the teachers of law, of medicine and of theology?

Humbly did the great teachers go about their tasks. They saw their pupils rise to eminence and set up great schools for professional training, which to-day, in many instances, seemingly think it beneath their dignity to offer a word of welcome to the aspiring teacher, who, though born, feels still the need of special preparation for his life's work.

In our parish we have probably one dozen lawyers, twenty ministers, twenty-five doctors and seventy teachers. The Church universities, as well as State, could have trained the twelve lawyers, the twenty-five doctors, the twenty ministers, but where is the Church school of any grade that can or will give the seventy or more teachers the training that is being so urgently demanded of them, even in the remote country districts? The private and State normal schools are being crowded to their utmost capacities with young men and women, who are seeking earnestly to acquire that special training which is their's to have, and which the times demand they must have. The demand for normal teachers cannot be supplied. Some parishes of Louisiana have, or soon will have, none but normal graduates. Some superintendents will hardly consider an application from one who has not attended a normal. And thus it is that the State alone is getting hold of that great force for good or evil, the six thousand teachers of our public schools, simply because it offers what they need and can't get elsewhere.

It is contended that since a student has had his college course, and passed his examinations, he is, therefore, fitted thoroughly for the work of a teacher. This, it seems to me, is unworthy a serious thought. Why is he not fitted just as well for the practice of medicine? Why not plead law without any study of the subject? Why not get a job at once as bank cashier? Human ills must be treated by one who has studied medicine; human rights must be protected by those who know law; human wealth must be handled by expert accountants—but human destinies may be shaped by those who, though honest and sincere, may be ignorant of the simplest fundamental principles of physical, mental and moral development.

The State has often made requisition upon the Church schools for her patriots and statesmen. Why not give her an opportunity to ask of the Church schools for trained teachers? If it has been good for the Church to train lawyers, scientists, financiers and statesmen under more religious influences in the Church schools than is possible in State schools, then why should it not be just as great a good for the Church to train her part of the State's teaching force under the same conditions? Is not the Church neglecting a most serious question—the training of teachers for the public schools?

The Southern Methodist Church stands in the front rank in teacher-training for the Sunday school, and now let us have a Southern Methodist normal school for training of public school teachers. Why not?

A VISIT TO MOSS POINT.

Now, I have been sick, mighty sick—too sick to be up; yet my presiding elder (God bless the beloved) says I don't look like a sick man. The reason why I have been so long telling of my visit to Moss Point is because I have been too ill to write much. Did you ever have "la grippe," or, rather, did it ever have you? Well, it is not like a certain type of religion I heard a "beloved" tell of once, viz: "If you have it, you don't know it. If you know it, you haven't got it. If you've got it, you can't lose it. If you lose it, you never had it." I tell you, Doctor, I had much rather have a good case of "old-time religion" than three or four attacks of the "la grippe" I had.

I left Buckatunna on the early train on the 9th of April, bound for Mobile, Moss Point, etc. Fortunately, Brother W. L. Linfield was on the train, going to Mobile on business, or I would have had quite a lonely time the nine hours I had to spend in Mobile. As it was, I enjoyed, to some extent, my short stay in that city. I reached Moss Point late in the afternoon; was met in Scranton by my brother, Rev. W. B. Lewis, who took charge of me, and, together with his thoughtful wife, made my stay in Moss Point both pleasant and profitable, notwithstanding "la grippe."

I am glad to be able to say I found my brother and family in excellent health and pleasantly situated in a good and well-furnished parsonage, and among a kind and appreciative people, who seem to delight in doing nice things for the comfort of their pastor and his family. There are about 200 Methodists in Moss Point. The population is about 5,000. There are some twelve or fifteen saw mills here, owned by the Dantzlers, Dennys, Avents, Robinsons, and perhaps others. Much of the output of these mills is shipped to foreign ports. Vessels are loaded at the mills. Dog River and the Pascagoula come together here, making deep water to the Gulf. Moss Point is five miles from the Beach, but it is connected by an electric car, which runs every thirty minutes.

Among the prominent members of our Church here are the Woods, Alberts, Dantzlers, Griffins, Comens, Colemans and others. Our good brother, L. N. Dantzler, known by so many of our preachers, is the father of the Dantzler family, and one of the best of men, and a liberal supporter of the Church. The first of each month the monthly salary ($100) is paid in full, and the other assessments on the Church are met in full. They furnish the pastor a horse and buggy. It was my privilege and pleasure to take several rides in a brand-new buggy, that had been given the parsonage by the good people—purchased by Captain Alberts, who acted for the brethren in the purchase.

Material is on the ground for a nice iron fence around the church and parsonage. The improvement on and around the church and parsonage, when completed, will amount to, perhaps, as much as $1,000, including what the ladies will do on the inside of the parsonage. Happy is the man who serves such a people—yea, happy is that preacher whose surroundings are so favorable!

I reached home safely, but not sound in bodily health, on the 14th of April. I say "home," I have no home this side of heaven. I once had a home, "happy home," with, at one time, wife and twelve children and grandchildren (fourteen in all). How happy we were! Now my home is over yonder, on the other shore. I often sing—

"A stranger lonely here I roam,
From place to place I'm driven;
My friends are gone and I'm in gloom—
This world is all a lonely tomb—
I have no home but heaven.

"Adieu to all below, adieu;
Let life's dull chain be riven;
The charms of Christ have caught my view,
The world of light I will pursue—
To live with Him in heaven." Glory!

My friends and brethren write and say to me, "write for the ADVOCATE; we enjoy your letters," hence, in part, my apology for writing so often.

Fraternally, H. P. Lewis, Sr.

THE PARADISE OF FAITH.

There is an inner Christian life which many church members never reach. It is an undiscovered country, around which they are sailing, looking at its shining peaks through the lens of an open profession, but never once setting foot on its sacred soil. They know its geography and can tell its history, they have eaten of the fruit of the land—the figs, the olives, the pomegranates and the grapes of Eschol; they have only songs for its beauty. They are kindly disposed toward Christianity, and give of their money to support it. They utter no harsh criticism, and may most frequently be found in their pews on the Sabbath. They are not enemies to the truth, and would like to be in the very heart of the land where the pomegranates and the grapes of Eschol grow. But they cannot bring themselves to give up the old ship and its crew, and possibly its ill-gotten freight, and enter the paradise of faith in God. And so they sail on and on, round and round the the Island of the Blessed, and through the dim lens of an empty profession look off upon "the city that lieth foursquare," they "tell its towers" and "mark its bulwarks," but ever feel that they are not naturalized citizens of the land. They have not yet dropped anchor and gone ashore in full surrender to the Lord of the country.—United Presbyterian.

STOKERS.

BY REV. J. M. NICHOLS.

A strong gale was blowing across the broad expanse of water. A heavy mist bathed my face. Along the far-away water's edge a dark cloud hung low. The lurid lightning leaped and played across its bosom. The waves were restless and lashed themselves into fury against every obstruction. The magnificent and palatial Eastern States rocked and tugged impatiently at her moorings. I listed for the long night's passage from Buffalo to Detroit. No finer steamer plies the waters of the Great Lakes. It is a perfect floating palace. The register was filled with names of travelers from almost every State and Territory in the Union. Scores of my fellow-workers were on board.

I walked upon the upper deck until the glimmering electric lights faded from my view. Nothing lay before me except the lowering storm-cloud girting a horizon toward which we were rapidly moving. I could hear nothing but the whistling wind, save when I caught the sullen mutterings of the distant thunder. I saw nothing but the waters of Lake Erie making their wild leap to greet the gathering storm. It was one vast battle-charge of tempestuous waves. They outlined themselves in animated fury against the sky. I felt nothing but the Great Eastern as she staggered in the contest for every inch of water through which she passed. It would be folly for me to say that no sense of dread possessed me. I felt myself at the mercy of the angry deep.

The kind-hearted captain saw evidence of my inner dread. He quieted me by saying: "You rest in perfect calmness; we've been this way many a time before. About two o'clock in the morning a storm will strike us. Rest assured, if our engine keeps going and the pilot stays at the wheel, we'll all be in Detroit to-morrow." Something in the old captain's weather-beaten face inspired me with perfect confidence. My fears subsided. Amidst the thunder's roar, the worried lake, and the electric blaze, I felt a sereneness born of perfect safety.

Till a late hour in the night I whiled the time away in the steamer's great saloon. Here and there, on the soft, velvety carpet or lounging on the great settees, groups told their stories charming and inspiring. One by one, drooping eyes were warned of the bed-time hour. But for a few wakeful spirits, the vast hall seemed deserted. Except for the raging storm, and the throbbing of the ship's big heart, no sound broke the stillness of that floating palace. I could not sleep—drowsiness had gone. I resolved on a tour. Chatting with the steward, I watched the pilot control the destiny of the great steamer. The old captain told me of his many miraculous escapes. The sailors enthralled me with the recitation of superstitions that live among them on that wondrous chain of lakes.

But the lesson of the night was learned far down in the hull of the steamer. Massive the machinery that turned the great side-wheels. I noticed with what familiar ease the engineer touched that ponderous piece of mechanism and made it throb with power. On and on, down and down, until I was far below the water-line. There I stood in the presence of men that had not been seen, and of whom many would never think—much less know. Almost nude, because of the awful heat, they toiled between the bunkers and the roaring fires. On the upper deck the appointments and regalia were faultlessly perfect; here, scant and dirty. And yet their very obscurity made all the outer beauty and power both possible and available.

How much depended on those stokers! Deep in the vessel's hold—burnt and besmirched with fire and soot; unseen and unknown—and yet without them no steamer passes through Lake Erie. O, the stoker! How the world needs the essential art of willingness to be obscure! Am I willing to count myself as nothing? It may be in that great day, the stoker on Zion's ship will far outrank us. Does not honor come with self-abandonment? I learned a profound lesson in the hull of the Great Eastern that stormy night.

Do you remember the apocalyptic vision of the beloved John? His eye swept the whole range of the blood-washed throng. "Who are these?" said he, as his vision rested on one company in that celestial encampment. "These are they who have come up through great tribulation." Long before, Israel's singer declared he would be satisfied if he could but awake in His likeness. What likeness? How am I to know Him? By the brow all pierced by many a thorn. By the prints of the nails in His hands. But will He know me if I bare no marks of the conflict? These scars shall make us worthy to share in the glory that's coming bye and bye.

RESTATEMENT OF THE CREED.

The recent action of the General Conference in reference to a new statement of faith and doctrine has produced, and will continue to produce, no small concern in the minds of many Methodists. Next to the Bible itself, the creed of their Church is to many the most precious and sacred of all possible forms of words. Indeed, many seem almost to forget the distinction between the Scriptures, as God-inspired, and the creed, as man-made. At present, at least, no alarm need be felt over this matter, as the Conference proposes only to appoint a commission to invite other branches of Methodism to unite with us in such a statement of doctrine and faith as the relation of the Church as a teacher of religion to mankind in our day may seem to demand. The adoption or rejection of such a statement, even if it be made, will depend on the future action of the General Conference.

One of the most significant features of this movement lies in the asking of other branches of Methodism to unite with us in forming a creed which shall be acceptable to all. If there was one thing for which Jesus prayed more earnestly than for any other, it was for the union of his followers.

In regard to ecclesiastical history, the last century was marked by multiplied divisions, conflicts and contentions, especially among Protestants, throughout the world. Unless I greatly misread the tendencies of the present, this century will be equally marked by an exhibition of a spirit of union and co-operation throughout the Christian world. The recent union of Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists in Canada, and the great Church Congress in New York, representing more than twenty millions of Christians, seeking such harmony of feeling as shall result in co-operation against the kingdom of darkness, are events which foreshadow an unprecedented combination of the powers of Christendom against the enemies of Christ.

Many of the arguments used against this movement in the General Conference bore as strongly against the existence of all old creeds as against the formation of a new one. I cannot believe that the last essence of wisdom was extracted from the Bible and from experience by our fathers; rather, new and increasing light shall flow from its inexhaustible fountain, which the generations shall embalm in the creeds of coming ages. Wisdom did not die with our fathers, though we thank God for the priceless treasures which they transmitted to us.

It is not proposed, as some have said, to strike out or destroy any of our present articles of religion, but to modify their form and extend their scope, to put the stamp of the present upon the ancient and indestructible gold, and, if possible, to add a few nuggets dug out by us from the inexhaustible mine of truth. The old need not be even superannuated (an inapt word in this case, it seems to me) in order to make way for the new, but, rather, expanded into life and developed into fruitfulness. The Old Testament was not superannuated by the introduction of the New, but expanded and perfected, rather. The new fruit is to grow on the old tree.

We have reached an age in which all searchers after God shall think and believe more alike, as each shall approach more nearly the unity of absolute truth.

The mine of truth was not exhausted and sealed up by the fathers. New treasures may still reward the delver's toil. It is no reflection upon the creed-makers that we propose to add to their achievements.

Shall the twentieth century not be permitted to add a few stones to the mighty monument of indestructible truth which the ages are erecting? No creed is perfect, and every creed, therefore, needs to be improved. The Bible is the only unchangeable standard.

Let us, then, pray that the Spirit of infinite wisdom may guide those who shall undertake to formulate a syllabus of doctrine which shall constitute the creed of universal Methodism.

A Cup of Good Coffee

Clears the mind,
Tones the body,
Aids digestion,
Overcomes fatigue, and never injures when used moderately--But it must be good coffee, and remember there is none better than

LUZIANNE

It is made from the choicest grades imported directly from the greatest coffee districts of the world.

Every grain is parched to the point of perfection, developing its full strength and flavor.

It goes hot from our roasters and grinders into air-tight tins, thus preserving its freshness.

Use only half as much of Luzianne as of other kinds, for it is of double strength—goes twice as far.

FROM CRAWFORD STREET, VICKSBURG.

Last Sunday, the twenty-seventh instant, was a great day with this congregation. By appointment, Bishop Galloway was with us to officiate in the dedication of our new house of worship. The last note of indebtedness on the building was liquidated a year ago, but, desiring to have the house thoroughly furnished, the time was deferred, and now, with everything in perfect order, and no collection to be raised, we were ready for the occasion. The Bishop was greeted by an overflowing house and was at his best. His sermon will linger long in the memory of this people. Twenty-five years ago he was pastor of this charge and has many old and warm friends, who always welcome his coming with delight. We were sorry to find him suffering with a heavy cold, which was taxing upon his strength. He is evidently working too hard and we hope that his physician will lay an embargo upon his lips, as to public functions, until the cooler days shall have come. He needs rest for a season.

When we entered upon this pastorate three years (and a little more) ago, we were informed by the Official Board that the purpose of our coming was to "pull us out of the mud." Well, "with a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together," we all rejoice in the consummation. And inasmuch as the General Conference didn't extend the time limit, we shall soon be hunting other "pastures green." However, we hope to have a new parsonage under headway before taking our departure, even if some other brother must come and finish the job.

MISSISSIPPI ORPHANS' HOME.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home, held at the Home in Jackson, Miss., on Tuesday, May 29, 1906, the following members were present: J. H. Sherard, President; A. F. Watkins, Vice President; J. B. Streater, Secretary; M. L. Burton, Treasurer; H. M. Ellis, R. L. Bennett, R. W. Millsaps, L. P. Carruth, J. A. Bowen and J. M. Wyatt. The officers of the Board were re-elected, and, in addition thereto, W. D. Davis, assistant cashier of the Capital National Bank, was elected Assistant Treasurer. The Executive Committee is composed of J. H. Sherard, Ex-Officio Chairman; H. M. Ellis, R. L. Sherard, Ex-Officio Bowen and C. D. Shands. Rev. O. A. Oats was unanimously re-elected Manager and Agent.

The Home has at present 103 children under its care, 99 of whom are comfortably domiciled in the new building, and 4 are in college, at no expense to the Home.

The new building has been completed and equipped with water works, boiler, engine and dynamo for lighting and heating the entire building at a cost of $35,426.08, and the same has been paid. The expenses of maintaining the home have also been met to date. This leaves our treasury exhausted, and, while we are profoundly grateful to the friends of the institution for their liberal support in the past, we must urge their continued liberality, in view of the fact that we are very much in need of barns, etc., and furniture for the chapel and schoolroom. Several rooms in the building have been furnished by persons in memory of loved ones who have died.

J. B. STREATER, Sec'y.

THE LATE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Careful consideration of the four sessions of the General Conference which it has been my privilege to attend leads me to say that the recent session was, in all respects, the best of the four. I believe that results will prove it to be the greatest and most fruitful of good results of any session since 1866. The spirit and temper of the members, as shown on the floor of the Conference, in committee rooms and in personal contact, were as near ideal as one could well expect. I was present from the opening to the close, and do not recall anything to contradict this opinion.

I was a member of the Committee on Education, and attended all its sessions. Your information from "private sources," that the Committee "had a stormy time" over the Vanderbilt matter, is wholly incorrect. The "wise conclusions reached" were embodied in a unanimous report from the sub-committee, to which the matter was referred, which report was adopted by the Committee on Education without a dissenting vote, and in like manner by the General Conference.

A motion was made to amend the report of the sub-committee at one point. That motion secured two votes only, and then the report was adopted, with not one vote in the negative. No action of the Committee, or of any member thereof, indicated "a stormy time" over this or any question.

When the much-discussed proposition of restatement of faith was under discussion, and fear as expressed that the Church would be torn by much discussion, I remember a distinct impression that, if unwise and hurtful discussion should follow, it would be by those in opposition. I sincerely regret that the impression has found confirmation in that you, who signed the protest which deprecates discussion, have admitted into the columns of our Conference organ two articles which can do no possible good, and may do harm. Certainly, such writing will have no sort of effect on the Commission, and its only result, if any, will be to inflame some of our people against action already taken by the Church.

The fact that, in selecting the Commission, our Bishops chose a majority thereof from those opposed to the movement should convince all that no radical action is contemplated, or will result. What effect such unusual method of naming a commission to carry out the expressed will of a majority may produce on unprejudiced minds is another matter. J. R. BINGHAM.

CORINTH DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Doctor Boswell: Please announce in the ADVOCATE that the Corinth District Conference convenes at New Albany, Miss., July 4-6 inclusive. Please state also that I desire the names of all delegates and preachers who expect to attend, (who are members.) Also what railroad they will come on. Fraternally.

O. L. SAVAGE.

DISTRICT CONFERENCES.

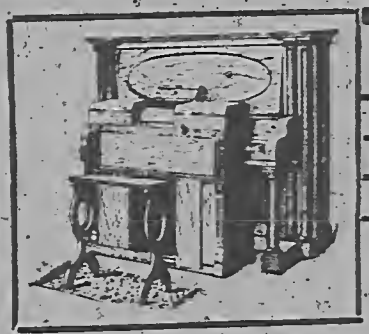
The District Conference for the Natchez District, Mississippi Annual Conference, will be held in the Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, Miss., June 13, 14, and 15.

The Conference will open Wednesday morning, the 13th, at 8:30 o'clock. Wednesday will be devoted to the interest of the Sunday School and Epworth League. A suitable programme will be prepared for the day. There will be preaching each day at 11 o'clock A. M. and at 8 o'clock P. M.

Pastors will kindly see that the Quarterly Conference Records are present.

Local Preachers will bear in mind that they are members of the District Conference, and are expected to be present with written reports.

I desire that every member of the Conference should be present. Start in time to reach Natchez Tuesday night, so as to be present at roll-call Wednesday morning.



Following are the Committees:

License to Preach—W. H. Saunders, E. A. Grimes and A. D. Miller.

Admission on Trial—W. G. Forsyth, C. M. Martin and L. B. Robertson.

Deacon's Orders—C. N. Guice, W. D. Dominick and W. L. Blackwell.

Elder's Orders—C. W. Crisler, C. A. Powell and P. H. Howse. B. F. JONES, P. E.

LITTLE JAPS.

Here is a thing which every visitor to Japan at once notices—their love for children.

An American woman who became acquainted with a Japanese mother noticed that she allowed her little children to ramble through the streets at will, and one day spoke of it.

"Why," said the Japanese lady, "what harm can come of it? Our children never quarrel, and no grown person would harm a child."

"But," said the American lady, "the child might get lost."

"That would make no trouble," was the smiling reply. And then she showed how in little children's apparel there were inserted cards containing their names and addresses, and explaining that should they stray any person finding them would first give them a good meal and then bring them home.—Christian Guardian.

SAVED BY KINDNESS.

We will call him Jim, for I do not remember his name. He had lost all his respectability, and was a common gutter drunkard. His family had disowned him, and would not recognize him when they met him. Occasionally he would get a job at the stables where Dr. Davis kept all his horses. One morning the Doctor laid his hand on his shoulder and said:

"Jim, I wish you would give up the drink."

There was something very like a quiver of the man's lips as he answered:

"If I thought you cared, I would, but there is a great gulf between you and me."

"Have I made any gulf, Jim? Now think a moment before you answer."

"No—you—haven't."

"If you had been a millionaire could I have treated you more like a gentleman?"

"No, you couldn't."

"I do care, Jim."

"Say it again, won't you?" There were tears in the man's eyes now.

"I do care, Jim," with a tender little emphasis on the Jim.

"Dr. Davis, I shall never touch another drop of liquor as long as I live. Here's my hand on it."

This was fifteen years ago, and "Jim" is today the respectable and respected Mr. ———. Saved by a kind word! Will you make an effort this week to win some one by kindness?—Floating.

LITTLE TOMMY.

Did you ever hear about him? Grandma once knew just such a little philosopher, and he was the biggest little philosopher I ever knew. I do not think he ever cried. I never saw him cry. If his little sister found her tulips all rooted up by her pet puppy and cried and cried—as little girls will—Tommy was sure to come around the corner whistling, and say: "What makes you cry? Can you cry a tulip? Do you think every sob makes a root or a blossom? Here! let's try to right them."

So he would pick up the poor flowers, put their roots into the ground again, whistling all the time, make the bed look smooth and fresh and take her off to hunt hens' nests in the barn. Neither did he do any differently in his own troubles. One day his great kite snapped the string and flew away far out of sight. Tommy stood still a moment and then turned around to come home, whistling a merry tune.

"Why, Tommy," said I, "are you not sorry to lose that kite?"

"Yes, but what's the use? I can't take more than a minute to feel bad. 'Sorry' will not bring the kite back and I want to make another."

Just so when he broke his leg.

"Poor Tommy," cried his sister, "you can't play any mo-re!"

"I'm not poor, either. You cry for me. I don't have to do it for myself and I'll have more time to whistle. Besides, when I get well I shall beat everybody in school on the multiplication table, for I say it over and over again till it makes me sleepy every time my leg aches."

Tommy was a little queer, certainly; but if a great many people were more like him, they would have less troubles and would throw more sunshine in this world. We must cry sometimes, but try and be as brave as possible.—Christian Work.

THE LITTLE LIGHTHOUSE GIRL.

Sailors who navigate the seas on the South Atlantic coast are always glad when they near the harbor of Savannah, for that means that they will pass within saluting distance of the "little lighthouse girl." This is the officially accepted title of Florence Martus, who has for the last eleven years waved a friendly signal to every craft passing between the city and the sea. It is a hobby of this young girl to greet the ships that go and wish them a safe return, and greet the ships that come and congratulate them on their voyage. She hasn't much world outside of the marine houses, to be sure, for she lives with her brother and her mother on the bleakest, most uninviting island imaginable on the southern bank of the Savannah River, ten miles from town.

The Martus dwelling is the only habitation on Elba Island. There is no landing wharf, and visitors arrive on an average once a year. George Martus attends to the range of lights which keep the pilots in the right part of the most tortuous channel in that part of the ocean. Beside the lighthouse is the cottage where these three persons spend their lives. The barks, the steamers, and the various other craft never get near enough for an exchange of greetings other than that most expressive form of good will, the waving of a handkerchief by day and of a lantern by night. And as the girl sends out her welcome, the seamen who know all about her, and who would resent the elimination of the ceremony which she so popularized, send back an answering salute, three "toots" of the steam whistle. Then Miss Martus is as happy as a belle at a debutante party.

It is her desire that no vessel shall pass the lighthouse without receiving a salute. She never overlooks a sail in the day time, and her handkerchief is ever ready for its service of cordiality. And at night she seems to feel intuitively the approach of her ships, for she has frequently made ready the lantern before the expected boat hove in sight. She says it is her ambition to signal every ship that touches at Savannah. She was asked her reason for signalling the passing sea throng, and she answered that it was to cheer the crew.

This beautiful and unselfish ministry illustrates how a noble heart invents ways to scatter sunshine.

The world passes us like ships on the sea. How much interest do we take in others? How far a kind word, or smile, or handshake goes to help the friendless and hopeless. How few have ever learned the "Gospel of the Handshake!" When the soul is unselfish, and yearns to bless others, love is ingenious in plans to do good. It is not the great acts but the little deeds of kindness that make human beings happy.—Missionary Review.

Let him who gropes painfully in darkness or uncertain light, and prays vehemently that the dawn may ripen into day, lay this precept well to heart, which to me was of invaluable service: "Do the duty which lies nearest thee," which thou knowest to be a duty! Thy second duty will already have become clearer.—Carlyle.

When the face is buried deep amid the dried flowers and leaves of departed joys, to hear a whisper which thrills the sense, growing fuller and clearer, like a flute, and to detect in its syllables the assurances of the Comforter himself; when the sepulchre seems to hold all that made life worth living, to become suddenly aware that there is a presence near at hand, and to find that the Gardener himself is there to lift the drooping plant of life, unfurling its petals again to the light; to be strong in God's strength, comforted with the paracletism of the Paraclete, to drink of the brook by the way—here is blessedness which eye hath not seen, neither the ear of ordinary men heard, nor the unregenerate heart perceived. Even the bereaved and lonely heart, sitting amid the wreckage of all its joys and hopes, may be aware of this.—Rev. F. B. Meyer, in the "Directory of the Devout Life."

O LOVE, O LIGHT, O JOY, O CROSS!

O Love, that wilt not let me go,
I rest my weary soul in thee:
I give thee back the life I owe,
That in thine ocean depths its flow
May richer, fuller be.

O Light that followest all my way,
I yield my flickering torch to thee:
My heart restores its borrowed ray,
That in thy sunshine's blaze its day
May brighter, fairer be.

O Joy, that seekest me through pain,
I cannot close my heart to thee:
I trace the rainbow through the rain,
And feel the promise is not vain
That morn shall tearless be.

O Cross, that liftest up my head,
I dare not ask to fly from thee:
I lay in dust life's glory dead,
And from the ground there blossoms red
Life that shall endless be.

A TRIBUTE.

A nation would be truly happy if it were governed by no other laws than those of this blessed Book.

It contains everything needful to be known or done.

It gives instruction to a senate, authority and direction to a magistrate.

It contains a witness, requires an impartial verdict from a jury, and furnishes the judge with his sentence.

It sets the husband as lord of the household, and the wife as mistress of the table; tells him how to rule, and her, as well, how to manage.

It entails honor on parents, and enjoins obedience on children.

It prescribes and limits the sway of the sovereign, the rule of the ruler, and the authority of the master; commands the subjects to honor, and the servants to obey; and promises the blessing and protection of the Almighty to all who walk by its rule.

It gives directions for weddings and burials.

It promises food and raiment, and limits the use of both.

It points out a faithful guardian to the departing husband and father; tells him with whom to leave his fatherless children, and whom his widow is to trust; and promises a father to the former, and a husband to the latter.

It teaches a man how to get his house in order, and how to make his will; it appoints a dowry for his wife; entails the right of the first-born, and shows how the young branches shall be left.

It defends the rights of all, and reveals vengeance to every defaulter, over-reacher and trespasser.

It is the first Book, the best Book.

It contains the choicest matter; gives the best instruction, and affords the greatest degree of pleasure and satisfaction that we have ever enjoyed.

It contains the best laws and the most profound mysteries that were ever penned; and it brings the very best comfort to the inquiring and disconsolate.

It exhibits life and immortality from life everlasting, and shows the way to glory.

It is a brief recital of all that is to come.

It settles all matters in debate, resolves all doubts, and eases the mind and conscience of all their scruples.

It reveals the only living and true God, and shows the way to Him; it sets aside all other gods, and describes the vanity of them and all that trust in such. In short, it is a Book of laws, to show right and wrong; a Book of wisdom that condemns all folly and makes the foolish wise; a book of truth, that detects all lies, and confronts all errors; it is a book of life, that shows the way from everlasting death.

It contains the most ancient antiquities and strange events, wonderful occurrences, heroic deeds and unparalleled wars.

It describes the celestial, terrestrial and infernal worlds, and the origin of the angelic myriads, the human tribes and devilish legions.

It will instruct the accomplished mechanic, and the most profound critic.

It reaches the best rhetorician, and exercises every power of the most skillful arithmetician, puzzles the wisest anatomist, and exercises the wisest critic.

It is the best covenant that ever was agreed on, the best deed that ever was sealed, the best evidence that ever was produced, the best will that ever will be signed.

To understand it, is to be wise indeed: to be ignorant of it, is to be destitute of true wisdom.

It is the king's best copy, the magistrate's best rule, the housekeeper's best guide, the servant's best directory, and the young man's best companion; the schoolboy's spelling-book, and the great and learned man's masterpiece.

It contains a choice grammar for a novice, and a profound mystery for a sage.

It is the ignorant man's dictionary, and the wise man's directory.

It affords knowledge of witty inventions for the humorous, and dark sayings for the grave; it is also its own interpreter, and that which crowns all is, that the Author is without partiality and without hypocrisy, "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—Selected.

THE ASHEVILLE CONFERENCE FOR LEADERS.

The fourth Southern Conference for young people's leaders under the auspices of the Young People's Missionary Movement will be held at Kenilworth Inn, Asheville, N. C., June 29 to July 8.

The purpose of this Conference is to enable Missionary Secretaries in charge of Young People's work, and the leaders in Sunday schools and young people's organizations, to spend a week or more in uninterrupted conference and prayer, outlining, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, plans of missionary work for the ensuing year. The Conference is also intended as a training school for leaders in the work of local churches and Sunday Schools.

The first hour of each day will be spent in mission study under the leadership of a number of trained teachers. The new text-book in the Forward Mission Study Series, "The Christian Conquest of India," by Bishop James M. Thoburn, will be used in these classes. This will be followed by an Institute hour, which will afford an opportunity to consider approved methods of missionary work in churches, Sunday schools and young people's. The Institute will be divided this year into groups in order to give delegates an opportunity to specialize on such phrases of missionary activity as may be of particular interest to them. The Institute hours will be in charge of a group of experienced missionary workers.

The third hour of the day will be given to addresses by returned missionaries. The afternoons will be devoted entirely to recreation, with exceptionally favorable environments. The evening will be occupied with Bible study classes, followed by a platform meeting.

A railroad rate of one first-class fare plus twenty-five cents for the round trip, on the certificate plan, has been granted by the Southern Passenger Association. Hotel rates for the ten days are as follows: one person in a room $17.50; two or more in a room $12.50. The special hotel rates are offered to delegates only. An enrollment fee of $5.00 must be paid by each delegate to cover the expenses incurred in conducting the Conference. Rooms cannot be reserved until this fee is paid.

Further information will be sent upon request to John W. Shackford, 346 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn.

AN APPEAL.

The books of the ADVOCATE Office show that many dollars are due us on subscriptions. The publisher is sending out this week many bills. We hope those who receive them will promptly respond. What each person owes is small, but in the aggregate the amount due us is large, and we need the money. The printers' wages must be met every week, and monthly bills must be paid. What is called the "dull season" is right upon us, and all that is due us is needed. We appeal confidently to our friends to pay up and renew. It will tide us over, and we will be glad and thankful. If you cannot pay all, send us what you can spare. If unable to pay anything just now, say so, and we will patiently wait. We do not care to lose a single friend. Let us hear from you soon. We will feel comfortable.

RESTATEMENT OF OUR DOCTRINES.

As was expected and predicted, the action of our late General Conference, in ordering a commission to confer with other Methodists with a view to a restatement of our Articles of Religion, has been misunderstood and misrepresented. In less than ten days after the action, people not Methodists were saying to our members, "you have a creed printed in your Discipline, but you do not believe it. You find it necessary to make one you do believe." This false impression will never be corrected, and enemies of Methodism will make all the capital out of it that is possible. Among our own people the impression largely prevails that the General Conference provided for a "revision" of the Articles. This is not the fact, for revision carries with it the idea of "correction and amendment." The General Conference provided for no such thing, but for "a new statement of Methodist faith and doctrine"—"such a statement of our faith and such an expression of our doctrinal system as is called for in our day."

The resolution adopted by the General Conference is innocent enough. It literally means nothing more than the wording of the Articles in modern English, which, as we think, is wholly unnecessary. Our preachers are sufficiently intelligent to interpret them, and our members generally can understand them. A restatement might strain our schoolmen in their efforts to make them intelligible to our people. We would find ourselves, as Methodists, exactly where the Northern Presbyterians are to-day—divided as to the meaning of the Articles.

But the resolution should be interpreted in the light of the intention of those who framed it. That intention was clearly manifest in the declarations and arguments put forth by Dr. Tillett in his speeches. The resolution called for one thing; the burden of Dr. Tillett's speeches was an appeal for something else. He reaffirmed his faith in the Twenty-five Articles, but he pleaded their "inadequacy" for present-day conditions. Being three hundred and fifty years of age, he asked for their "honorable superannuation," a request about as reasonable as to ask for the superannuation of the New Testament because it was written during the first century of the Christian era. The Doctor's position, as it appeared to us, was inconsistent. Distinctly reaffirming his faith in the Articles, he declared there was no intention to discard, or set them aside, yet said they were inadequate to present-day needs. And in pleading for their superannuation, he seemed to overlook the fact that superannuation means "above years," in Methodist terminology, not able to work, and must be set aside. As applied to our Articles of Religion, it can mean nothing else than that they are worn out, and must be laid aside as useless. We can see no difference between putting them out of sight and discarding them altogether. Dr. Tillett's panegyric directed to the beloved superannuated Bishops on the platform, as was also his appeal to his former pupils (the latter, by the way, does not appear in his printed speech), was a "play to the galleries."

It would appear, from what Dr. Tillett said, that the superannuation of a Bishop or any old preacher is a good thing. It carries honor, and respect, and puts him in a sphere of great usefulness. Therefore, let us superannuate the dear old Articles of Religion! We do not so see it. No sadder calamity has happened to Southern Methodism than when, at Baltimore in 1898, the General Conference superannuated Bishop Keener—virtually saying to him, "hands off the Ark!" The fact that he asked to be relieved did not lessen the severity of the stroke. What will be the result when the Twenty-five Articles of Religion — Methodism's guide-posts from its origin—are superannuated and retired; who can tell?

Again, Dr. Tillett was inconsistent when he told the General Conference that, "should a Joint Commission, as is proposed, ever gather together to study the making of a creed for Methodism, one of the first documents that would be placed in their hands, full of suggestion and helpfulness, would be the new creed of the United Christian Church in the Dominion of Canada." Observe: "to study the making of a creed for Methodism," is what the Commission will do. For suggestion and help, the Commission will have placed in their hands the new creed of the United Christian Church in Canada—a Church made up of Arminians and Calvinists, with a creed to fit all around. And yet Dr. Tillett does not propose to touch the Articles of Faith, only to restate them. "Making a creed for Methodism!" Strange way, that, of restating the Twenty-five Articles!

When Dr. Tillett was pleading so earnestly for the retirement of the Articles, on the ground that so many of them were directed against the errors of Romanism, and utterly failed to set forth anything in regard to regeneration, the witness of the Spirit, etc., he ignored the fact that we have other standards of doctrine quite as closely guarded by the first restrictive rule as are the Articles themselves. These standards of doctrine are luminous in their teachings on regeneration and kindred topics—covering, in all respects, the very things which he seeks to have incorporated in the new statement. Nor are they written in the language of the dead past, but in modern English, by a master of the tongue. The Doctor forgot all this, when he found himself embarrassed before his classes by reason of the fact that our Twenty-five Articles of Religion were inadequate as the basis of modern teaching. When the Doctor made that confession we noted it on our scratch-book, and asked this question: "What does the Doctor teach?" We thought it a strange confession for one occupying a chair in a Methodist institution, and able to cover the whole field of theology in our Sunday-School Magazine under the significant title: "What we believe and why." It may be that the embarrassment has come to the Professor since he completed that series of essays.

The resolution of the General Conference does not seek to alter or change our Articles of Religion, and Dr. Tillett avows that he has no such purpose in view. But if he does not apprehend a change, others do. They see the opportunity for the elimination of some offensive things. One brother, high in the ranks, and enthusiastic over the prospect, said to the writer: "I do not believe the Seventh Article of Religion, nor do you." The three last words he uttered with emphasis. The entering wedge has been started, and that brother sees a chance to give it a blow, and drive it deeper.

We do not believe that our Articles are either out of date, inadequate or useless. And in the light of Dr. Tillett's statement to the effect that the creeds of other churches are being remodeled to bring them into harmony with Methodist teaching, which so nearly accords with the Bible, it seems useless to undertake to restate them. If the Doctor is correct in this matter, he contradicts and renders null his own demand for a restatement in order to their adaptation to present-day needs.

Dr. Tillett's force was largely spent in showing that the Articles against Romanism were useless for the present. On this point he made about as much capital as on any other point. He took it for granted that the battle against Rome has been fought and won. We wonder if he thinks Rome has forgotten her cunning or ceased her efforts to down the heretics? True, Rome has not as much power to-day as she had half a century ago, but she was never more alert than now, never more cautious and seductive. Rome does not yield one inch, but takes all she can get, and her purpose is to capture these United States. The liberalism of Protestants is the rock on which they are going to pieces, and Rome is delighted. The battle is to be renewed, else Rome will easily secure possession. The battle will be renewed, and our anti-Romish creed, so much belittled as out of date, will again be relied on for assistance.

Even for those who are living well there may come a clear call to live better. Then merely to live well will be sin.—Rev. C. G. Ames.

BROTHER BINGHAM'S LETTER.

We give place in this issue of the ADVOCATE to the letter of Brother Bingham, of Carrollton. We do so willingly, notwithstanding the letter, in part, is evidently intended as a protest against admitting to the columns of the ADVOCATE communications which do not sanction the action of the General Conference on the restatement of our Articles of Religion. We have other communications on hand—one of a very conservative character, the other decidedly favoring restatement—which will see the light at the earliest day.

We expect from time to time, as occasion demands, to print our own notions, and we shall give all others opportunity to express themselves, provided they write in the proper spirit. The matter is important. There is nothing before us at this time more important. The Church has been quietly resting in the truth and sufficiency of our Articles and our standards of doctrine all these years, and to have it suddenly thrust upon us, without warning, that they are inadequate, superannuated and embarrassing to theological teachers, is quite sufficient to arouse all lovers of the Church—both those who favor such a movement and those who are opposed. The brethren will have the matter aired. If our Articles of Religion and doctrinal standards are inadequate, they want to know it. The ADVOCATE is the medium of communication for this section of our Zion. For these reasons brethren should not object to discussion.

Brother Bingham is right in correcting what we said about "a stormy time" in the Committee on Education. The brother who gave us the information was not a member of the Committee, and we did not ask him where he got the word. We simply took it for granted that his informant knew what he was talking about. Brother Bingham's statement gives us assurance that the matters of difference will be quietly and satisfactorily settled.

AN EARNEST REQUEST.

Will presiding elders who favor us with District Conference programmes excuse us for failing to print in full. We would not strike out a word were we not crowded with so much matter demanding attention. Some of the programmes are unusually long, and would fill more than two columns if printed in full. This is more space than we can spare, especially when several are received almost at the same time. A full account of the District Conference work is much more interesting and valuable than a programme. Let us have full reports.

PERSONAL.

The address of Rev. J. D. Newsom is changed from Meridian to Shuqulak, Miss.

We had a pleasant call on Monday last from Rev. O. G. Halliburton, of Bay St. Louis, Miss.

We thankfully acknowledge an invitation to the commencement exercises at the University of Mississippi. Dr. Beverly Warner, of New Orleans, will preach the sermon Sunday, June 10.

The Faculty and young ladies of Blackstone College (Virginia) invite us to attend the closing exercises June 1, 2 and 3. Rev. S. K. Cox, D.D., was booked for the annual sermon.

Bishop Galloway dedicated the Crawford Street Church, Vicksburg, May 27, an account of which is given us by the pastor, Dr. T. B. Holloman.

On Sunday last, Dr. W. B. Murrah, President of Millsaps College, was engaged to preach "the semi-centennial Commencement sermon at Southern University," Greensboro, Ala.

Dr. Collins Denny has been appointed to McKendree Church, Nashville, to succeed Dr. E. B. Chappell, who was elected Sunday-school Editor. Bishop Galloway could not have done any better.

Bishop Morrison dedicated the new church in Cynthiana, Ky., May 27. The Bishop is spending a few days at his home in the city, and will be off somewhere in Texas next Sunday to dedicate another church.

The following changes have been made in the New Orleans District: Rev. J. W. Tinnin goes from Talisheek to McDonoghville; Rev. C. S. Roberts, from McDonoghville to Slidell, and Rev. W. L. Hunter, from Slidell to Talisheek.

Rev. J. F. Waltman gives a cheering account of his work at Denham Springs, La. He is pressing the battle for the Master, trusting for a great and glorious victory. The people are encouraged, and praying for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, of Berkeley, Cal., preached Sunday morning last at Burgundy Street Church and in the evening at Carrollton Avenue Church. He left the city Monday evening for Greenwood, La., to meet an engagement of which we made note last week.

Rev. O. S. Lewis, writing from Braxton, Miss., says: "Prospects for good revivals are encouraging. We are praying for large things, and expecting large things from the Lord. I have been fortunate in securing consecrated, Spirit-filled men to assist me in the revival services."

Rev. Lastie Hoffpauir writes: "We are moving along finely on all lines of our work at Simsport. We have had some eighteen accessions this year, and I am getting up a club of subscribers and renewals for the ADVOCATE. Will send them in as I get them. Is that right?" Yes; thank you.

The roll of membership of our First Church, of this city, was recently revised and a large number of "lost-sight-of" members were dropped from the list. The church has now a membership of three hundred and twenty. This church is doing good, solid work, and is looking forward hopefully to the completion of their handsome new building.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, of Holly Springs, in a personal note to the editor, says: "During my pastorate of nearly four years I have seen the four other churches in this town change pastors. At present I am the only preacher that gives his entire time to the work here. The Presbyterians are without a preacher, hence my congregations are large and the work heavier. I have the promise of Rev. Sam Jones to help me in a meeting some time in October. I hope to give a good report at our next Annual Conference."

Rev. J. R. Countiss, who is working so energetically at Greenville, Miss., in a note to this office says: This field is difficult, but pleasant. Recently I preached a week, and, as a result, I have received five on profession of faith. Several have joined by certificate. Children's Day was a very enjoyable occasion and Mrs. T. C. Holmes and Miss Susie Trigg deserve much credit for their patient care in training the little folks."

BROTHER THOMPSON AT RAYMOND.

Dear Dr. Boswell: It was my pleasure to spend last week in a meeting with Brother I. L. Peebles and his loyal parishioners at Raymond. This is an old town, with a cultivated citizenship. They know how to make a visitor feel welcomed. The denominational fraternity there is very cordial. Notwithstanding Brother Peebles' readiness and ability to defend the doctrines once delivered to the Methodist saints, he is much loved by the members of all denominations. It is worth a week's time for any pastor to be brought in touch with his faithfulness as pastor and his devotion as a Christian. I am sure that our meeting did much good, although we were much hindered by rain.

Plants and vegetation and trees grow toward the sun. Even the heart of a tree trunk is not at the centre, as many suppose, but the main body of every tree has an elliptical bulge toward the sun-prevailing side. In garden or grove or thicket, if any plants or trees or shrubs are in the shade, they struggle toward the sun, the source of their life and light and well-being. It is in the same way that Christians ought to grow—toward God, the source of their life and light and blessedness. "The Lord God is a sun." It is our privilege, and should be our delight, to grow toward Him.—Rev. G. B. F. Hallock, D.D.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

It was 1:30 a.m., Saturday, May 12 1906, when HENRY EDWARD, infant son of N. L. and E. P. Hudson, of Winnfield, La., went to be with the angels. He was only 7 months and 10 days old, but his departure has brought a great sorrow to the home. May the Comforter sustain them in the trying ordeal. Sister Hudson is the daughter of Rev. H. E. Partridge of the Florida Conference, and will have the sympathy and prayers of all her friends who learn of this bereavement. R. A. HOLLOWAY.

Mrs. MAGGIE C. MOORE, daughter of William and Sarah C. Robertson, was born near old Bethel Church, in De Soto Parish, La., Aug. 15, 1858. Being reared under religious influence, she early imbibed the principles of faith in Christ, at the age of 14 years, and identified herself with the people of God in the M. E. Church, South, continuing steadfast to the end, which came very unexpectedly Sunday night, May 6, 1906. She died of heart failure. She was happily married to B. F. Moore Dec. 18, 1879. To this union eight children were born, all of whom are left to mourn her departure. She was a good woman, true in all the relations of life—as a wife, mother and friend. Her Christian character was above reproach. When the end came she was ready. She trusted in the blessed Savior, and was not afraid to die. Calmly, like one falling into peaceful slumber, she passed away. The body was laid to rest in the cemetery near her home, where it sleeps quietly awaiting the resurrection of the just. GEO. D. PURCELL, P. C.

JOHN WASHINGTON CARR was born May 26, 1824, and died May 1, 1906. His was a long and useful life. He was married three times—first to Miss Nichols, next to Miss McLaurin and then to Miss Bettie Ware. He leaves a widow and seven children, three of the children by the second marriage and four by the third. He was a member for some years of the Presbyterian Church, and for more than thirty years he has been a Methodist. His Christian life was always consistent. For much of his life he was a steward, and was faithful in the office. His disposition was to be a quiet, unobtrusive man. He strictly attended to his own affairs, and let others' business alone. He reared his children to take well his place in the Church and in usefulness in the world. The end came quickly, and rather unexpectedly. There was no time to call in anyone. He died in the presence of those who chanced to be at his home at the time, but he was ready and well prepared for Church, after the service in the death. He was buried at Carr's house by the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a faithful member. The large sorrowing congregation was an indication of the high esteem and honor in which he was held by his fellow-citizens. May we follow his good example.

R. A. RIDGWAY, son of James and S. A. Ridgway, was born in Pass Christian, Miss., March 2, 1859, and departed this life March 31, 1906, in Boyle, Miss. Brother Ridgway leaves a devoted wife and little daughter to mourn the departure of an affectionate husband and loving father, and three brothers and two sisters, who have lost a beloved brother. Both parents, three sisters and one brother had preceded him to the eternal world. The greater part of his life was spent in Mississippi, his native state. For a little more than seven years he was a resident of Texas. He was married in Sunflower County, Miss., Dec. 18, 1884, to Miss Georgia A. Shivers, Rev. J. Watts officiating. He united with the M. E. Church, South, in 1885, under the ministry of the sainted W. T. Shell, of the North Mississippi Conference, and was converted about one year later, while in the act of taking up the duty of family prayer. Brother Ridgway's was a beautiful life. He was unreservedly consecrated to God, and His service. He lived with God and for God, and died as he had lived, in the strength of an unconquerable faith in his Lord. He professed to be a Christian—his life was true to his profession. In every walk of life, in every relation that he sustained—husband, father, brother, friend, neighbor and in his official capacity in the Church which he loved so earnestly—he desired to honor his Lord above all else. Every obligation of life was discharged with such meekness and unselfishness as to challenge the admiration of those who knew him. Sweeter, gentler spirits are rare. How glorious is such a life! How beautiful its setting! His death was a glorious triumph. When asked by his pastor during his last illness if the Lord was with him, he gently replied: "Oh, yes." A good man has fallen. He fought a good fight, and has entered into his reward. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." He was tenderly laid to rest on the first Sabbath in April with Masonic honors in the presence of a large concourse of people, in the New Salem Cemetery, near the church of his young manhood and earliest efforts for God. May the love and blessings of God so strengthen the hearts and guide the lives of those dear ones who mourn their loss, that when they shall have passed the storm and sorrows of earth they may enter into the eternal glory of God our Father, where the bonds of love, broken here, will be united forever. JAMES W. ROGERS.

"Then were brought unto him little children, that he should put his hand on them and pray, and the disciples rebuked them," but Jesus said, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me, for such is the kingdom of heaven." And he laid his hands on them. Oh, what a world of consolation to bereaved parents lies in these words!

The compassion of the blessed Savior is the refuge to which we fly in the dark days of our bereavement, not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God. The all sufficiency of God has been the support and comfort of the faithful in all ages, so much so that it is sufficient to bear up the mind under any burden, and to cheer the heart in any distress, and since death is the only gate to life everlasting we should try to rise as much as possible above the dread of it, so that we can say with the great apostle, "Death is swallowed up in victory. O death! where is thy sting? O grave! where is thy victory?"

This train of thought was suggested by the death of a dear child, JOHN LEE SPARKMAN, oldest child and only son of Jeff D. and Pattie Sparkman, born in Binnsville, Mississippi Sept. 8th, 1890, and died of typhoid fever at his father's residence in Hattiesburg, Miss., June 19th, 1905. His life was short, but was long enough for God's purpose. His ways are past finding out, but a trustful faith bids us to see a Father's hand in all your load of grief on him who says "My grace is sufficient for you" and "He will sanctify to thee thy deepest distress." Your child is not lost—only gone before you to the loving Savior. Johnnie was a very remarkable child. He was unusually bright and intelligent for one of his age. He was manly, but modest. He was ambitious, as was proven by his unceasing efforts to acquire an education. He possesed one of nature's grandest gifts, a sunny disposition, one that never failed to find the silver lining to every cloud. I'll never forget his last visit to us. How little he thought when he left us that it would be his last visit, the last time we would see dear Johnnie's smiling face. I loved to have him with me; he was one of the most affectionate boys I ever knew, and was so thoughtful and attentive to old people, a trait not often found in boys nowadays. Jonnie was a Christian. He professed faith in Christ and united with the Methodist Church in Hattiesburg in the spring of 1904; and was a prominent member of the Junior League. He loved the Savior, the church and the pastor. He was a favorite at school; by his sweet disposition and winning ways he won the hearts of all who knew him. Johnnie was never stout like other boys, and for more than a year his parents and loved ones had been in a state of constant uneasiness. All was done that skill and loving hearts could suggest to stay the hand of death, and restore our precious one; but to no avail; so when he was attacked by that ever-to-be-dreaded typhoid fever, his constitution was not strong enough to cope with it. God in his infinite wisdom, and we doubt not for some wise purpose, saw fit thus early to remove him from the sorrowings and sufferings of this life to an eternity of happiness with the blest in Heaven. It was not in cruelty, not in wrath, that the reaper came that day. It was an angel that visited earth and took the dear one home. I know the cup seems bitter, and sometimes we are long in draining it; but oh! dear sorrowing loved ones, lift your tear-stained eyes Heavenward, and find comfort in God's many precious promises. "In my Father's house are many mansions. I go to prepare a place for you," and in that city where "they need no candles, neither the light of the sun," we expect to meet dear Johnnie and his two precious little brothers, who are watching at "the beautiful gate" to welcome him home. He was buried in the cemetery at Binnesville, by the side of his two little brothers, Dempsy and Jesse. Loving hands strewed with unstinted profusion, rare and beautiful flowers over his grave, emblematic of their hope, bound up in the doctrine of the resurrection from the dead. The body moulders in the grave, the soul liberated and free, dwells with the Savior above the stars. And now to the loved ones, these words are affectionately offered in condolence. No sorrow, however deep and shadowy, can long veil the face of our glorified Savior from the expectant gaze of a sincere and loving disciple. The tears may unbidden flow, and the cries of distress and desolateness be extended for a brief season, but the complaint, "Why hast thou forsaken me?" will catch the attention of the blessed Comforter, speed his coming and restore to the sorrow-stricken soul the joyful assurance, "All is well." May Gods angels keep their wakeful vigils over the father and mother, whose hearts have been bereft of their fondest anticipations, and whose home has been left desolate and dreary; and the two little sisters who had learned to look on their brother with pride and delight, and the aged grand-parents bowed down under the double stroke. Though the angel of death has visited your home, and pointed its sickle with unerring aim toward a dear loved one, he has only been taken from his home below to one above, there to radiate the golden wreath around God's throne, where family circles will never more be broken. Dear parents, sisters and friends, who have been bereft of your loved one, let this be a beacon light through all your trials; and let it guide you, when your little barks are assailed by adverse winds to the port where no ships have been stranded. God sees all our sorrows, and in his own good time, he will gather you who are faithful into the great fold to meet your loved one, "who is not dead, but sleepeth." Though he will visit us no more, yet we may go to him at last and there we will sing our troubles over, when all life's labors here are past. Farewell, dear Johnnie, till we meet before the throne of God above, and cast our crowns at Jesus' feet, and sing the triumph of our love.

AUNT MAE.

SKEPTICISM.

It is better to believe everything a man says than to believe nothing. The crucial test comes and the true things accepted on faith will greatly aid you in life's battles in time. Believe everything rather than reject everything.

Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the greatest Fever medicine and Life Saver in the whole world. If you believe this and accept it as a truth, you will be the immense gainer thereby, and if you doubt it and wholly reject it you may be the loser to the extent of your very life.

We will send 2 bottles to any reader of this paper on these terms:—If the two bottles cure two cases of Fever, send us $1. If they do not do all we claim, send us nothing. We take the risk. THE JOHNSON'S CHILL AND FEVER TONIC CO., SAVANNAH, GA.

WINONA, MISS.

For more than twelve months the great evangelist, Rev. Sam Jones, has had an engagement to hold a meeting in Winona. The time fixed was in September of last year, but the quarantine caused a postponment until May 20, when he came and held forth one week, including two Sundays. He was assisted in the preaching by Rev. J. T. Sexton of Knoxville, Tenn. and in the singing by Charlie Tillman of Atlanta Ga., and Mr. McKenzie of Memphis Tenn. as leaders of an excellent local choir.

The pastors and people of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and Episcopal churches united heartily in preparing for the meeting and in all the work during its progress. A cotton shed, capable of seating near 3000 people, was secured for the occasion, which being furnished with seats and electric lights, proved to be almost an ideal auditorium. All business in the town was stispended during preaching hours—three times each day—and almost everybody gave themselves and time to the meeting; besides a great many were in attendance from the surrounding country and towns. So there were large congregations from the beginning to the close, it being estimated there were 3000 present on the last day and night.

As to results, they are known only to the omniscient One. We do not attempt to give statistics in detail, leaving time to test and eternity to reveal the reality and extent of the good accomplished.

We only know that a great many in the church and out of it pledged themselves to better living; many professed conversion, and a goodly number promised to unite with the church of their choice at their earliest convenience. On the evening following the close of the meeting one hundred men of the various churches in town and of no church affiliation assembled in the Methodist Church and organized a "Winona Brotherhood," for the purpose of conserving the interest generated by the meeting for the enforcement of law and order, and the promotion of morality and piety. At this writing the number enrolled in this league is more than 130. The women have gone into a similar organization.

The influence of the meeting is felt not only in Winona, but in the regions round about and far away. In this great religious awakening and movement we recognize the hand of our Lord, and praise Him for the presence and ministry of Brother Jones, and for the power of the Holy Ghost upon preacher and people.

At the close of the meeting a committee of representative men of the various churches waited on Bro. Jones with a request that he come and hold another meeting next year, and he promised to do so. So may it be.

"When he (Barnabus) came (to Antioch) and had seen the grace of God, he was glad and exhorted them all that, with purpose of heart, they would cleave unto the Lord." Amen. G. W. BACHMAN.

DO YOU WANT THE PAPER?

The Advocate is sent to all of its subscribers regularly, in entire good faith and with full expectation of payment for every copy sent, until explicit instructions to discontinue and all arrearages are received. This is done as an accommodation to subscribers, and with no intention of "forcing" the paper on anyone. It is easy to discontinue a subscription at any time desired. Simply look at the address label for subscription date, and drop us a postal-card request a week or two before expiration of time paid for; or, if in arrears, send with your request the amount you owe. We have been asked why we do not cut off subscribers when their subscriptions expire. To this we answer by saying that many of our best friends allow themselves to drop behind, and would feel hurt if cut off. It is impossible to judge between those who desire the paper and those who do not. Some of our most ardent supporters are often compelled to postpone paying for the paper because of lack of means, and naturally expect us to carry them until such time as they may be able to pay. We gladly accommodate them. Many others allow the paper to come to them indefinitely, and when our bill is sent the paper is refused, without even the courtesy of a reply. Brothers, sisters, we deserve at least a courteous reply. Do you want the paper?

LESSON FOR JUNE 17, 1906.

THE TRANSFIGURATION.

(Luke ix. 28-36.)

Golden Text—"This is my beloved Son; hear him."—Luke ix. 35.

Peter and James and John, as a representative three from among the apostles, are, no doubt, the ones referred to when the Lord said, "There are some standing here that shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God." In all the time of the ministry of our Lord prior to the event told in our lesson the disciples had been taught the effect of the coming kingdom of God on the lives of the faithful in this world; how they would grow to be like Him in whose steps they were being led, learning that even while in this present world they would be partakers of the Divine nature, as Peter in after years wrote and spoke. Now comes the time when man must be shown the kingdom of God in its relation to immortality, being emphasized by a vision, in which appears two of the servants of the Almighty God, one of whom had generations ago left the earth and entered eternal life without passing through the portals of death; the other being, even after death, the subject of dispute between the archangel Michael and the devil.

A great and sublime purpose lay behind the sending of these two, Moses and Elijah, from heaven to commune with the Son of God. We are told that they talked about the approaching sacrifice, when Jesus would, through the Eternal Spirit, offer Himself, without spot, to God (Heb. ix. 14). There are no grounds to suppose that the three apostles took any part in the conversion, but we can say that, by being present, they received an assurance of the immortality of the soul, which was manifest in all they, in after years, spoke and wrote. Even before some important and mighty event in the earth life of our Lord, we find Him taking Himself away from the world, going above, upon a mountain, and then still ascending by prayer, until His Spirit has left the earth and its affairs and become wholly and entirely absorbed in things divine. Do we preface the coming events of our lives with prayer, as the Master has shown us? Let us never enter an undertaking through which we cannot ask the guidance of the Lord. It was while Jesus prayed that His transfiguration took place. God is swift to hear and answer the prayer of faith."

Peter and James and John went to sleep, even slept while the mighty power of God in His eternal kingdom was being shown. How could they? How can we become listless as we hear men speak on this matchless theme? Alas, for poor, frail human nature!

When they awoke they saw the two men that stood with Jesus. They saw them, and knew them. How did they know them? It must be that in the spiritual kingdom thought is as plain to perception as speech, and character as readily recognized as are human faces. How familiar do we become with these palpable truths as we sweetly meditate on heaven, and how it will be when we, by the grace of God, shall enter there. Shall I know Jesus? O yes, I shall know Him before all. I shall know Him by the marks of the thorns on His brow, and the prints of the nails in His hands, and, like Thomas, we will say, "My Lord and my God," throwing ourselves prostrate before Him. Shall I know mother? O but let me hear one word in the same sweet voice—but one touch on my brow of the soft hand! Yes, we can learn from this lesson that we will know mother, and sister, and brother, and all the loved ones that are not dead, but gone before.

God called out of heaven when His Son was passing through great events of His earthly life; and the words were most times directed to His children on earth, that He loved so much as to send His Son to die for them. The voice came after Peter had proposed tabernacles for a permanent stay on the mount. Peter was perhaps still thinking of earthly things, despite the reproof given him by the Lord. He seemed to be trying to ward off the evil times as foretold by Jesus; but the voice of God directed him and us to hear and heed the words of His Son.

Only think! the voice of our God heard on the earth! He is not very far away. "The Lord is nigh unto them of a broken heart." (Psalms xxxiv. 18). "Though He be not far from every one of us" (Acts xvii. 17). How rich are we, His children, as He "gives us all things richly to enjoy," and provides so bountifully for earthly wants, and assures us a home in heaven. As we follow Jesus up on the Mount of Transfiguration, so also must we follow Him in the descent. When He came down He found work waiting for Him to do. We will find work for our hands all around us. We need never be idle. Every moment of work for Him is reflex in effect—as we help others we are helped, and the result is increased or decreased by more or less sincerity of purpose. Like prayer is measured by faith in the answer, so is the good we receive for working for the Master measured to us by the love we have for Him.

Peter and James and John were not to tell of the vision they had seen, because it related to existence after death as it pertained to them and to all humanity. Jesus had not seen death yet, but after the death and the resurrection and ascension, when they could preach the Gospel in its fulness, then they could describe the glories of God's eternal kingdom.

See how Peter wrote of it in his Second Epistle, first chapter, verses 17 and 18. Yet all this has not the power of God unto salvation as has His holy Word—this blessed, holy Word! This Book Divine, by which the Holy Ghost shows us the things of Christ! This is ours—our guide through the world, by the way of the cross of Christ, onward and upward to the crown of glory that fadeth not away.

Summer. This Summer

IN COLORADO

Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. Time was when a visit to the "top of the Continent" was a great luxury, as high in price as in altitude, but not so to-day.

You can spend the Summer or a part of the Summer in Colorado and live as reasonably as you do at home, and the quick service and low tourist and excursion rates afforded via Rock Island lines bring the Rockies within your easy reach.

Our Booklets and Folders give the whole story.

PATTERSON, LA.

Dear Dr. Boswell:—I have several different times this year intended giving you some information concerning our work here, but not until this moment have I executed my intention. I received the minutes several days ago and I notice that our report to the last Annual Conference compares very favorably with others, notwithstanding our upset state of affairs here last fall, due to a thousand cases of yellow fever during the said period of time. The number of accessions to the church was above the average; and although less than 20 per cent. of the charges paid preachers, presiding elders and conference assessments in full, this charge was among that number.

The people have treated us very kindly and generously since we have been with them. In addition to paying our salary in full last year, they gave myself and companion a trip to Colorado; and last fall, when our yellow fever troubles were about over, made me a present of about $60.00.

This year we have gone a little beyond the ordinary by placing the Conference paper in nearly every home in the charge. My people think that you are steadily improving; and I have no doubt that if the members of our church in other stations and circuits took the ADVOCATE as mine do, you would be able to make it one of the leading papers in the country. Think of twenty subscribers from a small charge like Patterson!

We have a Sunday school, in number below the average, but I believe that it is doing the largest benevolent work in proportion to its size than any other in the State, if not in the entire connection. Besides meeting the bill for supplies, they do a missionary work, and greatest of all, they are supporting an orphan. No orphan has yet been assigned our Sunday school, but we are going ahead, and by the end of the year have $72.00 in the bank, enough to support an orphan in our orphanage-to-be, according to Brother Weir's statement. Notwithstanding the unusually large contributions being made this year, the collection for Children's Day was about the same as heretofore. If you know of a more generous Sunday school than ours throughout the whole connection, let me know, for I would be pleased to send them my expressions of esteem. We have received several fine members this year on profession of faith, and hoping and praying to receive at least a dozen more of the same kind.

LEON J. MCCAIN.

OAK RIDGE CHARGE.

Dear Doctor:—Will you allow me a little space in the ADVOCATE? I just want to let the outside world know where "we" are, and what we are doing.

We were cordially received by a few of the people when we moved to Oak Ridge, and have had a most delightful time ever since.

We found the charge in a most disastrous condition; it reminded me of a flock of sheep in a forest without a shepherd. I was indeed deeply impressed with the condition of things, and determined, by the help of God, to regulate the work, and get it in good working condition. We give God, our Father, the praise and thanks for the work we have done. At one church where there were but five or ten present at the beginning of the year, we have from twenty-five to thirty now. At Oak Ridge, where there were but twenty or thirty, we have from fifty to seventy-five out now. The work is gradually growing and the people are taking more interest in church work. Most of the prominent members take the ADVOCATE and are well pleased with its improvement. We are going to try and get some more to take it.

The storm we had here last Saturday, May 26th, was very severe. It damaged our church steeple so badly that we will have to take it down.

Our Children's Day was a great success. On the third Sunday in May we observed the day at Oak Ridge. The children did well. The church could not near hold the crowd that had assembled; there were about four hundred people out, and they all seemed to enjoy the services. The collection amounted to $15.

The children on our circuit are neglected too much, they are the hope of our church, and if we, as ministers of the Gospel, neglect them, we are not the true followers of Christ. They have within them a "heart," the like of which, if we, as adults have not, we cannot become members of the kingdom of heaven. Christ says, "for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

"They are idols of hearts and of households,
They are Angels of God in disguise,
His sunlight shall sleep in their tresses.
These truants from home and from heaven.
They have made me more manly and mild.
And I know now how Jesus could liken
The kingdom of heaven to a child."

POND'S EXTRACT
THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR
The Survival of the Fittest is well illustrated by the success of Pond's Extract. For sixty years witch hazel manufacturers have offered their product as "the same thing" and "just as good." Pond's Extract never has and never can be equalled.
Witch Hazel is not the same thing. On analysis of seventy samples of Witch Hazel—often offered as "the same thing"—fifty-two were shown to contain wood alcohol or formaldehyde or both To avoid danger of poisoning use

MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The attention of all who expect to attend the Meridian District Conference is called to the schedules of the railroads. We have but one train a day each way over the Alabama & Mississippi Ry. The West-bound train leaves Vinegar Bend about 7:30 or 8 o'clock in the morning, and arrives at Leakesville about one hour afterwards. The early Mobile & Ohio train, which leaves Meridian at 2:40 a.m., arrives at Vinegar Bend about 5 a. m. By coming on that train the brethren will avoid the necessity of spending a night at Vinegar Bend. However, if any one should prefer to make the trip in the day and not break a night's rest, they can get splendid hotel accommodations at Vinegar Bend. The early Mobile & Ohio train will get you there in plenty time for breakfast, and the Alabama & Mississippi will land you in Leakesville in time for the opening of the District Conference, Thursday morning, June 14th. The east-bound train leaves here at 3:15 p.m. and makes connection with the M. & O. trains both ways. A daily mail hack makes the round-trip between Leakesville and Merrill on the M. J. & K. C. R. R. This hack leaves Merrill in the morning and arrives here about 11 a. m. It starts back to Merrill about 12:30 p. m., making connection with the trains on that road.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on perscriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, O., by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

MANDEVILLE, LA.

Suuday, May 27, was an epoch in the history of the Methodist Church In Mandeville, being the first Children's Day celebrated, and due largely to the untiring energy and efforts of Miss Rosena Powell. A sermon was delivered in the morning especially for the children by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Tinnin. At 8 p.m. the exercises began, and though it seemed but a few minutes, the rendition of the programme occupied nearly an hour. It has been manifested to the people of Mandeville by energetic workers that her church and Sunday school, as well as commercial life, could, indeed, be a bright one.

INVESTMENT AND DIVIDENDS GUARANTEED.

The San Domingo Mining Company recently organized to purchase the famous old San Domingo group, consisting of 47 mines in Old Mexico—mines that have been worked off and on since the year 1523—offers a limited amount of its stock for a short time only at 1 per share, under the following conditions:

Every dollar you pay for the stock is at once deposited with the United States Banking Company, a bank with assets of eleven million dollars (responsibility unquestioned), and a certificate of deposit is issued to you in your name and held by you until this Company pays you dividends of $1 per share. You don't part with your money until you are actually paid in dividends an amount equal to your investment. Loss of a dollar absolutely impossible. Profits will be large, as the property is now being rapidly developed, and we have hundreds of thousands of tons of low-grade ore on dumps. It requires machinery—reduction works—to save the value. That's why we are offering the stock at $1. We need the money for the reduction works. We work on the interest of the money paid for the stock until you get your money back in dividends.

A full description of the properties will be sent you for the asking. Write to-day.

LEAKESVILLE (MISS.) CHURCH.

The new Church at Leakesville, Miss., erected in 1905, under the administration of Rev. D. Scarborough, who still has charge. It is a neat and attractive house, built at a cost of $2,500, including the pews and other furniture. The Church prospers under the care of Brother Scarborough, who will this week have the pleasure of entertaining the Methodist District Conference.

DIRECTIONS.

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager or the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

A special dispatch from New York to the Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "Professor Trouvelot, scientist, brought certain brown-tailed moths to this country years ago for experimental purposes. A vagrant breeze wafted a nest of the caterpillars afar. They multiplied so fast that to-day the pest is almost national. Congress appropriated $100,000 to find a remedy for the evil, and the Agricultural Department sent a man abroad to look for it. This expert has invested in 5,000,000 parasites guaranteed to eat up the brown-tailed moth to the last hair. The immigrants are on their way to America. A laboratory has been fitted up at Saugus, Mass., to receive them. Five million parasites have never been so warmly welcomed to these shores before."

Senator Burton, of Kansas, who was convicted before a Federal Court of practicing his profession as a lawyer, and taking a fee therefor, while serving as United States Senator, has exhausted every means of clearing himself of guilt. But every court up to the United States Supreme Bench has decided against him. The alternative was expulsion from the Senate or resignation. As long as he had any hope he refused to resign. At the last moment he tendered his resignation, and it was accepted. He was condemned to pay a large fine and serve six months in prison. Unless pardoned or the case is reversed, he will be forever barred from any office of profit or trust under the Government.

Another great sensation has been sprung upon the people. This time it is a special message to Congress from President Roosevelt, accompanied by a lengthy report of the sanitary condition of the packing houses and stock yards of Chicago, and the manner in which the meat supply of this country—of cattle, sheep and hogs—is prepared for market. The details are sickening—nothing could be more so. The Government has inspectors on hand all the time, but their work goes no further than to determine whether the animals to be used as food are healthy. They have nothing to do with the manner in which the meat is handled after the animals are slaughtered. It is after this, according to the report, that the dirty work is begun and continued. As these establishments furnish meat for the whole country the President would have laws enacted for their proper conduct, and inspectors on hand to see that the laws are enforced. The packers, of course, make vigorous denial of the charges, and a contest will be on. Whether Congress makes any further laws or not, it is fair to say that good will come of the agitation.

The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections has at last agreed on a report to be made to the Senate in the case of the Mormon Apostle, Reed Smoot. The finding against Smoot was made by a vote of seven to five. All the members of the Committee were not present. Senator Depew was absent. Had he been on hand he would have voted to unseat the Apostle. The Committee could not agree as to the method of getting rid of the incumbent—whether by expulsion, or simply by declaring the seat vacant. If by the former, a two-third vote will be necessary. If by the latter, a majority will suffice. When final action will be had is not known. It is said that public sentiment has more weight with Congress now than at any former period. If so, it would be well for the people all over the country to write to their Senators and urge prompt and decisive action. Or better, let petitions go up to the Senate from every Church and Sunday-school and neighborhood throughout the whole land. It is not too late for the women in the land to secure petitioners. The triumph of Reed Smoot in this case will fix Mormonism in Congress—in both Houses—for all time. No matter how gentlemanly Mr. Smoot may appear, he stands for Mormonism—the corruptest organization on earth, and an enemy of the United States Government. He should be expelled.

We feel sorry for the young Queen of Spain, who was married to King Alfonso on the first day of June. She was reared a Protestant, and all her life has been under the very best influences. Being a granddaughter of good Queen Victoria, this could hardly have been otherwise. She has been utterly unused to scenes and acts of savagery. But on Sunday, June 3, three days after her marriage, she was forced to attend a Spanish bull fight, which, if the report is true, was about as bloody and disgusting as anything of the kind could be. Eight animals were tortured in the bloodiest manner, and finally killed. It is said the Queen witnessed the sight without the least sign of excitement or emotion. We suppose the poor woman was so perfectly dazed by the unaccustomed and savage sight, that she could not give expression to her feeling. She was probably thinking how near to death she came herself on the day of her wedding, when an assassin's bomb exploded almost in her face, killing several attendants, and one of the horses attached to the carriage in which she and the King were going from the church to the palace. It was a marvellous escape—exactly one year to a day from the time an attempt was made on the King's life while on a visit to Paris. The etiquette of a court that requires its sovereigns to attend bull fights on the Sabbath, or any other day for that matter, needs reforming.

The patent medicine business seems to be occupying some of the time of the Louisiana legislators now in session. Perhaps it is well, for the patent business is overdone. Stringent measures are proposed, which, if enacted into law, will not only drive much of the business out of the State, but virtually confiscate many thousands of dollars now invested in medicines. Druggists, proprietors and others are interested, and against the bill, as it now stands. The Daily Picayune, of this city, in the issue of June 5, has the following in regard to the matter: "Without doubt not a few of these articles are wholly worthless for any purposes of medication, and others are injurious. Some are held by the highest members of the medical profession to be of extreme value, an estimate which is attested by the fact that these medicines are frequently prescribed for their patients by our most distinguished physicians. In this connection it is worth noting that all important medical journals which depend wholly on the patronage of orthodox practitioners of medicine are the largest advertisers of these proprietary medicines. The average general reader never looks in a medical professional publication, and therefore these publications must rely wholly on professional patronage. This being true, why should the proprietors and manufacturers of such patent remedies advertise them in the medical journals if not for the information of the physicians themselves? As an evidence of this interesting state of affairs, the Picayune finds in the pages of the New Orleans Medical and Surgical Journal for the current month more than forty separate advertisements by manufacturing firms and corporations setting forth to the medical profession more than fifty different preparations which are recommended for various diseases. The editors and conductors of this excellent medical and surgical monthly are among the very ablest physicians and sugeons in this city, and the fact that they entertain and publish these advertisements gives the remedies announced a respectability and importance that they would not have when published in an ordinary newspaper."

WHAT IS BEING SAID.

Anent the restatement of our Articles of Religion, we have gathered the following paragraphs and sayings from various quarters.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate discourages the project. It says: "We agree with Bishop Wilson when, in dissenting from Dr. Tillett's statement, he declared that the present Articles of Religion are not superannuated. There is no occasion to revise them, though if formulated in this day they would doubtless be clothed in somewhat different language. The fact that this proposal comes from so conservative a member of the Methodist family as the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will commend it to the respectful consideration of other Methodist bodies. It is probable, however, that both the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Wesleyan Church of England will be prevented by legal limitations from co-operating in such a revision of their creed, even if they should desire so to do. The Wesleyan Church has no such articles of religion as has the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but the perpetually binding character of its creed is expressed in the Model Deed for Chapels, which reads: 'Provided always that the persons preach no other doctrine than is contained in Wesley's Notes upon the New Testament and four volumes of sermons.' The requirements of this language as to the creed of the Church has been approved by Parliament, and could not be modified in the slightest degree except by act of Parliament. The constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church provides that every provision of the constitution may be altered or amended, except Section 1, Article 10, which section says: "The General Conference shall not revoke, alter nor change our Articles of Religion nor establish any new standards or rules of doctrine contrary to our present existing and established standards of doctrine." Such changes as are contemplated in the proposal for a revision of the Articles of Religion could not, therefore, be made except by the adoption of a new constitution."

A scribe speaks thus in the St. Louis Advocate: "This scribe has followed with great care the action of the General Conference on the restatement of our faith. And I must say, I have quite a good deal of interest in the matter, more as a matter of curiosity, simply to see what sort of a thing a twentieth century made creed will look like. Although having been an itinerant preacher for twenty years, I never even dreamed that we did not have an adequate statement of our faith in our Twenty-five Articles of religion. My brethren, I am a little afraid there is some higher criticism underlying this movement. They are adequate for me."

The Associate Reformed Presbyterian says: "The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has under consideration the appointment of a commission to act with similar commissions to be appointed by other Methodist bodies in drawing up a new statement of the system of Evangelical Methodist Arminianism. This indicates no departure from the faith, but only a conviction on the part of some that the form of statement in their Twenty-five Articles does not meet the existing needs of the Church."

The Christian Guardian, organ of Canadian Methodism, may be counted as in opposition to the proposed restatement. It says: "The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, after a long and spirited debate, decided, by a vote of 151 to 107, to give over to a special commission the work of preparing a new statement of faith. Other branches of the Church are to be asked to unite in this task. Our brethren in the South can scarcely be as conservative in reality as they are commonly supposed to be."

In conversation with one of the most eminent Presbyterian ministers of Louisiana he said: "I fear you Methodist brethren are undertaking a dangerous thing."

WASTED ENERGY.

So many people needlessly and recklessly waste their nerve energy. They drum the chair or the desk with their fingers or tap the floor with their toes. They hold their hands. They sit in a rocking-chair and rock for dear life. If they write or sew they get down to it with a vengeance and contract their brows and wrinkle their foreheads and grind their teeth.

If they have an unusual task to do they contract and contort every muscle of the body, making themselves tense and rigid all over, when the work perhaps required but one set of muscles, or perhaps the mind only, as the case may be.—Health Culture.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

DELIVERED BY PRESIDENT T. S. SLEIGHT AT THE MANSFIELD COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT, 1906.

Ladies and Gentlemen: The school year that is now closing has been one above all others to try our faith.

The crop failure and rigid quarantine almost paralyzed many business interests. Yet we have much for which to be thankful. We have had peace and quiet in our town. The people are nearer a unit now than they have ever been.

During the ten years that we have had charge of the College the attendance each year has increased over that of the previous year; every year previous to this we have been able to report an increase in the attendance, but to-day we are compelled to say that this year our plans have been defeated so far as increasing our boarding department over last year's record; but we are glad to say that we have made a creditable record. Thanks to the people of Mansfield, our local patronage has been better than ever before.

The boarding pupils have come to us from the best families in the state, and the College life has been unusually attractive.

The work done by the students has, as a rule, been eminently satisfactory. Many of the pupils have distinguished themselves by the records they have made this year.

We feel hopeful as to the future. The College has never been so well equipped. We feel that there is not a business man in town who is not ready to help us in this work. You recognize the fact that the College is an important factor in Mansfield, and we confidently expect your help.

What Mansfield College has been to you can never be estimated this side of eternity.

Cultivated Christian womanhood is a power that can transform what is sordid and selfish in humanity into the broadest philanthropy, and use for the glory of God and the good of humanity all those mighty forces which civilization has put into motion.

The future of Mansfield has never been more promising. Increased business interests are bringing men of character and influence to our town. But more powerful than business corporations are the educational possibilities before our people. The new High School building is an enterprise that should be dear to every lover of humanity, and we are sure that the time is not far distant when we shall see the walls of this much-needed building rising higher and higher, until Mansfield can look with pride to its magnificent High School building.

The schoolhouse is the training-camp of the future—our children the army that must meet the issue, and stand or fall in life's battles. It is our imperative duty to train and equip them to meet the coming years with energy, skill and intelligence. For a child to know himself, his own powers, and his own responsibility to God and to humanity is more important than to know the laws of physics, or the history of men and the science of government. The moral, as well as the intellectual, must be developed.

It is not enough that we teach our children the mysteries of science, the principles of mathematics, or the formation of languages. We must also teach them the science of correct living. Not only should they be taught their relation to men, but they should also recognize in that relation their duty to God. Good citizenship must be based not only on a trained intellect, but also on an enlightened conscience. It must have these virtues that make men true and good, that direct men to right-thinking and right-living. There can be no true liberty in our great country without honor, fidelity, truth, industry, temperance and kindness. Without this foundation our National life must go down in hopeless ruin. "You may build your capitol of granite," says Wendal Phillips; "and pile it high as the Rocky Mountains, but if it be founded on, or mixed with iniquity, the pulse of a girl will in time beat it down." If eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, it must be vigilance against every form of deceit and dishonesty in private and public life. Liberty is not license, and freedom is not freedom to do wrong.

Humboldt says that government, religion, property, books are nothing but the scaffolding to build men. Whatever we would have our children become must be embodied in their education.

Money and property bequeathed to a child is a doubtful good. But good character, high ideals, and an infinite capacity for intelligent thinking and skillful acting is an heritage that brings happiness and makes the world better.

The thought of this day's triumph has, no doubt, been a charm that gladdened many an hour of toil, that mingled smiles with your tears, joy with your sorrows, and crowned defeat with chaplets of victory.

As your timid feet press the border land, and your glad eyes peer into the future, I rejoice in the thought that you will be strong and brave for the right.

No age has so honored woman as the present, and no age has demanded so much of her. You go out into the world with cultured brain, and a loyal heart.

I wish that you could recognize and appreciate the true philosophy of life, the necessity of harmonious development, that there may be no friction between the inner and the outer life.

As music to the ear, as light to the eye, as love to the soul, so is truth to the mind. Human perfection should be the aim of every life. Perfect harmony is not found in mediocrity, but upon the sublime heights of genius. Then faithful to your nobler self, upward through facts and reason and intuition, rise to those sublime heights, until, as a reward for your devotion, there shall break upon your soul glimpses of the divine, and you recognize "Facts in this world as the thoughts of God."

The world needs consecrated, unselfish workers. I plead with you, as I do with the womanhood all over this land, to be loyal to yourself, to the future and to God.

We live in an age, on ages telling. Great truths are struggling for recognition, great problems await solution. A balance must be preserved between the demands of the age and the ability to meet those demands.

Ever keep in view the attainment of that high civilization which is the right of humanity to enjoy.

Life, even to the most fortunate, is full of trials. As a guide through every difficulty, as a solace for every sorrow, I give you this Bible.

In its pages you will find history most true to nature, romance the most charming, poetry the most inspiring, and love the most wonderful. May God bless you.

BISHOP JOHN C. KEENER.

The following resolution was adopted by the Board of Trustees of Centenary College at Jackson, La., in regular session, June 5, 1906:

"Be it resolved by the Board of Trustees of Centenary College of Louisiana, That, whereas since our last meeting Bishop John Christian Keener, the beloved President of this Board, has passed from his earthly labors to his eternal reward, that, in his long Christian life, we are enriched by his serene Christian faith, devotion to duty, wise leadership in church, and exemplification of the highest traits of social, friendly and family life; that Centenary College had no truer or more devoted friend and supporter than Bishop Keener; that to his efforts is more largely due than to anyone else the culmination, maintenance and whatever success the College has enjoyed and good it has done.

"Resolved, That we revere his memory and shall cherish it as one of our choicest legacies; that we shall ever rejoice in his triumphant life, and recognize that victory was his through the grace of God, informing, strengthening, directing, overcoming, and pray that we may be led by the same Spirit, until with him we are permitted to share the supernal glory we are sure our departed father in Christ now enjoys.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and published in the New Orleans and Nashville ADVOCATES, and a copy be furnished the family."

HENRY N. PHARR,
Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College of Louisiana.

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTES.

(From the Central Office.)

The action of the General Conference with reference to a $275,000 church building in the City of Washington, D. C., has been favorably received by the church at large, if the favorable comments by the church press are an indication. Our wealthy, patriotic and religious laymen will find in this enterprise an opportunity for investment to the glory of God in the world's greatest capital.

Bishop J. J. Tigert and the Corresponding Secretary, Dr. McMurry, have promised to spend Sunday, June 17, with the Rev. Lewis Powell, of Central Church, Hot Springs, Ark. Brother Powell is putting forth every possible effort to bring to completion a large, representative church building in that important city.

Rev. J. T. Curry, D. D., Presiding Elder of the Nashville District, is making plans for a large meeting of the City Board of Church Extension on the evening of June 14. The official members of the Nashville churches will be present. The Corresponding Secretary will represent the Board of Church Extension.

The large loan granted to Trinity Church, Dallas, Tex., some three years ago, has been promptly paid. We congratulate the pastor, Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, and his congregation, as well as others who have been patiently waiting to use this fund in like manner.

Information has reached the office that new church buildings are being enterprised at Winnsboro, S. C., Columbia, Ala., and Gravett, Ark.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Woman's Board of Foreign Missions has just held its Twenty-eight Annual Meeting in Opelika, Ala.

"Publish glad tidings:—
Tidings of peace,
Tidings of Jesus,
Redemption and release."

was the keynote of the meeting. There were present eight of our missionaries, whose consecrated lives added greatly to the interest of the meeting as they eagerly told of the success of their work—of God's goodness to them.

The report of the General Secretary showed that the work in all our fields was advancing, our greatest need being more workers. "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few." Korea, China, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba and the Indian Missions are all "coming into the light." Great revivals have blessed the work in these fields. They are longing to know more of Jesus.

A most impressive service took place on the evening of the 28th, when our nine new missionaries were consecrated to the Master's service, and each told in an impressive manner her joy in taking up this work.

Another interesting and important feature of this year's session of the Board was the election of officers, as follows: President, Miss M. L. Gibson; First Vice President, Mrs. A. W. Wilson; Second Vice President, Mrs. A. Sowell; Third Vice President, Mrs. W. F. Barnum; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. S. C. Trueheart; Associate Secretary, Mrs. Alice Cobb; Recording Secretary, Mrs. T. B. Hargrove; Treasurer, Mrs. H. N. McTyeire.

The next session of the Board will be held in Richmond, Va.

VOLUNTEER CONVENTION.

The Student Volunteer Convention, that was held in Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 28-March 4, is said to have been the most noted in the history of that great work. Probably the most impressive time during the convention was the closing session on Sunday night, when more than a hundred student volunteers, who expect to sail for the foreign field during the present year, were called to the platform and gave in single sentences their reasons for going. Can anyone say they do not believe in foreign missions? After the testimonies were concluded, Mr. Mott called for a season of silent prayer. In the almost absolute stillness there was a realization of the presence of Christ.

Japan is now suffering from the worst famine in sixty years. Dr. DeForest, of Sendai, Japan, writing to the Missionary Herald for April, says: "In these three provinces—Miyagi, Fukushima and Iwate—there are some forty-six countries, thirty-five of which are in need of aid, and in some of these countries over half of the population are very near the edge of starvation, and tens of thousands are actually without a day's food. The cold and snows of this winter are almost unprecedented. It is pitiable in the extreme to see thinly-clad, bare-footed children, who have had but a taste of miserable food once in twenty-four hours. Of course, this means rapid loss of vitality, especially among children and the aged."

TRAINED WORKERS NEEDED.

"The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." We are praying for the laborers, and when these offer themselves, we must be ready to equip them for service in the foreign field.

At the Annual Meeting of the Louisiana Conference, Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the Corresponding Secretary suggested a plan, which was adopted, by which we might endow a scholarship in the Scarritt Bible and Training School, so as to have a young woman in training for missionary work every year. The plan was this: that one hundred individuals pledge themselves to contribute ten dollars a year for three years, in this way raising $3,000, the amount necessary for the endowment. Several have already made the pledge. Who will follow their example?

A DOCTOR'S STORY.

A physician of large reputation tells a good story about himself. "During my absence," he says, "my two youngsters got into my consulting room, where they began to 'play at being doctors.' Presently one of them unlocked a door and disclosed a terrorized gaze to his playmate. 'Pooh! What are you 'fraid of?' he asked. 'It's nothing but an old skellington.'

"'Wh-wh-where did it come from?' asked the other with chattering teeth. 'Oh, I don't know. Papa's had it a long time. I expect it was his fisrt patient.'"—Exchange.

MEG'S WORK.

"But, Laura," said Meg, rather mournfully to her Bible class teacher, "it seems as if I must give up trying to be good. Everything hinders me so at our house. Mother's sick so often, the children are so much trouble, how can I do my work heartily? And it's common everyday work. Now, if I only had something like real good work to do—"

"Dear Meg," said Miss Laura, smoothing the drooping head before her, "most of us have common, everyday work of some kind; that is most often the kind of work our Lord gives us. You think, perhaps, if you were teaching a class of heathen girls, you could serve the Lord Jesus better than making bread, or amusing little ones. But, you see, that is the very work he has put in your hands to do. And surely, Meg dear, it is worth trying to do. Don't forget to ask Him to help you, even in the commonest work, and try to remember, when you are doing it, that that is just the kind of work he wants you to do."

"I'm afraid I do forget too often," said Meg, thoughtfully, "you help me ever so much, Miss Laura. But it is getting late; and I must go now; Ellen will be tired looking after the children, and the boys will want their supper."

Meg hastened down the street, thinking over what her teacher had said. She nodded her head very decidedly, as she stepped across the threshold of her home.

"Well! I thought you never would come, Meg," was Ellen's impatient greeting, as Meg entered the sitting room. "Tot and Bob have been as cross as two sticks, and mother's headache's worse; I'm just as tired as I can be!"

"Say, Meg," called a voice at the foot of the stairs, "are we going to have any supper? I'm as hungry as a hunter."

"When were you ever anything else?" answered Meg, rather impatiently. "If you ever were, I did not know of it."

"There ain't no bread for supper," affirmed Sam decidedly.

"No bread!" exclaimed Meg. "Why, I looked in the bread-box before I went out, and there was a loaf and a half."

"Well," said Sam, hesitatingly, standing first on one foot, then on the other, "you see me and Jimmy got awfully hungry, and Ellen wouldn't find us anything left from dinner—and the Brown boys came home with us from school, and —so and—"

"And so you went to work and ate everything you could lay your hands on," said Meg, angrily, throwing off her bonnet and gloves.

There was a moment or two of silence, during which an angry spot burned on Meg's cheek. Then there was a little rustle in the sick room.

"Meg!" called a feeble voice.

"Yes, mother," said Meg, more softly.

"Send Ned to the baker's, daughter; it is too late for you to go to baking. I was afraid the boys were in mischief, but be patient, dear."

"I think you might set the table, Ellen," said Meg, as she passed Ellen in the dining room. "The fire is out, and I must make it up for mother's tea."

"It would not have been out if you had not stayed so long at Miss Laura's, and I am just worn out with those children."

"Oh, dear, dear!" sighed Meg, as she opened the stove door, "how can I be good and cheerful, when the children are so cross, and the boys make me so much extra work. To think of their eating up all the bread!"

"I'll make the fire, Meg," cried a voice at her elbow, and there was Jimmy bright and willing, with a basket of kindlings."

The fire was soon burning brightly; and Meg found that Ellen must have repented of her cross speech, for there was the table neatly set, and Ellen singing good-naturedly to Rob, who was awake, and must be amused by some one.

"Maybe its I that am cross, after all."

Mother was not better the next day, and so many things fell to Meg's hand. Ned was teasing, Ellen was indifferent, Tot and Rob fretted after mother, and Sam and Jimmy seemed to invent the most ingenious methods of getting in the way, and increasing the work of the elder sister.

But Meg toiled bravely: she kept the sick room dark and quiet; she tried not to notice Ellen's provoking ways and speeches, or the boys' tiresome pranks.

It was not always easy to do so. For all know, that great romping boys are not usually very thoughtful of other's comfort. And sometimes, when something more provoking than usual occurred, Meg had hard work to prevent herself bursting out in a fit of impatience, or else sitting down in a flood of discouraged tears. Ellen, too, did not seem to notice the brave struggle which her sister was making to do her work well and patiently, and Meg suffered almost as much from Ellen's speches as from the boys' doings.

Just at nightfall, when she had seen Tot and Rob safely in bed, and told the stories of Moses and Joseph over and over until the sleepy eyes shut, she stole into her mother's room.

"You are so tired, daughter," said her mother, sympathetically. "I know how hard it is for you, Meg, but you are doing so well."

"I don't know, mother," said Meg, wearily, "if I could only be patient! I do try, but the least thing puts me out and makes me forget."

"We all forget too often, dearie. But just as sure as we try to do our work heartily, as unto the Lord, he will help us over the hard places. He never fails, Meggie."

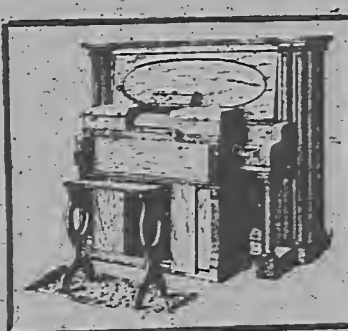
Meg swallowed a sob and thought: "I ought not to think no one wants to help me; mother does, and I know Jesus won't fail."

Then Meg ran away to her own room, and though she knelt down, she could only say: "Lord Jesus I do want to work for Thee, right here at home; oh, help me!" when someone called, "Meg!" and she had to run down again.

"I wouldn't have called you, Meg," said Ned, "but the butcher sent the meat and I didn't know where to put it."

"I'll attend to it," said Meg, cheerfully.

"But I'll carry the basket for you," said Ned picking it up.



"Thank you," said Meg, gratefully. "You're a dear fellow, Ned, if you are such a tease."

Meg lay down very weary that night, but with a sweet consciousness that if much of her work was not as she wished it might have been, she was really trying to do it unto the Lord.

True, things were very contrary, mother was still sick, there was much care to fall into the hands of a 16-year-old girl. Ellen's moods were very trying, the boys would tear their clothes, and make all manner of unexpected work for hand and feet. It was all very homely work—sweeping rooms, making bread, keeping quiet in and worry out of the sick room; but Meg was striving to say, truly and earnestly, "This is the place the Lord wants me to work; just here at home, and I must try to do it heartily."

Where is your work, any young reader, and are you doing it heartily, as unto the Lord?—Sunday School Times.

REVOLUTIONS IN RELIGION.

The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE having opened its columns to a correspondent—the Rev. Jas. M. Weems—about the movement in our late General Conference to "restate" the Twenty-five Articles of Religion of Wesleyan Methodism, I desire to say some things about one word in a short sentence in the Weems article. "Revolutionary" is the word. The sentence in which it appears is: "It is not only unconstitutional, but is revolutionary." If I had been in the General Conference I would have voted against the movement under consideration by the correspondent. The First "Restrictive Rule" seems to be against the right of any and every General Conference for all time to come, to tamper with our Twenty-five Articles of Religion. The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1784. The "Restrictive Rule" was adopted by the General Conference of 1808. The question arises: By what right did the General Conference fetter the opinions and consciences of all General Conferences to follow? I am not asking this question as a fault-finding youngster of the twentieth century. I am old enough to have been the pastor more than two years of a man who was a member of that 1808 General Conference, and I heard in 1846 a talk before the Kentucky Conference from one of the Committee that constructed the "Restrictive Rules" of 1808, and who had the reputation of having written them. The two men were James Ward and William Burke, both of the old Western Conference. If we recognize the act of the General Conference of 1808 as binding for all time to come, then our General Conference of 1906 is in "revolutionary" attitude when it proposes to "alter or change" our Articles of Religion.

"Revolution" is a throwing off of previously recognized authority in church or state. Revolution in the state or government is called "rebellion" by the state's adherents, and "revolutionists" are called "rebels" and "traitors." Revolution in the church is called "heresy" and its supporters are called "heretics" by those in sympathy with the alleged beliefs of the church. Paul said he was charged with "heresy" by some of the Jews, and Peter speaks of "damnable heresies."

The children of Israel were, by divine decree, consigned to bondage in a land which was not theirs for hundreds of years. Moses became a revolutionist against the government and the religion of the Egyptians. As results of his "revolutionary" leadership the tribes of Israel became a kingdom in Palestine with Jerusalem as their capital city, and the existence of the people called Jews of to-day, the Hebrew Bible and its translation into the English and other languages of the world, are products of the Mosaic and Israelitish revolution. Jesus Christ was, by his teachings, a "revolutionary" propagandist, not against the Jewish idea of civil government in the land of Palestine, nor against the Roman power, that held the Jewish people in subjection in that land. But he was revolutionary in his teachings as to some ideas prevailing in Jewish minds, and the New Testament and Christianity are products of his revolutionary gospel.

Martin Luther, a Roman Catholic priest in Germany, became a revolutionary opponent of some things in his Church, and a teacher of things not taught in his church. Luther's translation of the Bible into the German language, the Augsburg Confession of 1530, and the Protestant religions of the world are fruits of the revolutionary preaching and writing of the heroic German reformer.

The founders of the Church of England, some of whom died martyrs' deaths, were revolutionists against the Catholic Church in England. The Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England and of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, whose construction passed through a period of years, reaching their present form in 1571, were the work of revolutionary divines.

The construction of the Presbyterian Confession of Faith was the work of revolutionary men of England and Scotland. The Independents and Presbyterians had the majority in Parliament. That body provided for a Westminster Assembly of one hundred and twenty-one divines and others to do something for the "reformation of the Church." That was in November, 1641. Nearly two years later the Westminster Assembly commenced its sittings. It held 1163 meetings in five and a half years. The Confession of Faith was presented to Parliament within about three years, 1646. It has been the Confession of the Presbyterians in this country, without change, till recently.

One event of the stormy revolutionary period in churches and parliament was the trial of Charles 1, King of England and Scotland, by a commission provided by Parliament. The court sat in Westminster Hall, where the Confession of Faith was adopted. The King was convicted and beheaded less than a month before the Westminster Assembly's final adjournment.

In another article I will speak of some of the Revolutionary exploits of John Wesley and of Episcopal Methodism. Our own Church is a child of revolution.

DR. WEEMS IN TROUBLE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Please allow me space to say a word or two in answer to Dr. Weems' misapprehensions. In the first place he assumes, or seems to assume, that the appointment of a committee is the revision of the standards. In this he is largely at fault in his conclusions. The measure taken at Birmingham is merely initial, and if this proves successful, then Dr. Weems will get a chance at the measure at his Annual Conference, and may have a shot during the General Conference of 1910, if he chance to be a delegate. If the committee appointed should agree with other committees provided for in the resolution, then of course the committee raised by the General Conference will refer its work to the next General Conference for ratification or rejection. This leaves the Articles and doctrines as they stood, until, by the regular course, some other statements or standards are established.

The doctor implies by his quotations that the first Restrictive Rule is locked up beyond the reach of the Church. In this again he is under mistaken impressions. An examination of the Journal of the General Conference of 1808 will show a provision for the alteration of all Restrictive Rules. Then an examination of the Journal for 1832 will show that certain legislation applies to all the rules excepting the first. The exception limits the legislation of 1832 to all the rules excepting the first. This stands on the original legislation of 1808, which is not absolute, but almost so. I think, therefore, the Doctor may go on his way without much fear, for somewhere between 1910 and 1914 he will have a chance to meet this radicalism and throttle it, if by that time he has not been converted to the wisdom of the revision movement. This will certainly be his privilege if the revision contemplates revoking, altering, or changing our Articles of Religion, or establishing any new standards or rules of doctrine contrary to our present existing and established standards of doctrine.

Respectfully, J. W. DORMAN.

A PRAYER.

O Lord, by all thy dealings with us, whether of joy or pain, of light or darkness, let us be brought to thee. Let us value no treatment of thy grace simply because it makes us happy, or because it makes us sad; because it gives us, or denies us what we wish; but may all that thou sendest us bring us to thee, that, knowing thy perfectness, we may be sure in every disappointment that thou art still loving us, in every darkness that thou art still enlightening us, and in every enforced idleness that thou art still using us; yea, in every death that thou art giving us life, as in His death thou didst give life to thy Son, our Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen.—Selected.

"IMPRESSIONS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE."

(READ BEFORE THE NEW ORLEANS PREACHERS' MEETING JUNE 11, BY REQUEST.)

Boarding the L. & N. train in this city Monday morning, May 14, I ran over to Bay St. Louis and spent the day with Rev. O. G. Haliburton and Dr. J. P. McFerrin. They were engaged in revival services in the Methodist Church at that place, and I heard McFerrin preach one of his characteristic sermons. The day was very much enjoyed. That night, I again took the train, secured a sleeper, retired and had a good night's rest, waking up the next morning at Montgomery. Here E. F. Cook, a Presiding Elder from the South Georgia Conference, got on my train. Later on Ed. Dannelly, a Presiding Elder in the Alabama Conference, and others joined us. We had a pleasant, social time together, and reached the seat of the General Conference about noon. When I arrived in Birmingham the work of the General Conference was well advanced. Bishops Granbery and Fitzgerald were not able to be present at the opening of the session, but later they made their appearance, "in age and feebleness extreme," yet buoyant and hopeful. Their presence was a constant benediction. Measured by any correct standard, the Conference was a fine, representative body. Its ranks were filled with men of marked ability. They came from different latitudes and represented varying phases of thought and opinion, and were not backward in expressing their consenting and dissenting views, as occasion demanded. Prominent among the body were the laymen, whose brawn and brains made a permanent impression, and whose lively discussions evinced a thorough knowledge of the machinery of our church and a broad sympathy with our time-honored institutions. The Bishops as presiding officers were patient and considerate, and endeared themselves to the Conference by their godly counsels and Christian demeanor.

This General Conference will be transmitted to history with a value and significance all its own, and in many quarters some of its legislation will be pronounced radical and unsafe.

The time limit was up, of course, for discussion, and a considerable number of the body were in favor of removing the limit altogether. Prominent among these advocates were some of the distinguished laymen, whose chief argument was that in large cities it is impossible to build up a great institutional church in four years, and that a change of pastors would necessarily delay and sometimes entirely defeat the enterprise. They deplored the fact that Southern Methodism has no great past to which, as some other denominations boast, [illegible] they contended that short pastorates were responsible for this condition of affairs. The battle raged long and hot and fierce between the giants of debate, but when the smoke cleared away the conservatives held the field, and the four-year limit remains the law.

A radical resolution was adopted, authorizing unordained ministers to perform the ordinance of baptism, and to celebrate the rites of matrimony within the bounds of their pastoral charges, in the absence of an elder or Bishop. The measure provoked discussion and sharp opposition, especially on the part of some of the older members of the body. One veteran D.D. was heard to remark that the passage of that resolution was the most foolish piece of work the General Conference has done in a hundred years. Of course, many sound arguments can be arrayed on both sides of the question. It was ascertained that in some of the States—notably North Carolina—the civil law does not grant the privilege of performing matrimony to unordained ministers. The paper was afterward amended so as not to conflict with State laws.

The culmination of the Conference work was reached when a resolution was offered, signed by Drs. Tillett and Lambuth, requesting the General Conference to appoint a commission to meet similar commissions, if there should be any, from the other great Methodist bodies of the world, whose business should be a restatement of our Twenty-five Articles of Faith. This resolution was like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. It was the only occasion that called the Bishops to the floor of the Conference. When Bishop Wilson was called, he walked slowly to the front of the rostrum, and, amid profound silence, he solemnly warned the Conference not to lay rude hands on the Ark of God's Church. His speech was a noble effort, and was in every way worthy of the man and of the occasion. He spoke in touching accents and tender tones of the faith of our fathers, while tears fell from the eyes of the vast multitude. As the Bishop turned feebly toward his seat, Bishop Candler rose and threw his arms around the Senior Bishop, and they wept like little children. Nearly all the other Bishops were called to give the expression of their minds, but none of them spoke to any great length. After numerous and able addresses by the masters of logic and eloquence, the resolution was adopted. Bishop Wilson was named as Chairman of the Commission from our Church. If the Joint Commissions should ever meet, and Bishop Wilson should live to meet with them, they are not likely to go far afield in their new statement of Methodist belief.

The election of Drs. Tigert, Ward and Atkins to the Episcopacy met the approbation of nearly everyone with whom I conversed on the subject. These gentlemen are widely known throughout our communion. Bishop Tigert, as Book Editor and author, has achieved a reputation not only in America, but also in Europe. Bishop Ward has for four years been associated with Dr. Lambuth as Missionary Secretary. Bishop Atkins has wrought faithfully and efficiently as Editor of our Sunday School literature.

This paper would be incomplete without a brief mention of the distinguished visitors who honored the General Conference with their presence. Dr. Sparling brought fraternal greetings from the Methodists of Canada. Dr. Mathews, of California, and Vice President Fairbanks, from Washington, ably represented the great M. E. Church, and the Rev. Dinsdale T. Young, the fraternal delegate from the Wesleyan Methodists of England, captured the Conference and the city by his profound sermons and his learned lectures and addresses.

Birmingham entertained the Conference most royally. I heard but one expression from delegates and visitors: it was an expression of appreciation of the elegant manner in which everybody was treated while in the Magic City. Many were surprised at the rapid strides this young city is making, and predict for Birmingham a great future.

THEO. COPELAND.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

Mansfield Female College closes a good year despite difficulties.

The beautiful building, splendidly equipped, stands near the center of a large campus, for which nature has done much. The grounds look as if they were made "after the pattern," ornamented with plain trees of oak, maple and elm, with shrubbery and flowers to give the picturesque blend. In the thriving town of Mansfield that has doubled her population since the last census was taken, noted for her good people, and in a very healthful portion of our State, above all this is a Christian home for girls, where they receive a Christian education. The making of men and women is the purpose of education, and this end cannot be achieved if religion is eliminated. The College stands not only for the culture of the intellect, but for the moral and spiritual as well. A Christian is the highest type of man or woman.

Are there not many girls in the bounds of this Conference who should be in this Christian College, who have not been? Brethren, are we doing all we can for these girls and this College? Can you put your time and money into anything better than a Christian education?

Interest was manifested in the college by visitors and people of the town, and the commencement exercises were enjoyed by all.

THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1906.

The trouble with many Christians is not that they have repudiated the Gospel, but, failing to practice it, have lost its life and power.

Competent leadership is not found in men of passion or impulse, but in men of cool, self-possession, who are clear in mind and sound in judgment. Not until one has acquired the habit of self-control is he prepared to take the oversight of others.

Our General Conference at Birmingham determined on the establishment of a chair of "Sunday School Pedagogy" in Vanderbilt University. The Baptist brethren, in Convention at Chattanooga about the same time, did the same thing for their Theological Seminary at Louisville. But they avoid the school term, "pedagogy," and say the professor is elected "to teach Sunday school subjects."

One of Private John Allen's queer characters, when asked if horned buffaloes ever climb trees in search of grapes, is made to say: "As a rule, they do not, but there's no telling what a buffalo will do when he is after grapes." So say we of the man whose inordinate ambition leads him out of his sphere, and to grasp at the unattainable. He sometimes advances boldly where angels fear to tread.

It is both interesting and amusing to read the notes in our Baptist exchanges of the men who composed the recent great Convention. Some are more widely known than others, and greater than others, but of the more than fourteen hundred messengers, there seems not to have been one little man. Of a few it is said there is a "growing suspicion"—of what, the writer does not say—but of coming greatness, we suspect.

The union of the Cumberland and Northern Presbyterian Churches, so long talked of, has been consummated. When the announcement was formally made at the recent meeting of the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and the Assembly adjourned, the minority, adhering to its purpose to continue the Cumberland Church, met and organized. Rev. J. L. Huggins, of Union City, Tenn., was elected Moderator, and Rev. T. H. Padgett, of Memphis, Stated Clerk. All the Boards of the Church were reorganized and filled. The property question, we suppose, will be settled by the Courts, should any differences arise.

A REASONABLE SERVICE.

There is no acceptable and profitable service without sacrifice. God must not only be acknowledged as the rightful Ruler of men, but there must be laid at His service everything that men possess. Nothing can be reserved—even their bodies must be presented as a living sacrifices, holy, acceptable unto God.

Service for God has in it two objects of prime importance—the glory of God, and the good of men. Without reference to them, all worship amounts to nothing more than an expression of personal desire to enjoy the favor of God, and obtain reward at his hands. This is supreme selfishness. Certainly it is desirable to be in peace with God, and to live with reference to approval at the final Judgement, but when these desires so fill the mind as to shut out all thought of the spread of the Gospel for the good of others, the passion for personal enjoyment goes beyond a reasonable dagree, and may be justly regarded as fanaticism, as well as selfishness. The desire for personal benefit has no doubt greatly retarded the progress of the Gospel.

When St. Paul exhorted the Christians at Rome to "present their bodies as living sacrifices" he did not mean that they should do so for any purely selfish purpose. The connection with which the exhortation stands shows that the sacrifice is not to be consumed, but to be a living, active sacrifice, principally in behalf of their fellow-men. This is evident, as the apostle sets forth very clearly the fact that all Christians "are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another," and as dependent upon one another, as are the various members of the human body. And "as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office," or duties, so among Christians there are varied gifts and graces to be exercised for the benefit of all. If only one's personal good were in view these duties would not have been laid upon individual members of the Church.

The sacrifice is to be holy—not only set apart to the service of God, but kept free of all pollution. Said the apostle, "Ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people." Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you. Hence, the requirements to cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh, and never suffer any "corrupt communication to proceed from our mouths." We are to be "holy, undefiled, separate from sinners," as was our great high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ, who has passed into the heavens.

We do not understand that grace effects any change in the physical body. We have no assurance that it does. That a change is necessary to prepare the body for the "great and eternal weight of glory" that shall come upon it, is true, but that change will be effected when the moment comes for us to assume the likeness of Christ. Until then, and while Christians subsist in all respects as do other men, assimilating food—forming flesh and blood and bones, we have no reason to believe that their bodies are in anywise different from their fellows. But grace, operating on the mind and heart, enables the Christian to bring the body in subjection, and keep it pure. This, if we are not mistaken, is what is meant by the sanctification of the body.

The service which God requires of us is reasonable. It could not be otherwise, considering what God is to us, and what he has done for us. No dutiful and affectionate son thinks any demand his father may make is unreasonable, notwithstanding the father has never done anything for him out of the ordinary. He knows the father loves him and cares for him, and he renders willing service. God is our Father—loving and tender—and in addition to feeding and clothing us, and affording all necessary protection; things which our fathers in the flesh are bound to give us, he has looked upon us in our fallen and sinful state, yea, in our utter helplessness, and laid hold upon one mighty and able to save.

"On wings of love, the Savior flew
To raise us from the ground,
And gave the richest of his blood,
A balm for every wound."

The sacrifice of God's Son—to suffer and die—was greater than any sacrifice it is possible for man to make. On God's part it was a free will offering. He was under no obligation to do it. On the contrary, he was under obligation to punish man to the death, for he had said: "Thou shalt die." But His heart was moved with love, and when He saw in His Son a way of escape for man, and a way by which the integrity of His throne might be preserved, He freely offered Him up for us all. This blessed Son led a life of poverty, and died a shameful and excruciating death, but triumphed over death and the grave, and liveth to make intercession for us at the right hand of God. In view of all this, duty and gratitude call upon us to "present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is our reasonable service." These should not plead in vain!

A CONVICTION FOR HERESY.

The liberal-minded brother who, less than six moons back, in a public lecture, thanked God that he had lived to see the day in which it is impossible to try a man for heresy, has not only lived to see a man indicted by a church court for speaking contrary to the teachings of the creed, but he has lived to see him convicted, and deposed from the ministry. Such was the result of the trial of Rev. Dr. Crapsey, charged with heresy. The Doctor was given the canonical time to think over the violation of his ordination vows and to repent. If by the end of the period he does not recant he must take his departure from the priesthood of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The verdict was righteous. He was not tried for "opinion's sake," as many profess to believe, but for denying the fundamental doctrines of his Church. In so doing, he violated his solemn vow to "banish and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines." Instead of keeping this vow, he cherished error, and brought strange things to the ears of his people, in that he publicly denied the divinity of our Lord, teaching that he had a human father, and also denied the idea of a personal, bodily resurrection.

In this day of commercialism and slack-twisted religious notions, passing under the taking title of "liberality," it is well for those who have respect for doctrinal tenets to call a halt on those who would destroy the very foundation of the Church. If a church has a creed, and believes it, both consistency and duty demand that it be preserved.

BISHOP WARD.

Bishop Ward, who will preside at the coming sessions of the Louisiana and Mississippi Conferences, is already interesting himself in the work. He will be heard at the Mid-Year Meeting of the Mississippi Conference Board of Missions, and will preside over the Brookhaven District Conference at McComb City. The Bishop will receive a cordial welcome from the warm-hearted brethren of the two Conferences, and make his way as easy as possible in the difficult and delicate work before him. Bishop Ward is what some of the brethren call a "field hand," having been all his ministry, save for the past four years, in the pastoral work, serving circuits and stations and districts. He has the heart of a Methodist preacher.

WHAT SHALL WE DO?

A good sister, moved, no doubt, by the kindest motive, has written us some very plain things in regard to this ADVOCATE. She makes no complaint of the reading matter—though she does not compliment it. Her complaint is against the advertising—the whole of it. She informs us that the ADVOCATE is not fit to go into the homes of the people. She says the same thing about our Sunday School literature. Her remedy is to subsidize the ADVOCATE so as to place it above the necessity of carrying advertisements of any kind. Nothing could please us better. If some wealthy brother, or a number of them, would furnish the money sufficient to run the paper without depending on advertising, we would give our patrons the only Conference organ, North or South, made up of reading matter. The money is not in sight. It may be that somebody is holding it in reserve, and that it will be turned in by-and-by. In the meantime, what shall we do?

PERSONAL.

We are under obligations to Rev. S. J. Davis for a fine list of subscribers, and hereby present him our sincere thanks.

Rev. W. W. Holmes is at Jackson, Miss., this week, attending the commencement exercises of Millsaps College, where he spent many of his school-boy days.

We thank Rev. Eugene Johnson, Presiding Elder of the Durant District, for words of encouragement and his prayers in behalf of the entire ADVOCATE force. His kind expressions do us good.

Rev. John H. Mitchell tells us that Church affairs are in a hopeful state in the Aberdeen District, over which he presides. The District Conference, to be held at Amory soon, will be a meeting of great interest.

Mrs. Rev. C. J. Nugent, who has been with relatives in this city for the past two months, and under the care of an orthopedic specialist, will return to her home, LaGrange, Ky., this week, much improved in health.

The commencement exercises of Port Gibson Female College will be held June 15-18. On Sunday, the 17th, Rev. C. W. Crisler will preach the sermon, and on Monday Rev. Dr. T. B. Holloman will deliver the address. We thank the Faculty and students for an invitation to be present.

Everything is "moving along nicely" at Homer, La., under the care of Rev. H. W. Bowman. The contract for a new church, to cost $11,000, will soon be let. It will be "a complete and fully up-to-date church." We are glad to hear of the prosperity of the work in that important charge.

Rev. J. E. J. Ferguson, of Silver Creek, Miss., will build three churches and a parsonage this year. The contract for two churches will soon be let, and the parsonage is nearly complete. Brother Ferguson is also working for the ADVOCATE, and has sent us twenty-four names, with the promise of more to follow.

Rev. A. S. Lutz and Miss Hattie Inez Simp- were married June 6, at the home of the bride's parents, Greenwood, La. They will spend a few days with friends in the city before going to their home at Berkeley, Cal. We congratulate Brother Lutz, and wish for him and his fair bride a happy and useful life.

We thank Brother J. H. Foreman, of Hermanville, Miss., for a kind invitation to attend the Vicksburg District Conference to be held in his charge. We desire very much to go—have been anxious for several years, but "hitherto we have been let." How it will be this time we do not know. We trust the way may be opened for the visit.

Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, having completed his list of subscribers, has made report, and adds: "The programme for Children's Day was most beautifully and impressively rendered at Glenmora. Ours was not simply perfect, but was, indeed, delightful and successful. The Sunday School has recently purchased a splendid library."

Rev. T. J. Martin, of Wesley Charge, has added to his list of subscribers, making a total of thirty-two. The prospects on his work are good, the people working in harmony—establishing Sunday schools, prayer meetings, and otherwise getting ready for a successful round of protracted meetings. "The people," he says, "appreciate the ADVOCATE as never before."

A good brother sends us a long account of the work on his circuit, including an account of Children's Day exercises, but it is written in pencil, and that bars it from our columns. We regret this very much, as this is the second communication from him recently received thus written. Pencil writing on hard, shining paper, is difficult to read. It takes too much of the printer's time.

THE CALIFORNIA SUFFERERS.

ANOTHER PRESSING APPEAL.

My Dear Brother: An appeal was sent from the Mission Rooms at once upon hearing of the disaster which had befallen our people on the Pacific Coast. This appeal was indorsed by the College of Bishops the following week in their meeting at Louisville. The result of the call was the sum of $7,500, which has been increased to about $10,000 to date.

During the session of the General Conference letters came from our brethren on the coast indicating the dire extremity of some of our people who were actually dependent upon daily rations at the hands of the Federal authorities. A pastor of one of our leading churches said it was a new experience to have to go to the government station for bread and meat for his wife and children.

While this condition is not so acute to-day, several of our pastors are without salaries because their congregations have been swept away in large part or utterly ruined, and churches have to be repaired and one of them entirely rebuilt. It is estimated that we need at least $25,000. This leaves the sum of $15,000 still to be secured.

The following resolution was adopted by the General Conference, and indorsed by the College of Bishops:

"Resolved, That the General Conference, now in session in Birmingham, expresses its deep and heartfelt sympathy with the sufferers, its admiration of their heroic spirit, and hereby indorses the action of the College of Bishops and of the Board of Church Extension by urging immediate collections and gifts on the part of all our preachers and people, which shall be sent to J. D. Hamilton, Treasurer of the Board of Missions, Nashville, Tenn., to be applied as the College of Bishops may direct.

We make one more appeal because of the necessity of the case and because less than four hundred out of five thousand charges have responded. Will you not urge immediate collections and have returns sent to J. D. Hamilton, Treasurer Board of Missions, Nashville, Tenn.? The funds are to be applied under the direction of the College of Bishops.

Cordially, your brother,

In memory of Mrs. JENNETT LIPSCOMB, mother of Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, who died May 20, 1906, at Noxapater, Miss.

One lovely Sabbath morn,
When the sun shone warm and bright,
Dear "Grandma" left her earthly home
And soared to realms of light.

Hers was a long and useful life,
Devoted, kind and true;
She lived for those who loved her,
And the good that she could do.

Unselfish devotion to duty
Marked her earthly career;
So when the death angel came
She felt not a tremor of fear.

To the aged one who survives her
May help and comfort be given,
Till he, too, crosses the river,
And greets his loved one in heaven.

Good-by, dear one, but not farewell,
For we shall meet again
In that home so fair that is free from care,
Where saints immortal reign.

N. D. L.

Columbus, Miss.

SARAH MARCHAL (LYLE) SHERMAN departed this life on the 20th of April, 1906. Sister Sherman was born in Columbus County, Ala., on June 1, 1848, and moved with her parents to Scott County, Miss., in the winter of 1858. She was married to John B. Sherman Dec. 24, 1878, and to them were born eight children, five of them preceding her to the glory world. Sister Sherman was happily converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the summer of 1883. She leaves a devoted husband and three children, together with a number of kind friends, to mour their loss. Weep not, dear ones, as we know it is our loss, but her eternal gain. Sister Sherman was a kind and devoted wife, true and loving mother, a devoted Christian and a good neighbor. She was never heard to speak a harmful word of anyone—always had a kind word for everyone. May God bless and comfort her husband, children and other relatives, and help them to be true and meet her in heaven. "Gone, but not forgotten; left this earth to live in heaven." Her pastor,

J. R. HAYS.

MRS. W. C. T. WILLIAMS (nee Maggie K. Lewis) died at the home of her son, at Clarks, La., May 9, 1906, aged 64 years, 2 months, 29 days; was buried in Rapides Cemetery, Alexandria, La. The deceased was born and reared in Mississippi. She was first married to Tom Garrett, and three sons were born to them, none of whom are now living. In 1874 she was married to W. C. T. Williams. Her husband and three children survive her. She was for more than forty years a member of the Methodist Church. She loved her church, and I am told that in her earlier life she was accustomed to render faithful public service. In later life she was deprived largely of this privilege, owing to failing health. Though she had many trials to beset her and many burdens to bear while here among us, we feel that her life was triumphant in the end. May God comfort the bereaved companions in this hour of deep affliction.

J. W. BOOTH.

HENRY NEWTON RAYBURN was born in Fayette County, Tenn., June 9, 1828. His parents brought him to La Fayette County, Miss., north of Tallahatchie River, while yet the Indians were here, in 1835. He lived near where his father settled for nearly seventy years, never leaving the state except for the war. He left for his eternal home on November 10, 1905. He was twice married, but outlived both his companions. Of his six children four are still living. His home for the last few years of his life was with his son; Mr. S. G. Rayburn, who ministered kindly to him to the end. He was long a member of the Methodist Church at Free Springs and for many years an efficient steward, only giving up his active work when poor health compelled. He never lost his cheerfuiness. He was a sunny Christian. He loved all, and everybody regarded and esteemed him. He told his pastor a few days before his death: "I made my preparation long ago," meaning, of course, for the better land, and indicating his readiness to go.

R. I. ALLEN.

MRS. R. G. CAPERS, died May 23, 1906, in her 74th year. Thus passes to her reward one of the pure women of earth. She joined the Methodist Church in early life, and from then until the time her pure spirit took its flight to the God who gave it she always shunned anything that was calculated to bring reproach upon the church of her choice. She was a noble Christian woman, a patient, loving wife, a tender and indulgent mother, a charming neighbor and a faithful friend. This was evidenced by the large crowd that were indeed mourners around her last resting place. Mother Capers, as we called her, lived right and died as she had lived. So we who knew her best and loved her most mourn not as those who have no hope, for we know that if we are faithful to the end, then there will be a happy meeting in the home beyond. She suffered much for several months before her death, but bore it with Christian fortitude. She leaves three sons, four daughters, twenty-two grand-children, one great grandchild and many other loved ones and friends to mourn their loss. May He who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb console and linger near the hearts of those who still remain, teaching them to know that their loved one is not dead, but gone before, and is waiting at Jesus feet in the land of love. In His own good time He will call us from our rest to His sweet home.

MRS. ALICE P. MALNEY.

LEMON
ELIXIR
The Ideal Laxative.
There are no unpleasant effects from MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR, but its action is thoroughly effective. It regulates the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys, cleanses the system of all impurities, but does not gripe or produce the least unpleasantness. MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR, unlike other laxatives, has a most pleasing taste, children even beg for it. 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers and Delegates of the Vicksburg District Conference: Dear Brethren—We are very much in need of a revival at Hermanville. Some of us are looking forward to the time with great anxiety, in earnest prayer to God that we may have an old-time revival of religion in our town. Will not all the preachers and delegates join us in this prayer, that the Holy Ghost may fall upon us in great power during our District Conference at Hermanville? I make this appeal in behalf of my people.

Your brother in Christ,
J. H. FOREMAN.

CORINTH DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

COMMITTEES.

On License to Preach and for Recommendation for Admission—T. Cameron, W. G. Burke and J. D. Simpson.

On Orders—J. W. Anderson, G. W. Gordon and R. W. Evans.

On Sunday-schools—Dr. J. Y. Murry, chairman.

On Education—W. C. Lester, chairman.

On Missions—N. W. Langley, chairman.

On Finances and Material Improvement—J. H. Felts, chairman.

On Epworth Leagues—T. H. Lipscomb, chairman.

On Spiritual State of the Church—W. G. Harbin, chairman.

On Books and Periodicals—J. R. D. King, chairman.

On Quarterly Conference Records—D. D. Fullilove, chairman.

On Sabbath Observance—Dr. J. D. Cameron, chairman.

On Temperance—O. L. Savage, chairman.

All members of the district traveling and local, all Sunday-school superintendents, all recording stewards, and two delegates-elect from each pastoral charge are members of the District Conference. Let each one make his arrangements to be present from the beginning to the end of the session.

Let all who expect to attend send their names to Rev. O. L. Savage, at New Albany, so that he can provide the necessary number of houses.

Let every pastor be ready to hand in his reports to proper committees at the opening of the Conference.

Let every local preacher, not supplying a charge, present a written report of his work.

Last, but not least, let earnest prayer be made by all for the Divine presence and blessings to accompany and direct the entire work of the Conference.

W. C. HARRIS, P. E.

NOTES FROM WINNFIELD, LA.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I send you a line from Winnfield Station. Last year, under the ministry of Brother Boltz, we built a five-room parsonage on the lot adjoining the church. Since last Conference we have Brother Holloway for our pastor, and the work of the church is progressing. There has been quite an improvement in the congregations, and also in the attendance upon our prayer meetings.

Our Sunday School is growing rapidly, and, we believe, good seed are being sown in the minds and hearts of the children. We recently purchased a book case and are now collecting a library. The school observed Easter Sunday with appropriate exercises, and June 17th we will have our "Children's Day" Service. The Home Mission Society has been actively engaged in work, as a result there is at the parsonage a good water-tank and the parsonage debt is lessened by seventy-five dollars. They hope to cancel the whole debt during the year.

Two Leagues have been organized, a Junior, with thirty members, and a Senior, with twenty.

We are glad to report an improvement in our church in the way of electric lights.

Our District Conference convenes here in July, and we are anticipating a good time then. We are expecting a good attendance and hope we will not be disappointed.

SKEPTICISM.

It is better to believe everything a man says than to believe nothing. The crucial test comes and the true things accepted on faith will greatly aid you in life's battles in time. Believe everything rather than reject everything.

Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the greatest Fever medicine and Life Saver in the whole world. If you believe this and accept it as a truth, you will be the immense gainer thereby, and if you doubt it and wholly reject it you may be the loser to the extent of your very life.

We will send 2 bottles to any reader of this paper on these terms:—If the two bottles cure two cases of Fever, send us $1. If they do not do all we claim, send us nothing. We take the ... JOHNSON'S CHILL AND ... IC CO. SAVANNAH, G...

LIBERTY THROUGH SELF-SURRENDER.

"Free to serve." These words were uttered by a thoughtful woman as she saw a great vessel tossed from its stays and plow its way into the ocean. The ship was made for the ocean. In the water only could it find its native element. It was in bondage until it was launched. It found its freedom in its preparedness for service.

A man is like that ship. He is not free when he is his own, withheld from God. His truest freedom comes by submission, his emancipation by surrender; he has a ma... ill only when he submits his will to God's will. God's will is the ocean to him, his native element. Once in that element, once fully yielded to God, he, like the ship in the ocean, is indeed free. He is "free to serve," and in serving finds his highest liberty.—Rev. G. B. F. Hallock, D.D.

BRISCOE CARTER, P. E.

GRAND CHENIER, LA.

Dear Doctor: I wish to consume a small space in the dear old "Advocate," to state a few words concerning my work. On the 19th of March I received a call from my present Presiding Elder to come as a supply to Grand Chenier Circuit. Of course, as I naturally should, I looked up Cameron Parish on the map, and as anyone may observe, there cannot be seen much of anything except marsh, rivers, lakes and the gulf. On viewing that misrepresentation of the parish, I talked with parties familiar to some parties who were familiar with the country. They gave it a bad name. Then I said: "Shall I go or not?" After solemn meditation, I concluded now is as good a time to start as any."

Then on the 31st of March I started on my first tour to the southwestern part of the state. I reached Grand Chenier on the 3rd day of April. To be sure, everything and everybody were strangers to me, as I was 350 miles from home. But I soon found a home among my parishioners, one, I must say, I like very much.

Grand Chenier is an island, sixteen miles in length and one mile in width, surrounded by marsh and the Mermentau River. It is a very fertile farming section and stock raising country.

I have five regular appointments, four organized churches and one school-house appointment. My best and most spiritual congregation is at Big Pecan, a fifty-mile trip by gasoline boat, or twenty-five miles by horse-back when one can get through the marsh. And amid all the difficulties to reach those appointments are the mosquitoes and deer flies by the unnumbered millions, puncturing one's flesh with their very sharp and painful probosces, with now and then an alligator. But, I rejoice to endure some hardship in order to be with my people, because I have some as good people to serve as God ever let the sun shine on.

I have traveled 1,000 miles since I left home in order to meet my appointments. Also have made fifty-three visits among my membership, and six visits to the different public schools in the bounds of my circuit. Have preached twenty sermons in the two months of my pastorate on the work. Am glad to say the people report that congregations have increased one hundred per cent over last year, which is very encouraging to me as a beginner. And we are looking forth for a great year's work in the Lord's vineyard.

Our second Quarterly Conference convenes at Grand Chenier, June 30 to July 1, and we hope to have the Presiding Elder with us on that important occasion. Also, we are going to endeavor to bring up a full report at the Annual Conference.

Soliciting an interest in the prayers of the brethren for our success, I am fraternally,

J. W. HARPER, P. C.

Sunday School

By W. B. Campbell.

LESSON FOR JUNE 24, 1906.

Golden Text: "Never man spake like this Man."—John vii, 46.

While the Sunday school world is engaged, at this time, in reviewing the lessons of the second quarter, it would be well for us to be led into a train of thought suggested by the golden text of today's study.

So fierce had become the persecution by the Phariseeş, that it was no longer safe for Jesus to appear openly in Judea; so he sought safety for the time in Galilee. He must have lingered near His home, at Nazareth, for His brethren were with Him, and not knowing the danger to Jesus in Judea, they were urging Him to go there and show Himself and do His wonderful work before the multitude that would soon assemble to celebrate the feast of the tabernacle.

Soon after this His brethren left Him in Galilee and went to Jerusalem to attend the feast. Jesus soon followed them, not openly, but in a manner secretly, for fear of His persecutors. The people at the feast were looking for Him, some to admire and some to condemn—they were divided as to their opinions of Him. The Pharisees knew this, and taking advantage of the situation, sent officers to arrest Him.

These officers must have corresponded to our sheriff and his deputies, for they were sent by the court, the Sanhedrin. They found Jesus teaching or preaching, in the temple. They came to take Him away as a prisoner, but they lingered to listen. They could not take Him. So they returned to the Chief Priest and the Pharisees without bringing Jesus. On being asked why they did not bring Him, the officers replied from impressions made on them by hearing the words Jesus, "Never man spoke like this man." "Are ye also deceived," asked the Pharisees. "Have any of the rulers believed on Him?" Nicodemus, was present, and being in full accord with the statements made by the officers, remembering the wonderful words spoken to him by Jesus in the well remembered night interview, spoke up in defense of the Lord saying: "Doth our law judge any man before it hear him or know what he doeth?" Nicodemus knew, as we know, that "Never man spoke like this man." As we heartily agree with the testimony of the Sanhedrin's officers, let us piously meditate on how this man, Christ Jesus, differed from all men in the words he uttered.

Let us go back to the first part of His ministry, and to the mountain side, where Matthew records His first regular set sermon. A multitude was before Him, composed of people who had hitherto been instructed by traditions purporting to be interpretations of the Scriptures. They were looking for some one to lead them into truth. Eagerly ready to hear, Jesus began to tell them how they were surrounded by blessings only waiting to be received. The great Shepherd called to those who were poor in spirit, to those that mourn, to the meek, to those who were hungering and thirsting after righteousness, to the merciful, to the pure in heart, the peacemaker, to the persecuted; there was a separate blessing for all these. Did ever man speak to as eager, listening people as this man was speaking? He told them the faithful ones, of their being the light of a sin-ridden world. He led them through the ancient Scriptures, saying: "Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, but I say unto you." He was not speaking as the Scribes, but with authority. He came to fulfill the law, and this was He doing by showing them how the "Letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life." The Scribes were always interpreting and making void the Scriptures by their traditions.

The people were not satisfied. They were hungering and thirsting for better things. Many were searching for the truth, like Nicodemus. Jesus was speaking as never man spake. The more they heard of His gracious words, the more did they follow after Him to hear. They were weary, for they were waiting and longing for the coming of the Messiah.

No man had ever before said, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." He gave them new visions of the coming kingdom, to enter which they must do and teach the commandments of God, and also that their righteousness must exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, who had always been thought the best examples to follow. Had ever man spake as that? How strange it must have been to them to be told that they must love their enemies, when "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" was taught them from infancy? They must forgive enemies, even before forgiveness is asked. They were taught how to pray, not making a show of their piety, but to go into their closets and shut the door behind them, so praying secretly the reward or answer would be given to them openly. Had the Scribes or Pharisees, in their teaching, or had any man ever spoken as this man? They were not to bestow too much thought on even their wearing apparel, for even the lilies of the field never worked and yet their clothing was more resplendent than was Solomon's in all his glory. Did any man ever before simplify great and profound facts, and so apply them to individual needs? To have their Heavenly Father give them good things, they had but to ask; to have the door of the Kingdom opened to them, they had but to knock; and finally to find peace and rest they had to seek.

How wonderful must have all this been to this eager, listening people? How wonderful and how sweet it is to us. For it is to us, also, that He speaks as never man spake. His works were love in action; His words were love in teaching. The tone of His voice was sweet and low, "a still small voice" that comes to us as it came to the prophet of old, after the storm and wind and the earthquake. He is our Shepherd, and we know His voice, because "man never spake as this man." "Thanks be to God for this unspeakable gift!"

So for Jesus we speak today, and as we say to our neighbor, "know the Lord," we seem to them to speak as doth not men speak, for we only echo the words of the Master, who in loving tones and sweeter words brings the same message to us as He taught to His own people, that His Father sent Him to a beloved world, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life, and we believe these words, for they were spoken by Him who "Spake as never before did man Speak."

The Great National Temperence Beverage

Coca-Cola
TRADE MARK REGISTERED

Great corporations are now exerting a powerful influence to promote the growth of temperence sentiment. The position taken by managers of railway companies and other large commercial enterprises, is almost equivalent to prohibition.

COCA-COLA has been a great factor in promoting and increasing this sentiment. It has caused thousands of young men to give up the habit of drinking beer and other intoxicating liquors. COCA-COLA is delightfully invigorating, delicious to the taste, contributes to healthy activity of mind and body.

Temperance — Walter Price, T. J. Hopper, J. J. Gill, G. S. Turner.

I have named the several committees because we want nothing in the way when we meet. The time is short, only two days for work. Sunday is for devotion and mutual spiritual uplift. I trust that all can and will remain over on Sunday. We need it; it will help us. Let each one, preacher and layman, prepare himself on his topic, and, as far as he may be able, on all the topics, and come full and ready and eager to make the occasion one of power, strength and blessing, both to the community in which it is held and the members and visitors from a distance.

The best light

Thousands of people know perfectly well that a carbon oil lamp is the best light to read by, if it is in order.

It is not in order unless you have the right chimney for it, and that is a MACBETH.

My name is on it.

My Index explains all these things fully and interestingly; tells how to care for lamps. It's free—let me send it to you. Address

MACBETH, Pittsburgh.

NOW I LAY ME.

There is a touching story of a little girl who was to undergo an operation. The physician said to her as he was about to place her on the operating table, "Before we can make you well, we must put you to sleep." The little girl looked up and smiling, said, "O, if you are going to put me to sleep, I must say my prayers first." Then she knelt down beside the table and said:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
If I should die before I wake,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take."

The surgeon said afterwards that he prayed that night for the first time for thirty years. This little girl was only about her Father's business, as Christ was when he was listening and asking questions. No one is so small but he can attend to the business of prayer. Thank God that there are little prayers, little burdens, little words, deeds and songs adapted to little children, for shall they not lead us? (Isa. xi, 6.)—Record of Christian Work.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO AND NOW.

Christian England laughed when Sydney Smith sneered at William Carey as a "consecrated cobbler," going on a fool's errand to convert the heathen. Carey died, aged seventy-three years. He was visited on his death-bed by the Bishop of India, the head of the Church of England in that land, who bowed his head and invoked the blessing of the dying missionary. The British authorities had denied to Carey a landing place on his first arrival in Bengal; but when he died, the government dropped all its flags to half-mast in honor of a man who had done more for India than any of their generals. The universities of England, Germany and America paid tribute to his learning, and today Prostestant Christianity honors him as one of its noblest pioneers. —Lutheran Visitor.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on perscriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, O., by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

INVESTMENT AND DIVIDENDS GUARANTEED.

The San Domingo Mining Company recently organized to purchase the famous old San Domingo group, consisting of 17 mines in Old Mexico —mines that have been worked off and on since the year 1523—offers a limited amount of its stock for a short time only at $1 per share, under the following conditions:

Every dollar you pay for the stock is at once deposited with the United States Banking Company, a bank with assets of eleven million dollars (responsibility unquestioned), and a certificate of deposit is issued to you in your name and held by you until this Company pays you dividends of $1 per share. You don't part with your money until you are actually paid in dividends an amount equal to your investment. Loss of a dollar absolutely impossible. Profits will be large, as the property is now being rapidly developed, and we have hundreds of thousands of tons of low-grade ore on dumps. It requires machinery—reduction works—to save the value. That's why we are offering the stock at $1. We need the money for the reduction works. We work on the interest of the money paid for the stock until you get your money back in dividends.

A full description of the properties will be sent you for the asking. Write to-day.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY.

BY BISHOP E. E. HOSS.

In an issue of the Nashville American during the General Conference appeared an editorial which sought to cast a cloud over the title of the Church to Vanderbilt University. In this editorial it was explicitly assumed that the Church is not competent to control a great University; that while the Church might control the Theological Department, other departments should not be dominated by the Church. The Bishops especially, in the estimation of the American, should be eliminated from the Board of Trust. Bishop Hoss replied at length to the American's strictures, and sent us a copy of his article, with the request that we give it place in the ADVOCATE. The Bishop's reply is as follows:

In view of the continued discussion of the affairs of Vanderbilt, in the editorial columns of the American, I make bold, as a party at interest, to set forth what I know to be the views of the great majority of the ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, concerning the same. This is my first appearance in any newspaper on the subject. What I have had to say heretofore I have said directly and explicitly to those in authority. From first to last I have spoken no word of which I am ashamed, and none for which I have the least disposition to beg anybody's pardon.

In spite of the opinion which seems to be current in certain Nashville circles, that everybody has the right to be actively concerned in the University's affairs except the Methodist Bishops, I cling to the definite belief that Bishop McTyeire knew exactly what he was talking about when he said in a letter written on the eve of his departure for Europe in 1881: "I beseech the Bishops of the Church, as by charter they have a right, to lay their hands on this university for government and guidance."

It is easy for small-minded folk to make light of this great and good man, through whose influence the City of Nashville has reaped millions of dollars in money and vast advantages every way, but it is not easy for them to show that he was in error. If he could only get up out of his grave on the campus at the present time, he would doubtless utter himself in a manner so express and definite as to leave no room for further speech.

The matter at issue is much larger than appears on the surface. It is nothing less than this: Has a denomination of Christian people the right to organize, direct and control an institution of learning? If it has the right, does it also possess the capacity for the task? On the first of these questions the American has been a little slow to pronounce itself; but on the second it has spoken with emphasis in the negative. The doctrine which it applies to the Methodist Church is equally applicable to all the churches, though, for reasons which remain hidden in the editorial breast, it has not advised the Episcopalians to give up their absolute ownership of Sewanee, or the Baptists to surrender their plant at Jackson, or the Presbyterians to cancel their claims at Clarksville.

Now, there may be some Methodists who are fond of eating humble pie, and are therefore ready to accept the American's dictum without hesitation, but as I was bred up in the creed that self-respect is a saving grace, I decline to do anything of the kind. It has never once occurred to me that I should go about softly, half apologizing for being a Methodist minister, and protesting that I really have no purpose of building up and strengthening my church in every open, legitimate and honorable way.

Does the Methodist Church own Vanderbilt University? The American seeks to cast a cloud upon the title by saying: "It will probably be shown that history and sentiment, more than the legal phase of the matter, bind the University to the Methodist Church." The facts are, that the University had its origin in a convention of Methodist ministers and laymen held in 1870 in the City of Memphis; that, under the instructions of this convention, a number of gentlemen in 1872, not in their individual capacity, but as "representatives" of certain specified annual conferences, procured a charter from the Chancery Court of Nashville, Tenn., for the Central University of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; that to this corporation, in 1874, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, having full knowledge of what he was doing, and being specially desirous to enlist the support of the strongest religious body in the South, gave the sum of $500,000 in one gift, which he subsequently increased to $1,000,000; that, after this gift had been made, and not before, the name of the institution was changed to Vanderbilt University, without any other slightest alteration in the terms of the charter; that till 1897 the trustees continued to "represent" the aforementioned annual conferences, and to be confirmed by them; that in that year, on the request of the Board of Trust, the annual conferences surrendered their rights in the University, with the distinct understanding and stipulation that these rights should be formally transferred to the General Conference; that in 1898 the General Conference, acting on a petition from the Board of Trust, which petition, in express terms, states that all the property of the University is held "in trust, for the use and benefit of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South," consented to take the place of the annual conferences, as soon as the necessary legal steps should be taken by the trustees to effect the transfer; that since then, for reasons which the trustees no doubt consider good, no such steps whatever have been taken, though all the new trustees elected from that time down have been confirmed in their office, not by the Annual Conferences as heretofore, but by the General Board of Education.

It will be seen that the failure of the Board of Trust to complete the action, in the expectation of which the Annual Conferences relaxed their relation to the University, has issued in certain complications; and it is these complications which the commission of eminent lawyers has been appointed to adjust and settle.

For example, there were many gentlemen in the General Conference, including several lawyers, who held that, as the Board of Trust failed to make a legal transfer of the property, the Annual Conferences would be wholly within their rights in resuming by mere resolution their former position towards it. To provide against such action on the part of the Annual Conferences to clear up the whole field, the commission is expressly instructed "to take legal steps, if necessary, to perfect the transfer of the University from the patronizing Conferences to the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South." The phrase "legal steps" is a wide one, and includes authority to go to any necessary length to secure the end in view. That a suit at law will be required to accomplish this end is not dreamed possible, as the trustees will not hesitate for a moment to recognize the power of the General Conference. But if so impossible a contingency as the refusal of the trustees should arise, then the commissioners will, of course, institute suit; and the Board of Education is instructed to pay all the necessary expenses.

Whether the University belongs to the Methodist Church is not a question. The General Conference delivered itself categorically on that point when it said: "There can be no doubt as to the ownership of the University by the M. E. Church, South, or as to the charter rights of all the Bishops." The work which the commission is appointed to do is to fix the point of ownership as between the General Conference and the Annual Conferences. The American's statement, that the preamble is not binding, and is of no special significance, except as an opinion that has to be investigated, is childlike and bland in its simplicity. This opinion is not to be investigated. When the commission meets it will do so with the whole report that was adopted at the General Conference before it. That report goes into history, reaches a conclusion, and then calls for a commission to make that conclusion good by taking the requisite steps in law.

Have the Bishops any charter rights in relation to the University? This, of course, is a distinct question from the one that I have just been considering. Even if the ownership of the church were admitted, it would not necessarily follow that the Bishops were invested with any specific authority over it. But the following facts cannot be successfully disputed: The charter embodies a series of provisions adopted by the Memphis convention of 1870 for the purpose of making forever clear the legal status of the University and the aims of its founders. One of the provisions unquestionably gives the Bishops co-ordinate power with the trustees in three respects, the election of the faculties, the fixing of the courses of study, and the determination of the plan of discipline; and, in addition to this, a general right of supervision.

It is contended by the American, however, that this part of the charter is "null and void," being in violation of the Constitution of Tennessee. The answer to the eminent jurist who sits on the American tripod is: First, this charter was given at a time when the State had no statutory form of charter, and when chancellors were put upon the necessity of prescribing the form in each separate case; secondly, it was given to a board that included such lawyers as Judge Milton Brown, Judge R. J. Morgan and others, who probably knew what they were about; thirdly, it was given by Judge Nathaniel Baxter, Sr., sitting in place of Judge E. H. East, who was incompetent; fourthly, it was accepted by the board without demur, and has been held sufficient for all particulars for thirty years; fifthly, it must be considered in full force and effect till the contrary has been declared by a civil court of competent jurisdiction; sixthly, it cannot, especially at this date, be torn to pieces by the board itself.

One other thing deserves to be especially stated in the same connection. Admitting, for the sake of argument, what I do not at all admit in fact, that the clause in question is "null and voidable"—not void—the inquiry must still be raised, whether the board has any moral right, on the strength of a mere legal technicality, to defeat and nullify the manifest and acknowledged intent of the projectors and founders of the University. Considerations of ethics as well as considerations of law are involved. Some respect is due to the wise and far-seeing men out of whose brains and hearts this University was born; some surely to Bishop McTyeire, through whom alone came the money that turned a glorious dream into a still more glorious reality; and some also to Commodore Vanderbilt, who was the last man in the world to throw down a million dollars into the lap of a corporation without knowing in advance all about its charter. To get rid of the Bishops, if is necessary to ignore and defy the charter. This much, at any rate, is certain.

As long as Bishop McTyeire lived, seeing that as President of the board he was invested with an absolute right of veto, the Bishops did not feel it particularly incumbent on themselves to be present at the board meetings. After his death, however, and in compliance with a solemn and affectionate request made in his last will and testament, they began to do so with considerable regularity. But as Bishop Wilson, who had been a lawyer for some years, expressed a repeated desire for a closer definition of the word "supervisors," by which the Bishops were designated, the board in 1888 (I think) as an agreed interpretation of the terms of the charter, enacted by a by-law, making all the Bishops ex-officio trustees. That it was within the competency of the board to repeal this by-law, no sane man doubts; but that, under the circumstances, it was proper to do so without courteously consulting the Bishops, and giving them an opportunity to express themselves, I cannot believe, though I am not willing to waste time in arguing a question of courtesy with any gentleman who takes the opposite view.

If the summary ejection of the Bishops from the Board of Trust had been all, the case would not have been so bad; for that would have left them with their rights as supervisors unperturbed. But it was determined to dispose of them in more thorough fashion by procuring a new charter, according to the terms of which they should have no legal status of any sort, either as trustees or as supervisors. If this movement had been successful, no Bishop would thereafter have had any rights in the premises.

A few of them might have been suffered to remain in the board as a matter of grace, but there would have been no guarantee that even this much of a concession would be made to them. My motives in opposing the scheme have not been personal. I am loaded with quite as many responsibilities of various sorts as it is convenient to carry. But I will not shrink or dodge a duty that came to me without solicitation on my part, and simply in the order of Providence.

The General Conference, as its unanimous action shows, also distinctly asserts "the charter rights of all the Bishops" in the University, and only asks the Commission to "define" exactly what these rights are. After this definition shall have been made, it further "instructs them"—and every Methodist knows what the "instructions" of the General Conference amounts to—to enter at once upon the exercise of these rights. In common with the large majority of my colleagues, I was perfectly content to abide in silence the Commission's action. It goes against my taste to have a public disputation over ecclesiastical matters. But since the American, which certainly has no more warrant than I for ventilating the subject, has seen fit to criticise by construction the course which I have hitherto pursued, I do not feel at liberty to hold my peace.

Whether the property rights of the Methodist Church and the charter rights of the Bishops shall be recognized, is one thing; and whether the University shall be administered on broad and liberal lines is quite another thing. Methodism has always been distinguished for its catholicity of spirit. When Dr. Adam Clarke was once asked: "Dr. Clarke, are you not a bigot?" he replied: "No, for, thank God, I am a Methodist."

In its management of Vanderbilt University, the church has certainly shown itself to be free from sectarian littleness and narrowness. It has imposed no religious tests of any sort on either its teachers or its student, and has not desired to do so. At the present time, six of the seven Deans of faculties belong to other churches, as do more than two-thirds of the members of the academic faculty. What more than this could be asked as a sign of freedom from denominational exclusiveness?

I confess I am grown quite weary of the twaddle of men who know no more about a university than they do about the anatomy and physiology of the man in the moon, to the effect that the Methodist Church is too narrow to be intrusted with such a responsibility, and that Methodist Bishops in particular are so limited in their range of vision as to be disqualified for it. Neither contention is true. Both alike contradict the whole history of education in the United States. The University of the South at Sewanee is the exclusive property of the Protestant Episcopal Church. It has never concealed the fact, nor sought to do so. On the contrary, it flies its flag in the face of the whole world. Everyone of the eighteen Bishops in the patronizing dioceses belong to its Board of Trust, and are not treated as though they were a negligible quantity and without capacity for service. The result is seen in the constant and steady growth of the University, a growth which, considering its limited financial support, is a marvel. What reason is there for supposing that the presence of the Methodist Bishops at Vanderbilt would have any evil effect?

MRS. JENNETT LIPSCOMB.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Brother L. M. Lipscomb, Presiding Elder of the Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference, gave me this beautiful, tender sketch of his mother and asked that I write an obituary. I am sure he did not intend it to go to print just as it is, but it is such a tender, fitting tribute of a dutiful, noble son, that I feel that any change I could make would mar the rhythm of a graceful tribute.

What he has said, is more than voiced by the whole community where she had lived so long. May there not be one missing in the family reunion in the home above!

J. H. SMITH.

Mrs. Jennett Lipscomb (nee Thompson) was born in Union District, South Carolina, June 5, 1823; was married to J. M. Lipscomb in Spartanburg, S. C., in 1844. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church in early girlhood, about the age of 15; thence to the Southern Methodist Church.

She was the mother of nine children, four girls and five boys, of whom six survive. From the earliest recollection of her eldest child she was a devout and joyous Christian, loving her Church, her pastors, and the songs and worship of her God. Her children saw in her beautiful life and godly example all that is winning and attractive in religious experience and a holy life. She trusted in her Savior with a confidence and simplicity born of close fellowship and long personal knowledge.

She was a true helpmeet and faithful wife, a loving and devoted mother, a kind, warm, hearty friend to all in trouble or need. There was no place in her whole heart for anything but love and charity for all people. She always gave her children, her church and her friends the best she had. Her earthly life was a long one, but not free from sorrow and affliction. In her latter years, with the increase of infirmities, came great physical suffering; but no complaints or hard words were ever uttered, except she often gave expression to her desire to go home and be at rest and peace. She suffered very intensely for three weeks before she was freed from the flesh. She talked of heaven, longed for heaven, and was eager every day to depart and be with Christ. She knew she was going from the first days of her sickness, and was eager to depart. Her life was hid with Christ in God.

She peacefully fell asleep in her home near Noxapata, Miss., on May 20, 1906, at 10 o'clock a.m., surrounded by her devoted and heart-broken children, aged companion (84 years), and kind friends. The end came as quietly and peacefully as the sunbeams fall on the meadow.

Her children rise up and call her blessed. They knew her many virtues and her ripeness for the mansions above. So in faith we say:

"Good-by, but 'til to-morrow;"
"We shall sleep, but not forever."

At the time of her death she had forty grandchildren and forty-nine great-grandchildren.

Hold the mind prayerfully in conference with God. We are certain of success; go on, nothing doubting.—Exchange.

SUPERANNUATED PREACHERS AND CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: In the message of the Bishops of the M. E. Church, South, to the General Conference, under the head, "Superannuates," they say: "If the nation has pride in liberally providing for the veterans who fought her battles, the Church should make provision for the comfortable old age of her brave itinerants, who have made possible the Israel of to-day. No doubt many continue to toil when they ought to rest, because a stoppage of labor means physical want. It is our earnest hope that the great connectional movement in this interest inaugurated by the last General Conference may be a triumphant success." A statement then follows showing the progress of the work in the last four years. At that rate a century will not be sufficient to accomplish the desired end. Therefore, the "annual collections in the congregations" must be the chief supply for the superannuates, and the present effective ministry is the power through which it can be operated, the preachers in all relations to the Church having a spirit of sympathy for each other physically, as well as spiritually, and considering present conditions.

The Israel of to-day should provide for the wants of to-day. Our Discipline says: "A superannuated preacher is one who is worn out in the itinerant service," and this is the thing to be considered in giving him this relation. When a preacher is admitted into full connection he is subject to the direction of the authorities of the Church as to times, places and kinds of work he is to do for the glory of God. If he is faithful to the vows he takes on entering the itinerant service he will save very little for his physical comfort after he is worn out, as the great majority of superannuates continually show.

But not every preacher who is formally superannuated is worn out. Some are compelled to seek rest in that relation from burdens that they are not able to bear in the places and at the times of their appointment. Better conditions existing in the places might give the failing preacher a sort of recreation that would bring strength sufficient for the work. If a man is really worn out he is not in a condition to engage in the strife for secular profit in this commercial age. And yet our church is sending men out from the Annual Conferences "honored" because "worn out" in the itinerant service, which not only means physical want, but a great strain on weak humanity.

A recent writer puts the support of the average American family at $600. The appropriations for the support of the superannuated preachers of the Mississippi Conference for the year 1906 range from $150 to $250, the latter sum being less than half the average family support. "Before honor is humility." That shows how our superannuates are "honored," and indicates the spirit of the men whose names are on the "honor roll."

Some Conferences make a better showing than this. The words at the head of this paper represent the two great causes which distinguish us in our relation to ecclesiastical and political government, and signify services rendered to sustain these causes without regard to physical want. The spirit that has honored these causes will finally triumph. I am glad that I live to stand in these ranks. I believe my superannuation is providential for good. It has given me time to continue a study and prepare a message for the people on the subject, "The United States in Scripture," depending upon the invitation of the preachers for its delivery in their congregations for their "patience and comfort of the Scriptures." Let them look at this country from a Bible standpoint!

Faithfully, I. W. RANDELL.

FOREST DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Forest District Conference was held April 27-28, 1906. The opening sermon was preached on Thursday night by Dr. C. McDonald. It was a fitting introduction to one of the best District Conferences this scribe ever attended.

The attendance was above the average, even for the Forest District. Sixty answered the roll call during the session and 43 were on hand and voted for lay delegates on Saturday morning.

Full reports were had from 21 works, and partial reports from the others. These reports showed that the district had made an advance in its financial exhibit over any previous year and that the brethren were unanimous in declaring that all assessments would be met in full.

The growth in favor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate was easily accounted for by the large improvements recently made in its business management, and in what seems to the brethren an improvement in its editorial department. Forest District will double its subscription list this year.

Eight were licensed to preach. That gives the Forest District the lead in the number of local preachers, 32. Four of these were recommended for admission into the Annual Conference. One of our local preachers has been a supply for 13 years. We now number a preaching force of 55; yet, there is room for more and we have much missionary territory unfilled.

The preaching was done by Dr. Murrah of Millsaps, Dr. Cooper of Whitworth, W. W. Graves, P. D. Hardin, and the presiding elder, J. M. Morse. It was all spiritual and made an impression for good upon both the clergy and laity. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was a very spiritual occasion.

The address of the presiding elder at the opening of the Conference was a succinct review of his four years' work—a note of triumph and a trumpet call to "move forward."

Two of our local preachers had died during the year. The hour given to the memorial service was sadly sweet. Dr. Irvin Miller had occupied a large place in the religious and political life of our people. He had served as a supply for many years. He was a man of tender sympathy, and tenderly loved wherever he was known.

Murdock James McDonald was possibly the oldest local preacher in Mississippi, having exercised the functions of his office for over 50 years. He was the friend and adviser of his pastor and was always ready to do the work assigned him. His life was a benediction to the community in which he lived—his name was like ointment poured forth.

Suitable resolutions were passed, and ordered printed in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

The question of the removal of the District Parsonage received full consideration. It developed that no matter what individual preferances were, they were all of one mind as to the selling of the parsonage at Forest. It is to be sold when a just value can be obtained and not before. The rapid growth of the district is largely responsible for any variation in view of anything in connection with the new parsonage idea.

The delegates to the Annual Conference are as follows: S. L. Eady, S. A. Ferguson, W. J. Stokes and G. W. Mars. The alternates are: C. W. Taylor, J. T. Long and J. A. Lindsey.

Rev. James Vinson Bennett was elected to Deacon's Orders, and John Robert Hayes to Elder's Orders.

Ellisville was chosen as the next place of meeting.

The licensing committee is composed of C. McDonald, W. W. Morse, P. D. Hardin and J. W. Chambers.

Rev. G. W. Bachman was present with a good supply of books, and added to the interest of the Conference. His address on the American Bible Society was very much enjoyed.

Dr. Murrah gave the Conference a stirring address on Millsaps and the necessity to rally to its support. This is surely a great opportunity for the Church to double its Endowment Fund. Dr. Cooper gave a clear statement of the present prospects of Whitworth, and the advancements made. This is an opportunity for the exercise of a wise and a large philanthropy. Fifty thousand dollars at Whitworth would lift every care from its President's shoulders, and enable him to carry to completion his wise plans.

Montrose Training School, hereafter to be known as the Mississippi Conference Training-School, owing to the sickness of its Principal, Rev. W. W. Moore, was represented by his friends. The school has had a successful year and the prospects are bright for another year. There is still a debt of $3,000 on the building, and of this amount $200 was subscribed at the Conference. The Mississippi Conference is fortunate in having so thoroughly consecrated a man as W. W. Moore, to manage this institution.

The District Secretary of the W. F. M. S. was given a cordial reception, and her report was listened to with interest. Sister Harrod had pledged our district for $100 on the Scholarship at Scarritt. Forty dollars of this was pledged by the Conference, and Bro. Hardin was appointed by the Conference to co-operate with Sister Harrod in raising this amount, $100.

The Choctaws who still remain in Mississippi are still looking to us for help. The report of the work is encouraging. Twenty dollars was given by the Conference to help them finish a church. God is with us in this work.

Rev. J. T. O'Neil makes a charming host. The good people of Philadelphia treated us as brethren beloved in the Lord. The Conference hardly felt that it had done justice to their royal hospitality, though they passed a resolution of thanks without a dissenting voice.

The last act of the Conference was the unanimous adoption of a well-deserved series of resolutions commending the work of the presiding elder. These will appear elsewhere.

Rev. J. C. Long and his wife presented the presiding elder with an elegant gold watch, in testimony of their appreciation of his kindness to them.

JOHN W. CHAMBERS, Secretary.

THE HISTORIC HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT.

Editor NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: We note that the question of large districts is occupying the attention of some of the preachers who are writing for your paper and that incidentally the abolishment of the Holly Springs District has been drawn into the discussion. The laymen of the old district have been anxious to present their views on this subject. Each one has refrained, hoping some other would write the first article. We believe that a big mistake was made by the Bishop and his cabinet in abolishing the Holly Springs District. We do not believe there are many Methodists in its bounds who do not hold the same opinion as we do.

Of course, a great many hated to see the district abolished as a matter of sentiment, but were perfectly willing to see what improvements would come from the change. The charges along the I. C. Railroad are better served in their new district than any others; yet their distance from the presiding elder prevents them from getting the attention they got under the old regime. To reach that part which is now located in the Sardis District, the presiding elder has to go out of the State on account of railroad conditions, and virtually the same can be said of those charges which are in the Corinth District.

Now, what was to be gained by abolishing the district? The promise to the Holly Springs Station was that they would be relieved of what was considered a rather burdensome assessment for the support of the presiding elder. Consider their amazement, when their assessment for the presiding elder of the Grenada District was larger than it had been for years in the old Holly Springs District. Another argument was that the district was not providing ample support for the presiding elder. If we are correctly informed, he was paid about $900 a year and furnished a good house in which to live. There are more preachers supporting their families on smaller salaries than this, than there are on larger ones. But the foregoing are mercenary motives and are hardly worthy of consideration when such vital interests are at stake. There is but one question worthy of discussion, "Does the necessity for a Holly Springs District still exist?" We claim that it does; that it is more needed now than ever. The members of the small country churches are the salt of the earth. From their ranks come most of the preachers and permanent church members. Now that the country neighborhoods are becoming depopulated and the country churches are becoming weaker, are we to neglect them? We contend that they should be looked after more carefully than ever.

The great success of the Methodist Church in the way of numbers is due to the fact that it sent the Gospel to all parts of the world without regard to the question of money. Are we upholding our old-time reputation along this line? John the Baptist sent his disciples to Christ to know if he was the true Messiah. He received this reply: "Go and show John * * *, and the poor hear the Gospel preached to them." Are we emphasizing the teachings of the Messiah along this line, or are we, as a Church, departing from them?

"Is there still a need for the Holly Springs District?" We believe this question will be answered at the next Annual Conference by a petition, signed by every preacher and official member in the bounds of what was formerly the Holly Springs District, memorializing the Bishop and his cabinet to re-establish the district.

Yours truly, C. H. CURD.

CENTENARY COMMENCEMENT.

On Saturday, June 2, 1906, at 8:30 p.m., the preparatory exhibition began. There were six contestants for the Pharr Medal; the declamations were above the average. The speech by Mr. A. W. Hoffpauir was well rendered, and many of his friends thought he would be the winner of the medal, but the committee awarded it in all sincerity and honesty to Mr. Frank McKneely. The dialogues were highly amusing; a song by Miss Carrie May Miller, accompanied by Mrs. D. M. Pipes and Miss Irma Mattingly, was beautiful. Miss Irma Mattingly furnished sweet violin solos.

The commencement sermon was preached on the 3d inst. by Rev. P. M. Brown, of Bunkie, La. It was eloquent and logical, good enough for a Bishop to have preached. The Y. M. C. A. sermon was preached Sunday night by Dr. J. T. Sawyer. It was in Dr. Sawyer's usual forceful style.

Monday night was the occasion of the annual literary address. This address was delivered by Dr. Aldrich, of Tulane. He ably filled the place of Dr. E. B. Craighead, who found it impossible to be present, as scheduled. The address of welcome was delivered by Mr. Bob Tomb.

On Tuesday, at 9 a.m., the Board of Trustees met in the College library. A deed was given to the Legal Conference, and Centenary College is now the property of the Louisiana Annual Conference. The charter formed a part of the deed. By this deed Centenary can never be moved from Jackson.

Tuesday night was Alumni meeting. Various short and forceful speeches were made by the Alumni. A beautiful vocal solo was rendered by Miss May McKowen.

On Wednesday, at 9 a.m., the graduating exercises were held. Miss Eva Munson was valedictorian; Mr. H. E. Townsend, salutatorian. These were followed by announcements from Dr. Keener and Rev. C. C. Miller.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Schule, and Centenary closed its best session for work done and the high moral conduct of the student body.

COMMENCEMENT AT MILLSAPS

Despite the delay in the opening of the session, which was six weeks late on account of quarantine regulations, Millsaps College closed on the 12th inst. one of the most satisfactory sessions in its history. Two hundred and thirty students had been enrolled during the time. The general health of the student body had been good. The relations between the students and the Faculty had been the most amicable. A more harmonious, enthusiastic, studious body of young men could scarcely be found. The exercises which characize a commencement occasion were entered into heartily by all. Twenty-two young men and one young lady were given diplomas. This is the fourth young woman that has graduated from the institution. Nine young ladies matriculated during the past session. In view of the growing demand for admission into the College classes, a committee was appointed by the Board of Trustees to consider the advisability and feasibility of establishing a woman annex to the institution, the object being to meet the demand and to encourage that which is evident among our people, a desire for higher education for our girls.

Of the eight medals awarded, two were won by young ladies.

Including the gift by Mr. Carnegie for a library building, there was an increase of about $70,000 to our funds.

The question of putting an agent in the field was discussed by the Board of Trustees, and was left for final decision to the Executive Committee. The greatest need of the College is the increase of her endowment fund, that she may maintain the high place she has acquired in the educational world.

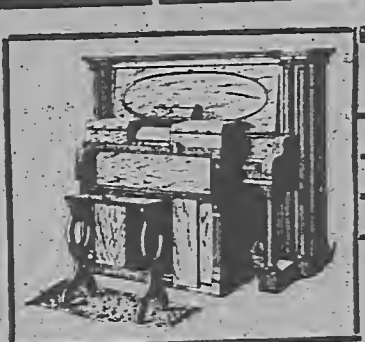
Methodism in Mississippi has here a plant of which it may rightly feel proud, and should be glad to advance to the highest position among colleges.

The commencement exercises were of the highest order. The presence of Bishop Candler, for sermon and address, and also of Dr. DuBose before the Young Men's Christian Association, made such conditions the greatest certainty. The utterances of Bishop Candler will long be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to hear him. We were pleased to have Brothers Carter and Boggs, of the Louisiana Conference, on the platform with us.

Bishop Galloway was greatly improved in health, and was useful to the Board with his wise counsel.

During the summer all necessary repairs will be made on the grounds and buildings, and a large attendance is expected by the President of the College. No change whatever was suggested or made in the teaching force, and the Faculty will remain as it was the past year.

GRENADA COLLEGE.



Dear Dr. Boswell: I am home from attending the closing exercises of Grenada College. I am impressed that the grade of work done there is excelled in but few schools in the Southern Church. It well deserves a wider recognition and a stronger support. How Methodists can be luke-warm in supporting their own Conference school I cannot understand. If our people would stay by this institution, as is reasonable to expect, Prof. Clifton and the Board of Trustees would be relieved of great embarrassment and could and would project even larger things for this splendid school. The burdens and honors of an institution of this kind should be borne and worn by all, practically every Methodist in the North Mississippi Conference, and not by a few, for it does not belong to the few, but to the entire Conference. Some may be of the opinion that Grenada College is being run in the interest of the President and the Board of Trustees, and that we are making a barrel of silver and gold. Well, if we are, it goes back into the institution; we don't take off with it; it does not belong to us any more than any other member of the Methodist Church in North Mississippi. And when you have failed to send your daughter to this splendid school, you have failed to honor yourself and child, for when a young lady goes out from this institution with a diploma she does credit to a father's good judgment.

Doctor, pass this word around, that we are to pray and work more for Grenada College, for it is worthy of the prayers of the saints and the money of the rich. Your brother,

W. S. SIMKMAN.

AN APPEAL.

The books of the ADVOCATE Office show that many dollars are due us on subscriptions. The publisher is sending out this week many bills. We hope those who receive them will promptly respond. What each person owes is small, but in the aggregate the amount due us is large, and we need the money. The printers' wages must be met every week, and monthly bills must be paid. What is called the "dull season" is right upon us, and all that is due us is needed. We appeal confidently to our friends to pay up and renew. It will tide us over, and we will be glad and thankful. If you cannot pay all, send us what you can spare. If unable to pay anything just now, say so, and we will patiently wait. We do not care to lose a single friend. Let us hear from you soon. We will feel comfortable.

NOTES FROM MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

The Meridian District Conference convened in Lake Providence, May 29. Rev. J. M. Henry, P. E., in the chair. A goodly number of pastors and laymen were present at the opening session, and all of us thrilled with delight the very gratifying report from the district as made from the presiding elder's viewpoint. The reports from the several pastors (supplemented by statements from the laymen, who were also called upon) were full of encouraging things. Not one discordant note, not one pessimistic doubt, was expressed during the entire session. Every man spoke of progress in holy things. A good hope, a better day, was the spirit of the entire body. A most encouraging and noteworthy fact in all the reports is an increase in the attendance of men upon the services of the Church. We are preaching, I judge from the report, to more people in this district than at any time in its history. Manly and faithful prophets in charge of Church affairs have much to do with the number of men in our pews. Men like to have a manly preacher, and will hear, if we preach a manly Gospel—the Christ, a man among men, a leader and Savior Divine.

A forward movement is plainly to be seen in these parts. New houses of worship have been built, new territory occupied; Sunday schools have increased in number and attendance, and nigh unto one hundred souls have been received into the Church, while the protracted meetings are yet to be held. There will, no doubt, be quite an increase in the membership of this district in 1906. I am sure we are gaining ground in this part of the State. Our pastors, I am persuaded, have been wisely and faithfully led, and by their side some of the very best and most loyal laymen stand, and will stand, until we possess this land for Christ and Methodism.

If you had looked in upon us Wednesday, Mr. Editor, you would have thought yourself at an Annual Conference, with applicants for orders before its bar. The address to Jno. Sholars, to whom a license to preach, and a recommendation to the Annual Conference was given, will bear much fruit. You would have been reminded, sir, of the commission from Him who said, "I send you forth: be wise as the serpent and as harmless as the dove." Sholars strikes me as a "good case." There is room in Louisiana for men who are willing to work on hard circuits and short rations, but little room for the man that wants a large stipend and a "soft snap." We have but few large and strong Churches, and for them we think we have developed a few men, who are now able to handle them.

The Committee on Church Publications spoke very highly of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and commended it most heartily to our people. The Nashville Advocate, the Epworth Era and Sunday School Visitor were all strongly represented by the presiding elder, and most earnestly commended to the Church and reading public. Progress—upward and onward movement was the conclusion your correspondent reached concerning these parts, after a few days with the pastors and laymen of this district.

The preaching feature was prominent, and was done by Richard Wilkinson, J. R. Roy, H. W. May, Samuel Calvin and J. M. Henry.

The names of the local preachers were called, their characters passed, and license renewed.

The last half-day of the Conference was devoted to the Sunday-school interests, and was like unto wine at the wedding-feast.

Rev. A. S. J. Neal, our wide-awake pastor at Lake Providence, had a well-prepared programme and was invited by the presiding elder to take the chair, and with an able hand he conducted the deliberations. Good speeches were made by both pastors and laymen, and one of the most edifying sessions of the Conference was given us.

The lay delegates to the Annual Conference are T. J. Reed, W. H. Sanders, W. R. Baker.

The Conference accepted an invitation from Waterproof to meet there next year.

Fraternally yours. H. W. MAY, Secretary.

REPORT OF JOINT MEETING OF THE W. F. M. AND W. H. M. SOCIETIES, SEASHORE DISTRICT.

On Monday, June 4, at 8 p.m., the Home Mission Society and Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Seashore District met in the Twenty-fifth Avenue Methodist Church, Gulfport, by invitation of Rev. M. L. Burton, presiding elder of the district. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Geo. Galloway, pastor of the Church. A cordial address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. P. K. M. Tippan, of Gulfport, and responses made by Mrs. O. G. Halliburton, of Bay St. Louis, and Mrs. N. R. Drummond, of Columbia. Addresses were made by Mrs. Carraway, of Longbeach, District Secretary of the Home Mission Society, and by Mrs. T. B. Holloman, Conference President of the Home Mission Society. An address on foreign missions was also made by Mrs. T. B. Clifford, District Secretary, who also spoke on Mississippi Scholarships.

Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock both societies and their interested friends met again. The Woman's Home Mission Society had charge of the exercises, Mrs. Carraway, District Secretary, in the Chair, and Mrs. J. A. Bishop, of Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, Recording Secretary. The addresses and reports from societies were interesting and instructive.

In the afternoon the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society had charge of the exercises, with Mrs. T. B. Clifford in the chair and Mrs. Laura S. Jackson, Recording Secretary. Devotional exercises were led by Mrs. S. S. Ferguson. To roll call of the auxiliaries the delegates responded with their names. Next in order of business came the District Secretary's report. It was full of interest and encouragement. She spoke of what the Board expected the past year; said she had not secured the 100 new members desired, but had enrolled seventy-five new ones. She reported 100 subscribers to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Advocate, and 88 to the Little Worker. She urged that these papers be taken by all the members, who would keep in touch with the work.

Reports from societies were called for. Mrs. Halliburton reported for Bay St. Louis: A faithful few bear the standard; amount raised, $9.30. Mrs. E. J. Mitchell reported Biloxi: 28 members; 14 subscribers to W. M. Advocate; collected $71.70. Mrs. M. E. Joyce reported for Gulfport: Dues and pledges had all been met; a total of $95.56. Mrs. S. S. Ferguson reported Main St. Church, Hattiesburg: 32 members; 38 subscribers to W. M. Advocate; amount raised, $123.72. Mrs. Ferguson also reported Hattiesburg Juveniles: "They are interested workers and had raised $36.35." Mrs. Lougre reported Court St. Church, Hattiesburg: 21 members; amount raised, $57.11. Lumberton was called. No delegate being present, the pastor, Rev. E. H. Mounger, reported. He spoke with regret of irregular attendance on the meetings, but said they paid their dues, a total of $20.40. Logtown Society had no report. Moss Point: Written report from Mrs. C. H. Woods, Corresponding Secretary, was read by Mrs. Jackson, showing 36 members, 7 of them new; they had raised $47.30. Mrs. J. W. Collins reported for Purvis: A small band; amount paid $7.50. Collins Juveniles reported by Lady Manager Annie H. Cross: Number of members, 15; subscribers to Little Worker, 20; money sent to Conference Treasurer for special pledges, dues and Conference expense fund for year, $31.04. Mrs. Pearl Drummond reported the Clifford Workers: Amount raised, $23.30. Miss Ruby Magee reported Columbia Golden Links: Amount raised, $21.75; Ocean Springs Juveniles, no report.

A paper was read by Mrs. S. S. Ferguson on the "Influence of Mothers in Shaping Missions." One was also read on the "Model Missionary Society."

Remarks by Mrs. Clifford were followed by nominations for the next place of meeting for the Woman's Home Mission Society. Pass Christian was selected, the date of meeting to be decided on later.

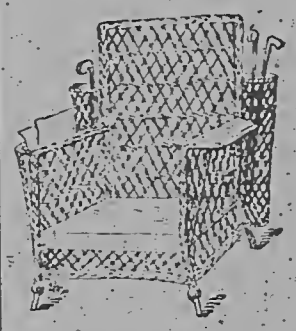
The meeting adjourned to give place to a children's meeting, which was next on the programme, and was conducted by Mrs. Clifford. She had a box of curios on Japan, consisting of house, boy, girl, pictures, etc. Her talk was on the home life, dress, customs, worship and many things that the children enjoyed. She exhibited maps, charts, posters and a beautiful diploma that she gave her juveniles when they completed an outlined course of study. These charts and posters were gotten up by the Columbia Mission Study Class. The children were interested.

Announcement that Rev. M. M. Black would preach at 8 p.m. was made, and with that sermon the W. H. M. and W. F. M. Societies would adjourn.

After an inspiring song and prayer, the minutes of the afternoon session were read and approved, and the societies were dismissed.

The following resolutions were adopted:

"We, the Committee of the Home and Foreign Missionary District Conference (1) do most sincerely proffer our warmest thanks for the cordial greeting that awaited us in this progressive city of Gulfport; to Rev. George Galloway, pastor of Twenty-fifth Avenue Church, for kind personal attentions; to the choir for beautiful music; to Rev. M. L. Burton, for inviting us to come; to Reception Committee and to Dr. and Mrs. Carraway, for reception given at their home in Long Beach, in honor of Mrs. Holloman, President of the Home Mission Conference Society; (2) that we rejoice with the citizens of Gulfport in the remarkable growth of their town, which has made it possible for them to entertain the Home Mission and Foreign Missionary Societies and the District Conference in one week, and we hereby express our grateful appreciation of their generous hospitality.



"Respectfully,

"MRS. SALLIE SMYLIE FERGUSON.
"MRS. LAURA SCOTT JACKSON.
"MRS. HALLIBURTON."

Respectfully submitted,

MRS LAURA S. JACKSON,
Recording Secretary, W. F. M. S.

DR. TILLETT'S SPEECH BEFORE THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

BY A CIRCUIT RIDER.

The speech of Dr. W. F. Tillett, Dean of the Theological Faculty and Professor of Systematic Theology, of Vanderbilt University, before the recent General Conference at Birmingham, Ala., concerning the new statement of Methodist faith and doctrine has been read, perhaps, by most Methodists. Such a speech as made, coming from such a source, clothed in "clear-cut" language, and indicating preparation before the Conference met, doubtless had its effect upon the General Conference. Said he: "Now, I come as a teacher of theology, and I say to you there is not a Methodist theological school in the world that can make the Twenty-five Articles the basis of its teaching of theology, and by so doing meet the needs of the day in which we live."

I suppose Dr. Tillett used the word "basis" in the sense of foundation, that on which anything rests. Now, our Articles make concise statements concerning God the Creator, the Holy Spirit, Jesus Christ the Son of God, the resurrection of Christ, the atonement of Christ, the sufficiency of the Holy Scriptures, sin, justification by faith, good works, the church, the sacraments, etc.

If any Methodist theological teacher cannot see in those Articles fundamental doctrine (even the Lord Jesus Christ) and a basis broad and strong enough to support any superstructure, he needs an eye-salve, and he needs it badly! As Bishop Wilson said in his great speech, "I rather pity" him.

If the day in which we live is demanding something other than is taught in the Twenty-five Articles, then "our day" is blind and all out of joint.

Dr. Tillett insists that our Articles are not "permeated with that type of evangelical experience that has characterized Methodism from the beginning, and still characterizes Methodism in our day." He thinks "we need such a statement of doctrine as shall express the religious experience and life of universal Methodism."

Dr. Tillett evidently overlooked our 9th Article, especially when he made the statement—the Article which ascribes justification and righteousness to all who trust the Lord Jesus Christ, even salvation by faith. If the 9th Article does not express, or indicate religious experience, it would be difficult to write one which does. Moreover, Wesley's Doctrinal Sermons constitute part of our standards, and they are filled up with "religious experience and life" from conviction to glorification. They express in elaborate form "the religious experience of universal Methodism."

If Dr. Tillett can write a creed which will bring an individual something better than justification, righteousness, or salvation, I would like to see him write it, but I want him to write it before the Church discards the old. It is well to write a new creed when the old has made us glorious. Moreover, our experience has long since proved the trustworthiness of the old.

But the Doctor says: "We would not alter in any degree these Twenty-five Articles. We would leave them just as they are to serve the intellectual and spiritual needs of any who may continue to get help from them." Nevertheless, I, for one, believe that they have served their purpose by the will of God, and are now entitled to honorable superannuation. I believe that they should take their permanent and their honored place in our history of Christian doctrine, not as Articles we have repudiated, or do not still believe, but simply as Articles that met our need one hundred and twenty-five years ago, but are not now altogether adequate and sufficient for our wants."

If the above is not a contradiction and general mixture, then nothing ever was! He seems to believe in them, yet he does not believe in them. He argues in one place for their superannuation and in another for their supernumerary relation. They have served the purpose of God, yet they should be left where they are, or just as they are, to serve the intellectual and spiritual needs of any. He would take them out of active service, yet he would leave them re Christian doctrine, etc.

If any Annual Conference were to say to a traveling preacher what Dr. Tillett says about our Articles, that preacher would know in what relation he stood to the Conference. He would not know whether he was superannuated, or the supernumerary relation, or left in active service, or had any relation whatever. About the only thing he would be sure of is that the Conference had a mixed opinion of him. He would feel like a chicken running around with his head chopped off—theirs with enthusiasm.

Dr. Tillett thinks that Methodism ought to prepare a new statement because the Articles were "written three hundred and fifty years ago, in the middle of the Sixteenth Century, by Archbishop Cranmer and a number of others associated with him. They are, therefore, three centuries and a half old."

But John Wesley did a good and "judicious piece of work" when he changed, abridged, modified and revised them, and, after all, they are no older than Wesley; yet the truths which they express are as old as the kingdom of Christ. It is doubted that even Dr. Tillett can improve upon them in simplicity and clearness. They not only cover fundamental doctrine, but they imply every necessary experience. What they lack at any point, Wesley's Doctrinal Sermons fully elaborate.

Dr. Tillett had much to say about the kind of a creed we need in our day, but just the kind we need he failed to say. One thing he is certain of, the old should be "superannuated."

Now, must I receive members into the Church who believe the same? If I had said the same thing before my Annual Conference last year, what would have become of me? When a few more new things are set on foot in the Church, with many still clinging to the old, what will become of our unity—of us?

I disagree with Brother "Gilderoy," that Dr. Tillett "made a great speech." I think he endeavored to "shake" something that cannot legally (?) be "shaken." Moreover, the question is before the Church for thought and debate, and it is not germane to say "we need not be flailing over the old straw in the papers for the next four years."

The question is now up, and let Methodists generally settle it. When Methodists generally settle it, let them put it so far down it will never know a resurrection.

PURVIS, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The fourth Sunday in May was observed in Purvis as Children's Day, and it proved to be a highly enjoyable and profitable occasion. Thanks to the faithful service rendered by Sisters J. W. Caraway and C. E. Cunsford in training the children, they all acquitted themselves well. The collection amounted to $12.07. We were fortunate in having with us that evening our beloved Presiding Elder, Rev. M. L. Burton, who delivered an excellent impressive and helpful talk to the children, the grown people also not being neglected. Although new in the office, Brother Burton is winning golden opinions because of his tact, kindly spirit, earnestness, and manifest consecration. His heart is evidently in the great work before him, and may a larger measure of success crown his efforts.

It gives me great pleasure to report that on the first Sunday in June the full amount due on our Conference assessments was secured in cash and good subscriptions, with several dollars, if I mistake not, to spare. Our missionary assessments were paid early in February. This pastor has never received kinder, more generous treatment anywhere than has been accorded him since his arrival among the good people of Purvis, and I shall be grateful to them for their hearty and loyal cooperation. My predecessor, Rev. J. W. Chambers, left things in fine shape, and it would be difficult to improve on what he has done. The preaching services are largely attended, most of the time, and the outlook is encouraging in many respects. With but few exceptions, the officers of the Sunday School are all members of the church.

Yours fraternally,

M. M. BROOKS, P. C.

NOTICE.

All delegates who expect to attend the Brookhaven District Conference, which will meet at the Centenary Methodist Church, in McComb City, on June 27-30, will please notify at once the pastor at McComb, Rev. N. B. Harmon, or Dr. P. M. Pringler, of the Arrangement Committee.

P. M. PRINGLER,

Chairman Arrangement Committee.

Perseverance is the secret of every successful life and work. Many of our most prosperous men began life in a low estate; they had two willing hands, a clear head and a determined will. They have reached their position by no sudden flight. Rung by rung they crept up the ladder. It is a long journey from the first saved shilling to the millionaire's wealth; from the rude chalk profile to the famous painting on the walls of the Academy; from the boy's halting verse to the immortal poem.

Whatever makes men good Christians makes them good citizens.—D. Webster.

THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1906.

Many members of the Church, high in the business world, and recognized as men of sterling worth, are not known as Christians. Is that the case with any reader of this paragraph?

Our Gospel is old and well settled, and thoroughly satisfactory to every genuine believer. He has no desire to exchange it for something else. He is afraid to risk an experiment.

A wasted life will fill the soul with regrets in the dying hour. It will then be too late to make amends. Spare yourself that anguish by heeding God's call to service while you can. The night cometh when no man can work.

"He that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." To deny His existence is atheism; to deny His government is anarchy. The atheist is a fool; the anarchist is a knave.

A man cannot use his money to a better advantage than by putting it into the heads, and as far as possible, into the hearts of his children. To give them money without education and religion, is to put into their hands the weapon of moral suicide.

If it be a matter of choice between money and infidelity, against the Church and religious education, there should be no hesitancy among intelligent and philanthropic men which to choose. If the Bible be kept out of our public schools for three or four generations, the question will come up for settlement.

There is in the heart a longing after something this world can never give—which God never designed it to give. Otherwise, those who have reached the goal of their ambition, whether for place and power, or fame, or earthly gain, would be among the happiest of men. But they are often the most miserable. Only that which God supplies through grace can satisfy an immortal soul.

The union of certain Arminians and Calvinists, so much talked about, was effected on the restatement of the old doctrines. One article of faith, so familiar, which declared that "the chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever," has been changed to read: "Men of Christian faith exist for service of men." That, says one, "is the new humanitarian religion, making man the center, instead of God."

THERE IS WORK FOR ALL.

Our Lord said to his disciples, "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a householder which went out early in the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard." Having agreed with the laborers for a penny a day, he sent them to work. He went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market-place, and said to them, Go ye also into the vineyard. And they went. Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise. And about the eleventh hour, still having work for more laborers, he went out and found others standing idle, and said unto them, "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" And he put them to work.

Work is the common lot of men. Whether originally intended or not, it is the order now, and no man can honestly escape its demands. It is imposed as a curse. Even the ground is cursed because of sin, and produces thorns and thistles, and sorrow is the result. Men overcome only by hard work.

The law of labor is likewise binding upon Christians. God lays upon them burdens they never would have been called to bear but for sin, which made the atonement necessary, and imposed upon the Church the duty of giving the world the knowledge of salvation. How hard and difficult the task only those know who have had a part in the work. The meagre results of two thousand years of labor is not due so much to the indifference and inefficiency of the workers as to the difficulties they have encountered. St. Paul said, "A great door and effectual is open unto me, but there are many adversaries." The Church may say the same thing to-day.

In God's vineyard there is employment for all, and all are under obligation to work. The preachers, of course, are expected to take the lead, and bear the heaviest part of the burden. This is natural, since God calls them, and separates them from all secular pursuits to the one business of looking after souls. A faithful preacher, who feels the responsibility of his calling, and meets his obligations, eats no idle bread. He is one of the hardest-worked men in his community. True, he does not labor with his hands; but he has upon him "the care of the Church," which involves pastoral oversight, visiting from house to house, ministering to the sick and needy, comforting the distressed, encouraging the faithful, and warning the unruly, and other things incident to the life of one who is called to feed the flock of Christ.

Another work of the preacher, at least among Methodists, is to look after the benevolent collections. This requires much time, and a vast amount of hard labor. With some preachers in some charges it is the hardest work connected with their pastorates. Not a few preachers, were they able, would prefer to pay out of their own pockets all they are asked to collect, rather than undergo the toil, and suffer the rebuffs, not to say the insults, they often meet in the course of their rounds among an unwilling people. And, in addition to all the duties named, he must make the necessary preparation for preaching if he would meet his obligations as an ambassador for Christ. This duty cannot be neglected, except at his own peril, and the peril of souls he is sent to seek and to save.

By the time a preacher's weekly work is wound up he is literally tired, in mind and body, and has earned all he receives for his hire—never too much, and not infrequently a pittance, bestowed as a charity, rather than wages for faithful service. And when his labor is all spent, as it often is without the sympathy and co-operation of his Church, added to the weariness of body and mind, there is heart-ache and discouragement sufficient to break his spirit and send him to an untimely grave. And many people think that preachers have an easy time!

The membership of the Church also have work in the vineyard. None are exempt. The healthy Christian, who has time and opportunity for work, is no more excusable for idleness in the Lord's work than is a man who is dependent on his labor for daily bread. But too many content themselves with personal enjoyment, living under the impression that religion was designed only to make people happy and carry them to heaven. If, in addition to seeking after happiness, they give to support the Gospel, they are satisfied, feeling that duty has been faithfully performed.

We risk nothing in saying that the preacher's labor, be it ever so zealous, will be largely in vain without the co-operation of the Church. Not one preacher lives that does not feel the need of help. Paul felt it, and earnestly coveted it. "Brethren, pray for us," was his fervent plea. And he said to the Corinthians, "We, then, as workers together with Him, beseech you also, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain."

One of the first acts of the apostles was to put the Church to work. The poor needed attention, and money had to be collected. Calling the Church together, they said, "It is not meet that we should leave the Word of God to serve tables." The Church should do this work, they said, "while we give ourselves continually to prayer and to the ministry of the Word." And they chose seven good men, and ordained them as deacons.

The Church to-day might greatly relieve the preachers in all temporal matters, if it would. It might also assist the ministry in spiritual things, and thus advance all the interests of the kingdom.

More and more are Christians everywhere waking up to the duty of laboring in the vineyard. Men and women are not now as backward as they once were in working for the Lord. They are entering by the thousand, and enthusiastic in the work, gaining both strength and happiness as they labor. And still there is room and work, and the Lord says: "Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right will I pay you."

A WORD OF ADVICE AND CAUTION.

Letters received from brethren commending our course in the matter that is now interesting the Church are highly appreciated. We may be mistaken as to whether now is the time to discuss a question, action on which is so far in the future. But the subject is a live one, and we can see no harm in trying to do our part towards crystallizing and setting public opinion. We shall endeavor to treat every brother who writes with fairness. We ask those who favor us with communications to indulge no sharpness, except the sharpness of logic. That will save us the necessity of cutting out objectionable words and sentences. If we are bound to discuss, let the discussion be sensible and dignified, such as we will not be ashamed to see in history in the coming years. And let us confine ourselves to the subject in hand.

BY WAY OF REPLY.

In Brother Dorman's article of June 14, in which he criticises the views of Dr. Weems, occurs this sentence:

"The Doctor implies by his quotations that the First Restrictive Rule is locked up beyond the reach of the Church. In this, again, he is under mistaken impressions. An examination of the Journal of the General Conference of 1808 will show a provision for the alteration of all Restrictive Rules. Then an examination of the Journal for 1832 will show that certain legislation applies to all the Rules, excepting the first. The exception limits the legislation of 1832 to all the Rules, excepting the first. This stands on the original legislation of 1808, which is not absolute, but almost so."

Brother Dorman's idea evidently is that, as the General Conference of 1808, the originating body, not delegated, but made up of all the members of all the Annual Conferences, the change of all Restrictive Rules, and that the proviso, "excepting the first article," authorized by the General Conference of 1828, and submitted to the Annual Conferences, and confirmed by the General Conference of 1832, is to be accepted as an amendment, subject to repeal by the same process it was adopted. This seems to have been the view taken by our General Conference at Birmingham in its action authorizing a change in one of our Articles of Religion to adapt it to foreign countries.

The above reasoning will fully apply to the Methodist Episcopal Church, because that Church is operating in its General Conference by authority granted by the Annual Conferences in 1808. It will not apply to our Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, because we are not operating under that authority. We are operating by authority of a constitutional convention, which met and organized the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1845. That constitutional convention adopted the Restrictive Rules as they stand to-day. So, as we see the matter, there is no way of effecting a change in our Articles of Faith, or doctrinal standards, except by revolution, which, we think, will not be undertaken.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Sawyer reports that his district is doing well, and that he and his preachers have lots of preaching and hard work for the summer.

The districts of Dr. F. N. Parker and Rev. C. B. Carter are moving on finely, and both of these brethren were in attendance upon the Legal Conference.

Mr. Howard Davis and Miss Elvia Brown, of Lake Arthur, La., were married at the residence of Mrs. O. Hughes, Lake Arthur, on June 12, 1906, Rev. A. A. Bernard officiating.

We are glad to know that Centenary will open its next session at the usual time, and we wish that Dr. Miller may have the utmost success. The work done during the last session was most thorough and satisfactory.

Mr. H. N. Pharr, of Olivier, La., was in attendance upon the meeting of the Legal Conference on Tuesday, June 19. He represented the old Board of Trustees of Centenary College.

Dr. Frank N. Parker, of New Iberia, and Colonel S. B. McCutchen, of Shreveport, members of the Legal Conference, were present at the meeting of that body. Dr. J. R. Moore, of Minden, was stopped on his way by a wreck on the railroad.

Rev. J. W. Harper in a personal note to the editor says: "I am getting along very well on the Grand Chenier circuit. My work is doing fairly well. Hoping to have several good meetings this summer, and bring up a good report at the Annual Conference."

This is "university week" with Vanderbilt. The exercises incident to commencement are on in full. The programme is a tempting one, and all who are fortunate enough to be present, we dare say, are at the height of enjoyment. We thank the Chancellor and Faculty for an invitation to the feast.

We tender heartfelt sympathy to our dear brother, Rev. W. S. Lagrone, in the loss of his loving and faithful wife, who passed away from their parsonage home in Cleveland, Miss., to the home above. The blow falls with crushing weight, but the grace of God that has sustained him all along in his arduous work he will, no doubt, find sufficient in this hour of trial.

The new Board of Trustees for Centenary College, nominated by the Legal Conference and confirmed by the old Board, are as follows: Clerical: Jno. T. Sawyer, F. N. Parker, C. B. Carter, R. H. Wynn, J. M. Henry, N. E. Joyner, W. W. Drake, W. E. Boggs, Paul M. Brown, T. J. Warlick, William Schuhle; lay, W. B. Thomson, W. W. Carre, S. B. McCutchen, Sam H. Meyer, H. N. Pharr, Ed. L. McGehee, Dr. Jno. P. Scott, J. B. Hutchinson, Capt. P. M. Welsh, Hon. Will L. Foster and G. R. Ferguson. Dr. Sawyer was elected President and Dr. Parker Secretary. President Miller, who at the late meeting of the old Board, held in Jackson, La., resigned conditionally, and which matter was referred by the old to the new Board, was requested to withhold his resignation, and to carry on the College and make all necessary arrangements therefor until the meeting of the Annual Conference.

SEASHORE CAMP GROUNDS.

The Seashore Camp Grounds, from the standpoint of health, is unsurpassed. For five years past we have had supervision of the sanitary condition. Not a case of typhoid, yellow or malarial fever has been contracted on the grounds. Those who have been acquainted with this place from the first state that there never has been a case of yellow fever there, not even in 1878, when it was in other towns on the coast. An abundance of pure water and pure air are safeguards against diseases conveyed by these media. The knowledge of the mode of transmission of yellow fever and the prompt and hearty co-operation of National and State health officers make it well-nigh impossible for it to appear this year.

For religious and social companionship, for the physical development of children, and for restful sojourn for grown folks no more delightful place can be found in this latitude. An electric car line along the beach connects it with the delightful towns from Pass Christian to Biloxi.

Gambling, drinking and other descriptions of immoral practice are not allowed. No "whist" parties or "crap" games are tolerated, but the highest order of intellectual and musical entertainments are frequent. No one has ever visited this place and entered into the work for which it is designed without being spiritually benefited. The daily association of Christian people from the States of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana is mutually uplifting.

Edifying preaching, earnest prayers and sacred songs characterize the Camp Grounds. All who love Christ and are wishing to help others get nearer to Him are welcomed on the grounds.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Let those who expect to attend the Mid-Year Missionary Meeting, to be held at Newton June 26-27, notify me at once. Entertainment will be provided for those only who notify me of their purpose to come. P. D. HARDIN.

POPLARVILLE CHURCH BURNED.

A letter from Rev. D. P. Bradford, dated Poplarville, Miss., June 18, says:

Yesterday morning at about 3 o'clock our church was burned to the ground, having caught from the school buildings owned by Prof. W. I. Thames. We had only $2,000 insurance on the church and pews, about one-third of the loss.

This will fall very heavy on our small membership, as we have just been raising money to build a parsonage. Our people are determined to put forth every effort, and build both parsonage and church. But if there ever was a time when I felt justifiable in making a special appeal to our brethren it is now.

May I not ask the brethren of the Mississippi Conference, that they make a statement to their congregations next Sunday, and ask them to make a contribution for this worthy cause? I have done this a number of times in my life, and always met with some success. If any individual, seeing this notice, will help us, it will be appreciated. Send money to W. M. Hyde, Secretary and Treasurer of the Board of Trustees, or to the undersigned. D. P. BRADFORD, P. C.

P. S.—Our Presbyterian friends, who are now without a pastor, kindly invited us to occupy their house of worship. We gladly accept.

SUPERANNUATE HOME FUND.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Since our last report (ADVOCATE, May 31) the following amounts have been received:

Previously reported	$224.45
Melville (Rev. P. O. Lowry)	10.00
Miss Bettie C. Jones, of Centerville, Miss.	5.00
Morgan City-Berwick (additional)	15.00
Total	$254.45

Please, brethren, present this cause. Every little helps. Presented now, this collection need not interfere with other interests; later you will find it difficult to get it before your people. The fund is growing slowly, but entirely too slow for our needs.

We thank our generous-hearted Mississippi friend, and wish more of our people would voluntarily respond to this worthy call.

Sincerely, ROBT. W. VAUGHAN, Agt.

RESOLUTIONS CONCERNING J. M. MORSE, PRESIDING ELDER OF FOREST DISTRICT.

Whereas, in the economy of our Church, Rev. J. M. Morse, our beloved presiding elder, will sever his connection with this district at the approaching Annual Conference; and whereas his kindly, spiritual and wise attention to the business of the district has produced such large results in the upbuilding of its financial and spiritual interests; therefore, be it

Resolved, First, That we regret the necessity which compels the Rev. J. M. Morse, presiding elder, to lay aside the work so well begun and which separates him from the enjoyment of the benefits his labors have secured.

Resolved, Second, That we recognize in him a strong preacher, a wise counselor—one who commands our respect and our love.

Resolved, Third, That we commend him to the loving care of those whom he shall serve next year, trusting that his appointment will be such as his ability commands, and his faithfulness deserves.

Resolved, Fourth, That as preachers and laymen, we assure him of our warm personal regard and trust, that he will always have our names upon his list of friends.

T. J. O'NEIL.
W. W. GRAVES.

These resolutions were passed by a unanimous vote and ordered printed in the "New Orleans Advocate."

JOHN W. CHAMBERS, Sec.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas in the providence of God two of our most worthy members have been called home, namely, Dr. Irvin Miller and Murdock James McDonald, who served long and faithfully as Local Elders; therefore, be it

Resolved, First, That it is with sad hearts we record the death of these brethren.

Second, That we deeply sympathize with the families of these brethren in their sad loss.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions shall be sent to the family of each of these brethren and to the "New Orleans Christian Advocate."

C. McDONALD.
J. C. LONG.
J. R. HAYES.
M. L. WHITE.

These resolutions were unanimously adopted.

BIENVILLE CHARGE.

Dear Doctor Boswell: I have just returned from the Jonesboro Charge, where I held a real good meeting with Bro. S. D. Hawood. We closed out just at the time when we were in a condition to accomplish much in the way of conversions. I remained in the meeting just as long as I could.

We are losing much in Methodism to-day because of the fact that in most of our revival services we are forced to close just at the point where the revival really begins. We are getting ready for a grand campaign again on this circuit. My official members are standing by my side, and are ready and willing to do their part in bringing about of a sweeping revival of religion.

I am reporting often, and will continue to do so. Our dear old Advocate is getting tremendously popular up this way.

Come to see us, Doctor, and let me ride you around one week and let you see what kind of fare I have, and understand why I report so often: I am in a condition where I can truly sympathize with editors, station preachers, and presiding elders. I am just so anxious to see and read that restatement of doctrine. Let me say in conclusion, that I am going on just like I have been until the document comes out.

G. B. ANDERS

HE RAN FOR LAWYER.

A man from Pennsylvania went to Vineland on a business errand, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The town was strange to him, and he was unacquainted with the man (a lawyer) he had gone to see. The directions he received were so indefinite that he found himself on the edge of the town without having come to the house he sought. Then he met an old negro and asked the way of him, and learned that the house lay about a quarter of a mile farther down the road.

"The man I want to see is a lawyer," he said to the old man. "Is this Mr. Dash down the road a lawyer?"

"He ain't a lawyer that I ever heard tell of," answered the negro.

"You're sure?"

The old negro scratched his head in deep thought. Then a gleam of remembrance lighted his eye.

"Now I think of it, boss," he said, "'pears like I do recollect he ran for lawyer one time."

WILLIAM MONROE JENKINS, son of Rev. M. G. Jenkins, died in San Antonio, Texas, on Friday, May 11, 1906, at 6:30 P. M., and was laid to rest in Masonic Cemetery on Saturday, May 12, at 6 P. M. He was conscious to the last and died without a struggle or apparent pain, although his sufferings were great for twenty-four hours before the end. Brother Jenkins writes: "We did all we could for him, but to no avail. He is gone and our hearts are burdened with sorrow." Will M. Jenkins was born in Thomas County, Ga., Aug. 29, 1869, and was at the time of his death 38 years of age. He was a printer, and had been the publisher and editor of several newspapers, both in Texas and Louisiana. He was also a telegrapher, and was employed by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas R. R. until he was forced to resign the work on account of his health, which began to decline in 1904. He was a member of the Order of Masons and also of the "O. R. T.," or Order of Railroad Telegraphers. Brother and Sister Jenkins accompanied Will to El Paso, thence to Rock Springs, and lastly to San Antonio, hoping that he might regain his health; but, alas, neither climate nor medicine, nor the tenderest care of his parents could arrest the steady progress of the fatal malady. At the time of his passage from earth to heaven, no one was present except his mother and father. Brother Jenkins says: "He often expressed to us that he preferred that no one but 'ma' and 'pa' be with him." He was of a retiring disposition, and this was characteristic of him all through life, and more especially when he felt sure the fell disease had him in its grasp. He was eccentric, or unlike most young men in that no inducement could influence him to attend balls and other places of worldly amusement. He was not at all emotional, but he had an unchangable faith in God and died relying on His grace, breathing his last in perfect peace and triumphant hope. A day or two before his departure he made request that his burial be without display or useless expenditure; yet those who knew him, and they were many, attended his funeral, and many beautiful floral offerings were placed upon his grave. The last sad rites were rendered by Rev. Dr. Campbell, who made a beautiful and touching talk at the house and at his grave. Will Jenkins was a man of ability and high character, and, could he have been spared, would have done a noble life's work. He died the death of a Christian, and has been folded to the bosom of the Infinite Love. Following so soon upon the death of their daughter, Mabel, the loss of the parents is indeed most heavy; but it is their blessed privilege to lay their burden upon the loving Father who "careth for them." Together with the married daughter who yet remains to them, Brother and Sister Jenkins have the deepest sympathy and fervent prayers of their hundreds of brethren and friends in Louisiana and Texas. After just a little while, the family reunion will be had in the world of fadeless light, and "the loved ones gone before" will be joined by those who are pressing on to the home of the blest, where daughter and son await their coming.

"THE CHEERING-UP BUSINESS."

When Miss Edith Wyatt was at Bryn Mawr College she was known as "the girl in the cheering-up business." Home-sick girls, discouraged girls, girls who were behind in their studies, and tired students went to her for a bit of sunshine and encouragement, and they always found it. She radiated cheerfulness. There is a great opening in the "cheering-up business." There is plenty room in it for everybody, and it does not interfere with any other vocation. Make it a hobby, if you want to be happy and successful. You may do more good in it than in your regular vocation, and it may be the best investment you ever made. Try it! "Keep the brightest trail," said an Indian, when asked by Bishop Baker, in pioneer days, the best route across the plains to the Rocky Mountains. This was good advice before the railroads were built; it is just as good today. It may be applied universally. Keep the brightest trail this year. Leave the dark, gloomy, subterraneous passages. Leave gloom, anxiety, worry and discouragement behind. Face the sun.—Success.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on perscriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, O., by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

We Are Specialists

In the treatment of Chronic Diseases of men and women. Having devoted over 20 years to their study and treatment, built up a practice which we believe is second to none in this country, and from the many letters of endorsement received from people we have cured, we feel that we offer every chance possible of a cure. Our methods are all modern and up-to-date, absolutely the best medical science affords. We hold diplomas from the leading medical colleges of America.

Our practice is conducted on the highest ethical basis. We make no wild, extravagant statements that we can cure every disease mankind is subject to, make promises we cannot fulfill, deceptive propositions, misleading statements, etc. Our reputation and standing, both professionally and financially, is of the very highest and firmly established.

If you have any disease of a chronic nature, consult us. We will give you our expert opinion of your case free and tell you frankly just what we can do for you. We especially solicit severe and difficult cases. WE DO NOT DEAL IN PATENT MEDICINES, but prepare in our own private laboratory special treatment to suit the conditions of each case. Our recent publication on Nervous Diseases and "Health" free on application, also examination blank "A" for men and "B" for women. We always advise a personal examination. Another Preacher Struck by a Storm.

On June 2 we had a nice storm party or pounding. The good people of this place decided to give the pastor and family a treat, so they gathered at the tabernacle yard, each bringing with them a pound or paying a gate fee, refreshments being free. The storm lasted from 2 to 6 p. m., during which, we had a delightful time. At the close of the storm they brought the packages and cash to the parsonage, which amounted to about $15. I think it did the people good as well as the pastor and family, for on Sunday following we had a large congregation, at the close of which we received three members on profesaion of faith.

On Sunday night the house would hardly hold the congregation. The Lord is blessing us on the work, and we are looking and praying for a great time on the work this year. We have received by certificate 16, on profession of faith 3. Total up to date, 19.

According to the rumblings in other parts of the work, you need not be surprised if you hear of the storm striking again. For the thunders are muttering, and the winds are blowing and the clouds are surely coming again. We are looking for it, so we won't be so greatly surprised the next time.

We are trying to get subscribers for the dear old Advocate. May the good Lord bless the dear Editor, the Advocate, and all its readers.

We ask the prayers of all the good people for our work, that the Lord may greatly bless us this year on the work, and that His cause may prosper here. Respectfully,

J. F. WALTMAN, P. C.

"If your eye is on the eternal, your intellect will grow, and your opinions and actions will have a beauty which no learning or combined advantages of other men can rival." Failure to follow this high thought of the great American seer constitutes the tragic element in the majority of lives. Their thought abides with the visible things of earth; hence all their actions are measured accurately that they may be in strict conformity to standards prescribed by tradition. Having eyes, they see not; having ears they hear not, and having understanding, they fail to perceive.

You can keep your eye on the eternal and be rewarded with the ineffable riches of the unseen, or you can think only of the temporal, and have as reward a bush and "pluck blackberries." The choice remains with you.—Christian Intelligencer.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 556, Notre Dame, Ind.

LESSON FOR JULY 1.

JESUS AND THE CHILDREN.

Matt. xviii. 1-14.

At the time of our lesson Jesus and His little company of apostles had departed from the scene of the transfiguration, and, according to the Gospel of St. Luke, were on their way to Capernaum. Jesus must have walked some distance ahead of the rest, for, when they came to the house supposed to be Peter's house, He asked them what they had been disputing about as they came along. He did not wait for an answer from them, but proceeded to teach them a lesson in humility. They had been discussing the question of preferment, as to which was the greatest among them. It is natural that the Spirit of the mortal is proud, and it is natural that these men, chosen from the humble walks of life, should have aspirations. The incident is used by the Master to teach them and us a lesson that we are learning for our own improvement as members of the kingdom of God.

Jesus was never at a loss for an object lesson. As the disciples were gathered about Him, He took a little child and set it in the midst of them and told them that he was greatest in the kingdom of heaven who would humble himself as that little child. He who would obey without a question or a doubt, as the child obeys; he who trusts as the child trusts; who is willing to be led as we lead the little child. Having given them this lesson, a lesson that takes a full lifetime to learn, He turns their attention to the child. The simple faith, the sincerity, the perfect trust of the child must have led the Master's thoughts heavenward, for He tells them that in heaven, standing before the face of the Father, was an angel for each little child. Never before did He so closely connect heaven with mortals on earth. Did His hearers realize the immensity of the thought? It is as much a truth to-day as when Jesus uttered it; and we are at as great a loss to grasp it in all of its import. Is it possible that, as we teach children the way of truth and life, we are co-workers with the angels of God? Jesus was directing His apostles to learn from the child, and we will learn from the child even while we teach them. Thanks be to God that we are awakening to the fact that the Church's greatest work is among the children. Are you listless and half-hearted in the work? If so, do not try to teach children; even the youngest of them will find you out; their little eyes pierce to your very soul. If you are sincere and filled with a love for the Master, they will listen to you; if not, their eyes will wander away seeking some object of greater interest. They can quickly tell if you come to them after having spent a season of preparatory prayer. They have a better knowledge of Jesus than you, even if you are the teacher. What if the soul of the child has a dormant knowledge of greater truths than we can imagine, and only need to be awakened by the magic words of a Savior's love?

Happy is the teacher who gains the children's love. It can never be accomplished by any other than the most sincere and pure motives. The disciples had asked Jesus why they could not cast the evil spirit out of the lad who, with his father, were waiting for Him at the foot of the Mount of Transfiguration. Jesus answered: "This kind can come forth by nothing but prayer and fasting." So it is with teaching little children.

The teacher is not to be equipped with worldly knowledge or intellectual ability, but he must have a gift from God as a requisite. This gift comes after long and earnest seeking. Along with this gift comes the awful responsibility of the proper use thereof. Are we in this work, or do we seek to enter in? Beware! for awaiting him who offends one of these little ones is a millstone ready to be hanged about his neck, and he will be cast into the sea. "Take heed lest ye offend one of these little ones," said the Master. Go not into this work unless you continually hold the Master's hand and be led all the way by Him. God gave us children to show how He loves us. "As a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." As we take our child in our arms and feel the love welling up from our heart, we rejoice and give glory to God that He loves us with a still more perfect love. "It is not the will of your Father in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish," but it is His will that they should be saved, and He will be ever at hand to help the one who helps to save them.

So prepare for the work by humbling thyself to the same plane as the ones you wish to lead. "If thy brother trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone," and if this is done as the first step toward humility, and he hears you, you have gained Him and strengthened thyself. True Christian manhood consists, a great part, in minding not high things, but condescending to men of low estate. To be a loyal citizen of the kingdom of God is the highest honor that can be attained on earth; yet the road to this honor is the way of humility. So, if we would be a worker among the children of the kingdom, let us enter the work with a sincere desire to learn from the children. As children teach unconsciously, so does the teacher learn. Why should we not learn from children, when we know that their angels do always behold the face of the Father.

Blessed is the teacher, for "Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of these, the least of my brethren, you have done it unto me." Come then and let us practice this, let us go to the poor and lowly; we will find Jesus there before us. Let us be little children with the children, let us learn to pray as the children pray, to sing as they sing. Let us gather them to us with a great heart full of love, and as we look into their sweet faces we can easily see the features of the children's Savior, for He doth dwell within their hearts.

The outward form of religion is useful if it be accompanied by the inward spirit, but if it is an empty form it is worse than nothing.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

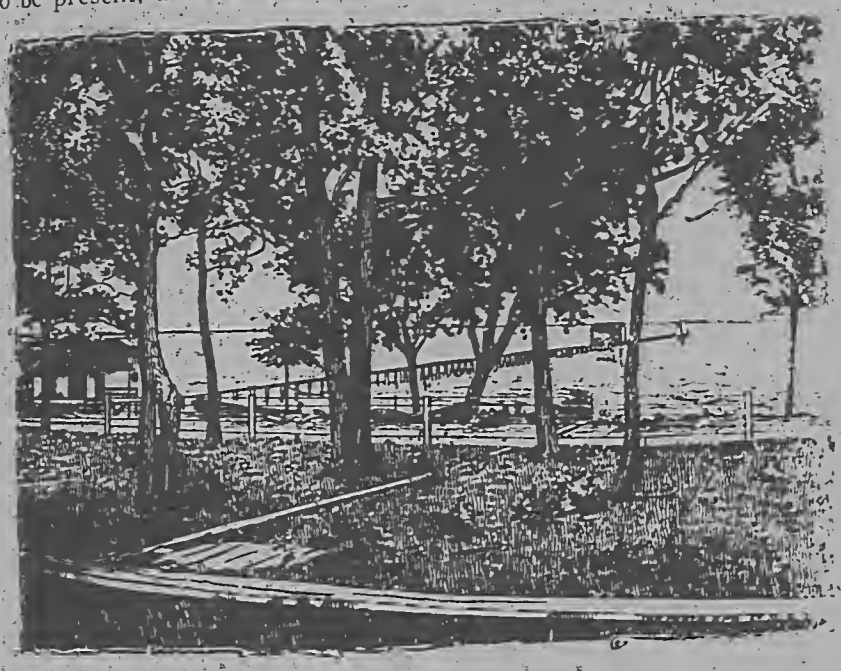
35th Annual Camp Meeting,

SEASHORE CAMP GROUND, JULY 11-19.



The management announce the Thirty-fifth Annual Camp Meeting, Seashore Camp Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 11, and continuing until about July 30. The cottages and grounds have been put in thorough order, and other improvements made, looking to the comfort and convenience of those who attend this meeting.

The religious services are under the direction of the Presiding Elders of the New Orleans, Seashore and Mobile District Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and these brethren will be assisted by the best preaching talent that can be obtained. It is hoped that one or two of the Bishops will be present; in all probability Bishop Candler.

Preaching under the Tabernacle Grove, Grove and Cottage Prayer Meetings, and other religious services, will be held during each day and evening, to which all persons on the grounds are not only cordially invited, but are expected to attend.

Seashore Epworth League Assembly, July 25 to Aug. 5.

The Seashore Annual Epworth League Assembly will be held on the Seashore Camp Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 25, and continuing until Aug. 5. Great good has been accomplished by these meetings from year to year, and it is expected that the meeting of this year will yield larger results than yet attained. All Leaguers, young people and others interested, are earnestly and cordially invited to be present, and share in the glorious results.

RAILROAD RATES.

The Louisville and Nashville, and connections withi na radius of about 400 miles, will sell round-trip tickets to Seashore Camp Ground, (Biloxi) at greatly reduced rates. For detailed information apply to your railroad agent.

LOCATION.

The Seashore Camp Ground is located on the Mississippi Sound, seventy-nine miles from New Orleans and sixty-two miles from Mobile, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and is one of the most beautiful places on the Gulf Coast. It enjoys a railroad service that is unexcelled for comfort and convenience. A magnificent artesian well furnishes cool and life-giving water from a depth of many hundred feet, and by a perfect system of water works the cottages and hotel are furnished with this water direct from the well. The hotel has a frontage of one hundred and sixty feet on the beach. A multitude of magnificent shade trees temper the noon-day sun, and at night numerous electric lights dispel the darkness and illuminate the roads and pathways that intersect the Grounds. A new pier twelve hundred and forty feet in length, with a Summer house on the end, extends out into the Gulf, and offers positively the most delightful advantages in the South for a promenade. The bathing is unexcelled by any other point on the gulf. All parties residing on the grounds have the privilege of the bath-houses. Good board can be secured at the restaurant, which is in charge of a competent chef, and in private houses at reasonable rates. The comforts and conveniences of all visitors will be carefully looked after.

All Methodist preachers will be admitted into the Grounds, and provided with board and lodging free of charge during Camp Meeting.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before the rush of opening of Camp Meeting should address communications to R. G. Price, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the undersigned officers.

The Truth about the Mutual Life

THIS is a matter of great interest to the public, and of still greater interest to thousands of individuals. People with the fairest minds—and that means most people—have been disturbed and unsettled by the developments and denunciations of the past few months. What these people want is the truth—the plain unvarnished truth. To give them this truth is the object of this announcement.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company was organized in 1843, the first of its kind in America. In 24 years it had become the largest in the world. For 39 years, in spite of the keenest competition, it has held the lead, passing unharmed through panics, failures, strikes and wars; meeting with promptness its every obligation and having 460 millions of assets to-day.

The recent Insurance agitation was unique. The investigation certainly was thorough. As every one knows the Mutual Life was on the firing line. The smoke has now cleared away. What do we find?

In the first place we find that the Mutual Life is still the largest and staunchest Life Insurance Company in the world. Without defending or in the least belittling the abuses and extravagances recently brought to light, everybody should keep in mind the fact that the solvency of this Company has not for a moment been affected thereby. Concerning the work of the finance committee which has been attacked in the press, this Company's auditing committee consisting of Messrs. Truesdale, Auchincloss, Fish and Dixon stated on February 15th, 1906:

> "The Committee certify that the investments of the Company are of the highest order and well selected," and "have found the valuation given safe and conservative, in many instances less than the market value and in none in excess of such value."

In the next place, extravagance has been stopped, and those responsible for it have gone; a new management has been installed, and retrenchments have been effected that have already saved vast sums of money and will save much more as time goes on. Legislative reforms have likewise been anticipated, and the Company is now as sound at the circumference as it always has been at the core.

In the next place, the ending of the first quarter presents an excellent opportunity for comparing this year with last.

> The amount paid policy holders is $9,608,436.59, an increase of $1,070,835.26. The receipts for premiums were $15,082,484.57, a decrease of $857,995.29 for the period. This is a shrinkage of less than 5½ per cent. The amount paid for expenses was $2,935,552.44, a reduction of $1,547,279.36.

This remarkable showing is a good thing to be kept in mind by everybody—those now insured in the Mutual Life, and those who should be. It cannot be accounted for by the smaller amount of new business written. Of the saving for the quarter, the sum of $390,961.52 is in items not connected with the obtaining of new business.

In the next place we find that this Company is doing business—more business than any other company in the world with one exception. Far from being paralyzed or demoralized it is forging right ahead. Policies by the hundred are being written each day; honest trustees, keenly alert, are directing its affairs; faithful and experienced men are doing its intricate work; loyal agents are explaining its advantages and discriminating people are obtaining its protection.

In the next place we find that there need be no question as to the future. A policy in the Mutual Life is just as good as gold. No obligation could possibly be better. A bond of the United States Government is no safer. It will, therefore, be a misfortune if any one is misled by the writer who prints for revenue or for notoriety, or by the attorney who is out for his clients, or the competitor who is out for himself, or even by the gentlemen who have organized themselves into committees under an honest misapprehension of the facts. Such incidents may tend to hinder business but need deter no one who needs insurance.

With economy, which means rapid improvement in regard to earning of surplus for dividends, everywhere at work in the Mutual Life; with its immense size as the basis for moderate general expenses; with smaller liability for renewal commissions to agents than any other company; with the cost of new business limited by law for all Companies, how can any one possibly better provide for the uncertainties of the future than through a policy in the first Insurance Company in America, and the strongest in the world—

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York
New York

The Mutual Life has devised and placed on the market at a notably low rate, a policy which provides protection more far-reaching than an ordinary contract. Send your address and let us inform you as to the particulars.

THE MID-YEAR CONFERENCE A PRONOUNCED SUCCESS.

As previously announced, this body of church workers met in Grenada College Monday evening, June 11, at 8:30 o'clock, when introductory speeches were made which inspired those present to expect very much from the succeeding exercises. Perhaps none were disappointed, for, as the programme was presented from day to day, surprises greeted the audience in the matter of the exceptional mastery and impressive presentation of subjects assigned the speakers. Each one seemed to have been, as the programme committee thought, a specialist in his line of work. The usual remark heard among those attending was to the effect that the speaker was not a theorist, but one who had worked out his theories to a practical success. The representations from the several boards made by Bros. T. W. Lewis, J. R. Countiss, T. H. Dorsey and W. W. Woollard indicated that the design of the meeting was practical, and its consummation both desirable and possible. The idea of a campaign rally with fluttering banners, brilliant decorations, attractive badges and a panoramic programme of moving pictures of attractive personages, with the make-believe roar of oratorical cannonading, was very far removed.

To take up the speakers one by one and attempt to present in this communication the valuable ideas they set forward would take too much of valuable space and tax the skill of the writer, but justice compels me to speak of Rev. I. D. Borders, who presented various phases of Sunday school work in so plain and masterful a way; then of those never-to-be-forgotten addresses of Dr. J. A. Kern on "How We Got Our Bible" and "Pastoral Theology." The paper by Mr. W. H. Carter, of Columbus, Miss., was so worthy that it was requested for publication, and will appear soon. Not only the Leaguers, but everyone gave unanimous praise to the most excellent addresses of Dr. H. M. DuBose. Every person who heard him thought better of the Epworth League, and saw new fields of usefulness in this great church work. He delighted, enthused, instructed, captured the audience.

It is no criticism on our patriotism and in no way diminishes our love for our own State, but an evidence of intelligence and fairness to say that Opelika, Ala., sent to us, in Mr. J. B. Green, such a wealth of information, delivered by him with such enthusiasm and accuracy that we all count his work the most complete success. His work, as exemplified before the audience, so challenged the mind to conceive how he could accomplish so much church work and still direct large business interests that someone stopped him in the midst of his address to ask how much time he gave to the Sunday school. His work at this Conference amply justifies the effort to hold it.

The thoughtful paper by Mr. Lloyd De Loach, the address of Prof. W. L. Clifton, the papers by Rev. J. R. Countiss, Rev. J. E. Cunningham, Rev. J. M. Bradley, Rev. E. S. Lewis, Mrs. Bancroft, Miss Mina Chrisp, Mrs. Dr. T. J. Brown and Prof. L. L. Vann, deserve a high place in, and will be held by all our minds in thoughtful consideration.

No other feature was more attractive nor helpful than the work of the Conference Quartette, composed of Mr. H. A. Lee and Miss Alma Hogshead, of Water Valley, Miss., Mrs. W. L. Clifton, of Grenada College, and Rev. J. E. Lewis, of Durant, Miss. Their songs made His praise glorious and the devotional exercises so sweet and spiritual. And still more, their work gave us all an object lesson in the power of church music and song service, and sent back to the several charges an enthusiasm for improvement in the singing.

Many of us were made to feel that the work of missions must receive more attention and larger gifts by the powerful addresses of our newly-appointed assistant Missionary Secretary, Dr. W. W. Pinson. These initial efforts bespeak for him a career of great usefulness, and the church a successful servant.

The closing service was thirty minutes of song and prayer and the great address of Dr. Young J. Allen. Who will ever forget that speech? Who could!

Ministers, laymen and ladies—all testified that the fellowship and helpful association were worth all it cost to come together, and were enthusiastic in requesting that the occasion be repeated annually. Hearty and unanimous thanks were tendered Prof. and Mrs. W. L. Clifton for delightful entertainment, and to the Conference Quartette for soul-stirring music.

The several Boards will set to work at once to make arrangements for a greater occasion next year.

BEN P. JACO, Sec'y.

MRS. JOHN RITCHIE.

AN APPRECIATION.

Sister Julia Elma Ritchey, wife of Rev. John Ritchey of the North Mississippi Conference, was a devout Christian of high intellectual attainments. Acquired knowledge, added to her natural endowments, made her equal to all the responsibilities of life. Her real greatness consisted in living for others. She possessed so much of the Spirit of Jesus Christ that she never sought position or prominence. She chose rather to serve others than to be served. Due credit is given to her for the more than 36 years of the able and successful ministry of her husband, and the mature education of her children. To meet such a beautiful life is no surprise, when we know her good family connections and correct early training. Our ascended friend was an important factor in the organization and development of the Woman's North Mississippi Foreign Missionary Conference, of which she was one of the first officers. Well did she merit the life-membership held at Sardis, Miss. She looked forward to the next Annual Meeting to be held in Winona, June 16-19, with pleasure.

The subject of this notice was a loyal and helpful Methodist preacher's wife. As a mother she guided her children wisely in all things. Sister Ritchey was Miss Van Varis. She was born near Port Gibson, Miss. At an early age she was sent away to school at Charlottsville, N. Y., where she was educated in the New York Conference Seminary. We give here a motto and a prayerful wish from one of her teachers: "Live while you live! the sacred preacher cries, and give to God each moment as it flies." That my dear young friend and pupil may thus live, is the prayer of her who watches the development of every youthful mind with almost parental interest."

On April 20, 1865, she was happily married. She was the mother of four children, three of whom survive her—Prof. S. Ritchey, and Miss Mollie, of Winona, Miss., and Miss Sallie, of Nashville, Ella having died at the age of 11 years.

On Sunday evening, March 25, 1906, in their home in Winona, Sister Ritchey was taken suddenly and peacefully to her heavenly home. The universal expression of sympathy in Winona and surrounding country, and the many beautiful tributes paid to her memory at the funeral in Batesville, Miss., attest the high esteem in which she was held. Our dear Brother Ritchey and his children are assured of the sympathy of all North Mississippi Conference and other friends.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Shreveport District Conference convened on the morning of the 14th inst. The entire morning was devoted to religious exercises, the outcome of which was gracious, and brought the brethren very close together.

The meeting of the Conference and Dr. Davis was brotherly and cordial, and a spirit of brotherly love was evident from first to last. The District is moving upward; some very fine meetings were reported and conversions and additions to the church.

We have several young men coming up for admission on trial.

The Conference sends up a good delegation of laymen: Bros. J. H. Porter, A. F. Jackson and J. W. Sharp.

The Conference re-elected its former Secretary, S. S. Bogan.

The preaching was all of a high order and spiritual.

The Conference goes to Mansfield next year.

There will be no complaint of the entertainment for Leesville and Benton did the thing as good as the best. We want to go back some time.

The outlook for the District is bright, hopeful and encouraging.

S. S. BOGAN,
Secretary Conference.

Lake End, La.

How hard it is to see God in the minute and personal affairs of our lives; we think of Him as making a record of the starry host, but cannot realize the Bible truth that He knows the number of hairs on our heads. It seems a grand thing that God fed the hungry thousands of Israel in the desert, but not that He feeds the hungry sparrows. Not only does God dwell in the crystal palace of a dew-drop, but He delights to make His abode in the humble and contrite heart.

NEW MISSIONARIES.

Our nine new missionaries who were consecrated to the Master's service recently at the Board meeting at Upchika, Ala., were assigned to the fields as follows: To China: Miss Mary Lou White, of Norfolk, Virginia Conference; Miss Nettie Peacock, of Macon, South Georgia Conference; Miss Emma Lester, of Augusta, North Georgia Conference; Miss Sophie Manns, of Mexia, Northwest Texas Conference. To Korea: Miss Lillian Nichols, of Apalachicola, Florida Conference; Miss Mary D. Myers, of Ashburn, South Georgia Conference; Miss Eleanor Dye, of Evansville, North Mississippi Conference. To Brazil: Miss Elizabeth Lamb, of Fayetteville, North Carolina Conference, and Miss Estelle Hood, of Commerce, North Georgia Conference. These nine young women, fresh from the Scarritt Bible and Training School, will sail to their fields of labor this summer. May Heaven speed them!

UNOCCUPIED FIELDS.

There remain perhaps twenty territories, some of them vast, and most of them yet untouched by Protestant missionary effort. Abyssinia, where the government will not permit missionaries to reside; Swaziland, where the fierce inhabitants will let none live; the Ivory Coast, Portuguese Guinea, Rio De Oro, the Sahara region, Senegambia, French Guinea, and Afghanistan, Russia, though nominally Christian, tolerates no missionaries from abroad. There are many other fields practically unoccupied, of which Thibet is the foremost. The Sudan is scarcely touched as yet; Tripoli has but one station; Guatemala has but seven; Colombia but four; French Guiana, none; Annam, one; Arabia can be scarcely said to have any. How vast the fields yet untilled, and how few the laborers! In another and later article in the Missionary Review, for June, we notice that Abyssinia has been opened to missionary work. The indefatigable Swedish missionaries have gained entrance to the land so long closed to Christian effort. A converted Galla returned home after receiving his education in Sweden. The Coptic Archbishop introduced him to King Musulek and explained the purpose of his coming. The king received him well and kindly, and it now looks as if the missionaries will be able to gain a foothold again in Abyssinia.

RUSSIA OPEN. [LATER NEWS.]

A recent visit in the United States of Baron Uexknell, a Russian nobleman, a man of piety and true culture, has confirmed the hopes entertained that the promises made by the Russian government of full religious toleration are to be trusted, and that the way is open for the free proclamation of the Gospel throughout the empire. It certainly looks as if Russia would soon stand before the Christian world as one of the great fields for missionary enterprise.

A GREAT MONTH.

The receipts for April are very encouraging and interesting to every friend of the Board. A report of $117,018 for April, a gain over last year of $45,432. The gain is in both legacies and donations. The reception of the bequest of Mrs. Helen G. Coburn, amounting to $49,816, together with two other legacies of $5,000 each, coming in the last few days of the month, changed the situation considerably.

MISSIONARY LITERATURE.

The demand for missionary literature has been unusually large this past year. The Woman's Missionary Advocate has a circulation of 14,500, 1,500 more than last year; and the Little Worker 14,000, a proportionately large increase.

GREAT CHANGES.

About ten years ago a California Chinese received a letter from his father in which were these words: "They tell me that you are a Christian; if so I disown you; you are no longer my son." Not so long ago a young Chinese in Los Angeles wrote to his father in the homeland, telling the story of his conversion, and asking him to paste the letter on the walls of the ancestral hall, where many would see and learn of Christ. To this letter the reply was sent: "I did what you asked me with your beautiful letter. I did not know Christianity was so good. When you write very often. I hope you will tell me more about your beautiful Christ. I liked it. I think you very wise to worship Him. When I know how, I will tear down my idols and worship Him with you."

UNREST.

New China is growing restless under the present order of affairs, and is asking: "Why is it that the extra territoriality clause has been abolished in Japan, but is still in force in China?" Again: "Why is it that when a Chinaman loses his life at the hands of foreigners a pitiful indemnity of two or three hundred dollars is paid, while in the case of a foreigner losing his life at the hands of the Chinese thousands of dollars are demanded?" Again: "Why is it that Russia has flatly refused to pay an indemnity to the subjects of China who suffered so heavily in the late disturbance at Vladivostock, while Russia asked and is receiving a large indemnity to make good losses sustained by her citizens during the Boxer uprising." Again: "Why is it that America does not comply with the demands of China and open wide her doors to all classes?" The chief movers in these anti-foreign agitations are the young men who have been studying abroad in Japan, America, England and other countries. More men of experience are now needed to help guide the nation during these times of such vital importance. The students are the most influential class in China.

For the past two years great numbers of Chinese students have gone to Japan, until they have now reached the number of 8,620. These students are from all parts of the empire, and belong to the official and educated classes. The question we may well ask, What is to be the nature of the influence which these students are to exert upon China and every missionary interest in China when they return? The Chinese students, having but little knowledge of the Japanese or English language, are practically shut off from the good influences which might come to them. Then, too, they are living in Tokio amidst dangerous conditions, tending toward extreme radicalism and immorality. It is of great importance to bring the claims of Jesus before these men.

The General Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of China, Korea, and Hong Kong, on which are representative missionaries from all parts of China, has determined upon a great effort of bringing these men to Christ. The work lends itself especially to interdenominational effort.

CONFERENCE TREASURER'S REPORT.

The receipts in the W. F. M. Society, for the quarter just closed, are: Dues, $219.35; missionary salaries, $120.70; scholarships, $58.70; Contingent Fund, $23.75; Expense Fund, $14.50; Haygood Memorial, $10. Total, $453.00.

MOHAMMEDAN MISSIONARIES.

More than 400 Mohammedan missionaries have been sent out from the Mohammedan cloisters in North Africa during the past year. They are exceedingly zealous and fanatical. They occupy all territory where Christian missionaries are not yet at work, and they do great harm to the weak Christians in the missionary field. Mohammedanism favors polygamy, and the negroes want many wives because the men are lazy, and use their numerous wives to till the soil for them.

CAN JAPAN BE WON FOR CHRIST?

At the first general election in Japan under the new Constitution for the empire in 1890 fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives, and a Christian was subsequently appointed speaker. Christians have thirteen members, besides the speaker, in the present Diet, and among these some of the most efficient men. Three out of every hundred of the officers of the army and a goodly proportion of naval officers are known to be Christians, as also among both students and instructors. Three of the great daily newspapers in Tokio are largely in Christian hands, and the most successful charitable institutions of the country. The above are authenticated facts.—Missionary Review of the World.

THE HAPPIEST LITTLE BOY.

"Guess who was the happiest child I saw to-day," said the father, taking his two little boys on his knees.

"Oh, who, father?"

"But you must guess."

"Well," said Jim, slowly, "it was a very rich little boy, with lots and lots of sweets and cakes."

"No," said father. "He wasn't rich; he had no sweets and no cakes. What do you guess, Joe?"

"He was a pretty big boy," said Joe, "and he was riding a big, high bicycle."

"No," said father. "He wasn't big; and of course he wasn't riding a bicycle. You have lost your guesses, so I'll have to tell you. There was a flock of sheep crossing the city to-day; and they must have come a long way, so dusty and tired and thirsty were they. The drover took them up, bleating and lolling out their tongues, to the great pump in Hamilton Court, to water them. But one poor old ewe was too tired to get to the trough, and fell down on the hot, dusty stones. Then I saw my little man, ragged and dirty and tousled, spring out from the crowd of urchins who were watching the drove, fill his hat and carry it—one, two, three—oh, as many as six times! to the poor, suffering animal, until the creature was able to get up and go on with the rest."

"Did the sheep say, 'Thank you,' father?" asked Jim, gravely.

"I didn't hear it," answered father. "But the little boy's face was shining like the sun, and I'm sure he knows what a blessed thing it is to help what needs helping."—Selected.

BISHOP MORRISON HONORED.

The Methodist Preachers' Meeting adopted resolutions Monday morning which give very high commendation to Bishop H. C. Morrison, D.D., and his work in this city. The resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by a rising vote, are as follows:

Whereas we learn with deep regret that Bishop H. C. Morrison, D.D., is about to leave New Orleans; and whereas he has been so abundant in labors for our Methodism in the city and State during the three years of his residence in our midst; and whereas we feel sure that time will prove the soundness of his judgment in the forward movement which he has instituted in New Orleans Methodism; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting, do hereby voice our feeling of personal loss in the departure of Bishop Morrison.

Resolved, That our city loses a noble, public-spirited citizen, and our Church a Gospel preacher of great power.

Resolved, That we assure Bishop Morrison of our high esteem and warm affection, and pray God's richest blessing upon him and his family.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to Bishop Morrison, and that they be spread upon the minutes of this Preachers' meeting.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Seashore District Conference met in the 25th Avenue Church at Gulfport, Miss., June 6, 1906. Rev. M. M. Black preached the opening sermon. The attendance was good, almost every charge being represented. A few of the preachers were kept away by sickness.

The first day of the Conference was given to the study of missions. Interesting papers were read and discussed.

Rev. W. R. Lambuth, Missionary Secretary, was present and gave inspiring addresses.

In adopting the report of the Committee on Missions, the Conference obligated itself to raise eight hundred dollars needed for the support of eight young preachers, at Granberry College, in Brazil.

The Conference granted license to preach to the following brethren: John O. Winburne, Eson L. Whidden, Arthur A. Phillips, W. C. Biberon, and Claudius Hudson.

The following were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial: C. T. Noble and Enos L. Whidden.

Election of delegates to the Annual Conference resulted in the choice of A. L. Weston, J. A. McLeod, W. P. Meador and W. L. Ellis, with the following alternates: J. A. Vanderwall, T. M. Evans, S. A. Tomlinson and W. T. Botton.

Milton R. Jones and Charles O. Miller were recommended to the Annual Conference for Deacon's Orders.

The application of Rev. H. B. Vandenburg from the Congregational Methodist Church for reception into the local ranks, and recommendation to the Annual Conference for recognition of orders, was received and unanimously granted.

Trustees for the Seashore Camp Ground were elected as follows: W. S. F. Tatum, J. A. McLeod, S. A. Tomlinson, W. E. Ellis and L. N. Dantzler, Jr.

The local preachers of the district were passed in examination of character and their licenses renewed.

W. E. Ellis and A. S. Weston were elected Additional Trustees of the Biloxi Camp Ground.

The following were elected Licensing Committee: G. H. Galloway, E. D. Phillips, W. B. Jones, O. G. Halliburton, R. Selby, H. W. Vanhook.

Gulfport entertained the Conference royally and all are agreed that there was greater harmony and spirituality than had been manifested at a District Conference in some time.

The preaching by the several preachers was of a high order and greatly enjoyed.

Revs. G. H. Galloway and W. B. Jones did faithful work for the visiting brethren.

The next Conference will meet at Biloxi.

G. P. MCKEOWN, Sec.

NATCHEZ DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Natchez District Conference (June 13-15) was the guest of Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, and was a most harmonious and delightful occasion. The presiding elder, Dr. E. F. Jones, was in the chair, and presided with great dignity, justice and brotherly love. The social phase of the gathering was thoroughly refreshing, for the Natchez Methodists have mastered the delicate art of hospitality, and Brother Crisler exhibited great tact in placing the individual guests. This splendid fellow will always be, in himself, a powerful argument in the location of any Conference that may be invited to his charge.

However, inspiring as were the social and business features of the Conference, the predominant emphasis was attached to spiritual matters, and it was, indeed, encouraging to note that the question of conversions, family altars, prayer-meetings and Sunday schools took precedence over material items. The further fact that more than a third of the time was devoted to earnest discussion of Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues is a sure sign of progress for the Church.

The report from the Committee on Temperance, on Missions and on the State of the Church manifested a spirit of wholesome discontent, which is encouraging and prophetic.

The Conference enjoyed the presence of N. A. Mott, of the Sunday School Board; M. M. Black, of the Board of Missions; H. T. Carley, of the Epworth League Board; Q. A. Oats, of the Orphans' Home; Miss Elizabeth Galloway, of Port Gibson Female College; Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, and Mrs. E. M. Baker, of the Woman's Home Mission Society. Each of these appeared before the Conference and was given a careful hearing.

Edward McGehee College was represented before the Conference by C. A. Powell and the writer. The three educational institutions thus represented were indorsed most satisfactorily in the report of the Committee on Education.

R. C. Forman, of Liberty, was granted license to preach, and John T. Griffen, of the same charge, was recommended for admission on trial.

The only debate of the entire session occurred in connection with the instructions given to the District Trustees with reference to the disposal of some of the property of the District. After a thorough discussion, the Conference authorized the said Trustees to sell the Sam Jones Camp Ground property, when, in their judgment, a satisfactory price can be secured, and, in case of sale, to use the funds in making improvements on the District parsonage.

The delegates elected to the Annual Conference are: E. N. Hachs, R. Whitaker, H. B. McGehee and R. P. Linfield. Alternates: Dr. J. C. Ballard and J. D. Ireland.

The claims of the church press came in for special consideration in the reports from the charges and in the report from the Committee of Publishing Interests.

Hamburg was selected as the home of the next District Conference.

The preaching of the Conference was done by C. N. Grice, M. M. Black, H. T. Carley, W. H. Saunders, C. A. Powell and R. W. Thurman, each of whom sounded a distinct and forcible call to the Church.

One of the most helpful features of the session was the Sunday-school and Epworth League discussion, and the presiding elder is to be commended for his wisdom in giving due emphasis to these phases of the work and in securing the presence of N. A. Mott and H. T. Carley in this connection.

This Conference revealed the fact that the Natchez District is awake, thoroughly alive to the interests of the Church, and full of consecrated energy and enthusiasm in every phase of activity looking to the perpetuity of the Church and the accomplishment of her great mission.

THE MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Meridian District Conference convened at Leakesville, June 14-17, in the beautiful new church just completed by the pastor, Rev. D. Scarborough. The presiding elder, Rev. W. M. Sullivan, was in the chair. Rev. J. D. Ellis was elected secretary. All the preachers in the district were present except four, who were detained by sickness. Quite a number of laymen were present.

The work of auditing the reports was assigned to the several committees, and the business of the Conference was dispatched with ease and system.

The opening sermon was preached by Rev. F. M. Williams.

Chunky was chosen as the place for holding the next session of the Conference.

Rev. E. C. Stearns was received in Local Elder's Orders from the Methodist Protestant Church. Revs. R. V. Breland, E. P. Breland and J. D. Crymes, local elders, submitted reports of their labors and were passed in examination of character.

The following local preachers were passed in examination of character and their licenses were renewed: E. A. Moody, George F. Fykes, A. C. Flowers, W. T. Hamby, W. E. Dickens, L. B. Moore, Robert Zachary, W. W. Hill, J. N. Broadway, R. B. Chisolm, V. Trotter, J. T. Griffith, Dr. E. B. Partin, and Richard Blanks.

The Conference voted not to pass the character and refused to renew the license of J. E. Sanders, a local preacher.

After careful inquiry, the Conference unanimously refused to pass the character and renew the license of H. N. Walters, local elder, living near Enterprise. The presiding elder appointed a committee to wait on him and demand the surrender of his credentials, or to stand a Church trial.

The following young men, having stood an approved examination before the committee, were granted licenses to preach: H. T. Marshall, C. P. Hamby, E. C. Gigin, and C. E. Moore.

Rev. Q. A. Oats, manager of the Orphan Home, and Rev. George W. Hyde, professor in Millsaps College, addressed the Conference in their respective interests.

The following delegates were elected to the Annual Conference: W. G. Hawkins, J. C. Pait, J. C. Gay, E. W. Breland. Alternates: S. B. Watts, and C. W. Cochran.

H. T. Marshall was recommended unanimously for admission on trial into the Annual Conference.

A resolution was adopted requesting the respective Boards to confer at the next Annual Conference on the advisability of holding the same time and place the Epworth League Conference, the Sunday-school Conference, and the Mid-Year Missionary Meeting.

The report of the Board of Trustees of the District Parsonage showed that they were ready to begin at once the erection of a parsonage in Meridian, to cost about $3,000.

The following Licensing Committee was announced: J. E. Carpenter, L. E. Alford, W. D. Hawkins, and J. C. Pait.

The preaching was done by Revs. F. M. Williams, L. E. Alford, W. A. Hayes, J. E. Carpenter, H. L. Norton, J. D. Ellis and W. M. Sullivan.

The usual resolution thanking the people of Leakesville for their hospitality, and Rev. D. Scarborough as the host, were adopted.

The reports of the preachers, which were incomplete owing to the absence of several, showed the district to be in good condition. Most of the protracted meetings are yet to be held.

By resolution of the Conference, the undersigned was requested to furnish an account of the proceedings to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

C. E. Earley.

Meridian, Miss., June 23, 1906.

FROM VICKSBURG DISTRICT.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We shall expect you to attend the District Conference, first week of July. I have had your row to hoe three years now, and it really needs a great, fresh cultivator. The appointments will be fair, from indications, and we wish to do all we are able in the interest of the town of Hermanville. Come over and get acquainted. You will like the people and they will be happier from personally knowing their editor.

The Presbyterian revival services, of two weeks' duration, under the preaching of the Syndical evangelist, served to rouse interest favorable to the churches participating, the Methodist and Presbyterian. In the action of the membership a large number of whom went into the meeting with intelligent, prayerful interest, our pastor doing excellent and untiring work among his flock, results were obtained which will be enduring.

Bishop Ward has begun to endear himself already to us; his prompt acceptance of the opportunity to preside at our conference at Hermanville indicating the purpose to familiarize himself with the field. The preachers and people of Vicksburg District are going to give him a very cordial reception. The Episcopal Bishop of the same diocese has been spending much of his time and talent upon the churches in the delta; and his work is counting. We have not for some years had one of our Bishops in the territory, and hope to do better in this regard. It is not difficult to see the prospect for future development in the delta. Railways are creating it, new ones opening fresh avenues through the wonderful and beautiful alluvial lands. Directly the Sunflower river will be as open and well known as Deer creek, along which for many miles the Y. & M. V. passes at Holly Bluff.

For example, there is now train service. Fifteen years ago there have been opening and clearing for years large plantations about that point.

Here is F. W. Scarbrough, son of a preacher of our Conference, who for years has been pioneering in that country, preserving as his most valuable property the religious spirit obtained at the old parsonage home. It takes all the materials to build a parsonage home. It takes all the materials of character to grow in grace in an atmosphere of conflicts, as this beginning in the cane breaks, conflicts with the bear and other wild things, and thorns, but originally, causing the wilderness to blossom as the rose. I believe Brother Scarbrough has done this.

Other railways are at work grading, and it will not be long before there can be a readjustment of district territory, because of convenient getting about.

The pastors are moving on through the year with characteristic singleness of purpose and sincerity of effort. I would enjoy specializing them here, but will not undertake it this morning for lack of time. I leave in a few minutes for Cary, on Rolling Fork Charge.

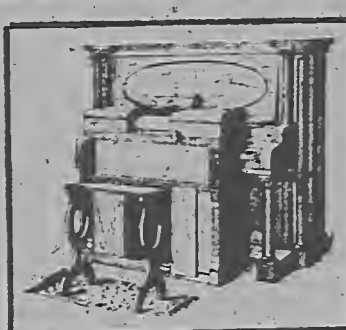
I hear good words for the ADVOCATE at all points. You will increase circulation in this section, I am sure.

We will be very glad to have you with us at Hermanville—I say this to wind up this note, which fittingly began this way. Pray for us in our work.

I am, as ever, sincerely yours.

W. H. HUXTLEY.

LAKE CIRCUIT.



Last Sunday we had Children's Day services at Cary's Church. There were present a houseful of people and about a houseful outside that could not get in. The exercises were interesting and inspiring. This was the last of four such on the Circuit. The collections aggregate $25.45.

Brother Q. A. Oats was with us at Lake on the second Sabbath in this month and we handed him in cash, $21.07, and hope to do more than this for the orphans later on. Brother Oats' preaching was so helpful to our people, and, then personally, he is so companionable.

The Epworth League has about sixty enrolled members and is at work. I think I have never had charge of so many young people. The social features of Lake are fine. We hope to have a protracted meeting at each church, and then the usual camp meeting in the last of August.

BROTHER BLANK'S PREDICAMENT.

BY AN INTERESTED METHODIST.

Brother Blank was a delegate to the recent General Conference at Birmingham, Ala., and voted for a new statement of Methodist faith and doctrines. A few days after his return home he was upon the streets mingling with his members and the people generally.

He had to do a whole lot of explaining to his flock concerning the action of the General Conference. After he had explained and explained, many expressed sorrow over what the Conference did, preferring the "old, old," statement of our fathers to any modern "get-up." Many said, "There are some things that do not change, and the statement of them is made in terms so simple that they cannot be misunderstood. And they are so broad at the same time and adequate, that it will be very difficult for any man to add anything to them."

He met one or two members only who were pleased with the idea of something "new and up-to-date"—pleased possibly because the words sounded well.

A large number whom he met of other denominations congratulated him that the General Conference had voted to "revise" its creed. He endeavored to explain that no such thing was contemplated, but he failed to convince some that Methodists had not voted to correct their "errors" in doctrines.

He met one or two skeptics who taunted him with the statement, "Your church has been preaching certain things, but your General Conference has revoked and annulled everything you have taught from the beginning." He endeavored to explain again, but his skeptical friends only smiled out loud.

Further down the street he heard some worldly-minded people say, "When the church gets through revising its creed, and gives us something really worth while believing, then——" But the laughter drowned the rest of the words.

He met one Campbellite, who said: "All creeds are of the devil. When the churches discard them altogether and believe the Bible only, they will get right. I hope you will study this matter, and decide to join the Christian Church."

By this time Brother Blank was having "curious feelings." He half-wished that he had not come upon the streets at all. He walked into a store, and engaged an intelligent young friend in religious conversation. He urged him to surrender to the Lord, and join the church at once. The young man said, "Brother Blank, I had made up my mind to join the Methodist Church because I believe in her doctrines, but the action of your General Conference will make me procrastinate at least four years longer. If I were to join now I would have to subscribe 'to that which is worn out and ready to pass away,' or I would have to subscribe 'to that which is to come.' It seems that the old is about gone, and I am not willing to accept the prospective action of the yet-to-be-appointed committees by faith. They might give us a lot of higher 'criticism,' and barbed-wire pabulum difficult to digest. Brother Blank said that time was pressing just then, but would see him and talk to him later. He passed out hurriedly, and struck a bee-line for the parsonage. He met an old sinner whom he had frequently warned. "Brother Blank," said he, "hold on a minute. I have decided to join the Methodist Church the first opportunity."

"I am delighted to hear you say so. Your words are refreshing. When did you decide to take this important step?"

"Since the meeting of the General Conference at Birmingham, and I would like for you to receive me next Sunday."

"Come with me to my study where we can talk without being interrupted."

"I will be glad to go."

In a few minutes they reached the preacher's study. Brother Blank was about to ask him questions concerning his spiritual condition, the genuineness of his faith, etc., when the sinner said:

"You must receive me into the church without my exactly believing in the twenty-five Articles of Religion."

"You amaze me."

"I sorter believe in them, yet I do not believe in them. They did very well for half-educated folk, with crude and undeveloped ideas, back in Wesley's day, but they are not adequate to this advanced time of intelligence. The truth is, they are backwoodsy! This is an advanced age, and I believe in something new and up-to-date. The Twenty-five Articles are worn out, and should be placed upon the dusty shelf of superannuation. I don't think the good Lord himself believes in them any longer, for they have served their purpose by the will of God, and He needs something more in accord with modern fads and fancies. Moreover, I think they have a poor busis. I——"

"Enough, enough! I'll receive you into the church, believing as you do, but you must not 'inveigh against our doctrines' in such a fashion after you get on the inside. There is a law against it."

Brother Blank turned to the Discipline and read aloud the law.

When the candidate for church membership left, Brother Blank said to himself: "Well, I'm reaping what I helped to sow! I'm sorry I voted for the resolution!! I wish I had never seen a General Conference!!!"

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as others see us!
It wad from monie a blunder free us
An foolish notion."

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTES.

A new $50,000 church is going up in El Paso, Tex. Rev. George M. Gibson is the pastor. This will put our cause in the forefront in that young and growing city of the Southwest.

The members of the Mt. Vernon Church, Washington, D. C., have already taken hold of their end of the proposition for the new representative building, which was so strongly urged by the General Conference.

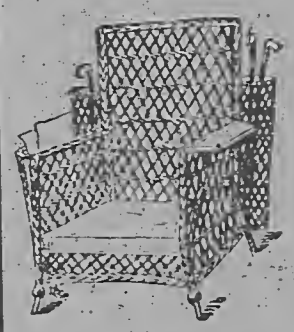
The ladies of the St. John's Church entertained the St. Louis Church Extension Society at luncheon at the May meeting. This Society has been doing good work for several years. It has on hand at this time the building of a $30,000.00 church for the Shaw Avenue congregation. Only $2,500.00 remains to be raised. Next in order is a $50,000.00 church building for the newly organized congregation on South Grand Avenue.



The records of the Board of Church Extension show that the Alabama Conference paid last year on the assessment for Church Extension 113 per cent. This places this historic Conference at the head of the list. The Denver Conference follows closely with 110 per cent paid on assessment. Montana paid an even 100 per cent. Ten Conferences paid between 90 and 98 per cent; ten Conferences paid between 73 and 79 per cent; five Conferences between 60 and 69 per cent, and others less. A large increase is needed and expected. Our Lord hath need of His own.

The General Conference, in response to a memorial from the Cherokee District of the Indian Mission Conference, authorized the organization of Districts Boards of Church Extension. Such an organization is needed in many places. The size, arrangement, cost and location of church buildings are all-important. Too many mistakes have already been made. In this day of easy and quick transportation and communication, there is no excuse for not having the best in the way of counsel, conference and co-operation. District Boards could relieve the General Board of many of the smaller calls upon it. An intelligent District Board would find many a neglected spot and establish there a permanent recruiting station for the kingdom. Organize! The central office eagerly awaits the tidings.

The tendency of opinion in many quarters is toward pessimism. If we turn to philosophy we find the revival of the old doctrine that life is not worth living, that man is a failure, and that all things are going from bad to worse. Over against these dismal notes we hear the jubilant shouts of the embattled hosts who have marshaled under the banner of the cross to conquer and redeem a resisting world.

HOURS AND MINUTES.

"Hurry, hurry!" sing the Minutes
To the Hours, slow;
"Everywhere that we are going
You will have to go."

"Tarry, tarry!" drone the Hours,
"Useless is this haste:
We but gather up the treasures
You so idly waste."

But the busy little Minutes
Hurry right along;
Never stopping, ever singing
Still the same glad song.

When, at last, the lagging Hours
Find their journey o'er,
Each sees sixty little Minutes
Tripping on before.

This the song that both are singing
As they glide away:
"Though we tarry, though we hurry,
Still we make a day."

THE BIRTHDAY OFFERING.

The little red chairs in the kindergarten room of the stone church were all filled one Sabbath in June with dear, wee children—little boys and girls from four years old to seven. The faces that were lifted to the teacher seemed like lovely flowers—rosebuds and pansies and tiny bluebells and daisies and buttercups. You thought of them all as you stood by the teacher's side and your eyes went over the room.

The visitors' chairs were all full, too. They stood along the wall by the sides of the room, and the mothers, and sometimes the fathers, and friends sat in them and looked and listened with great interest.

On this June Sabbath a lovely old lady was one of the visitors. She was very old. Her face had little lines going over it as fine as lace threads; soft little curls as white as snow fell on each side of her face; but her cheeks were pink like a wild rose.

Some of the children had had birthdays during the week, and they brought their "offerings" and dropped them in the basket, counting the pennies, one for each year.

The dear old lady watched all this, leaning forward in her chair. When the service was over she said to the teacher: "I'm very old. My birthday comes this week—I shall be eighty years old. May I come next Sunday and bring my offering like one of your little ones? I'm so old that I am only a little child."

"Indeed you may," said the teacher. "It is a beautiful thing for you to think of doing, and my little people will all be glad to have you with us."

Then she went out with her eyes shining, and the teacher told all the children to bring roses when they came to Sunday-school on the next Sunday.

Never was a lovelier June Sabbath than dawned the next week; and again all the little red chairs were filled with happy children. The dear old lady was there, too, and sat near the teacher facing the children, in an easy-chair that had been brought in for her. She took off her bonnet and rested her head against the cushioned high back of the chair, and her face was as sweet as a little child's.

By and by the time came for the offerings. The teacher asked who had had a birthday since last Sunday, and a little boy and two little girls came up with their pennies. Ethel was five, and Lucile was six, while little Leslie was only four.

Then the dear old lady said: "I have had a birthday this week, children, and I have brought my pennies. I am very old—so old I have forgotten almost everything, only that Jesus came down from heaven, and that He loved little children, and did kind things for everybody till He went back to His Father. God—you know He is our Father, too. In a little while I shall go there to live in our Father's house, but I shall never forget this Sunday that I brought my offering."

Then she opened a little velvet bag, and the pennies were counted by the children as she dropped them one by one in the basket. It took a long time to count eighty. When it was done the teacher touched a silver bell, and in an instant the children were crowding about the dear old lady's chair and showering her with roses. They fell on her snow-white hair and filled her lap, and lay thick on the floor about her, and she sat with tears dropping down her cheeks and her face covered with smiles.

Then the roses were gathered up, and lo! when they were counted there was just eighty—one for each year of her beautiful life.—Mary A. Wood, in Zion's Herald.

HELPING POLLY.

As the door closed behind Polly, Tom looked across at his mother. "How long has this been going on?" he asked. "She used to be the jolliest little youngster in the world."

Polly's mother shook her head at him, although her eyes were troubled. "Don't be severe on her, Tom. Polly's growing up, and sometimes a girl takes growing up rather hard. Just now her sense of proportion is little out of focus, and small troubles loom large, but she'll find herself presently, and it will all come right."

"I should hope so," Tom replied, fervently. Upon second thought he decided to say nothing to his mother of the plan he had half resolved upon, but wait his opportunity with Polly. It came in a few days, when Polly came from school tearful and indignant over her French mark. "It isn't fair!" she declared. "Margaret Judson didn't do a bit better work than I, yet Margaret had ninety-six and I only ninety-three. I do think I have the hardest times!" she wailed.

"Yes," Tom agreed: "I think you do."

Polly looked at him in surprise. Tom's attitude since he came home had not been sympathetic—that was one of her grievances.

Tom pulled a note-book from his pocket and began to read: "Monday was a horrid, dull day, and your hair wouldn't stay in curl, and everything went wrong—as things do on rainy days. Tuesday you went down town and couldn't find any silk like Lena Andrews', and had to get a homely old thing that you never would like. Wednesday you discovered that nobody ever did understand you, anyway. Thursday evening at Miss Jacobs'. Miss Jacobs acted 'queer,' and you wished you hadn't gone. Friday, Bridget let the cream custard curdle when she knew it was your favorite dessert. Saturday"—

"But Polly interrupted: "O, Tom, don't! I didn't know I"—And then, a deluge impending, she rushed tumultuously from the room.

"O, Tom!" the mother remonstrated, her own eyes full of tears.

"Don't you worry," Tom answered: "I know Polly. She's grit, and she'll come through all right. I am just helping her grow up."—Youth's Companion.

FOR MOTHER.

He was only a mite of a boy, dirty and ragged, and he had stopped for a little while in one of the city's free playgrounds to watch a game of ball between boys of his own and a rival neighborhood. Tatters and grime were painfully in evidence on every side, but this little fellow attracted the attention of a group of visitors, and one of them, reaching over the child's shoulder as he sat on the ground, gave him a lustrous golden pear. The boy's eyes sparkled, but the eyes were his only thanks as he looked back to see from whence the gift had come, and then turned his face away again, too shy or too much astonished to speak. But from that time on his attention was divided between the game and his new treasure. He patted the pear, he looked at it, and at last, as if to assure himself that it was as delicious as it appeared, he lifted it to his lips and cautiously bit a tiny piece near the stem. Then, with a long sigh of satisfaction and assurance, he tucked the prize safely inside his dirty little blouse.

"Why don't you eat it, Tony?" demanded a watchful acquaintance.

"Eat it? All mesel'? Ain't I savin' it for me mother?"

The tone, with its mingling of resentment and loyalty, made farther speech unnecessary. Whatever else Tony lacked—and it seemed to be nearly everything—he had learned humanity's loftiest lesson: he held another dearer than self, and knew the joy of sacrifice.—Baptist Young People.

PRAYER FOR THE CHURCH.

BY BISHOP O. P. FITZGERALD.

O Lord, reveal Thy presence and manifest Thy power in Thy Church! Bless the Church in its institutions and its officers, in its ministry and its membership, in its parents and its children. In its troubles, O Lord, bless the Church with help and deliverance. In prosperity, give Thy people grateful hearts and holy zeal in Thy service. Through the agency of Thy Church, hasten in all the earth the coming of Thy Kingdom; for Thine is the Kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

Nashville, Tenn.

The whole of orthodoxy does not consist in loving service for our fellow-man, but it is the duty of Christians to "do good to all men, specially to them who are of the household of faith."

Mr. Wesley said, "cleanliness is next to Godliness." Dr. Winton has gone a step farther than Mr. Wesley. He says, "cleanliness, decency, and regard for sanitary regulations . . . have become a part of godliness in our time."

"The religion of Confucius makes Confucians; the religion of Mohammed makes Mohammedans; the religion of Jesus Christ makes men." We have been laboring all our life under the impression that the religion of Jesus makes Christians.

A plain old father, who had plenty of money, and knew its worth, once said, "If a boy is intelligent and industrious, a thousand dollars is enough to start him in business. If he is not, it is far too much for him to waste." He was a wise old man. He did not live in the get-rich-quick age, but what he said is as true to-day as ever.

Dr. Levi Gilbert, of the Western Christian Advocate, of Cincinnati, is in ecstacies over the action of the Church, South, in its purpose to be up-to-date in creed-reform, and believes that his Church will gladly join the movement. The editor of the Western, Dr. Thompson, does not say what he thinks his Church will undertake to do, but he does say that the Church cannot do it.

PERSONAL WORK FOR SOULS.

Our Lord has provided salvation for all men, but it is available only when men, in their individual capacity, open their hearts and receive it. The Gospel is offered to the multitudes, and under the influence of the preached Word multitudes may be moved to accept it, but each man accepts it on his own faith and confession. The faith of the multitude cannot save even one unbelieving sinner. And what is true of the Gospel in this life is true of the life to come, for the Gospel makes no provision for the unsaved beyond the grave. Death ends human probation.

It is because of individual responsibility and the necessity of personal faith in Christ that special efforts should be made to save the individual. Our Lord did not confine his preaching to the crowds. Some of his most effective work was to single hearers. He had an interview with Nicodemus at night. It was in that interview that he propounded the world-wide necessity for personal regeneration. He talked to a poor woman at the well of Samaria, inspired faith in her, and through her was instrumental in converting the whole city of Sychar. It was a personal appeal to Peter and Andrew, and to James and John, that drew them from their fishing nets and made them the first preachers of the Gospel. It was a personal word that attached the guileless Nathaniel to the Nazarene. It was a personal word that saved a sinful woman, and bade her "go and sin no more." Instances could be multiplied.

The instances above cited lead us to infer that the work of salvation is to be settled between man and God. We have no information concerning an intermediary in the shape of an attorney, or sacrificing priest. Whatever was necessary in that line was instituted and completed in Christ, who offered himself once for all, and became our advocate with God forever, so that men are saved to-day, "not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God."

"Born of God"—not independently of human agency. That is the essence of Calvinism, and a great error, unless being "born of God" signifies nothing more than quickening by the Holy Spirit, which we do not admit. "As many as received Him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God," not the power of self-regeneration, for that is expressly denied in the words, "which were born, not of the will of the flesh." The power to become the sons of God is given "to them that believe on his name."

In a peculiar sense, God's work is wholly independent. It is his province to quicken, to so arouse and enlighten as to make man sensible of his condition and need. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing." This quickening our Lord promised, of which promise we have a reminder in the case of every sinner who is reproved of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. No sinner seeks such quickening. It comes without his assistance or co-operation, and often, if not always, without his consent. It is, therefore, necessary to human salvation that the incipient work of grace be performed whether the sinner consents to it or not.

But the work of grace often proceeds no further than the incipient stage. It never could go further without human co-operation. Hence the necessity of complying with the terms of salvation—"repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." Without "godly sorrow that worketh repentance," and faith that trusts in Jesus, apprehending Him as a personal and all-sufficient Savior, no man can be saved. These terms apply to none except free and intelligent agents; none but such can exercise them. The simple preaching of the Gospel is perhaps sufficient to influence the great majority, but many can be saved only by direct personal appeal. It behooves every preacher, and every one interested in soul-saving, therefore, to be on the alert instant in season, and out of season, and everywhere, to press upon men the claims of their Lord.

Personal work in behalf of souls — pressing upon them the importance of salvation—partakes nothing of the nature of priestcraft, for the worker points to Christ alone as the Savior of men. Such a worker stands simply as Christ's ambassador, and in Christ's stead beseeches men to be reconciled to God.

PUT ON YOUR THINKING CAP.

The following paragraph is from an address on the "Modern Conception of God," by Prof. Foster, of the University of Chicago, presumably of the Theological Department. The address was delivered on June 7, and reported to the public by the Associated Press. Let the reader who is competent to understand the full import of Prof. Foster's words bear in mind that he is a teacher in a great University, attended by many Southern students, a few of whom are young Methodist preachers. Prof. Foster says:

"To the modern man, God is becoming a being. We cannot have an unfinished existence and a finished God. But if we do this God must be a living God; and if God were living, unchanging, always equal, it must be a stupid life, even for a God. The kernel of the matter is not in the kind of God, but the experience through which the idea is reached. Religion in the future will consist more of science and less of speech. Traditions are rapidly perishing. The conception of God is in the process of becoming rather than being. The essence of man is the forward striving toward a flying goal. Ideas are the servants and the signboards of the journey. As life and experience change the ideas change. Therefore we cannot speak definitely of a God idea, though we can confidently of the conception of the world and the man."

The paragraph as a whole, is beyond our comprehension. There is one thing, though, we think is clear: He does not believe in the perfection of the Divine Being, the truth of which is absolutely essential to trust in Him. His idea seems to be that if God were perfect, "unchanging, always equal," he must needs lead a "stupid life." That is not far from blasphemy. As for other ideas set forth in the paragraph, they can do but little harm. The great Dr. Garland once said of the vaporings of a certain erratic preacher: "Let him talk. He will do no harm. Nobody understands him."

Commenting on Prof. Foster's words, Zion's Herald says:

"How marvelously illuminating and comforting is the above! If the reader does not at once fully discover what Professor Foster means, let him read the remarkable paragraph a second or even a third time. If, perchance, a man is in doubt about God and his relation to Him, and wants to know about sin and human accountability and how he shall find rest, peace, and hope. Just think how much Professor Foster can help him! What poor comforters these men with "new views and new truth" are! They but mock heavy-burdened, sin-oppressed, sorrowing souls. A single utterance of Jesus Christ is worth more than all they can say or pen. Hear Him: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "Learn of Me and ye shall find rest to your souls."

PERSONAL.

Rev. L. M. Carley, Mount Carmel, Miss., favors us with a list of thirty subscribers; accompanied with the cash. Brother Carley has our sincere thanks.

Dr. Sawyer has moved Rev. R. H. Harper from the Pollock Circuit to the Lecompte Circuit, and put Rev. George Jackson in charge of the work at Pollock, Alexandria District.

A note attached to a communication from Port Gibson by Rev. W. H. Lewis informs us of the sickness of President H. G. Hawkins. He has had fever several weeks, and on the 21st was still in bed.

A letter just received from Rev. W. R. Harvell, at Hackley, La., gives an account of the death on June 18 of Rev. Robt. Babington, Sr., aged 85 years. A more extended account will be given in our next issue.

The Edward McGehee College, Woodville, Miss., cordially invited us to attend the annual commencement, June 22-26. The sermon by Dr. Murrah and Baccalaureate address by Dr. Wilkinson, and other exercises, made the occasion one to be desired.

We regret very much to note the sickness of our Brother Rousseaux, the faithful steward and Sunday school superintendent at Hammond. He was unable to be at his post on last Sunday—for the first time in years. We trust the illness is only temporary.

We thank the authorities of the Chamberlain-Hunt Academy, at Port Gibson, for an invitation to attend the commencement exercises of their excellent school. The exercises were of a very high order, including the sermon by Rev. Jno. C. Barr, of New Orleans.

General notices, Quarterly Conference rounds, etc., which we thought were in the printers' hands, were overlooked last week, owing to the serious sickness of the editor, which kept him away from the office more than a week. Those interested, we know, will excuse us.

Rev. B. F. Jones, presiding elder of the Natchez District, reports a pleasant and successful session of the Conference at Natchez. There was a good attendance and the work was shown to be in good condition. The pastors are active, and looking diligently after the interests of the Church.

Rev. W. L. Stormont sends us a notice of the death of Mrs. Jane Hinton, who was one of the oldest members of our Church in North Mississippi. She passed away at her home in Mount Pleasant on Sunday, the 18th. She was one of the faithful of earth—a mother, indeed, in Israel. We sympathize deeply with the bereaved family.

Bishop Morrison has announced, through a reporter for the daily press, that he will leave New Orleans, and in the future make his home in Birmingham, Ala. The New Orleans preachers, in their meeting on Monday last, passed resolutions of regret. We join them in expressing sorrow that circumstances are such as to induce the Bishop to make this change.

The article in last week's issue on "Superannuated Preachers and Confederate Veterans," to which is attached the name of I. W. Randell, was written by Rev. J. W. Sandell, a veteran of the Mississippi Conference. Our proofreader is not yet acquainted with all the preachers, and the editor being absent on account of sickness, the mistake was not discovered. We beg Brother Sandell's pardon.

To Rev. D. E. Kelley, of the Pearlhaven and Bogue Chitto Charge, belongs the honor of having sent in at one time the longest list of subscribers we have ever received, accompanied by a check, perhaps the largest ever received at this office on subscriptions. The list embraces the names of sixty-six new subscribers and twelve renewals. We thank Brother Kelley, and pray that he may be blessed with a great revival.

Harmony Chapel, on the Bernice Circuit, Louisiana Conference, has been called to mourn the death of a promising young member, Dr. Oscar Tarpley. He was a man of admirable character and habits, loved by his family, and admired by a large circle of friends. He lingered several months, and quietly passed away just as he had entered man's estate, and was laid to rest in the Harmony Cemetery on Sunday, the 18th. Rev. W. T. Woodward, the pastor, feels personally bereaved.

A note from President W. I. Thames, of Poplarville, Miss., informs us that the disastrous fire which swept away the greater part of the College buildings, will not put a stop to the work of building the South Mississippi College. A stock company, with $50,000 capital, has been organized, and the work will be pushed with energy. The insurance on the property did not cover the loss, and President Thames is the loser. But a man of his energy, and organization and building tact, if given health, will recuperate. We trust the latter house may be greater than the former. And while sympathizing with President Thames, we do not forget our brethren of the Church, who lost, at the same time, their beautiful and commodious house of worship, which, we dare say, like the College, will rise from the ashes.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE.

The session of 1905-06 of this historic institution came to an end Tuesday night, the 12th instant, with the grand concert which has been for many years one of the most delightful features of the Whitworth commencement exercises. From beginning to close the commencement occasion was full of interest. Rev. Richard Wilkinson, D.D., of Monroe, La., preached Sunday morning to an immense concourse a sermon that was appropriate, eloquent and forceful. Instead of the usual Sunday night sermon, a sacred concert was given that delighted the hundreds of lovers of good music who filled the large hall to overflowing.

Miss Ragsdale's ability and skill as Directress of Expression was fully attested by the exceptionally good work of her pupils in the elocution contest Monday morning. All of the contestants acquitted themselves well. Everyone of them deserved a medal. The race was close, but Miss Eva Cook, of Hattiesburg, Miss., was awarded the medal.

The anniversary of the Alumnæ Association was held Monday night. Mrs. Thompson, of Texas, of the class of 1874, delivered an address of unusual merit. Her address made a profound impression, and many rejoiced in the fact that this brainy and cultured woman had gone out from the walls of Whitworth College. Dr. Richard Wilkinson delivered a felicitous address.

Tuesday was "Commencement Day." It was a great day indeed. The weather was fine; the music was superb; the spirit was joyous, and the address was magnificent.

President Cooper delivered diplomas to fifteen bright and beautiful young ladies. Of these, Miss Evelyn Stevens Cook, Miss Mary Elizabeth Cook, Miss Lois Wadsworth Cooper, Miss Ina May Felder, Miss Mary Pierce Folkes, Miss Jessie Ethel Mounger, Miss Eva Margaret Meyers, Miss Mattie Purser and Miss Eva Flora Tillman received the A. B. degree.

Miss Ellen Bradley, Miss Gertrude Imogene Kimbrough, Miss Frances Louise Newsom, Miss Nellie Bowen Osborn, Miss Maurice Red Partei and Miss Texie Ruth McRaney received the Ph. B. degree.

Dr. E. H. Mounger delivered the medals as follows: College Scholarship, to Miss Eva Margaret Meyers; Junior Tennyson, to Miss Leslie Harper; sophomore essay, to Miss Olive Watkins Lipscomb; freshman reading, to Miss Wessie Brumfield; beginner's Greek, to Miss Jessie Ethel Mounger; physics, to Miss Lipscomb; preparatory scholarship, to Miss Carrie Rhyne; elocution, to Miss Eva Cook.

Governor Jas. K. Vardaman was to have delivered the Baccalaureate address, but was unable to be present, because of pressing duties that held him at Oxford. His place was filled by Dr. Richard Wilkinson, whose address was superb. Many say they have never heard anything better in all the history of Whitworth commencements. The address, like everything else in the commencement exercises, was up to the highest standard of excellence.

The Board of Trustees held three sessions on Tuesday, and looked carefully into all matters touching the management of the College, and took some steps looking to a forward movement.

President Cooper's report to the Board showed that the institution is in prosperous condition. There has been an enrollment of 199 during the session: 144 of these were boarding pupils. The yellow fever and the consequent quarantine restrictions greatly interfered with the attendance. Still there was as many boarders as could be comfortably cared for.

The collections have been unusually good, and the financial status of the institution is better than it has ever been in all of its history.

The work of the Faculty has been perfectly satisfactory. It would be a difficult matter to find a better equipped and more conscientious corps of teachers. All may feel perfectly assured that every possible endeavor will be made by the teachers of Whitworth College to advance the moral, religious and intellectual interest of every girl intrusted to their training.

The Board was deeply impressed with the need for better equipment for the College. A very pressing need is for a handsome and commodious center brick building. The prospect is good for a largely-increased enrollment next session. The anxious inquiry is, "What shall we do to provide room for the girls who are sure to come next session?"

The situation here in this particular furnishes to the Methodists of the Mississippi Conference a golden opportunity to invest a few thousand dollars in a way that will bear good fruit in the refinement and culture of the home-life of our country. May the Spirit of God open the eyes of our people to see the full meaning of this opportunity!

Dr. I. W. Cooper is doing a great and noble work. His tireless work, and able management as president, have brought Whitworth College up to rank with the very best institutions of learning in the South. He is full of plans and hopes for the future. T. W. Adams.

PROGRAMME.

Tuesday — A verbal report from each pastor of his work, as directed in the Discipline.

Wednesday A. M.—Spiritual state of the church: "Is there as much hungering and thirsting after righteousness as there was twenty-five years ago? If not, what is the cause?" Missions: (a) "Can the church neglect her mission fields, and claim the blessings of God at home through his Word?" (b) "If ye have not the spirit of Christ ye are none of his—Can we have the spirit of Christ and not believe in the cause of missions?" (c) "How to awaken the church to a full sense of her duty to the cause of missions."

Wednesday Afternoon — Education: "Can the individual life be lifted up to unity, symmetry and beauty without a Christian education? If not, where then should our girls and boys be educated?" Sabbath Observance: (a) "Does a State observe the Sabbath in her laws? If not, what, then, is our duty in regard to the remedy?" (b) "Can we publicly and constantly break this commandment and keep a conscience void of offense toward God and our fellow-man as individuals?" (c) "Who is responsible for our laws—the representatives or the people who send them?"

Thursday A. M. — Sunday Schools: "In what sense is the Sunday school the nursery of the church?" (b) "Who is responsible for the condition of the soil in which the seed are sown?" "Is it possible to make every heart good ground?" (c) What are the best methods for running a Sunday school?" Epworth League: "Should we train our young people to take a public part in church duties? Are they being trained? Was not the Epworth League instituted for this purpose?"

Thursday Afternoon—Temperance: A thank offering to God Almighty for what has been achieved in the State of Mississippi in this direction and a pledge to continue the good work. Election of delegates to the Annual Conference; renewing of license of local preachers; selection of place for next District Conference.

A full attendance of all the delegates would be taken as a personal favor to your humble servant,

RESOLUTIONS OF REGARD.

Whereas, Mrs. R. L. Bennett and Miss Sallie McKie have been useful and active members in all our church societies, Foreign and Home Mission and the Wesleyan, and have left our city to make their home in Hattiesburg; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we part from them with deep regret, and shall sadly miss their earnest, faithful efforts to extend the kingdom of our Lord in our midst.

Resolved, That while we shall miss them, we heartily commend them to the good people of Hattiesburg, as worthy followers of our Lord and Savior.

Resolved, That our sympathy and prayers will follow them in their efforts to do good in their chosen city, and we will remember them in love, and pray the Father that we may all meet again in our Father's home.

REV. J. J. ARNOLD AND WIFE.

A faithful Christian soul passing life's pathway ever onward and upward toward the mountains Delectable, from whose summit the eternal hills of the city of God are ever seen, has always remained inexplainable by skeptical and unappreciated by the world; but its beauty is unsurpassing, its influence unending—it knows no death.

After many years of faithful service, Rev. J. J. Arnold, a local preacher and trustee of our church, has gone to his reward. The earnestness of his exhortations and the fervency of his prayers will not be forgotten by those who sat under his ministry. His was a simple life, for the busy whirl of industry's wheels had scarcely reached his quiet home among the pines. At Bela Churchyard, near Eden, La., he was laid to rest March 9, 1906. He was born Feb. 13, 1846.

Since the appointment of this Committee Brother Arnold's wife has fallen asleep. How happy the meeting! One by one, we gather.

ANNE E. CARROLL was born in Caldwell, Texas, July 11, 1860. She was married to Mr. Green Lane, Feb. 6, 1877, in Pensacola, Fla. There were six children, four now living, two sons and two daughters, all grown except one. Sister Lane was a member of the Methodist Church, her membership remaining at the old home Church, at Benlah, Fla. She and her husband and the baby-boy, Charlie, came here a year or so ago, but as her health was very poor, she was not extensively known, but had friends to visit and administer to her wants. The grown children live in Alabama, but visited her in her last illness. We burried the remains in the cemetery at Lake, Miss., June 12, the next day after her death.

SKEPTICISM.

It is better to believe everything a man says than to believe nothing. The crucial test comes and the true things accepted on faith will greatly aid you in life's battles in time. Believe everything rather than reject everything.

Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the greatest Fever medicine and Life Saver in the whole world. If you believe this and accept it as a truth, you will be the immense gainer thereby, and if you doubt it and wholly reject it you may be the loser to the extent of your very life.

We will send 2 bottles to any reader of this paper on these terms: If the two bottles cure two cases of Fever, send us $1. If they do not do all we claim, send us nothing. We take the risk. THE JOHNSON'S CHILL AND FEVER TONIC CO., SAVANNAH, GA.

Pains Where?

If in head, back, sides, waist, hips or legs, they are probably due to serious womanly disease which will need prompt treatment to prevent grave consequences. Women suffering from such pains, should take a pure, vegetable medicine for female ills. Mrs. Sarah G. Butts, of White Plains, Va., writes: "Live or die, I am sure death is no worse, than the pains I suffered periodically. Since taking Cardui, my pains have gone and I am stronger than I have been in 15 years." It is a gentle tonic for all sick women, with no intoxicating qualities, or other bad effects. 'Twill help you. Try it.

WINE OF CARDUI

LESSON FOR JULY 8.

THE DUTY OF FORGIVENESS.

Golden Text — "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."—Matt. vi. 12.

As far back as memory permits us to retrace the steps of our life we have continually in our minds the picture of early childhood's home. It is night; children's bedtime has come, and three little boys kneel around mother and repeat after her their prayers—the youngest with his "Now I lay me down to sleep;" the older ones have advanced to where they repeat alone "Our Father who art in heaven." Then, in the years that follow, mother teaches by precept and example special prayer for special blessings. So we are brought up in a spirit of prayer, and we do not remember when we did not pray.

It is in after years, when the habit of study and thought has come over us, that we find we have been praying the words that our Savior taught His disciples, we not knowing the meaning of them; and as the shadows of life grow longer in the evening we look back with a desire for light, and find that as often as we have prayed we have measured the chiefest blessing to us by a condition in which we have placed ourselves. In a semi-mechanical way have we always repeated the Lord's prayer. That part which gives us our golden text means, in fact, as follows: "Lord, we have forgiven every injury, real or imaginary, and we have pardoned without waiting to be asked to pardon; now, Lord, we ask Thee to pardon the many sins committed against Thee." Have we prayed this prayer with this meaning?

In all Scripture, where we read of sins being forgiven, there is a reason why God forgives. It is not enough to simply forgive an injury, for Jesus says, "Unless ye forgive from your heart, neither will your Father in heaven forgive you."

A formal pardon alone will not do. It must come from a heart devoid of every ill-feeling; we must root out all animosity of however long standing. Unless we do this, we are wasting time in repeating the prayer that Jesus taught His followers. Neither can we acceptably render worship to God. Listen to this, my brother: "Therefore, if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee, leave there thy gift and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." You may ask, "And what if my brother does not forgive me?" There are multitudes of sins that the Father forgives that the world considers unpardonable. There was a time during the earthly life of the Master, just after He had taught them a truth that took away all self-exaltation, that it is written: "From that time many of His disciples went back and walked no more with Him."

Oh, let us follow on, ever closer in His steps, knowing that in every difficult point in His doctrine He leads us just the same,—like as the child follows, not knowing where he is led. We will hold the Shepherd's hand, and what He does we know not now, but we will know hereafter." We may sometimes wonder how we will feel when we enter heaven and meet one who had left the world before he had pardoned us of an injury. It is not for us to be troubled, for none of us can have ought against the other.

How is it with sins that we cannot make reparation for? We can say by a godly life that we are penitent for every wrong. Peter asks how often shall an offending brother be forgiven. The Master's answer is that there shall be no bounds to our mercy.

At the end of the day, in reviewing all that we have said and done, we find many mistakes and faults for which we ask pardon of the Father; and every day it is the same, repeating itself as regularly as the sun rises and sets, and we wonder at God's patience, and wonder that He bears with us, but

"There's a wideness in God's mercy,
Like the wideness of the sea;
There's a kindness in His justice,
Which is more than liberty."

His compassion is new every morning, says Jeremiah in Lamentations iii. 23. He reveals Himself thus to us, not only that we should know that we are pardoned, but that we should be as long-suffering toward them that sin against us.

Another lesson we must not fail to teach, and learn as we teach, is in this parable of the King forgiving the servant so great a debt, and the ungratefulness of the servant immediately afterwards.

Do we, often enough, thank God that He has forgiven our sins? Are we grateful that the Holy Ghost has shown us so much of the "Things of Christ?" Do we rejoice always that we know that the Master has gone to prepare a place where we may be with Him always?

How impatient I am with the man who takes God's name in vain, when it may be he may have fewer sins to be forgiven than I. I ask myself why do not my brethren take more interest in the services of the sanctuary or in Sunday school work, when it may be, his pile of treasures in heaven is a mountain beside my mole-hill.

At our best, we are unprofitable servants, and we have no righteousness except that which Jesus gives us by faith in him. "If thy brother trespass seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee saying, 'I repent,' thou shalt forgive him." When the disciples heard Jesus say this, all speech went from them but "Lord increase our faith."

So to-day, and always, we will pray "Lord increase our faith." "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before Him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

Faith draws the poison from every grief, takes the sting from every loss, and quenches the fire of every pain; and only faith can do it.—J. G. Holland.

The Master's work may make weary feet, but it leaves the spirit glad.—Elizabeth Charles.

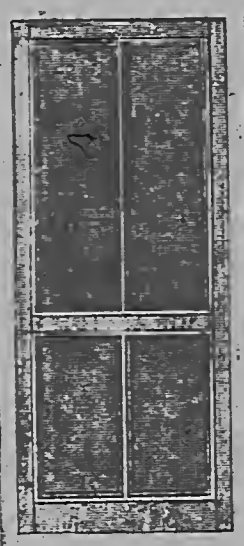
Wise Words to Sufferers

From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.



I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment with full instructions and the history of my own case to any lady suffering from female trouble. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it will only cost you about twelve cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask. It cures all, young or old.

If you feel a bearing-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, creeping feeling up the spine, a desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, womanly fretfulness, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhea, Whites, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address MRS. M. SUMMERS, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A. for the FREE TREATMENT and FULL INFORMATION. Thousands besides myself have cured themselves with it. I send it in plain wrappers.

TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhea, Green Sickness and Pain[ful] Periods. Instruction in young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plain boss and how that ways result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies of your own state or county who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all diseased conditions of our delicate female organism, thoroughly strengthens relaxed muscles and ligaments which cause displacement, and makes women well. Write today as this offer will not be made again. Address

Many of God's people wonder why they are poor, but they should look at things from God's standpoint. Maybe we are poor because God prefers to give us something more valuable than material goods—spiritual goods.—The Methodist Recorder.

PEARLHAVEN AND BOGUE CHITTO CHARGE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I am glad to report; through the Advocate, to its many readers, that the Lord is giving us victory at every point on our circuit. This work, as it is composed this year, has four appointments. I preach at Pearlhaven first and third Sundays at 11 a. m. and at night. At Bogue Chitto I preach second and fourth Sundays, morning and night. Hawkins' Chapel is an afternoon appointment for first and third Sundays. No pastor ever served a more loyal people than our Hawkins' Chapel flock. It is a pleasure to serve them. I shall write more about this church after our revival there, in which I expect to be assisted by Dr. Geo. Thompson, of Brookhaven. I preach at Cold Springs, two miles from Bogue Chitto, second and fourth Sundays in the afternoon. So, you see, I preach three times every Sunday, and I assure you this is a worn prophet at the close of each Lord's day. But oh! Doctor, I love the work, I love the people and I love our grand old Methodism, with its Twenty-five Articles of religion.

The Cold Springs Church was added to my work this year. We began our revival there the fourth Sunday in March and continued through the second Sunday in April. The preaching was done by the pastor, except one real good sermon preached on the last Saturday night by our beloved presiding elder, Brother T. W. Adams. Truly, this meeting was one of old time power. There were many bright conversions and about fifty additions to the church. The membership was more than doubled. As a result of the revival the Sunday-school has more than quadrupled itself. Tom Walker, the foreman of the large sawmill, was converted and joined our church and is making a splendid member. His "partner" was put to flight. All know who Tom Walker's partner is. The converts during this revival are sound and thorough, and it is an abiding pleasure to my heart. I love the Cold Springs people. On last Sunday we organized our Sunday school there into a Mission School and agreed to give every other Sunday's collection to Missions. The collection last Sunday amounted to $6.25. This would put some of our city churches to shame. The truth is, the Lord is leading at Cold Springs. This church was almost turned out to graze this year, but next year it will have a resident pastor and preaching every Sunday.

We have had almost a hundred additions to our four churches this year, and I am happy. My soul rejoices. I read my Bible with a love and interest that I have never had before. My chief aim in life is to live for Him who died for me, and do all for the glory of God.

Well, Doctor, here is the cash for sixty-six new subscribers and twelve renewals.

We shall expect to see you at the McComb City District Conference the 27th inst. Bishop Ward will be with us.

Very Cordially,
D. E. KELLY.

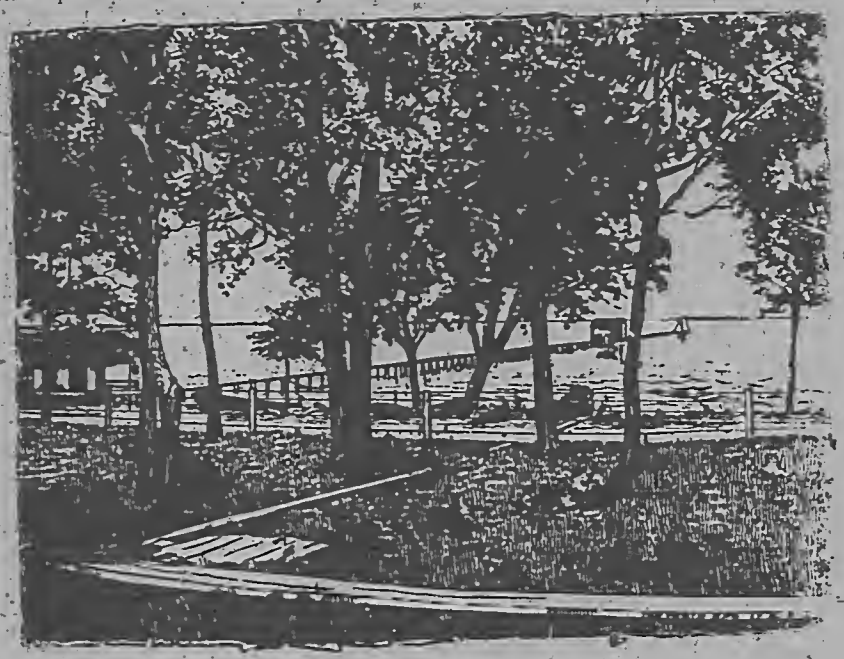
35th Annual Camp Meeting,

SEASHORE CAMP GROUND, JULY 11-19.



The management announce the Thirty-fifth Annual Camp Meeting, Seashore Camp Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 11, and continuing until about July 20. The cottages and grounds have been put in thorough order, and other improvements made, looking to the comfort and convenience of those who attend this meeting.

The religious services are under the direction of the Presiding Elders of the New Orleans, Seashore and Mobile District Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and these brethren will be assisted by the best preaching talent that can be obtained. It is hoped that one or two of the Bishops will be present; in all probability Bishop Candler.

Preaching under the Tabernacle Grove, Grove and Cottage Prayer Meetings, and other religious services, will be held during each day and evening, to which all persons on the grounds are not only cordially invited, but are expected to attend.

Seashore Epworth League Assembly, July 25 to Aug. 5.

The Seashore Annual Epworth League Assembly will be held on the Seashore Camp Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 25, and continuing until Aug. 5. Great good has been accomplished by these meetings from year to year, and it is expected that the meeting of this year will yield larger results than yet attained. All Leaguers, young people and others interested, are earnestly and cordially invited to be present, and share in the glorious results.

RAILROAD RATES.

The Louisville and Nashville, and connections within a radius of about 400 miles, will sell round-trip tickets to Seashore Camp Ground (Biloxi) at greatly reduced rates. For detailed information apply to your railroad agent.

LOCATION.

The Seashore Camp Ground is located on the Mississippi Sound, seventy-nine miles from New Orleans and sixty-two miles from Mobile, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and is one of the most beautiful places on the Gulf Coast. It enjoys a railroad service that is unexcelled for comfort and convenience. A magnificent artesian well furnishes cool and life-giving water from a depth of many hundred feet, and by a perfect system of water works the cottages and hotel are furnished with this water direct from the well. The hotel has a frontage of one hundred and sixty feet on the beach. A multitude of magnificent shade trees temper the noon-day sun, and at night numerous electric lights dispel the darkness and illuminate the roads and pathways that intersect the Grounds. A new pier twelve hundred and forty feet in length, with a Summer house on the end, extends out into the Gulf, and offers positively the most delightful advantages in the South for a promenade. The bathing is unexcelled by any other point on the gulf. All parties residing on the grounds have the privilege of the bath-houses. Good board can be secured at the restaurant, which is in charge of a competent chef, and in private houses at reasonable rates. The comforts and conveniences of all visitors will be carefully looked after.

All Methodist preachers will be admitted into the Grounds, and provided with board and lodging free of charge during Camp Meeting.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before the rush of opening of Camp Meeting should address communications to R. G. Price, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the undersigned officers.

Temperance.

To Our Temperance Constituency:

On Tuesday of this week the House, in Committee of the Whole, adopted our amendment offered by Congressman Bowersock, of Kansas, and championed on the floor by Congressman Tirrell of Massachusetts, Gardner, of Michigan, Littlefield of Maine, Simms, of Tennessee, Bennett of New York, and Keifer of Ohio, by a vote of 109 to 63. We have every reason to believe that if the opponents of the measure decide to call for the yeas and nays in the House proper when the Sundry Civil bill is reported back from the Committee, we shall be able to hold the amendment by a still greater majority. We are, therefore, specially concerned about the retention of the amendment in the bill in the Senate. We shall be glad to have our friends living in states represented on the Appropriations Committee of the Senate to telegraph such Senator at once, urging his influence and vote for the retention of the Bowersock Soldiers' Home amendment by the Committee. The Committee is as follows: W. B. Allison, of Iowa; Eugene Hale, of Maine; Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois; Geo. C. Perkins, of California; F. E. Warren, of Wyoming; Geo. P. Wetmore, of Rhode Island; J. H. Gallinger, of New Hamshire; S. B. Elkins, of West Virginia; H. M. Teller, of Colorado; Jas. H. Berry, of Arkansas; B. R. Tillman, of South Carolina; J. W. Daniel, of West Virginia.

We shall be glad to have our friends throughout the country to write to both of the Senators from their State and urge the acceptance of the amendment by the Senate. There is no time for delay. Unexpectedly within the last several days there is quite a movement for adjournment before the end of June. Please give this matter first consideration, and write courteously, briefly, but earnestly, as above suggested. Do it now! Cordially yours, EDWIN C. DINWIDDIE, Legislative Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

The longer I live the more I am certain that the greatest difference between men, between the feeble and the powerful, is energy — invincible determination, a purpose once fixed, and then, death or victory! That quality will do anything that can be done in this world, and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities will make a two-legged creature a man without it.—Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton.

"WHERE AM I GOING."

One fine summer evening as the sun was going down a man was seen trying to make his way through the lanes and cross the roads that lead to his village home. His unsteady, swaggering way of walking showed he had been drinking, and though he had lived in that village more than thirty years he was now so drunk that it was impossible for him to find his way home.

Quite unable to tell where he was, at last he uttered a dreadful oath, and said to a person going by, "I've lost my way. Where am I going?"

The man addressed was an earnest Christian. He knew the poor drunkard very well and pitied him greatly. When he heard the inquiry, "Where am I going?" in a quiet, sad, solemn way, he answered, "To ruin!"

The poor, staggering man stared at him wildly for a moment, and then murmured with a groan, "That's so."

"Come with me," said the gentleman kindly, "and I will take you home."

The next day came. The effects of the drink had passed away, but those two little words, tenderly and lovingly spoken to him, did not pass away. "To ruin! To ruin!" He kept whispering to himself. "It's true, I'm going to ruin! O God, help me and save me!"

Thus he was stopped on his way to ruin. By earnest prayer to God he sought the grace that made him a true Christian. His feet were well established on the Rock. It was a Rock broad enough to reach that poor, miserable drunkard, and it lifted him up from his wretchedness and made a useful, happy man of him.

Oh, Christian, speak to that young man whom you see going about under the influence of rum, and save him from going to ruin.

TOO BUSY TO BE KIND.

"I sometimes think we women now-a-days are in danger of being too busy to be really useful," said an old lady, thoughtfully. "We hear so much about making every minute count, and always having some work or course of study for spare hours, and having our activities all systematized, that there is no place left for small wayside kindness. We go to see the sick neighbor and relieve the poor neighbor, but for the common, every-day neighbor, who has not fallen by the way, so far as we can see, we haven't a minute to spare. But everybody that needs a cup of cold water isn't calling the fact out of the world, and there are a great many little pauses by the way which are no waste of time. The old-fashioned exchange of garden flowers over the back fence and friendly chats about domestic days, and brought more cheer matters helped to brighten weary than many a sermon. We ought not to be too busy to inquire for the girl away at school, or to be interested in the letter from the boy at sea. It is a comfort to the mother's lonely heart to feel that somebody else cares for that which means so much to her. Especially we ought not to be too busy to give and receive kindness in our home." May no one be able to say of us that we are too busy to be kind!—The Young Woman.

SEIZING OPPORTUNITIES.

A lady writing to a young man in the navy, who was almost a stranger, thought, "Shall I close as anybody would, or shall I say a word for my Master?" and lifting up her heart for a moment she wrote, telling him that his constant change of scene and place was an apt illustration of the words, "Here we have no continuing city," and asked if he could say, "I seek one to come?" Tremblingly she folded it, and sent it off. Back came the answer: "Thank you so much for those words. I am an orphan, and no one has spoken to me like that since my mother died, long years ago." The arrow, shot at venture, hit home, and the young man shortly after rejoiced in the fulness of the gospel of peace. How often do we, as Christians, close a letter to those we know have no hope "as anybody would," when we might say a word for Jesus! Shall we not embrace each opportunity in the future?

Every man's task is his life preserver. The conviction that his work is dear to God, and cannot be spared, defends him.—R. W. Emerson.

Over 20 Years of Success

As specialists in the treatment of Chronic Diseases of Men and Women is our record. We have been successful because we conduct our practice in an honest, straightforward manner. We claim nothing we cannot do. We carry out every promise we make. Each and every patient receives honest, conscientious service, and the best treatment medical science affords for these diseases.

We treat only Chronic Diseases. We invite every afflicted person to consult us, free. We will give them our expert opinion of their case and tell them what we can do for them. We have devoted over 20 years to the study and treatment of these diseases, established a reputation and practice which we believe is second to none in this country, and we unhesitatingly say that if your case is curable at all, we can cure it.

Our recent publication on Nervous Diseases, and "Health" free on application. Also examination blank "A" for men and "B" for women. Personal examination always advised. WE DO NOT DEAL IN PATENT MEDICINES but prepare in our own private laboratory all medicines to suit each individual case, after careful, expert diagnosis. DR. THE FEET OF THE SHEPHERD.

The wind in the olives is crisp today,
The whitecaps ruffle the tossing wave,
And the feet of the Shepherd who came to save
Are treading the dust of the world's highway.

He is seeking the lamb that has wandered far,
He is climbing the hills that are rough and cold,
He is seeking the lost in the wood and wold,
And calling it back beneath sun and star.

Have you heard them cry that He's coming near?
Then hasten out and be swift to greet,
And kneel before Him and kiss His feet,
For 'tis heaven's own love that has brought Him here.

Friend, would you walk on the Jesus road?
Then hearken, for there you must walk with Him?
He may come at noon or at the twilight dim—
Let Him rest in your hearts as His own abode.

DISLOYALTY TO THE CHURCH.

Dear Doctor Boswell: I do not know whether you were a soldier in our Civil War, or any other, but can say that I was one in the Civil War. I was out three years and four months, and in all that long period did I ever see a time when it would have been good policy for either side to fly the colors of the enemy? The North fought under its colors, the South the same, and every soldier that fought with true and unflinching bravery under his own colors was considered not only by his comrades in battle, but by the whole world, a true soldier of his country, with a patriotism that no one could discount.

But we find that when it comes to being a soldier of the Cross, and fighting under the banner of King Emmanuel, to the overthrowing of the kingdom of the devil and the wickedness that abounds therein, that many who have enlisted are not loyal to their standards or standard-bearers, but are continually rallying under new and different color-bearers. During the last decade, there has been a number of these new color-bearers coming forth from some cave of obscurity like Mahomet, claiming to be the true prophet of God, and sent by him to turn on the light. We find them in almost every community in the land. Many of them, to better deceive the people, as St. Paul says in Rom. XVI, 17-18 verses, fly the different colors of the different Christian denominations, claiming to be evangelists called and sent of God to turn on the light. The standard they fly is like Joseph's coat of many colors, and, like the chameleon, they can transform colors to suit the occasion, and enable them the more easily to make dupes of the unsuspecting. Some of them are such adepts that they do not fail to implant themselves and often their heretical doctrines in the favor of some pastors, consequently they are often employed to assist, or rather, to conduct, revival meetings, and my observation is the same as that of the Brother who wrote a short article in the ADVOCATE some weeks past, "their services, ever in the main, proves deleterious to the churches, and to the souls of many, and the sad discomfiture of the pastors." I have read somewhere, and that of not very ancient days, an indirect answer to a letter written by one of the old pioneers of Methodism in the State of Mississippi, wherein the writer claimed that it was possible that some claiming to be evangelists may have proved not to be O. K., but as for his part he had assisted a number of pastors, and that his assistance had always proved a benediction. Christ said to His disciples, "Go preach!" And St. Paul in his vision at night saw a man of Macedonia that prayed him, saying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." There was no stipulated price in dollars and cents promised in either case. But I have been credibly informed that there was one, at least, in the State of Mississippi who assisted at a certain camp meeting, and there was $70 made up for him as a thank offering, and when it was tendered to him he refused to accept, saying $100 was the smallest amount he would receive. He may be alive yet. I will say no more that I know, but hope he will pray hereafter and go slow on the price of the Gospel he preaches, and not make merchandise thereof, as the Jews of old did the temple, which Christ said "should be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it one of merchandise." I can but believe that every man, truly called of God to preach His Gospel, will never advertise his services or demand a stipulated price for same. But with the whole armor of God and the harness of the church to which he belongs, will go wherever his Lord says go. And if I was pastor I could not and would not ask anyone to help me in a meeting, that, after throwing off the harness of his church and entering into some secular business, afterwards advertises his services. It looks too much like going after the loaves and fishes and not souls, for all know full well that it has been a custom in all churches to make up a nice thank offering to pastors that assist in their revival meetings. But, instead of that, some will boast of the dollars they receive. They know too well that the people of to-day are as the Athenians of old; they are ever ready to hear and see something new, whether false or true. I have heard numbers of persons say that they loved to hear such and such evangelists preach. "They say such funny things, and cut such monkey shines." By doing thus they know it will draw crowds to hear them. Take the clowns from a circus and the attendance would be meager, indeed.

I am glad to note that these modern Theodosiuses and Judases, like those of old, are being slain by the power of the pure Gospel as preached by our holy fathers and martyrs, and their inconsiderate and disloyal followers dispersed. But they leave their false teachings by distributing unsound and disloyal literature among the people. Many copies of such literature is sent free, but, like wolves in sheep's clothing, it all comes under the guise of a religious periodical to catch the weary and unsuspecting. I find these periodicals in many homes. And let the pastor of any church to which they belong try to introduce the organ of their church, that teaches the only true and sound doctrine, some one of the family, either husband or wife, will bluff the pastor by saying, "We are taking this or that paper, and it has some good religious reading, and it does not cost us n-a-r-y c-e-n-t." when, if the poor souls who read them could compare their teachings as taught in the pure Word of God, they would see that all such obnoxious literature is dear, whether it costs dollars and cents or not, for many—alas, many—that read such deceive themselves, and become aliens against God and the church.

REVOLUTIONS IN METHODISM.

I have just read my article on "Revolutions in Religion" in the New Orleans CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of June 14. It is well printed. Now I will try my typewriter on "Revolutions in Methodism." John Wesley was a clergyman of the Church of England. After attaining the experience of justification by faith in 1738, he organized, in the latter part of 1739 a religious society composed of a few persons "having the form of godliness and seeking the power thereof." He called it the "United Society," but it came to be known as the "Methodist Society," and from it grew the Methodism of the world. When societies increased in number, the tax of preaching was heavy on him and his brother, Charles, which led him to license some men in societies to preach to the members thereof. In 1744 he had a convocation of a few sympathetic clergymen and one or more of his licensed preachers called the gathering a "Conference." Thereafter he held a conference once a year. Some of his licentiates were willing to devote much time to preaching to societies. He committed to their care two or more societies, called a "circuit." Such preachers were called itinerant or travelling preachers, and others were called "local preachers." Nothing of the kind was practiced in the Church of England, and Wesley's methods were considered by the Church Bishops and clergy as "Revolutionary," and few of the church pulpits were open to him.

Three of Mr. Wesley's licensed preachers found their way to America and formed societies. Learning of their existence, he sent from a conference two preachers to America. Later others were sent, a conference was held in 1773 and every year thereafter the superintendent appointed by Mr. Wesley assigned preachers to the work of pastors. After the independence of the United States was acknowledged, Mr. Wesley concluded that the American Methodist Societies should become a free and independent Methodist Episcopal Church. With that object in view he prepared Twenty-five Articles of Religion, which he designed to be the doctrinal foundation of the intended Methodist Episcopal Church in America. He went through the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England. Such as he did not want to have a place in the American Methodism of the future he rejected, and changed some others to suit himself. No Bishop or convocation of Bishops in England would have dared thus to tamper with the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of the Kingdom. He did not halt at that piece of heroic work for his American Methodist Societies. He called to his aid Thomas Coke, LL.D., a Church of England divine, but a sympathizer and co-worker with Mr. Wesley, in his Methodist Society operations, and called two of his own licentiate preachers, Whatcoat and Veasey. With the aid of Dr. Coke, as an ordained elder, he ordained the two preachers deacons and then elders, and with the aid of the two he ordained Dr. Coke General Superintendent for Methodism in America.

He directed the three chosen men to go to America, call together the Methodist preachers and with their co-operation organize them and the societies they represented into a Methodist Episcopal Church. To America they came, did the work assigned them, and the Methodist Episcopal Church came into being in Christmas week of 1784. Francis Asbury was elected and ordained General Superintendent, and out of that election and ordination came the Episcopacy of all Episcopal Methodist churches of today. From a Church of England standpoint, the actions of Mr. Wesley and his co-workers in England and America were revolutionary. Ecclesiastically, the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church was the first-born child of the successful revolution of the American Colonies. That is indicated by the 23rd Article of our Religion, and one of the notable things that the two Methodist Superintendents did was to call on George Washington and give him a token of the sympathy of the Church they represented with the new Republic. Methodism, like the organism of the man of Galilee in Palestine and of his apostles, was a child of revolution.

In 1844, just a hundred years from the first Conference of John Wesley, a revolution began in the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New York City. It was antagonized by another revolutionary sentiment in the Southern Conferences, and out of the two revolutionary elements in the Conference grew the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

I was, by force of circumstances, an actor in that revolution. I was received into the Kentucky Conference at its last session in connection with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and witnessed the revolutionary proceedings of the fathers of the Conference in favor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. I was sent as junior preacher to a circuit two hundred and seventy-five miles from the seat of the Conference, on the upper Ohio river border, and preached my first sermon as a circuit preacher in a church where was the then oldest Methodist College in the world, belonging to the Kentucky and Ohio Conferences. The next May the Louisville Convention of the Southern delegates organized the M. E. Church, South, and adjourned with one church member, and he was a Bishop—Bishop Andrew. On the first Sunday in June following in that same College church I declared my adherence to the newly-organized church.

It has been a pleasure to me to say and write that I have been, by priority of adherence, the oldest Southern Methodist in the world since the death of Bishop Andrew. It was not till the Conference sessions following the organization of the M. E. Church, South, that other preachers declared their adherence to the Southern organization. That wonderful revolution of 1844-5 carried all Southern Conferences, including the border Conferences in Kentucky and Missouri, and was accomplished without disturbing the peace and harmony of more than six congregations in the entire State of Kentucky, only one in Missouri, and not one in all the Southland. Let us, therefore, hope that this revolutionary proceeding in the late General Conference touching the Twenty-five Articles of Religion will run its course as a success or failure without serious damage to our church.

All Episcopal Methodists have been approvers of John Wesley's revolutionary movements, which brought into existence the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1784, and Southern Methodists throughout the Southland generally honor the memory of the Southern delegates in the General Conference of 1844 for their revolutionary movement that brought into being the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and prefer that the Church, South, shall maintain its separate and independent existence. But all revolutions are not for the best. Some are so managed that they quietly work their way and are established in strongholds without attracting public attention. Within the past two years a doctrinal revolution has been spreading through the two great Methodist Episcopal Churches. It was grafted in—or on the New Methodist Hymnal, on certain words on the classification page, following the preface signed by thirty-six Bishops of the two churches. On that classification page words are used and represented as meaning certain things in Christian life, which words are not in our Twenty-five Articles of Religion, nor elsewhere in Episcopal Methodist Disciplines. The said words are not in the New Testament, except that one is once used by an Apostle, with other meaning than that set forth in the classification words. One of the words objected to and conspicuously displayed as a page heading about twenty times is not in John Wesley's sermons. It is neither a Wesleyan Methodist, American Methodist, nor a Christian word. It was an Old Testament word, but was never coupled with either of the words connected with it in the New Hymnal. Will the Editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE give me a column, more or less, to show the fallacy of the use made of this word in the New Methodist Hymnal?

THE DIVINE-HUMAN, OR THE BIBLE AND INSPIRATION.

Immediately after the session of the Mississippi Conference in December, 1905, there appeared in the ADVOCATE a criticism of a lecture delivered before that body one afternoon. That criticism was merited, and was just, for that lecture could accomplish no good for the church or for the hearers. It seemed to be intended to overthrow not only the "doctrinal standards" of Methodism, but the very Bible itself in the minds of the young preachers. The lecturer, as if speaking by authority, gave assurances to his hearers that no one need fear being prosecuted for heresy, as recent attempts had failed, and one preacher against whom the effort had been made had been appointed to the richest church in Southern Methodism!

Having finished his elaborate exordium, and thus prepared his hearers, to some extent at least, the lecturer proceeded to say some wise and good things and some which were otherwise.

There are three Divine Persons or Things or Institutions, he stated:

1. Jesus, the Divine Person. Could this Divine Person commit sin? The old question, Non posse peccare and that other, Posse non peccare. The fact was that He did not sin. He was absolutely perfect. No sin or fault was found in Him.

2. Can the Divine-Human institution—the church—err? The Roman Catholics say no; the church is perpetually inspired. The Pope and Councils are infallible. Protestantism says, the church is not infallible, is not inspired. And the Holy Spirit is in the church, and yet it errs. Where is the church? Where the Holy Spirit is, there is the church. And yet the churches err, frequently, err and sometimes have done great wrongs.

3. How about the Divine-Human Book? Is it like Christ, or like the church? The same men of whom who are in the churches now wrote the Book! Scholars have studied the Pentateuch and find numbers of types of literature. How did Moses get his facts? By direct inspiration, or by records? The idea of God which dominates the moral and spiritual truths? Intelligent church faith does not accept the six days of creation as of twenty-four hours each, but a large body of members believe in six periods, or geologic periods. Scholars are misunderstood and their critics are not clear in the understanding of symbols, allegories, and legends. Modern historical criticism recognizes a Divine element and a human element in the Bible, hence the possibility of error. Even in chonological matters, where Archbishop Usher calculates 6,000 years from creation, the Septurgeint makes the world 1,750 years older. There are errors in history, as shown by W. Robertson Smith, Bishop Colerso and Dr. Briggs, who, like Dr. Woodrow, was brought to trial for teaching evolution. It is not possible to try a man for the same offense now. Books in England and America teach that God is in the Bible as God is in the church, and Christian evolution.

In morals and spiritual truths the Bible is infallible. It was written to teach moral and spiritual truths. The Bible was not written to teach us science—there are far better books to teach us science. It was not written to teach us poetry—there is far better poetry than we find in the Bible. It was not written to teach us literature—there is far better literature in the world. It was not written to teach us history—there are better and more accurate histories in the world; and, as history, it is not accurate. But in moral and spiritual matters it is accurate and divinely inspired. It is a success. It is a divine guide in moral and spiritual things.

The foregoing is a reproduction of the substance of the lecture and some of the sentences are accurate quotations made from notes carefully taken at the time of the deliverance. Of course, misquotation is possible. I am not infallible; but no willful misstatement has been made. I am not malicious. With the statement that the Bible is divinely inspired in all moral and spiritual things, I am in full accord; but the lecturer and I part company when he asserts that God is in the Bible in the same sense that He is in the church or in the churches in our day. "Holy men of old wrote as they moved by the Holy Ghost" is accepted by me as absolutely true. As for the literary qualities of the Bible, recognizing the weight of the old maxim, De gustilos non disputandum, and acceding to the lecturer full liberty of taste, I would say that in all the range of my reading—which is not as limited as some might suppose—I have found no literature to equal, much less to surpass it in simplicity and beauty, especialy our English Bible—the King James version; and so of the poetry. I met a Jew once who set Shakespeare above the Psalms; and heard of a Campbellite preacher who said in a sermon that the Lord's prayer was "the most inspired thing" he had ever read! But when it comes to questioning the historic accuracy of the Bible, I stand squarely by the old Book, not Archbishop Usher's chronology, but by the old Book itself. I do not accept the immense geological periods, at which were only guess, any more than I do Chinese chronology or the wild guesses of Assyriolgists or of Egyptologists. Modern research has confirmed in two many instances the Bible record for me, if not for the lecturer, to question its historical accuracy. I am more inclined to believe that the recently discovered Babylonian code was copied from Moses than to believe the Mosaic code was received from Babylon. I believe that God directly gave the laws to Moses.

If the Bible be unreliable history, and the lecturer made no qualifications, where shall we draw the line? and what shall we accept as reliable? The first three chapters of Genesis must be thrown out by the dictum of the destructive critics, and with them apparently must go the Biblical account of the deluge, the lives of the patriarchs, the anti-diluvian, and the post-diluvian, and so there are only a few, very few, scattered sentences left in Genesis; and Exodus, and Leviticus, and Numbers, and Duteronomy, and Joshua, and Judges; and all the other historical books of the Old Testament are rejected and are made as "worthless as last year's almanac," as some creedless preachers are fond of frequently offering. And what becomes of the history in the four Gospels and in the Acts of the Apostles? The miracles of our Lord are relegated to the same limbo in which the sapient critics have cast Abraham's offering of Isaac; Daniel in the Lion's den, the three Hebrews in the fiery furnace—all, all myths, legends, fairy tales! "And they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him!"

And that same lecturer wants a restatement of the doctrines of Methodism! and this, doubtless, to correspond with his restatement of the Bible!

T. L. MELLEN.

Cordell, Okla., June 16, 1906.

THE CRAPSEY TRIAL.

Much that is supposed to be new in thought, and to give expression to sound learning in these times, is best a rehash of old thread-worn and forgotten issues from the trash basket of the past.

Every little while some sensationalist appears with what he supposes to be a new thought, or, supposing himself talking to people who know nothing of the history of the past, is striving to appear new in old clothes.

In these days it is no uncommon experience for an intelligent congregation to be presented with church hash from the Swedenborgian table as a great delicacy and something good for spiritual health, such as "The incarnation a necessity for the Adamic state," and "regeneration a necessity to the Adamic state, in order to spiritualize man and thus make him capable of spiritual communion with God, who is a spirit."

But it was left for Dr. Crapsey to dig up one of the oldest known graves, and to rattle its dry bones before an intelligent congregation as something new and startling, and then cry in self-defense that his theory was only of miner importance, while he held to the fact of the historic person of Christ.

He denied the physical resurrection of Christ, and maintained that there was none other than spiritual resurrection—that is, that man was spiritually dead, and that in regeneration he was raised from death to life, and this closed the question of the resurrection. And yet he affirmed the point to be immaterial, since it was the teachings of Christ and not the manner of his resurrection that was the pivotal point in Christian doctrine.

I suppose it was a small matter with him that he so radically differed with so distinguished an authority as St. Paul at this point. There were those in his day who limited the resurrection to regeneration, and this was his answer: "But shun profane and vain babblings: for they will increase unto more ungodliness. And their word will eat as doth a canker: of whom is Hymenaeus and Philetus; who concerning the truth have erred, saying that the resurrection is past already; and overthrow the faith of some."

But, after all, is it so much the faith of the people in Christ, with such preachers, as it is the hope that they may appear great and learned? To sensible people it looks like small men trying to wear large clothing.

JAS. M. WEEMS.

CHOICE OF WORDS AND EXPRESSIONS

We have read Dr. H. W. May's account of the Monroe District with more than ordinary interest, as we can claim some acquaintance with the district. We rejoice in the very marked advance of the work over former days and years. That is as it should be.

The district is moving on and up under the wise leadership of Presiding Elder Henry and his manly preachers.

But this otherwise admirable report is seriously marred in this one instance:

"We are preaching; I judge from the reports, to more people in this district than at any other time in its history. Manly and faithful prophets in charge of church affairs have much to do with the number of men in our pews. Men like to have a manly preacher, and will hear when we preach a manly Gospel."

Now, any one, whether he be a man or a manly man, may draw his own inference, and that, too, without the aid of a yoke of oxen. And it will be this: "Former toilers who have borne the burden and heat of the days gone by, in making possible present conditions, were not manly men, nor faithful prophets."

The vision of those weaklings of former days may at least serve to bring into bolder relief those mighty of the present time. But it fails to relieve the situation of its condemning aspect.

Somebody is to blame, somebody is responsible. For many have suffered the consequence of unmanliness and unfaithfulness in their preachers. And as Brother J. M. Henry has had the stationing of the preachers on that district for the past seven years, save one, he is doubtless more to blame than any one else.

For my part, I am glad that God is judge. It may be that in that day there will be found something credited to the account of the weaker ones.

Come again, Brother May. "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body."

Great and exalted manliness is not attractive nor real, while weak and base comparations are its props.

Give us a manliness that can stand alone, and we will recognize it.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The third Sabbath in May passed successfully and joyfully at Douglas Church, Downsville charge of the Arcadia District, in the exercises of "Children's Day." Brother S. D. Rinehart, the faithful, and I may say, almost veteran superintendent, having been in that office nearly twenty years, and his school executed the programme with additions, very finely, before a crowded house, to its edification and delight, closing up with a collection of $4.10.

REVIVAL AT BOONEVILLE.

Booneville has been visited by one of the most gracious revivals in its history, and the pastor has had a humble part in the greatest meeting he ever attended, conducted, or had a part in. There was no outside help. The help came from the Church, and from the undoubted and manifest presence of the Holy Spirit.

Throughout the first week of the meeting a great work went forward among the members of the Church. There was much confessing, and there was much private readjustment of private difficulties and misunderstandings. At every altar service the altar was crowded with men and women, sometimes the kneeling crowd stretched far back the aisles into the middle of the church. There were few handshaking propositions during the meeting. The one proposition was, "Come to the altar and get right with God." During the first week the meetings went forward with increased power. Men who had not spoken for years met at the altar and made things right and knelt together in prayer. In the mornings the church was overrun with people, and at nights the congregations increased until people were turned away for want of room.

On the Monday night of the second week the Pentecost of the meeting came. If ever the Holy Ghost came down on a congregation with manifest and direct power He did on our people that night. When the altar invitation was extended eight came to kneel in penitence. These were all converted except two, who remained with friends crowded about them trying to point them to the light, or beseeching God to bring them to confession and the joy of salvation. As each was converted that night he stood up and publicly testified aloud that he accepted Jesus as his Saviour. The congregation was dismissed, and the two at the altar remained to fight it out. As the congregation was passing out the work began. One of the recent converts, with his mother, knelt at the doorway to pray for a young man whose conviction had become so intense that he fell upon his knees at the rear of the house when his friends approached him. That was at nine-thirty. From that hour until twelve-thirty the work went on. As fast as a young man was converted he publicly confessed Christ and went to work praying and working to bring some friend to Christ. The congregation remained, singing and praying and praising God. All over the house the work went on. Groups were gathered at the altar, in the aisles, in the body of the church, at the rear of the house. The preachers present, passing from group to group like officers along the firing line, were praying, exhorting, encouraging and directing the old Christians, the young converts and the penitents. Old sins were forsaken. Confessions were made publicly. More than a score pledged themselves to erect family altars.

From that night the work went forward with undiminished power until it culminated Sunday morning in the accession of eighteen into the church and a communion service, in which fully two hundred people took part. Twenty-six have already united with the Methodist Church, three with the other churches, and there are fifteen or twenty more to join the various churches in and around Booneville.

But facts and figures cannot adequately represent the great and wonderful features of the revival. There is a new atmosphere in the community. There is a new expression on the face of men. There are new adjustments and re-arrangements of life, social, civic and commercial. Each day brings to light some new triumph of the Cross in human lives; some further manifestation of His mighty power.

With humble heart a happy pastor thanks God that it is possible for a pastor, with his regular force, and no outside re-enforcements except those from above, to meets and grapple with the host of darkness and win glorious victories for the Captain of our salvation. Pray for us, that we may have wisdom to conserve the results of the revival, and gather strength through the coming months for a mightier struggle, and a mightier victory.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear ADVOCATE: Please call the attention of all lay delegates of Vicksburg District to the Conference to convene at Hermanville July 3-7. Bishop Ward will preside. I call for a full delegation. Do not disappoint the occasion, brethren, but come to the Conference with every purpose to constitute part of the success of it. Brother Foreman, the pastor, has issued his call for the prayers of the body. His intention is to use the stimulus of such a devoted body of leading Christians for the interest of his circuit, and will carry the meeting forward into the week following. We will greatly enjoy the blessing of this occasion, coming in the spirit and power of our Savior.

Sincerely your brother in the service.

W. H. HUNTLEY.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

In all its history the Conference has not had a more delightful session than that which was held in Laurel, June 15-18. There were more than fifty delegates and visitors present, though we did not get our rates on account of some failing to get certificates.

Dr. and Mrs. Chambers, with an efficient committee, met us at the station and sent us to our gracious homes.

Friday night was given over to the welcomings and the President's address. This annual address from Mrs. Lipscomb is always looked forward to as the chief feature of the Conference, and this one fell not short of any that had gone before.

The reports of the District Secretaries were read on Saturday morning, followed by the reports of the Auxiliaries, the Treasurer and the Corresponding Secretary in the afternoon.

Saturday evening was devoted to the interests of the Training School, and our Missionary candidate, Miss Nell Drake of Port Gibson, who has completed her first year's course at this school, gave us a thrilling account of the student life in the Scarritt Bible and Training School.

Our hearts were stirred to the depths as we listened to the earnest words of this accomplished, consecrated young woman and realized that in one short year she would be ready to go to her work in the foreign field. Already we are beginning to discuss the plans for providing for her support, for she must go from her own Conference.

Sunday was a great day. Some of the delegates participated in the work of the Sunday-school. At 11 o'clock Dr. Y. J. Allen, our veteran missionary to China, preached a magnificent sermon and gave a graphic and philosophic account of the situation in China. A large and appreciative audience listened attentively to this powerful discourse. In the afternoon a meeting for the children was held under the supervision of Mrs. T. B. Clifford, who had brought with her an attractive exhibit prepared by her Juvenile Society at Columbia. Miss Alice Waters, returned missionary from China, made an appropriate and interesting address to the children. On Sunday night Dr. Allen again addressed a large and interested audience. His theme was a continuation of that of the morning, accompanied by personal experience. China and China missions will be of dearer interest to every one who heard him.

Monday morning had been set apart for the hearing of the reports of the Golden Links and the Juvenile Societies. The delegates were called to the front and introduced to the body so that all might catch the inspiration of their bright and happy youth.

Mrs. Mars asked for the privilege of paying the deficit on the pledge of last year. While this does not effect our record for last year, it does show our spirit in the matter, and the generous offer of this loyal woman does but express the feeling of many of the workers. Our pledge is a sacred obligation and should have precedence over all the work. Never let it happen again in the history of our work that we shall lack one cent of its payment.

The following officers were elected for another year: President, Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb; Vice President, Mrs. W. H. LaPrade; Recording Secretary, Mrs. A. E. Wyatt; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. F. Watkins; Treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Kendall; Auditor, Mrs. Lowry. District Secretaries: Jackson District, Mrs. Wadsworth; Lipscomb; Brookhaven District, Mrs. T. B. Clifford; Sea Shore District, Mrs. Norman Ferguson; Forest District, Mrs. Reese Price; Meridian District, Miss Minnie Buntyn; Vicksburg District, Miss Mary Nasson; Natchez District, Mrs. J. A. Gnice. Alternate delegate to the Board, Mrs. T. B. Clifford. Meridian was selected as the next place of meeting and the time was changed from June to the Thursday in March preceding the last Sunday.

Our returned missionaries are always the joy and crown of our meetings. Miss Alice Waters on Monday evening talked of her work in China to a large audience, who were held interested from the opening sentence to the closing word.

The obligation of the year are $7,000 for the pledge and $1,500 for the scholarship. Cards representing circles amounting to $100 each were presented and explained. Eleven of these circles were taken. As only fifteen were necessary, there are but four left. Societies or individuals desiring these should apply to me at once, or these will be taken and the opportunity lost for helping in this great work of establishing a Mississippi scholarship at the Training School.

Brother Chambers and Rev. J. S. Parker were in constant attendance upon our sessions, giving us encouragement and counsel.

Mrs. Parker, who has been so long connected with the work, cheered us with her presence.

Some of the suggested watch-words for the year are:

Live much in prayer; the work is not our's, but God's.

Pay quarterly to the pledge fund.

Raise the scholarship money by the first of March.

Adopt the study course and form study circles.

Move out on a large plane. Pray more. Pay more. Give more.

MRS. A. F. WATKINS,
Corresponding Secretary.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The recent session of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference, held in Winona, was pronounced the best attended and most spiritual meeting held in several years. Winona dispensed most gracious hospitality. Every arrangement, even printed programmes were sent out in advance, delegates knew where they were assigned homes, and each one was satisfied they had the best. It goes without saying that Brother Bowen was a perfect host. Brother Bachman was at every service and ever ready to lend assistance. The pastors of the different denominations and a number of visiting preachers were introduced to the Conference. Fraternal greetings were brought from the Winona Missionary societies of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches also from our younger sister, the Home Missionary Society, by Mrs. Zerger of Water Valley. The choir was pronounced the very best. The address of welcome by Mrs. Jennings Wadsworth was unusually fine, and the response by Mrs. J. M. Wyatt most appropriate.

The consecration service, led by Mrs. E. A. Niblett, was a selection of blessed promises and many delegates testified that they had been verified in their lives. Sunday morning found the large auditorium well filled to hear the annual sermon by Rev. R. A. Meek, presiding elder of the Greenville District, his text, John IV. 6-7, illustrating the striking picture, The Woman of Samaria a Typical Sinner, Christ a Perfect Savior.

The inspiration of the meeting was the presence of our own sister Hargrove, who lectured on Palestine.

Sunday afternoon the children's and young people's service was conducted by Mrs. T. W. Woodward of Starkville and Mrs. W. M. McIntosh of Iuka. Welcome from the Juveniles of Winona was given by Masters Liddell Small and Hartwell Blackstone. Recitations by little Katie Hunger and Miss Clara Finger. Reports from Students Volunteer Convention at Nashville were given by Misses Mary Massey of Iuka and Julia Wasson of Kosciusko.

Sunday evening devotional service was conducted by Rev. R. A. Meek. Mrs. M. L. Hargrove of Scarritt Bible and Training School delighted the audience with an address, after which she introduced Misses Linnie Barcroft, Mary Massey, Bonnie Foster, Julia Wasson and Kate Smallwood, five candidates for the foreign field, all five being from North Mississippi Conference.

Monday morning the regular business session was opened with the president, Mrs. C. H. Gibbs, in the chair, and through the entire day the routine of business was dispatched smoothly and systematically.

Monday evening the president's address and the corresponding secretary's report from the Foreign Board were heard. Misses Massey, Foster and Barcroft, each presented some phase of the life of the students of the training school.

Tuesday morning the business session was resumed, the morning's work finishing all reports of auxiliaries and juvenile societies and other items of business.

The afternoon session was devoted to selection of place for the next annual meeting, the election of officers and a memorial service for the sainted Miss Margaret Foster.

Tuesday evening Dr. Yguing J. Allen, of China addressed the audience, and the session closed.

Iuka was selected for the place of the next annual meeting. The following officers were elected: Mrs. C. H. Gibbs, president; Mrs. S. M. Thames, vice president; Mrs. J. T. Evans, corresponding secretary; Miss Ella Grider, recording secretary, Mrs. G. C. Jones, treasurer; Mrs. W. M. McIntosh, auditor and editor. District secretaries—Corinth, Miss Etta Murray; Sardis, Mrs. T. J. O'Brien; Winona, Mrs. T. H. Bingham; Grenada, Mrs. W. W. Woodard; Greenville, Miss Susie Trigg; Durant, Miss Ethelyn Brown; Columbus, Mrs. T. W. Woodward; Aberdeen, Mrs. J. H. Haughton. Mrs. B. L. Jones was elected reserve delegate to the Foreign Board.

SUNSET.

BY MISS EDDIE BENTLEY.

* * * God made * * * the greater light to rule the day.—Bible.

The June atmosphere was warm and sultry; gray dust flecked leaf and grass, and insects hummed drowsily; in the pond near by cattle stood knee-deep in the water, while along the busy streets horses, beaded with sweat, drew wagons loaded heavily. All the while the afternoon sun shone relentlessly on. Cruel it would seem; yet the fiery breath that wilted the crimson rose gave life to the hidden germ; the untamed heat that made the leaves of orchard trees to shrivel and die brought yellow and red and purple hues to the luscious fruits, as well as mellowness and sweetness; the scorching rays that provoked words of complaint from the strong and vigorous, returning somewhat weary from heated offices, left healing and grateful warmth to that emaciated invalid in the armchair over on the verandah.

Dinner was over and Bessie Fairfield, who was introduced to the reader a while ago as a charming girl and devoted little Christian, felt as tho she would like to withdraw for awhile "far from the maddening crowd." She thus soliloquized: "I'd like to climb a mountain where I could have a fine view of the landscape, could drink from the crystal mountain stream and be fanned by mountain breezes, but as I live in New Orleans a very level city—I shall go to the levee's top, out to the very water's edge and there watch the sunset." No sooner said than done! Bessie set forth cheerily, treaded the city's busy streets and soon left it with its dust, its turmoil and its petty annoyances far in the background as she sprang up the levee with elastic step and wended her way to a quiet nook on the banks of the great Mississippi River.

As Bessie glanced over the rippling waters a sweet peace held her in its possession—a peace so great that tears of joy and gratitude sprang to her eyes. Afar off a boat floated silently and majestically by, leaving in its wake circling waves that, caught by the golden rays of the setting sun, came dancing to the shore and broke with a soothing, lapping sound at Bessie's feet. Tender emotions stirred her as she looked, and she spoke aloud as tho to some present:—"Can the waves that break on that Eternal shore be more beautiful than these? Oh, glorious sun, thou art a fitting emblem of the Son of Righteousness. Surely the light that emanates from Him rims the waves of the Sea of Life. I am certain this is so; but we, who are crossing this sea, forget to look first at the glowing sun and so the ripples of sadness are robbed of the sunlight of hope. Thou Light of the World, be thou our Sun—make bright the River of Life and illumine the River of Death!" After this the girl sat quietly watching the sinking sun, and lines from Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" flitted through her mind:—

"I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar."

The whirring of the wings of birds that love the water, the twittering of insects in the willows fringing the banks and the soft cadence of the sun-touched waves lent additional charm to the peaceful scene.

* * * "twixt Heaven, Air, Earth and Sea, Cradled, and hung in clear tranquillity."

the sun now dipped half-way below the horizon as tho desirous of bequeathing a part of his evening radiance to other lands beyond. Bessie thought: "So the Christ would have the sunshine of his love disseminated to the frozen regions of the north, the spicy isles of the East, to the borders of the fair Southland and the shores of the great Pacific than He would have this love permeate the heart of the world, its golden threads intersecting and forming the warp and woof of a loom whose tapestries shall adorn Heaven itself."

Bessie closed her eyes and the kindly beams of the setting sun were reflected in them. Again she mused:

"If we but seek Jesus 'while he may be found,' then even tho blindness smite us, as it did the author of 'Paradise Regained,' yet we may see the Light shining within. 'How wonderful is our God!'"

Cool breezes stirred the willows and brought refreshment to the thoughtful girl. She looked up and noticed that daylight was departing, giving place to the gentle but steady advance of twilight. The sun, after sending one farewell beam aslant the placid river, disappeared. Bessie rose and slowly retraced her way along the levee's edge. She lingered a moment and glanced skyward. The sun had left his glory there, for it seemed as tho the colors of the rainbow had entered into sweet partnership to paint the heavens with merging shades of amethyst and sapphire, saffron and emerald and tints indescribable but beautiful. The sky had the "glow of a painted window melted in the sun."

Homeward Bessie turned and she felt glad and contented at heart. Had not God spoken to her through the voice of nature? The memory of the last scene held her in thralldom. To a large degree at home she said: "As the afterglow of the departing sun transfigured the leaden clouds into billows of loveliness, so the influence of the earth-life of our risen Lord has converted this world into a kingdom of real joy."

Bessie's prayer at night was the long her baby-lips had uttered, ending:

"If I should die before I wake
I Pray the Lord my soul to take."

This night she murmured softly after her prayer:

"Sunset and evening star
And one clear call for me."

then, later, almost interwoven with her dreams:

"Sun of my soul, thou Savior dear
It is not night when thou art near."

So, lulled with a faith such as this, fair Bessie slumbered peacefully.

If it be a matter of choice between money and infidelity, against the Church and religious education, there should be no hesitancy among intelligent and philanthropic men which to choose. If the Bible be kept out of our public schools for three or four generations, the question will come up for settlement.

THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1906.

The studied purpose of men to get rich, some at all hazards and some on the get-rich-quick method, is not only an evidence of the all-absorbing commercial spirit of the age, but of intense selfishness, harmful to society, and will inevitably "drown men in destruction and perdition."

In view of the fact that "few officers die and none resign," the wise women of the "Woman's Home Mission Society," in their late annual meeting, fixed an "age limit" for office-holding. From this date no one beyond 65 years of age can hold office in the busy hives, except in the auxiliary societies. The present general officers have an extended lease. It will be a long time before they reach the age limit.

The Standard, a Baptist newspaper of Chicago, suggests that "if cheap foreign labor drives out (from the South) any large portion of negro labor, the present negro problem will not be solved; it will become infinitely more complicated for blacks and whites." We are not so sure of any further complication, but we do feel sure of a vast deal more trouble. There is something in this for Southern men who are seeking cheap Italian labor to think about.

If, as Dr. Tillett stated on the floor of the General Conference, other churches, in the restatement or revision of their faith, have shown a rapid approach to the Methodist faith as presented in our Articles and Standards, it would be wise on our part to wait until other churches fully catch up before we undertake a restatement. But aren't other churches old-fogyish and out-of-date in approaching Articles and Standards of faith that are antiquated and ready for superannuation?

When Mr. Wesley said "the world is my parish" he was the leader of a small and feeble band. Under the blessing of God, the little band has multiplied, and to-day, after the lapse of only about one hundred and seventy-five years, there is not a civilized nation where Wesleyanism is not established, and but few heathen lands untouched by Wesleyan preachers. More than six millions of living communicants respond to their call. Those gone before are a host that no man can number. "Behold, what hath God wrought!"

OFF FOR THE SUMMER.

Off for the summer means more than merely leaving home. To a man it means leaving behind the cares and worry of his business. To a woman it means leaving behind the treadmill duties of housekeeping. To all such as are real tired, and honestly seek rest, going off for the summer is a benefit. Those who go for pleasure and general dissipation get what they seek, and come back home to rest.

Among the crowds that take an annual vacation there are perhaps as many professing Christians as those who make no pretention to religion. To hundreds of these Christians, going off for the summer means leaving behind all religious duties and obligations. Some give way entirely to the temptations of the world, and for the time-being engage in all kinds of sinful amusements. Not a few return to their homes shipwrecked in the faith. Others become indifferent, so much so that, though never guilty of any improper conduct, they are not known as Christians. They never attend public worship, nor otherwise acknowledge their relation to the Church. This temporary neglect of duty may become a habit. It can hardly be that such Christians persuade themselves that they are under no religious obligations—to serve God and help their fellowmen—except in their home Church. God is one, and his Church is one, and obligations assumed are as binding in one place as in another. No Christian can disregard obligations, no matter where, without detriment to the soul.

When we think of the many absentees from our city churches at this season of the year, and of their indifference to religion at their summer resting-place, we are led to ask, If these Christians belong to the Church, and take active part in the work, only because it is "good form," and rather popular, why do they not play the same part away from home? Or, if they belong to the Church for the sake of the spiritual benefits to be derived, why can they not derive the same benefits when on vacation? Or, if they belong to the Church, and work for the benefit of others, why do they not "exercise their gifts and graces" in behalf of strangers, as well as in behalf of their next-door neighbors? What hinders?

If these good people fully considered the weight of influence of a truly religious visiting brother or sister, and the opportunity for doing good by speaking or acting for the Master, and were really intent upon communicating spiritual blessings, they would be quite as ready to speak and act on the summer vacation as at home.

No sort of circumstances can justify a Christian man or woman in discarding, even for a moment, any religious obligation. If the world does not know, God does, and will hold everyone accountable for neglect of duty. Religion that is not worth carrying to the seaside, or the mountain retreat, is not worth having.

AGAIN, WHERE ARE THE MEN?

Time and again the absence of men from public worship has been noted, and commented on as an omen of ill, not only to the church, but to the men themselves, and to society at large. The matter may be poo-poohed by men who absent themselves from church, yet retain their membership and pay their dues. They feel that they are as religious as they ever were. This may be true—doubtless is in many instances. At the same time no Christian can absent himself from God's house habitually without impairing his influence as a Christian and damaging his own spiritual interests. It is an open violation of a plain command, a wilful rejection of a stated means of grace, and the deliberate breaking of a sacred vow taken at the altar of God. It cannot be laughed down, nor thrust aside as a trifle. Something is wrong.

Now it is noted, and given out as a matter of significance, that our public libraries, in every department except one, are more numerously patronized by women than men. This cannot be attributed to the fact that libraries are presided over by dull and uninteresting preachers, who have nothing to give out except orthodox homolies on dead issues. Public libraries are up-to-date, and one who applies for a book need not stand and be bored by the librarian if he does not feel so disposed. But the men do not patronize them as do the women.

One department is excepted. More men than women patronize the magazine and newspaper tables. There is some significance in that. These tables contain the daily history of the race track, the base ball games and the commercial world. Besides, they contain a "tip" for the guidance of the morrow's transactions. These three things engage the attention of the men: Athletic sports, horse racing, money making—all of a commercial character, into every one of which is carried, to a greater or less extent, the habit of gambling. And when it is borne in mind that the Sunday paper contains fully as much information on these points as the week-day issues, it is easy to see why the men absent themselves from church. They are filled with the spirit of commercialism. They are not at church on Sunday, but planning to get gain.

Another fact of significance to be noted is this: that a very large proportion of the women who patronize the libraries consult books on commercial questions. This indicates that they, too, are catching the commercial spirit.

THE APOSTLE'S CREED.

The creed of Christendom, commonly called the "Apostle's Creed," is so called, not because it is believed the Apostles wrote it, but because it is a correct formula of the Doctrines which the Apostles believed and preached.

It was believed at one time that the Apostles wrote it, that each one furnished a sentence, and thus put it forth as their joint work. It was said that they did this, because being about to separate to go into different directions, it was necessary for all of them to preach the same doctrines. That would have been a very natural thing to do, but there is no proof that such was the case.

McClintock and Story, in their Cyclopedia, tell us that it is "almost impossible to now ascertain the authorship of this creed; its antiquity may, however, be inferred from the fact that the whole, as it now stands, with the exception of 'he descended into hell,' may be found in the works of Ambrose and Rufinus, the former of whom flourished in the third century and the latter in the fourth." This is proof that though the Apostles may not have composed the creed, the early Christians were acquainted with and held to the doctrines which the apostles preached. It shows also that though the expression "holy Catholic Church" occurs in the creed at that early day, it was there before any separate organization as the Roman Catholic Church was in existence. This was an expression simply indicating the universality of Christ's kingdom in the world, and is not at all objectionable. If it read the "holy Roman Catholic Church," it would be different. But it does not so read.

The creed of Christendom—of the Greek Church, the Church of Rome, and all the Protestant Evangelical Churches—could hardly be put in a more concise and expressive form. "It is not to be accepted as the Canonical Scriptures, as the Lord's Prayer or the Ten Commandments, but because it is a brief summ of the Christian faith, agreeable to the Word of God, and anciently received in the Churches of Christ."

In this day of criticism, when men are rejecting the divinity of Christ, His virgin birth, and his bodily resurrection, it is well for the faithful to repeat this creed in the churches, and thus fix the Christian faith in the hearts of the children.

FOR A HELPING FUND.

Letters received at this office indicate that we have many subscribers who are unable to pay for the paper, and they reluctantly ask us to discontinue. Others who have never read the paper would take it if they had the money to pay the subscription price. It must be quite a trial to one who has been long a reader of the Advocate to be compelled to quit. Will generous-hearted brethren and sisters take this matter under consideration, and send us a few dollars for "the Helping Fund?" Subscriptions on this fund go at $1. Those who help may name the beneficiaries, if they so desire. If left to us, we will do the best we can. Let us have several responses.

PERSONAL.

Rev. P. H. Howse, writing from Caseyville, Miss., says: "We are moving along very well on the Caseyville charge, except that I am walking the circuit, instead of riding."

Rev. W. W. Holmes, of Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, is attending the Young People's Missionary Conference, in session this week at Asheville, N. C.

Rev. Tilton Nunes, a local preacher from South Carolina, has been spending two weeks in the city, and has preached for several of the brethren. He thinks seriously of casting his lot with the Louisiana brethren.

Rev. S. J. Parrish, pastor of Parker Memorial Church, of this city, has asked to be relieved of the charge. The matter, at this writing, is under advisement. Brother Parrish desires to enter the field as an evangelist.

The Third Quarterly Meeting for Trenton Circuit was held June 22-23. Brother Nolen says it was the "best this year." His Children's Day Services were successful. Collections amounted to twenty-three dollars.

Rev. George Jackson has been appointed to the Pollock Charge, in the Alexandria District. Correspondents will please address him at Pollock, La. Brother Jackson enters upon the work with great enthusiasm.

Rev. J. H. Bass informs us of the death of Rev. Jesse B. Porter. He passed away on the 26th ult., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Darby, Charleston, Miss. A further notice of Brother Porter will be furnished later.

We are under obligation to Dr. H. W. Featherstun, of Crystal Springs, for a club of twenty or more subscribers to the ADVOCATE. And to Rev. P. H. Howse, of Caseyville, Miss., for a club of fifteen. These brethren have our hearty thanks.

The preachers in the Aberdeen District are all well and hard at work, hoping to have great meetings in the near future. The Presiding Elder, Rev. J. H. Mitchell, thinks the District is in fine condition, and is looking forward to the District Conference with great interest.

We had the pleasure on Monday last of a visit from Hon. D. W. Hiedelberg, of Shubuta, Miss., a member of the Mississippi State Senate. Brother Hiedelberg is a stanch Methodist and a life-long reader of the ADVOCATE. We thank him for kindly remembering the office while in the city.

We have important and interesting correspondence on hand, which the writers desire very much to see in print this week, but some of it, though preferred matter, came in too late. And other articles are crowded out by matter previously received. We hope this will be satisfying to all concerned.

We stop the press to announce that we have just received a telegram from Rev. H. T. Gaines, stating that Bishop Hendrix will preside over the Sardis District Conference, "the Bishop having reconsidered." (The Bishop had previously been announced to preside, but it was thought he would not be able to attend.)

The work at Centreville, Miss., still prospers under the charge of Rev. W. H. Saunders. He is preparing for the Bethel Camp Meeting, which will begin on the 2d day of August. Revs. Theo. Copeland and C. W. Crisler will be the principal preachers. We thank Brother Saunders for an invitation to the meeting.

We have just received a club of twenty new subscribers, with the promise of "five more to follow in a few days," from Rev. W. B. Pinson, of Sidon Charge, North Mississippi. Brother Pinson says: "I am delighted with your paper—easy to get subscribers." We are thankful for such work, and such encouraging words.

In the printed announcements, Sunday, June 24, for Monroe, La., Dr. Richard Wilkinson, pastor, appears this item: "If you will become one of twenty, we can get the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE into twenty homes for $1.25 each. See the pastor at once." A good way, this, to advertise the Church paper. In addition to this, Brother Wilkinson promises a personal canvass.

We thank President C. C. Miller for a copy of his pamphlet, just published: Centenary College of Louisiana: Dedicated to the Members of the Louisiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The pamphlet contains "An Open Letter; Full Text of the Deed of Transfer from the Board of Trustees to the Legal Conference; An Ode; and the Chronicles of Centenary College."

At the recent meeting of the Book Committee, Rev. W. E. Vaughan was unanimously re-elected Editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate. Since the great earthquake the Advocate has been printed at Stockton, Cal., and those who have the work in charge are turning out a first-class paper. We congratulate Brother Vaughan, and pray that he may regain all he lost in San Francisco.

Bishop Ward presided over the Brookhaven District Conference last week at McComb City. He preached twice, and made other talks, and these, with the ease and dignified manner of conducting the business, won the hearts of the brethren. He ran down to the city on Monday morning, and Tuesday left for Hermanville, where he will hold the Vicksburg District Conference.

Rev. Jno. M. Moore, pastor of First Church, Dallas, Tex., has been elected Assistant Editor of the Christian Advocate (Nashville). This gives the Advocate two assistants, as Rev. S. M. Godley was re-elected. With the addition of Brother Moore, one of the brightest young men in our Church, to the editorial staff, and with abundance of money voted by the General Conference, the Advocate should leap at once to the front and take its stand alongside of the New York Advocate. We trust it will.

Our Publisher, Mr. C. O. Chalmers, dropped in on the brethren of McComb City last Friday evening, at the close of the Brookhaven District Conference, and remained over until Monday morning. He makes a fine report of what he saw and heard, and of the kind treatment he received at the hands of the brethren. From what he says, the ADVOCATE representative was certainly in the midst of his friends. His time being limited, he had no opportunity to canvass the town, but, at the invitation of the excellent pastor, who has promised to assist, he expects to return and give all the McComb saints an opportunity to subscribe for the ADVOCATE. Brother Chalmers returns his hearty thanks to all who so kindly treated him at the Conference.

A POINTED ARROW.

The greatest hindrance to the success of the Gospel is found in "needless self-indulgence," supporting secret lodges, drinking whisky and using tobacco, and in other things that do not tend to the knowledge and love of God. If Methodists would take their lodge money and whisky money and tobacco money, and stand by the rules of the church, with the help of our great leaders, we could support our missionaries already in the field, and all others who are ready to go. We could build colleges and mission training schools, and prepare hundreds for the work, and we could build a ship to sail around the world and carry the Gospel to all the nations.

JAMES KING.

Daisy, Miss.

A PROTEST.

Dear Dr. Boswell: As a subscriber to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and a member of one of the patronizing Conferences, I ask space to enter my protest against such articles as "Brother Blank's Predicament" appearing in the columns of our Conference paper.

The number and character of preachers and laymen who took the pains to commend the letter I wrote to you some weeks since leads me to believe that this protest voices the sentiment of many of your friends and subscribers.

If our Conference organ must be made the vehicle for registering kicks against the action of the General Conference—at least, let the kicks be graceful. Yours truly, J. R. BINGHAM.

Carrollton, Miss.

COMMITTEES FOR ARCADIA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Arcadia District Conference will meet in Winfield Friday, July 27th, 1906, at 8:30 a. m. Bishop Ward is expected to be present.

Committee on License and Admission—Robt. Randle, W. T. Woodward, J. O. Bennett.

Committee on Orders—H. W. Bowman, R. H. Wynn, J. B. Williams.

There will be preaching Thursday night by Brother S. J. Davis. BRISCOE CARTER, P. E.

NOTE FROM REV. W. S. LAGRONE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: As it would be almost impossible to write a personal letter to all our friends who have so kindly remembered us in our afflictions, we desire to express through the ADVOCATE our gratitude and appreciation for brotherly sympathy and interest in this saddest hour in life. Their letters have brought us comfort in our tears; and helped us to weep and wait. To know in these dark times that we are remembered by our friends helps to brighten the way, but the best of all—God is with us. Home is dark and sad, but heaven is nearer and brighter.

"Another hand is beckoning us,
Another call is given:
And glows once more with angel-step
The path that leads to heaven."

W. S. LAGRONE.

JONESTOWN, MISS.

Dear Doctor Boswell: I desire to say through the columns of the ADVOCATE a few words in reference to Jonestown charge. Our meetings have all been held. Had very good revivals in the church, and the membership of the church has been wonderfully strengthened and revived. The Lord was with us in every service. Bros. E. B. Ramsey, J. W. Honnoll and W. M. Young ably assisted us. These brethren preached the gospel with the old time power and won the hearts of all of my people. Our three Sunday schools are doing splendid work. Children's Day has been observed at two of our churches and I very seriously doubt whether there has been two more profitable services held in our conference this year. Our children and young people are intelligent and are forging to the front. We have three Home Missionary Societies, one at each church, and one Foreign Missionary Society, all of which are doing fine work. We have sent the orphan's home, in cash and goods, $105.00, have expended on parsonage and churches a nice little sum, have placed a new Epworth organ in our church at this place. The Domestic Mission assessment has been collected and sent in. Our second quarterly conference has come and gone. Our beloved presiding elder, Rev. R. A. Meek, was with us and preached two most excellent sermons. My people are delighted with him; in fact, we preachers of the Greenville District think that we have one of the best (if not the best) presiding elders in the North Mississippi Conference, and we hope the Bishop will not disturb us at the next Annual Conference.

I am serving a good and appreciative people. They know and feel that it is their duty to see after the comforts of their pastor, and they do it in a most gracious manner.

Yours fraternally,
JNO. H. ROGERS.

NEW AUGUSTA, MISS.

My Dear Brother Boswell: In the past God has shown His people the greatness of His goodness and His power to save.

How precious and inspiring are His promises. "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee! Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." "If God be for us, who can be against us? If it had not been the Lord who was on our side when men rose up against us then would they have swallowed us up."

We are planning and expecting great things of the Lord. We ask the prayers of the people of God.

Our faithful and beloved presiding elder, Rev. M. L. Burton, has just held the third quarterly conference at Richton. He seems to have the interest of church and pastor upon his heart. His sermons and official efforts give great satisfaction. No doubt but he will present a fine report to the next Annual Conference. He recognizes the great need of houses of worship of our own. This is new and undeveloped territory and difficulties great, but our God will help.

We hope to increase the circulation of the ADVOCATE. Continued sickness in our home has hindered, but deliverance has come, as we trust, for which we desire to express our gratitude to God and to those who have so kindly remembered us in these days of darkness.

A revival of old time religion is a felt want in these times. Our district and Conference with such a visitation would accomplish great things along all lines.

If we cry mightily to God He will hear and answer and give us that for which we pray.

Hoping to send you charming news on these lines, I will close by again asking God's people to pray for us and the New Augusta charge.

C. H. EVANS, P. C.

Miss FLORA WISE was born in Lincoln Parish, La., Nov. 30, 1888, and died in Dubach, La., same parish, April 16, 1906, making her eighteen years, four months, sixteen days old. Her mother died when she was only six years old. She was given to her aunt, Fannie Autry, one of the gentlest and sweetest spirited women I have ever known, who gave her niece the truest care and attention any child could have had. Her mother could not have done more or better by her. She was trained for the church and Christ. She was, indeed, a devout Christian. Last fall in a meeting in Marion, La., held by Bros. J. G. Sloan and Finnity, she professed the blessing of entire Love for Christ and His cause. In all her life after that she beautifully exemplified this great and high experience. I do not remember to have ever seen such affection shown anyone as was by all the young people of her town. Both young men and ladies, alike wept at her coffin. She was laid to rest in the Sharon Cemetery, near where she was born, by her mother and other relatives. She leaves a father, four half brothers, one half sister, and a great number of relatives and friends to mourn her departure. Our loss is her eternal gain. May the blessings of the Head of the Church be with all concerned.

Yours in Christ,
W. T. WOODWARD, Pastor.

Brother Tom Franklin and wife, of Bernice, were called upon to give up their youngest child, Tom, Jr., Sunday evening, at 5:30 P. M. The little fellow had been sick only a few days. It was a great shock to the devoted parents to give the little fellow up. He was two and a half years old, consequently was tender and knew nothing of this world and its hardships. He was the grandson of our Brother Franklin, once of our Conference.

Yours in Christ,
W. T. W. WOODWARD, P. C.

Brother JAMES S. HENRY, son of Brother Robert Henry, was born in Alabama, May 24, 1847. His father moved to this state while he was a small boy, and settled in Union parish, some twelve miles south of Farmerville, where Brother Henry has spent his life. He died Feb. 21, 1906. He was married to Miss Anne E. Hester, Dec. 1866, by whom he had thirteen children. She and twelve of the children still live. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in his boyhood, under the pastorate of Rev. Robert Parish, and has lived a consistent member of it all of his life. I first knew Brother Henry thirty-seven years ago. His father was a member of my board of stewards at that time, and he had married and was living near his father. Some two or three years ago, as presiding elder, I met him again in quarterly conference and renewed our acquaintance. I was with him until a few hours before his death. Being on the other extreme of the work when I reached him he was unconscious and gave no expression as to his faith, but a life like his, while we would rejoice to have them, needs no such expressions to assure us. It carries its evidence with and his works follow him. He is greatly missed by the church and his family. May God comfort his family and fulfill his place in the church and community.

ROBERT RANDLE, Pastor.
Downsville, La.

Mrs. KATE PHILLIPS, the daughter of S. T. and Delony Dennis, was born April 21, 1885. She was married March 26, 1905, to Mr. John Phillips. She leaves an infant daughter about a month old. She has been a member of our Lawrence Church for many years, and was a consistent member. The dead was in peace. The remains were buried in the cemetery at Lawrence, Miss. Her home was at Lawrence, and is the home of her parents and a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. A large crowd was present at the services. Death came to her suffering body June 7, 1906. In the midst of their great sorrow may Godlikeness and sustain them by His grace.

C. McDONALD.

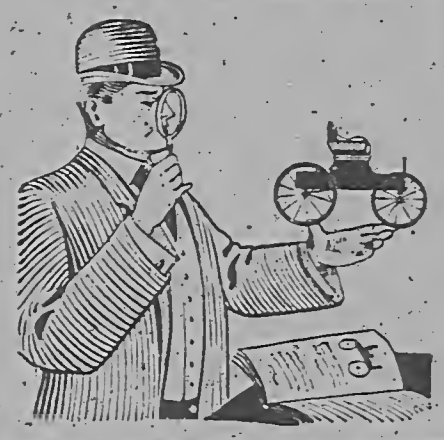
WILLIAM THOMPSON MORRIS, son of Rev. George W. and Mrs. Mary L. Morris, was born in Lawrence County, Alabama, January 2, 1831, and died in Port Gibson, Miss., May 27, 1906. He was converted when a boy under the ministry of Rev. John Newland, Maffett joined the M. E. Church, South, at Batesville, Ark., and remained a devoted member to the day of his death. For more than thirty years he held an official position in the church, and was true to the trust imposed in him. The church and pastor have lost a true helper and friend. Brother Morris loved his Bible. On the fly-leaf we found this entry: "Oct. 18, 1904. I have read the Bible through several times, and this day start to read it through again. I pray the good Lord to guide, direct and help me read it prayerfully and in correct mind and spirit so as to be benefited thereby in all respects." He came to Port Gibson in 1854; married Octavia May McCaleb, daughter of the late Judge T. H. McCaleb, in 1858. He leaves a wife, four daughters, two sons, and a sister to mourn his departure. They know where he has gone, and it is their privilege to meet him in the home beyond.

W. H. LEWIS.

At 1:10 A. M. of the 18th inst., death came into the quiet village of Mt. Pleasant and took its most aged inhabitant, Mrs. Jane Hinton. Her death was a sudden shock to all, although she had been sick for several days. She had been in very feeble health for the past two or three years, yet we had not looked for her death at this time. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for seventy-three years, during which time she had been one of her most loyal and obedient members. She was converted when but a little girl of thirteen, and had for seventy-three years walked with Christ, talked to Him, and had constantly leaned upon His strong and protecting arm, confiding in His tender love and mercy. Her pilgrimage here has been a pure, upright, harmless walk with nature, and one true, faithful, obedient walk with God and her Christ. When she saw the shade of the eye of life coming over her, she bade her dear children, her sons-in-law, her daughters-in-law, her grandchildren and her great-grandchildren all good-bye; then leaning her mortal head against the tender and loving bosom of her Christ, she fell asleep, while her soul swept out beyond pain, sorrow and death to live a life clothed with immortality forever and ever. Our church at this place has never during its history, sustained so great a loss. The oldest and choicest member of our flock has been taken, and we ask an interest in the prayers of all the readers of the Advocate that God may help us bear our great sorrow.

W. L. STORMENT, P. C.

SKEPTICISM.



It is better to believe everything a man says than to believe nothing. The crucial test comes and the true things accepted on faith will greatly aid you in life's battles in time. Believe everything rather than reject everything.

Physician to the Late Pope Leo XIII., and Now Physician in Ordinary to Pope Pius X., Finds

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Of "Marvelous Efficacy in Gout, Rheumatism, Gastro-intestinal Dyspepsia, and in all the Various Forms of Uric Acid Diathesis."

Following is an Exact Translation of Dr. Lapponi's Testimonial as Written by Himself:

ROME, August 24, 1903.—In the Hospital of San Giovanni Calibrita (del Fatebene Fratelli) in Rome, directed by myself, I have largely experimented with the natural mineral water placed in commerce under the name of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER and am glad to be able to attest that, by its richness of composition of lithia, it is of marvelous efficacy in cases of Gout, of Chronic, Articular, and Muscular Rheumatism, of Hepatic Congestions and Functional Disorders, of Gastro-intestinal Dyspepsia, of Gravel and Renal Insufficiency, of light Nephritic Affections and of all the various forms of Uric Acid Diathesis.

The same water is also to be recommended highly in the initial processes of Arterio-sclerosis and in obstinate forms of Bronchial Asthma.

May also be used as a good table water. So much I declare for the truth.

(Signed) PROF. GIUSEPPE LAPPONI.

Principal Physician of the Hospital of San Giovanni Calibrita (del Fatebene Fratelli) in Rome, Member of the Academy of Medicine of Rome, etc., etc.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is for sale by Grocers and Druggists, generally. Testimonials which defy all imputation or question sent to any address.

We Are Specialists

In the treatment of Chronic Diseases of men and women. Having devoted over 20 years to their study and treatment, built up a practice which we believe is second to none in this country, and from the many letters of endorsement received from people we have cured, we feel that we offer every chance possible of a cure. Our methods are all modern and up-to-date—absolutely the best medical science affords. We hold diplomas from the leading medical colleges of America.

Our practice is conducted on the highest ethical basis. We make no wild, extravagant statements that we can cure every disease mankind is subject to, make promises we cannot fulfill, deceptive propositions, misleading statements, etc. Our reputation and standing, both professionally and financially, is of the very highest, and firmly established.

If you have any disease of a chronic nature, consult us. We will give you our expert opinion of your case free and tell you frankly just what we can do for you. We specially solicit severe and difficult cases. WE DO NOT DEAL IN PATENT MEDICINES, but prepare in our own private laboratory special treatment to suit the conditions of each case. Our recent publication on "Nervous Diseases and Health" free on application, also examination blank "A" for men and "B" for women. We always advise a personal examination. How to Make Money.

You should make money and make it fast by selling a DISHWASHER, an article more valuable in a household than a sewing machine. It does away with the drudgery of the kitchen and makes dishwashing a pleasure. By selling these goods your Profits Double Your Investment. Agents are making from $2.50 to $5 a day selling these goods. People pay $50 for a sewing machine which often stands idle for weeks; whereas, a Dishwasher is used three times every day. How quickly they will pay $5 for one that will save that amount in dishes every year. You cannot break or chip dishes in this Dishwasher. In about five minutes you wash and dry your dishes and silverware ready to be put away. Write to the MOUND CITY DISHWASHER CO., Dept. 730-K, St. Louis, Mo. They will give you all particulars. Agents wanted everywhere.

LESSON FOR JULY 15TH.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

(Luke x. 25-27.)

This tenth chapter of Luke is a wonderful chapter for study. Although our particular attention is called to the good done the man who was beaten by the robbers and the feeling that prompted the good action on the part of the Samaritan, we are to study why the priest and Levite passed by on the other side and seemed to shun the suffering one.

No action of pity, commiseration or charity, followed by words of relief, comes from any other source but from the spirit of Christ that dwelleth in man. The Kingdom of God and of Christ is very far off from any that consider works of love and compassion as too much trouble, and that take the trouble to pass by on the other side.

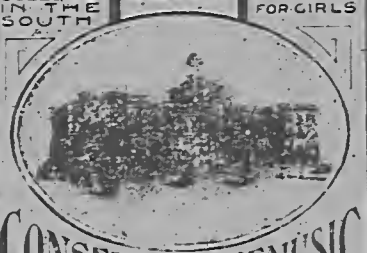
This chapter begins by telling us of the Lord sending out the seventy of His disciples, who were to go, two by two, into the cities where He should afterwards come. Before their departure they were being especially instructed as to their duties. They must have been chosen by the Master from among the most faithful and most devoted, and also the most capable of performing a mission much like that of John the Baptist. They were to be forerunners also, though on a more limited plan. Their instructions were particular in every point. Salutation first, then conduct as regards manners, etc., and then of ministering to the needy and to the distressed. Jesus knew beforehand of those cities and people that would not hear or heed the preaching of the seventy, and prophesied the end that should come to them. This teaching and this preaching is the principle that prompts every act of the follower of Christ. No one suffering, be he in whatever condition of life, high or low, shall ever be passed by on the other side and left to suffer and get aid as best he can.

Of this kind, the ones that have the spirit of Christ dwelling within, was the Samaritan who was so kind to the unfortunate one that fell among thieves. All of this love among mankind, this gentleness and compassion for the suffering was the outcome of the doctrine of Jesus; and the Lord thanked the Father in Heaven that all these wonderful and beautiful things that came to the lives of His followers are hid from the wise and prudent and are revealed unto babes. Nicodemus was from among the wise and prudent, and it was hid from him until he came personally to the Lord and was taught precepts that changed the whole tenor of his life. From among the wise and prudent comes the lawyer who "Stood up and tempted Jesus, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" He stood up in an attitude of pride, knowing the answer to the question. He knew as far as the letters of the law gave him knowledge, but the Spirit, which giveth life was hid from him. He used the word "inherit," as much as to say that under certain conditions eternal life could be attained as a right, when we know that it is a gift of God. What did this lawyer know of the broken and contrite heart of a repentant sinner? The fact that he could only be saved by grace was hid from him. The one that smote himself on the breast and prayed "God be merciful to me a sinner," was better off. Jesus a moment after, taught him that God could be best served by doing good to His unfortunate and suffering creatures. When the seventy returned they were filled with joy at what had been accomplished by faith and love. So powerful was their work that Jesus seemed to say in soliluy, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." One of these seventy would not have passed by on the other side. Henceforth those who would be God's ministers should seek to serve in love.

It was not thus with the ministers under the old dispensation; their number was seventy also, for they were chosen after the plan of Moses when he chose seventy of the elders of the people to assist him in administering the laws of the children of Israel.

For centeries this class had read and studied the law in the light of justice untempered with mercy, until there was a cold formality in all the temple worship and in all the teaching of the scribes and the Pharisees and lawyers; to love one's neighbor as one's self had no place, as Jesus taught it in the parable under our study today. To pass the time away, and out of idle curiosity, the lawyer asked, "What must I do to inherit eternal life?" After Jesus had ascended up to heaven, and after Peter had preached the first gospel sermon those that heard were "Pricked in their heart" and cried out, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

It was this great difference that the lawyer had never seen, and that was shown him by the parable of the good Samaritan.



He must have gone away with much the same thought as did Nicodemus when he left Jesus after the interview by night.

We need not ask who is our neighbor; he is everywhere, all around us—not only he that is poor and needy from the lack of this world's goods but he that is blind to the great love wherewith Jesus loves us. He may be in our own home. We may meet Him every day as we go about our work. We may work alongside of Him. It is the personal work with Him that we are best acquainted with which the most effective work for Christ is to be done. Is there much of it done? Let us seek opportunities to do the work. We must not leave the whole work of the conversion of sinners to the pastor. The preached gospel is the power of God unto salvation, but the pulpit is not the only place from which it must be preached. Your manner of living is your sermon. Your influence among those with whom you come in daily contact must be used for the Master you serve. There is no halfway ground these days. The world knows whether you are loyal to Christ without your saying whether you are or not. Let us awake, for the time is short. Can we look back over the years that are past and call to mind any that have been led to Christ by our word or influence? How sweet it would be to think that there are some in Heaven today, who were started on the road there by a word or a kind act from us. O, what a privilege we have to engage in a work that "angels desire to look into." It is possible for us, here on earth, to add to the joy of those in heaven by bringing the unconverted to Christ. God is love, and when love for our neighbor is in our hearts, we love God in our hearts.

Let us resolve that never more will we pass by on the other side of him who needs, whether it be poverty of body or soul. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy" are the words of Jesus. He lets us so often measure our bressings out to ourselves. May God help us to meet the solemn responsibility that ever rests upon us as followers of Jesus.

"ONE DOSE CONVINCES."

BERNICE, LA.

Dear Doctor: I thought a note from this end of the field would be of interest to some of our brethren. We are making headway along different lines on this new charge (Bernice Circuit.) We have been hindered some this spring on account of smallpox. We lost one of our best men, Brother J. B. Williams, of Hico, La.

Our Children's Day at Bernice, under the wise management of James F. Cooper and his faithful corps of teachers, was considered by all who attended a brilliant success in every sense. The children were well trained by Messrs. Geo. D. Jones, W. T. Woodward, and Miss Eda Jamerson. Then, they followed that up by one of the finest Sunday-school picnics it has ever been my good fortune to attend.

We have secured through our agent here twenty-odd subscribers to the New Orleans Advocate, and I add a few to that number even now and then.

We have had two additions to date by certificate. We have completed, throughout, one of the prettiest churches in the Arcadia District. We laid the foundation May 1, and completed the work all through, except putting the sash and frames in May 31. We have a beautiful altar and pulpit, a nice new organ, six dozen new hymn books, three dozen Methodist Hymnals, and three dozen "Victory Belles," a new bell, nice factory-made pews, Gothic windows, etc. It cost us a little less than $1,500. The Building Committee consisted of the following brethren, of whom I cannot say too much in their praise. A more faithful, loyal set of men, I have never before labored with. Not a cross word nor a misunderstanding from beginning to end. It seemed what one wanted the whole body did, and thus they worked. They are A. R. Autry, J. W. Tubb, Dr. Henry N. Harper, B. W. Holton, M. A. Nelson, and R. L. Cox.

Brother Cox was Chairman; Tubb, Treasurer, and Nelson, Secretary. Everything was made a matter of record, so that we can see and know what everything cost and where it came from. Brother Tubb and myself were the collectors, and I don't think we passed anyone by. We will not write any more this time.

Yours in Christ,

W. T. WOODWARD, P. C.

Men bow before talent, even if unassociated with goodness, but between these two we must make an everlasting distinction. When once the idolatry of talent enters, then farewell to spirituality; when men ask their teachers, not for that which will make them more humble and God-like, but for the excitement of an intellectual banquet, then farewell to Christian progress.—F. 35th Annual Camp Meeting,

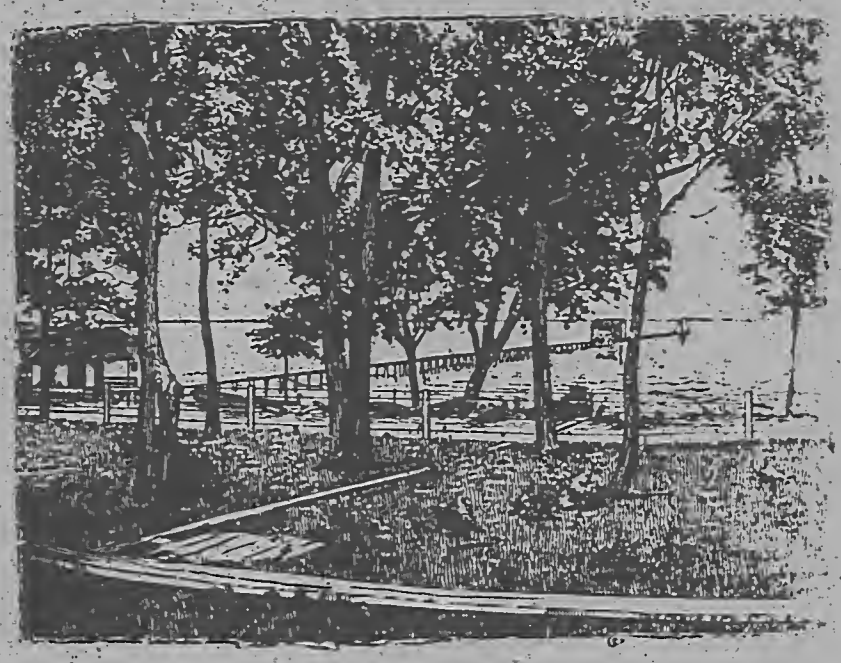
SEASHORE CAMP GROUND, JULY 11-19.



The management announce the Thirty-fifth Annual Camp Meeting, Seashore Camp Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 11, and continuing until about July 20. The cottages and grounds have been put in thorough order, and other improvements made, looking to the comfort and convenience of those who attend this meeting.

The religious services are under the direction of the Presiding Elders of the New Orleans, Seashore and Mobile District Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and these brethren will be assisted by the best preaching talent that can be obtained. It is hoped that one or two of the Bishops will be present; in all probability Bishop Candler.

Preaching under the Tabernacle Grove, Grove and Cottage Prayer Meetings, and other religious services, will be held during each day and evening, to which all persons on the grounds are not only cordially invited, but are expected to attend.

Seashore Epworth League Assembly, July 25 to Aug. 5.

The Seashore Annual Epworth League Assembly will be held on the Seashore Camp Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 25, and continuing until Aug. 5. Great good has been accomplished by these meetings from year to year, and it is expected that the meeting of this year will yield larger results than yet attained. All Leaguers, young people and others interested, are earnestly and cordially invited to be present, and share in the glorious results.

RAILROAD RATES.

The Louisville and Nashville, and connections within a radius of about 400 miles, will sell round-trip tickets to Seashore Camp Ground (Biloxi) at greatly reduced rates. For detailed information apply to your railroad agent.

LOCATION.

The Seashore Camp Ground is located on the Mississippi Sound, seventy-nine miles from New Orleans and sixty-two miles from Mobile, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and is one of the most beautiful places on the Gulf Coast. It enjoys a railroad service that is unexcelled for comfort and convenience. A magnificent artesian well furnishes cool and life-giving water from a depth of many hundred feet, and by a perfect system of water works the cottages and hotel are furnished with this water direct from the well. The hotel has a frontage of one hundred and sixty feet on the beach. A multitude of magnificent shade trees temper the noon-day sun, and at night numerous electric lights dispel the darkness and illuminate the roads and pathways that intersect the Grounds. A new pier twelve hundred and forty feet in length, with a Summer house on the end, extends out into the Gulf, and offers positively the most delightful advantages in the South for a promenade. The bathing is unexcelled by any other point on the gulf. All parties residing on the grounds have the privilege of the bath-houses. Good board can be secured at the restaurant, which is in charge of a competent chef, and in private houses at reasonable rates. The comforts and conveniences of all visitors will be carefully looked after.

All Methodist preachers will be admitted into the Grounds, and provided with board and lodging free of charge during Camp Meeting.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before the rush of opening of Camp Meeting should address communications to R. G. Price, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the undersigned officers.

*MEET ME IN HEAVEN.

I am leaving the scenes of earth,
  Its toil, its pain and its care:
I go to a brighter world—
  Dear ones, meet me there!

Then we'll walk those golden streets,
  We'll roam the shimmerin' sea:
We'll talk of the days that are past—
  The sorrows from which we are free.

Earth's baffled hopes and plans,
  That we could not here understand.
Will be clear in the vision of light,
  That we'll have in that heavenly land.

We'll know then the tearful nights,
  The days of sorrow and pain:
Were sent by a Father's love
  To work out our eternal gain.

We will see Him as He is—
  The Savior we've loved so long—
Oh, glorious thought: we'll be like Him!
  When we join that heavenly throng!

Remember, I am waiting for you—
  Not a strand of my love will be riven—
I'll be watching to welcome you there,
  When you come to meet me in heaven.

*Words of a dying friend.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

The new Board of Trustees for Centenary College, made necessary by the transfer of the college by the old Board to the Legal Conference of the Louisiana Conference, authorized Dr. Chas. C. Miller to continue as president of the college until the meeting of the Annual Conference. They requested him to withhold his conditional resignation and to take the necessary steps to open the next session at the usual time, and to carry on the college. In a letter to me he says: "I have held the matter of the college under consideration, and have determined to secure a faculty and open up the college on Sept. 12."

Though by so doing, he makes a great personal sacrifice, he believes it to be his "duty to the college and the Church to undertake the work." He further says: "Now, Doctor, I am going to do my best and I want your co-operation and the co-operation of every member of the Louisiana Conference, who will assist me."

As president of the new Board, I am free to declare that President Miller has a perfect right to expect co-operation and all needful help from the Methodists of Louisiana. Of course, not otherwise can the preachers do than to invite President Miller to occupy their pulpits, and then to heartily second his efforts to secure pupils and money from within the bounds of their charges.

Centenary College, with all of its belongings, is now the property of the Louisiana Conference, subject only to such conditions as are contained in its charter. We have always been told by its presidents, agents and orators that it was the college" being the familiar and oft-repeated phrase; but, since the compromise was made and became the judgment of the court, and the transfer to the Legal Conference has also been made and recorded, we do now know that Centenary is indeed ours. Surely then, between now and the convening of the next Annual Conference, we should, one and all, do our utmost to help President Miller in his difficult task, and do it regardless of whatever may have been said or done in the past.

At Shreveport, in December, the Louisiana Conference, we suppose, will exercise its right to do as it thinks best with its college, always, of course, within legal bounds. If the pulpits of our churches are opened to Miller, and our people have opportunity to give liberal financial aid; and if the Methodist boys and girls shall be forthcoming as pupils at Centenary; then, there is surely a successful session ahead for the old college.

Both sides of the Centenary question should now unite on this: we will do our very best for our college during the five months left of the Conference year.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

June 28, 1906.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

Dear Brethren of the Louisiana Conference and Members of the Methodist Church in Louisiana: Hithertofore I have not "rushed into print" on the Centenary question, but as the matter has been finally settled and the college is to remain at Jackson, La., I believe it my duty to the Church, the college, and the Methodists of Louisiana to give the exact status of affairs to all concerned. In order to be clearly understood, it will be necessary for me to relate briefly the steps leading up to final settlement of the question:

In December, 1904, at the Lake Charles Conference, a commission was formed "with power to negotiate with Shreveport or its representatives for the consummation of an agreement as to the terms for location of the college of the Louisiana Conference, of the M. E. Church, South, in the city of Shreveport, La."

In January, 1905, the Shreveport Commission entered into a contract with the Progressive League at Shreveport, based on the removal of Centenary College from Jackson, La., to the city of Shreveport. During the month of May, 1905, the late Bishop John C. Keener, President of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College, with other members of the Board, enjoined the removal of the college from Jackson to Shreveport.

During the month of November last the matter was brought into court, and a mutual compromise was entered into by the contending parties, and the judgment of the court was rendered in accordance with that compromise. In January, 1906, the compromise was ratified by a vote of the Annual Conference at its session at New Orleans. The Board of Trustees, at its regular meeting in June, transferred the college to the Annual Conference, in accordance with the terms of the compromise and the resolution of the Annual Conference.

The college is now the property of the M. E. Church, South. The members of the Board of Trustees have tendered their resignations in order that the Church might have full sway. I tendered my resignation as president of Centenary College "to take effect at the next meeting of the Louisiana Annual Conference, or at such time previous to the meeting of the Conference as another president and faculty shall be elected." My resignation was referred to the new Board of Trustees to be elected. The Legal Conference, through Dr. Sawyer, its president, accepted the property on the part of the Church. The Legal Conference met in the city of New Orleans, its domicile, and ratified the act of its president in accepting title to the property. The original act of purchase by Judge McGehee, the Clinton compromise, and the Charter of Centenary College at Jackson, La., were embodied in the deed and made a part of same.

A new Board of Trustees was elected and I am in receipt of a letter from Dr. Sawyer, president of the new Board, informing me that the new Board of Trustees request me to withhold my resignation until Conference and authorizes me to go right on and make necessary arrangements for the coming session of the college.

Now, brethren; my appeal is to you. I have sent each of you a pamphlet setting forth the full text of the deed of transfer. I have nothing to argue and no further comment to make. I have thought the matter over carefully as to my remaining in charge of affairs at Centenary until Conference. I fully realize the difficulties of the situation, but am thoroughly convinced that by a united effort on the part of the Board of Trustees, the preachers of the Louisiana Conference, and the Methodists of Louisiana, Centenary can be filled with students.

Centenary College has wonderful vitality and recuperative power. Other colleges, possessed of endowment, are struggling for existence. Centenary, unendowed, and with its forces disunited, not only lives but does magnificent work. Its last session was unexcelled in class-work and moral conduct. Not one case of discipline, nor was one demerit given during the entire session.

Centenary will open on Sept. 12 with a competent faculty. One good brother has sent us names of boys to whom he wants catalogues sent. Let every preacher in the Louisiana Conference and every Methodist in the State of Louisiana assist us in securing students. Give us your moral and financial support. Send your boy to Centenary. Induce your neighbor to send his son. Send us the names of boys whom you think ought to be at Centenary, and whom you will try to induce to attend college at Centenary, and we will send them catalogues. The moral and intellectual environment at Centenary College approximates an ideal perfection—no saloons, no houses of ill-fame, no Sunday base ball, no gambling halls. Healthful locality, pure morals, splendid intellectual training, and Christianity are some of the things for which Centenary College stands.

nary College stands.

C. C. MILLER.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

This body met in the city of Amory, Miss., July 28, and continued in session four days, including Sunday. Rev. J. H. Mitchell, P. E., presided. Sixteen of the nineteen pastors were present, and twenty-two laymen out of the one hundred, were also present. The first day was devoted to a discussion of Sunday-schools, Epworth Leagues and the Woman's Foreign Missionary work.

The cause of education received careful attention. A strong deliverance was made on our relation to Millsaps College and to Grenada College. Pres. W. L. Clifton gave us a 40-minute speech on "Fads, Fancies, Facts and Fundamental Philosophy of Education." The presiding elder followed with an earnest plea for an endowment fund for Grenada College, and $800 was subscribed.

Delegates to the Annual Conference are S. T. Harkey, F. J. McDonnell, P. W. Shell, Dr. J. C. Gathings. Alternates, L. C. Suggs, J. B. May.

The Woman's Home Mission Society had an hour Friday afternoon. J. W. Raper represented the Superannuate Endowment Fund, and T. W. Lewis spoke on Church Extension, showing that of the 535½ church houses belonging to us, 220 have received aid from the Church Extension fund. He urged the necessity of full collections.

I. W. Collins was licensed to preach, and L. W. Hankins was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

J. W. Raper, W. E. M. Brogan, K. A. Jones, J. H. Mitchell, N. G. Augustus, J. E. Cunningham and T. W. Lewis preached during the Conference. Amory entertained us royally. She would make Shipman a Bishop, if she could. Next Conference at Shannon.

T. W. LEWIS, Sec.

LETTER FROM GILDEROY.

Brother Boswell: You ought to take a day or two off and come up into this fine country and see the finest crops you ever saw grow out of the ground in all your life, both cotton and corn. Our people are not much on growing corn. They say one acre in cotton will bring money enough to buy as much corn as could be grown on three acres. They prefer to grow cotton and buy corn. An old-timer likes to see a crib full of corn. It would be difficult to starve with a crib full of corn and a smoke-house full of meat. I have a great liking for home-grown products.

Four miles out from this, on the Yazoo Pass, we have a new industry for this State, and so far as I know for the South. It is a rose and shrub farm. They now have two hundred and fifty acres in roses and shrubs, and in a year or two they will have one thousand acres set to roses and shrubs. They use the soft wood process of rooting all kinds of plants. It is a curiosity to a Southern man. The company is composed of Northern and Western men. The capital invested comes from the North and West. It is said to be a paying investment. They ship roses and shrubs all over the North and West, to Boston and New York, and last year they were not able to fill the orders that came for rose plants, yard shrubs and hedge stock. It is a sight to see two hundred acres of roses in bloom at one time. The inducement to come South with this industry is because they can get a larger growth of cuttings here in one year than they can in the North in two years. It saves time, and time is said to be money.

The soil along the Yazoo Pass, a tortuous outlet from Moon Lake to Cold Water River, is a black, sandy loam, and admirably adapted to growing roses and shrubs. This farm is in the northeast corner of Coahoma County, and lies along the railroad from Helena, Ark., to Jonestown, Miss. This road crosses the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road here in Lula. Governor Allcorn once owned the land where the rose farm now is and it was then one of the finest cotton farms in all of this rich bottom country. The time is near at hand when our ladies can get all the roses and shrubs they want in a few hours' ride of their own homes.

Come up and I will drive you out to this farm. After we have seen this farm we will go to Moon Lake, where you can hook some trout and white perch. I will row the boat for you. I never fish or hunt. It is too slow work for a nervous man. If you would like to read a tender, charming short fishing story, send to the Publishing House and get "Fishing Jimmy," and let your heart melt while you read it. It is juicy and sweet.

The health of the country here is fine. Most people in the hills have an idea that this bottom country is a grave-yard, and that the people here are sick all the time. I have been a pastor and presiding elder forty-seven years of my life, and there is less sickness here than in any charge I ever served.

My membership and constituency number about three hundred, and in nineteen months there has been but one serious case of sickness and one death among them. Three other persons, all over eighty years old, have been sick enough to need pastoral attention. I consider this a remarkable record for any section of Mississippi, or any part of the South. Some of my friends in the hills are unduly exercised about my health in the bottom. I am splendidly well, living on the fat of the land, and as happy as a lark.

I am sure we have as cheerful people here as you will find in any country on the globe. Some friends write and say: "You will die down there," and so I will if I stay till dying time comes. The fact is, I will die, no matter where I go. This is just as good a place to die as any other. For my own part, I am perfectly willing to spend the rest of my days in the Delta.

It would be hard to find a more generous, magnanimous, noble-hearted people than live here. They are about as religious as most people who are in a great rush to make money. They need the Gospel, and they ought to have it—must have it. Yours, GILDEROY.

THE CHURCH'S STRONG ARM IN MIDDLE AND SOUTH LOUISIANA.

Mr. Editor: For some time I have been thinking of writing on this subject, as I trust it may do good in the way of increasing zeal in the Sunday-school work. Our work in middle and south Louisiana is a peculiar work, not like most of our Louisiana work. Here, our Methodism is surrounded on every side by the Roman Catholics, and while these do not in person attend our services to any great extent, nor do they in any way give us any considerable amount of attention, yet the influence of their moral lives is like unto leaven in meal, permeating the moral life of our churches, and, like the spider that weaves his web, a thing of beauty, having for his purpose the destruction of the unwary fly, so the spirit of this worldliness sends its poison throughout the life of the church, and destroys, or undertakes to destroy, that God-like character that is so essential to Christian development and Christian life. And, seeing the matter as I see it, the great trouble here is not to get the people to come to church so much as to prepare the people for church.

And there is no place so eminently fitted for this preparation as the Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues of our church. And while we need them here to assist in the doctrinal education of our children, we need them where our church is established, so that as she sends out her life in her members who go out from the centers to the rural districts, and to the districts that are hostile to our Protestantism, they may go thoroughly informed in our doctrines and polity, and be as towers of strength in the midst of worldliness and sin.

When we fail to teach the children, when we fail to make them strong against this worldliness, we may be sure that they will be swallowed up by the throng as it passes, or, equally as bad, they sulk and ask, what harm? What harm in the theatre? What harm in the dance? What harm in cards? What harm in drink? Why are we to be so strict while there are church people who indulge in all these practices.

Our people must be saved from worldliness. And the best way to do this is to train them up in the way they should go. Let Methodists know and love their doctrines, and teach them diligently unto their children, and thus prepare them to take their places in society as towers of strength.

AN ANOMALOUS MOVEMENT.

Dear Bro. Boswell: Permit me to say that your editorial in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of June 7th, on the "Restatement of Our Doctrines," was timely and to the point. Next to the truths of the Bible do I revere the Twenty-five Articles of the Methodist Formula. Why? Because they were born in the greatest revival the world has ever seen, evolved by an apostle of inspiration, and have stood invincible as the rock of Gibraltar against error and unbelief. Yea, they have been the great rock foundation and bulwark of the mightiest religious force of the ages—a force of omnipotence that came suddenly, like angels from heaven to throttle the superstitious errors of a thousand years. And because their potency has put to flight the "armies of the aliens," converted the wilderness into a garden and given new opportunity of eternal life to the world. We can no more "superannuate" the Methodist Confession of Faith, or any part thereof, than we can the doctrines of St. Paul. This confessional was forged by divine power through labyrinthian error at the expense of the blood of martyrs.

"All we have of freedom—all we use or know—
This our fathers bought for us, long and long ago."

Brother Cunningham, in defending "Revolution," utterly fails to discern that there is not the slightest analogy between the conditions of the several periods of revolution mentioned by him—the Lutheran, Wesleyan, etc.—and those of the present movement. They were cloudbursts of divine power reviving corrupt and dying ecclesiasticisms—this—what? echo answers "what?" "I fear you Methodist brethren are undertaking a dangerous thing," said a Presbyterian minister to Dr. Boswell. So do I. While I do not in the least impugn the motives of the advocates for "restatement," yet, it is the "entering wedge" that will open the way for a poisonous stream of error to the heart of our Confession of Faith.

This movement is anomalous in the history of religious revolutions, and is rather, I fear, a step backward, instead of forward. Dr. Hunnicutt suggests that "the Old Testament was not superannuated by the introduction of the New, but expanded and perfected, rather." Then, by a parity of reasoning, "the old Methodist Formula need not be superannuated by the introduction of the new, but expanded and perfected, rather." But mind you, it was the Divine hand that added the New Testament to the Old; whose hand is this that shall add the new Methodist creed to the old! The old Methodist Formula came to us from the hand of God; but what man may assume to add thereto or subtract therefrom?

There is a sinister touch in this movement that gives me the "shivers." What! Do we propose to nibble at a creed that revolutionized Great Britain in half a century, and laid the foundation of American liberty? Shall puny hands tamper with a formulary of doctrine, the preaching of which was witnessed to by the Holy Ghost with tongues of fire from the Atlantic to the Pacific? Will not the preaching of the same creed do it yet? Are not these fruits satisfying? What is the desideratum some brethren would have by a change? Did early Methododism win her great conquests by assimilating with universal creeds? Brethren, Methodism is a child of God! The Shekinah of Jehovah shines in glory above the mercy-seat. Let us keep our hands off the ark.

"All the right they promise, all the wrong they bring, Stewards of the judgment, suffer not this king."

THE PARIS OF SOUTH AMERICA.

BY REV. GEO. O. PARKER.

We are so accustomed to thinking of South America as a land of revolutions, yellow fever, monkeys, snakes and parrots that we may have forgotten, if indeed we ever knew, that Buenos Aires, the capital of the Argentine Republic, is larger than any city in the United States excepting only New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, and on account of its size, beauty, life and progress is called the "Paris of South America," which title it proudly bears.

We think of all of South America as the tropics, but the Argentine Republic is almost entirely in the temperate zone, being two thousand miles south of the equator, and enjoys a delightful climate.

Although five thousand miles south of New York and in a foreign country, one can scarcely realize that he is not on Broadway as he is jostled along by the immense crowd or dodges the numerous automobiles on "Avenida Mayo," which is the city's principal boulevard; its imposing public buildings, palatial club houses, mammoth department stores and magnificent private homes will not suffer any comparison with those of any avenue in the world. Beautiful parks, modern hotels, progressive daily papers in Spanish and English, excellent public and private schools, libraries and museums, handsome churches, extensive electric street car system, splendid telephone and electric light facilities all tend to make one forget that he is next door to Patagonia, on the dark and "Neglected Continent" of South America.

The entire population of the Argentine is only about five millions, of which one million are in Buenos Aires, and as one-fifth of the entire population is composed of foreigners, Italians, Spanish, French, Swiss, English, Austrians and others, it is easy to account for the cosmopolitan character of the capital. English influence is very strong, especially in financial circles, and the Anglo-Saxon type is seen and the English language heard almost as frequently as the Latin. French influence naturally is very strong in social circles as Paris is the Mecca to which all prosperous South Americans hope to journey; the latest Parisian fashions prevail. There are a great many wealthy and influential Italians in Buenos Aires and a magnificent equestrian statue of Garibaldi in bronze, a fac-simile of the one in Rome, guards the entrance to "Palermo," an immense public park in the suburbs laid out with exquisite taste.

The river de la Plata (silver river) widens into what seems to be a great gulf at Buenos Aires, and at Montevideo, where it empties into the sea, it is said to be about one hundred miles wide, thus affording a magnificent, safe and ample harbor for steamers of every tonnage. Our steamer had to carefully thread her way through the hundreds of great ocean liners lying three deep in some places at the docks which are about five miles long, costing twenty-five millions of dollars to construct, and among the finest in the world. Steamers representing all the commercial nations of the world are constantly loading and discharging cargo, using the latest electrical and compressed air apparatus for the purpose. The chief exports are wheat, frozen beef and mutton, hides, skins, wool, live stock, flour, sugar, butter, etc. The principal imports are all kinds of European and American manufactured products; the country is chiefly engaged in agriculture and cattle raising and its manufacturing is in its infancy. Buenos Aires, however, is destined to become a great manufacturing center. The imports, in 1904 amounted to $205,000,000.

The Argentines have taken our Constitution as a model with some modifications. The President is elected for six years and is not eligible for re-election. The Senate and House of Deputies correspond practically to our Senate and House of Representatives. For about fifteen years the Argentine has not indulged in a revolution, that exciting, though sometimes bloodless, diversion of Latin-America; consequently the government is daily becoming more stable, safe and trustworthy. The Argentine has all the elements of a great commonwealth and is hastening to her destined place among the nations of the world.

A BIBLICAL SCHOOL FOR JAPAN.

To Whom It May Concern:

It gives me great pleasure to introduce Rev. M. Matsumoto, of Kobe, Japan, delegate to the General Conference and Professor in the Biblical Department of the Kwansei Gakuin, our college in Kobe.

Brother Matsumoto is a minister in good standing, a member of our Japan Annual Conference, and has the indorsement of the Board of Missions in the effort to raise a number of scholarships for needy and deserving students preparing for the ministry, at fifty dollars a year each, these scholarships to be specials, and over and above assessment. Any gifts for this purpose should be made payable to J. D. Hamilton, Treasurer Board of Missions, Nashville, Tenn., who will send his receipt.

This cause is a worthy one, and I commend both the work and Brother Matsumoto to your consideration.

W. R. LAMBUTH, Sec.

WESLEY HALL, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Dear Doctor: I ask the privilege of presenting to you the need of the Biblical Department of the Kwansei Gakuin, Kobe, Japan. This is the only school our Church has in Japan for the education of the native young men for the ministry. All of our native Conference men were trained in that institution except only two.

This institution tries to train well-qualified preachers and pastors for the salvation of forty-six millions of the people of that "Sunrising Empire," for Japan's most urgent and supreme need is trained ministers of the Gospel. This department also intends to educate some missionaries for Korea and China.

For this important work we must have at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for an endowment fund, for eleven scholarships, at $50 a year each, for needy and deserving students preparing for the ministry. The interest on $10,000 can produce $550 per annum. We must have at least this amount of money to carry on our work successfully in Japan.

The training of the Japanese ministers for the Japanese, I say again, is the most important work in Japan. Rev. J. C. C. Newton, D.D., one of our most beloved and honored leaders, is the Dean of this Department. The number of the enrolled students is twelve. We are greatly encouraged with the prospects.

Having the honor to be associated in this work, I now ask of you your earnest prayers and financial help for this most worthy cause. Hoping to hear a good answer from you soon,

Respectfully yours, M. MATSUMOTO.

POTTS CAMP, MISS.

Dear Doctor Boswell: We closed a meeting here at Potts Camp last Wednesday night of unusual interest and power. It is seldom we see so nearly the whole community interested. The meeting became the absorbing topic. Congregations increased until it became impossible to accommodate the people. Rev. R. A. Clark, of Columbus, was with us, and did all the preaching after the first day. I never knew a preacher to get a stronger hold on a congregation. He left here with the love and esteem of all classes. Many expressed a determination to live nearer the Lord and be more faithful in his service. There were twenty-one accessions to the Church on profession of faith. Of these, sixteen were baptized.

FROM PORT GIBSON.

Rev. H. A. Jones, Synodical Evangelist of the Presbyterian Church, of Mississippi, has just closed a very successful union meeting at this place. There were twenty-four professions of faith in Christ, the most of them being men. The membership of the churches was aroused to greater activity and loyalty. The result in accessions to the churches cannot be estimated. A men's prayer-meeting has been organized, which meets every Tuesday evening at six o'clock, in the Methodist Church. This meeting is conducted entirely by the laymen. A similar meeting is held by the women in the Presbyterian Church at the same time. We are expecting great good to grow out of these prayer-meetings.

The commencement of the Port Gibson Female College closed Monday morning with the graduating exercises. Rev. C. W. Crisler, of Natchez, preached the commencement sermon Sunday morning to a large and appreciative audience. It was an earnest Gospel sermon, calculated to do much good. Rev. T. B. Holloman, D. D., of Vicksburg, delivered the Baccalaureate address Monday morning, and there were many expressions of appreciation of this splendid address.

This closes the first session of the College under the management of Brother H. G. Hawkins. He has had a good faculty and thorough work has been done. The religious atmosphere of the College has been as good as will be found anywhere. The confidence of the citizens in the future success of the school has been increased, and as far as I know, the patrons have been satisfied.

An A. B. Course has been introduced for next session, and some of the graduates have expressed their purpose to return and take this advanced course of study. The faculty for next session will be strengthened by the presence and active co-operation of Brother Hawkins and his wife.

It is confidently expected that every room in the dormitory will be filled another year. The school can accomodate only sixty boarding students. To my mind, this is a great advantage to the school. It can be made more home-like for the girls, and each will receive more personal care and attention than can possibly be given in a larger school. A competent faculty will be employed; and as thorough work done as in the colleges in distant states. Let the Methodists of Mississippi be loyal to home institutions.

The many improvements in the general appearance of the buildings and campus were noted with pleasure by the visitors during commencement. A committee of the citizens of Port Gibson raised a nice amount a short while ago for this purpose, and it has been wisely expended. This old institution of learning has taken on new life, and we predict a future of large success.

W. H. LEWIS.

MERIDIAN COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

On Wednesday night, June 13, the College completed the most profitable year in its history. In reviewing the past session we have abundant cause for gratitude to the Father for the unusually favorable condition with which He has surrounded the work. The health record has been remarkable. Out of the large number of students there has not been one case of serious illness, but on the contrary, the majority of the girls have been strong, healthy and well-developed physically. Intellectually, the progress of the students has been equally gratifying. The class room work has been thorough and conscientious, and most of the students have formed habits of study which will prove invaluable to them. In many cases that spirit of scholarship, without which there can be no true mental growth, has been acquired and will henceforth serve as a stimulating forge toward the attainment of ends hitherto unthought-of.

The various departments of Music, Expression and Art have also done excellent work, as is shown by the improvement of the pupil. These branches are taught here not only because they are accomplishments, and possess what might be termed ornamental value, but chiefly because of their important place in a well-rounded education, and the mental development which comes from their study, and as a better preparation for God's service in the world. And the advancement in spiritual things this session has been marked.

As a climax to the year's work in such a school it was considered most fitting to spend the last days in worship and thanksgiving to God for his goodness. Beginning with Sunday, Rev. G. W. Matthews, presiding elder of Dublin, Ga., delivered a series of excellent sermons particularly helpful and beneficial to those desiring spiritual help. Religious services were held morning and afternoon, and the exercises of the two schools were given at night. Those who participated in the exercises deserve especial mention for the creditable way in which they performed their parts.

An interesting feature of the commencement was the military drill given by the students of the two Colleges. The visitors expressed themselves as delighted with the movements and the accuracy and general bearing of the students performing them. The graduating exercises of the two schools were held in the College auditorium Wednesday night. The most memorable part of the occasion was the address to the graduates of the two Colleges by President J. W. Beeson. Mr. Beeson endeavored to impress upon the members of the class the responsibility which rested upon them, in coming out from such a school, and urged that they fail not, but go unswervingly forward in the fulfillment of their mission of uplifting their fellow beings. As a last message and as a motto for future life he gave to them Isa. 50: 4: "The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary: he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth mine ear to hear as the learned." The address was full of good thoughts and could not fail to inspire those who heard.

The outlook for next year is exceedingly hopeful. Never has the College enjoyed brighter prospects than at present. Although there are sometimes discouragements to meet, we never cease to remember that the institution is in harmony with the Divine plan, and consequently cannot fail to succeed.

NOTICE.

To Presiding Elders and Preachers-in-Charge: Please remember to give every church an opportunity, before the meeting of the Annual Conference, to make a voluntary contribution to the Endowment Fund for Superannuates, as requested in letters mailed you this year. You will find a chapter in the new Discipline on this fund, and the law making obligatory the taking of this collection. Please give this matter your early attention.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.

The Century for July is well worthy of a place in every home, and in the traveling-bag of every tourist. The August number will be quite as interesting as any of its predecessors. A notice of the forthcoming issue says: "Mr. Charles Dormon Robinson, whose illustrations (one of them reproduced in color from the original pastel) of the San Francisco fire will appear in the August Century, has seen his home city burn four times. He was in the fires of 1851, 1853 and 1854, as well as in the much greater catastrophe of 1906. Mr. Robinson succeeded in making a painting of the recent fire when it was at its greatest height, on Thursday night, from 11 to 3 in the morning. He painted thirteen pastels also, several of which the August Century will reproduce." Be sure to secure a copy of the August Century.

CROWLEY DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The thirty-eighth session of the Crowley District Conference convened in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Lake Charles, La., June 21-24, 1906. The presiding elder, Rev. F. N. Parker, D. D., was in the chair. All the preachers in the District were present, except one, and most of the local preachers. One of the loved and honored superannuates, belonging to the District, Rev. John A. Miller, was present, and the old-young superannuate, Rev. Geo. Jackson, belonging to all the Districts, was with us.

Out of a lay membership of ninety-five, fourteen were present part of the time, and three of these were residents of the city where the Conference was held. This is to be deplored. Who will suggest a remedy? Prominence was given to the religious feature of the Conference and earnest sermons were preached by the brethren who occupied the pulpit at the stated hours.

Lake Charles entertained with open doors, open hearts, and lavish hospitality.

Julius Beadle and F. J. McCoy were licensed to preach.

W. L. Doss and J. W. Harper were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial. The following were elected lay delegates to the Annual Conference: A. M. Mayo, W. L. Doss, Sr., Rev. R. P. Howell, Wm. Beadle. Alternates, G. D. Price, B. F. Toler.

Licensing Committee for current year: J. D. Harper, W. W. Drake, J. E. Denson, J. I. Hoffpauir, O. A. Thrower and J. F. Foster.

The reports from various works show progress in most things.

The prevailing note was one of triumph, large expectations and renewed and more earnest efforts.

The improvement in the Crowley District, while seemingly not so rapid as in other portions of our Conference, is substantial and full of encouragement.

The next District Conference will be held at Lake Arthur.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference met as called for on the morning of June 27th, in Centenary Church, McComb City, Presiding Elder T. W. Adams in the chair. The Conference adjourned Friday afternoon, June 29, after a delightful session.

From a stand-point of attendance, this Conference was an entire success. Every pastor in the District was present, also a large number of earnest laymen and efficient local preachers. Whatever the local preachers are doing elsewhere, the indications are that in the Brookhaven District they are eminently useful.

The devotional features of the Conference were especially helpful from the service of prayer and song conducted by the presiding elder at the opening to the closing sermon of Bishop Seth Ward on Friday night. Impressive sermons were delivered by L. Carley, T. B. Clifford, R. F. Witt, Geo. H. Thompson and Bishop Ward.

During the Conference the following were recommended to the Annual Conference for Deacon's Orders and also for admission on trial: Charles J. Stapp, Joseph B. King, and Charles H. Herring. M. J. Miller was recommended to the Annual Conference for readmission. Bro. Miller made a report, showing an active year's work, having now engagements for nearly the entire summer in meetings.

Among the visitors to this Conference were G. W. Bachman, with "the books;" H. T. Carley, representing the Mississippi Conference Epworth League; Professor Sullivan, who made an enthusiastic report for Millsaps College; W. D. Dominick, our pastor at Liberty, and F. M. Bradley, student at Vanderbilt University. Of course, Dr. I. W. Cooper presented the report of Whitworth College, showing an excellent prospect for that institution. Reports of pastors show the District in excellent condition for this time of year. Many charges had had good revivals and all were planning, praying and expecting a great revival season during the summer.

There is every reason to believe the District will pay every claim in full with a healthy surplus in many places. Bishop Ward took the chair on Thursday afternoon. He made a most delightful impression on everyone. In a brotherly, unaffected, earnest manner he went into every detail of the work of the District. His addresses and his sermons were strong and impressive, and the Brookhaven District Conference is ready to report "concurrence" in the choice of the General Conference.

The entire day, Friday, was devoted to missions and every phase of the work was thoroughly discussed. In addition to the address of Bishop Ward, addresses were delivered on various phases of the work by H. B. Watkins, H. W. Featherstun and I. W. Cooper. Dr. Cooper's, on the Student Volunteer Convention, was an inspiration to every one.

The following licensing committee was elected: Geo. H. Thompson, I. W. Cooper, N. D. Skipper, Lyman Carley, and N. B. Harmon.

The election of lay-delegates to the Annual Conference resulted as follows: A. B. Connally, W. W. Robertson, N. E. Alford, L. E. and B. A. Summer. R. W. Millsaps and W. A. King were chosen alternates.

Silver Creek was chosen as the next place of meeting. The Conference was held in McComb City's handsome new church, whose pastor, N. B. Harmon, did everything possible for the comfort and convenience of the Conference. McComb City folks, led by Bros. Harmon and Simmons, made royal hosts, to whom every visitor owes more thanks than he can pay.

The accompanying resolutions were passed by the Conference and ordered published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, first. That this District Conference joins most heartily and insistently with the W. C. T. U., the King's Daughters and other charitable and reform organizations in the demand for the prohibition of the employment of little children in the factories; and that we, as preachers and laymen, will labor earnestly and persistently to secure such prohibition.

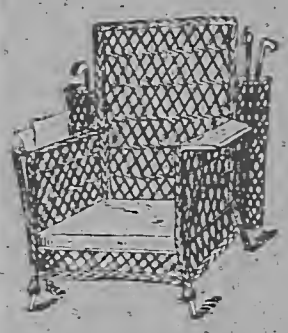
Resolved, second. That we are gratified that the Legislature, lately in session, passed laws that can be used to effectually prevent the C. O. D. liquor business, and to retard, if not stop, all forms of liquor shipment into our prohibition counties; and that we hereby pledge ourselves to co-operate in every effort to enforce these laws.

Resolved, third. That we heartily commend the circuit judges, especially Judges Cook, Cochran and Wilkinson, for the strong, brave and righteous efforts they are making for the rigid enforcement of all the laws, and especially of those against gambling and liquor selling; and that we hereby pledge them our sympathy, our prayers and our heartiest support in this good work.

Resolved, fourth. That we deprecate and heartily condemn the practice, far too prevalent among good men, of avoiding jury duty, leaving inefficient and often unworthy jurors to take their places, and thus good laws cannot be enforced by judges who are desirous of enforcing them; and we also condemn the signing too freely and often recklessly of petitions for the pardon of condemned criminals, thus oftentimes defeating all the efforts of the courts to enforce the law.

Resolved, fifth. That we condemn as lawless and dangerous that form of popular gambling more commonly engaged in by reputable women and generally spoken of as card clubs, and card parties, or whist or euchre clubs or parties; and that we will use every lawful means to stop these popular gambling schools thus indicated, because we consider them more dangerous to the morals of our people than any other form of gambling; and we furthermore pledge ourselves to invoke the strong arm of the civil law to stop them where moral suasion fails; and still furthermore, we hereby call upon our circuit judges to instruct the grand juries to find bills against these fair but persistent gamblers.

Resolved, sixth. That we call the attention of our people, especially in the towns, to the dangers incident to so-called pool-rooms, where presumably only innocent games of billiards are played, but whose doors stand open till late at night, and are thronged by boys, as well as by men of uncertain character and habits.



H. W. FEATHERSTUN,
N. B. HARMON.

Resolved by the Brookhaven District Conference, That we counsel our pastors to enforce the laws of the Church against all forms of evil, including such as progressive euchre, dancing, etc.

THE LITTLE CHURCH—A MEMORY.

Oh! say, do you remember,
The church of long ago;
The path across the valley,
Where the elder-blossoms blow;
The piccolo of robins,
And "the wind across the wheat,"
And the worshipers of Jesus,
In the Sabbath morning sweet?

Oh! say, do you remember
The bell that called to prayer;
The plainness of the little church;
The people gathered there;
The horses hitched about the fence;
The salutations sweet;
The hymns of God we used to sing,
And, loving, still repeat?

Oh! say, do you remember
The kindly face of love;
The lips that spoke the Word of God,
Anointing from above;
Where Jesus seemed to come and be
A friend to all the lost,
And hallelujahs told of hearts
That knew their Pentecost?

Oh! say, do you remember?
You must remember this—
The wind of God above our dead,
The roses' gentle kiss;
The neighbors sleep together there,
The light of days agone,
The little church-yard will be sweet,
Some resurrection morn.

Some day when life is ended,
And all its sighs are told,
When droop the shadows blended
With the morning rise of gold,
By laurel bloom and shadow
I should like to rest until
The angels call me softly
From the church-yard on the hill.

A CASE IN COURT.

After the mayor had listened to arguments from both sides, he said:

"Well, I'm going to let the boys of the school tell me what they think of the place. Send me," he said to the principal of the school, "half a dozen of your brightest boys. I'll listen to them."

The next day half a dozen of the boys, ranging from ten to fifteen years of age, called on the mayor. Each boy gave some reason why he believed the saloon ought to be taken away, until it came to the last one, a youngster of twelve. He looked the mayor squarely in the eye and gave his reason:

"My school gives me a chance to be mayor of Boston some day; the saloon can't. I think us boys ought to have all the show we can get to be mayor. That's all I know about it."

The mayor threw himself back in his chair and laughed heartily; then, straightening up, he said to the last spokesman:

"My boy, you have said more than did all the politicians and the teachers. You shall have the show to be mayor. That saloon will have to quit business at once."

The boys gave the mayor a hearty cheer, and marched out of his office. They had conquered, and were consequently happy and triumphant.—Congregational Work.

WHAT THE BIRDS EAT.

Insects are the favorite game of birds, but besides this they will eat everything in the plant line, except perhaps wood, and almost everything that lives, be it animal or fish.

They eat seeds, berries and fruits, but in the fruit line, sometimes the bird wants the soft pulp that surrounds the seed, and sometimes he wants the piquant kernel of the fruit, like the peach.

If you watch a bird on the hunt for food, you will see that he does it with the utmost thoroughness. Note with what restless energy he plunges through the trees, not a leaf is left uninvestigated, every chink in the bark is examined for whatever may be hidden there, and a sharp look cast into every joint. Some birds turn and thrash every leaf on the ground in the woods all day long, spying game with a glance of their sharp eyes and snapping it up on the instant.

It is a fact that about all a bird's time is employed in getting something to eat. A bird moves the quickest, breathes the fastest, has the warmest blood of any animal, and for this reason he has to eat the most. If you watch them, you are ready to believe that the fish and fruit-eating birds eat three times their own weight in a day.

In no place or condition are members of the insect tribe free from pursuit. The fat larvæ, leading a tranquil existence, safely hidden in the depths of wood, is a dainty bit for the intelligent woodpecker. The little redstart captures the fat spider, and when little beetles and flies and gnats sail up on a current of wind, they make many a meal for the high-flying swallows.

An Australian bird has a cleverly contrived bill, admirably adapted for digging up the lily bulbs and orchids; another bird in Chili digs up the freshly planted potatoes and eats them with a relish. One South American bird lives on sweet-smelling leaves, and another eats quantities of liverwort, swelling out his crop with the enormous meal that he is obliged to take of it in order to get enough nourishment.

The competition for food is so great that some birds have stopped feeding by day and devoted themselves to the insects that fly at night, for few of the night-eaters eat plants. They have become unlike birds that hunt in the day, in two important ways: the pupil of the eye is larger, so that the bird can see better, and the plumage is monotonous in color, that they may not be readily seen. The feathers are dark and dense, so that their movements are perfectly noiseless, and so ghost-like is their flitting that they are regarded with dread by almost everybody.

The seagulls, petrels and kingfishers are specimens of what a bird can do when he turns fisherman. They not only snatch their food from the waters, swimming and diving, but if a fish jumps out of the water to escape a watery foe, they catch it the instant it leaves the water.

While birds usually devour one kind of food exclusively, yet in times of scarcity, or by some accident, certain birds will acquire a taste for more than one kind of nourishment.

The green woodpecker eats service berries and young grapes, as he hurries up and down the trunk of a tree to find the hidden insect.

Another woodpecker is fond of hazel nuts, and has learned how to crack them, but perhaps he first was in search of the worm in them.

Many of the smaller birds pluck their prey before eating it, others wash their meat, as I once saw a stork do, and while this queer bird would swallow frogs without ceremony, it gave a mouse a good soaking, probably because the hairiness interfered with the swallowing.

Shell fish give birds some trouble, but they have learned to take them up to a high place and drop them on rocks, thus getting the better of them.

Birds that care for the pulp of fruits and berries are an advantage to the plant. The ripe, sweet-tasting fruits are there to be eaten, and the pulp being swallowed, the seeds pass out, rid of the soft covering and are now prepared to sow themselves in places where they could not have gotten without the help of birds, who thus do them a great service in helping to scatter the seeds.

Acorns which the nuthatch has crushed are much surer to grow than those planted by a forester. This same nuthatch that runs up the tree with the speed of a squirrel, stores up hazel nuts, and in time of scarcity flies to his storehouse for food. The shrike, when he has caught more than he can eat, sticks mice and other small game on thorns, and has even been known to take a wire fence for this purpose.

The mistletoe is a sort of tramp among plants, growing on trees, and getting its living by using the sap of the tree that is amiable enough to accommodate it.

It is an evergreen plant, and when the tree from which it gets its living drops its leaves, the mistletoe holds its green foliage up in full view of everyone. High up on the trunk as it is, its leaves and fruit are easily seen by the thrush, which is extremely fond of the berries, and can recognize the mistletoe from a distance by the sign that it throws out.

The white, waxy seeds hang by their sticky gum to the bird's bill, after he has taken a meal, and to remove the nuisance the bird is obliged to rub his bill against the bark of the tree. This enables the seeds to plant themselves in the crevices of the bark, which affords just the soil they need to sprout and grow in.

We think that the birds migrate to escape winter, but it is to escape a scarcity of food: in other words, they follow the food supply.—Lillian C. Flint, in Christian Advocate, (N. Y.).

Not every Christian man is a Chesterfield in manners, but he has in him the instincts of a gentleman.

Nowhere do the Scriptures teach that an individual seeking salvation shall be applied to any element employed in the ordinances of the Gospel. The uniform sense of the word is that the element must be applied to the individual.

* * *

The preacher's prayers and tears and labors are all in vain unless he has the sympathy and co-operation of his people. Those who criticise and blame him, and withhold their help, have no right to ask why his work is a failure.

* * *

We have always believed that men are immeasurably indebted to Christ, but it remained for a Methodist preacher to say in a Presbyterian pulpit that "What Christ did for us, he did because of his indebtedness to us." Strange theology, that!

The shaving of President Roosevelt, a few days ago, was the occasion of a press dispatch, and a little more than a third of a broad-column paragraph in a leading daily paper. The shaving was nothing, but what the barber said to the President, and what the President said to the barber, will never be known. On this detail of the news the editor of the daily said the reporter "fell down." What a pity!

Brother Burrow, of the Midland Methodist, in an effort to cheer the editor of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, tells us that the programme of the progressives is not to superannuate our Articles of Religion, but to superannuate "only the clothes. * * * It is not the Articles of Religion, but their dress that is to be refitted." That is enlightening and comforting, and we thank Brother Burrow for his well-meant effort, but, in our blindness, we are unable to see how a creed that is "out-of-date," "inadequate," and "embarrassing" to theological teachers, can be made any better or more acceptable by being clothed in a new dress. The same old body and spirit are there. We wonder where the trouble is. It cannot be for lack of prevenient grace, or knowledge of plain English. Brother Burrow will comfort us mightily if he will satisfy us as to where the real trouble lies.

AFTER THE REVIVAL.

Mr. Whitefield, as a preacher, was quite as popular as Mr. Wesley, and perhaps equally as successful in making converts, but he was nothing like the equal of Mr. Wesley in gathering up and caring for the fruits of his labor. Mr. Wesley was an organizer and skillful executive. These traits seem not to have been largely developed in Mr. Whitefield. For lack of these, making due allowance for the Calvinism in Mr. Whitefield's theology, his branch of Methodism has never greatly prospered. We hear nothing of it to-day. Wesleyan Methodism is world-wide.

At this season of the year, when our preachers are in the midst of revival work, witnessing, as the result of their labors, the conversion of hundreds of souls, it is well to impress upon them the fact that it is about as important for them to be pastors as evangelists. So far as the future of the Church is concerned, it is more important, for, unless the converts are looked after, gathered into the Church, put into training and service, nothing will be added to the Church, and the converts themselves will go back to the world.

The Church is of God, and will abide forever. We have no fears as to its future success, but it is easy to see that, if those who profess religion in our revivals decline membership, or backslide, the Church of to-day is not benefited; and we risk nothing in saying that revivals which do not add to and build up the Church are of little worth. Are they not positively harmful—especially those conducted by persons who belittle the Church, and underrate the value of the pastor?

The preacher-in-charge who to-day does not properly fold the lambs of the flock, whether little children from the home or Sabbath school, or adult converts from the world, will see the work languish under his eyes. No matter how many converts he may report as the result of his (?) revival, if they are not gathered into the Church, where they may be put under watch-care, his so-called revival is practically worthless. It is not unusual to read of a mere handful of members gathered into the Church from hundreds of professions of faith at a single meeting. Something is wrong in such a case as that.

In the early days of Methodism protracted revival services were not as common as they are now. The preachers had their stated appointments three, four or six weeks apart. They had converts at almost every service, and took them into the Church on probation, and turned them over to faithful class-leaders. They were diligently cared for, and were saved to the Church. To-day, with small pastoral charges, the preacher can look after the new converts in person. He ought by all means get the converts into the Church. We emphasize this part of his business. It is not sufficient to get them to promise to unite with the Church at some future time. Promises are easily forgotten. "Now is the accepted time" in the matter of uniting with the Church, as well as in the business of giving the heart to God. If a convert seriously declines to join the Church, there is good ground to doubt the thoroughness and genuineness of that convert's conversion.

In our day we are blessed beyond the privileges and opportunities of our fathers. We should be more successful than they. We have more frequent opportunities to preach to our people, and can more frequently meet them in prayer meetings. Social meetings can be called at any time. We have Sunday schools well furnished with the best of literature, and literature for all classes of the highest character—literature the like of which our fathers never had a dream. We also have young people's societies for training in grace and religious work. We need nothing more to build up the Church in numbers, and strong, religious characters.

The facilities in hand, together with the vows of a pastor, impose upon him many duties, and no small degree of responsibility. Not the least of his duties is to see that the results of the revival are not lost. No true pastor will apologize to anybody for urging converts to join the Church—not necessarily his branch of the Church, but the Church of God, to which every man properly belongs.

All the evangelical denominations of our land would be far better off than they are if the converts at their altars had been persuaded, in the first moments of their new life, to take the vows of the Church. This is the only way to hold them firm in the faith and steadfast in their loyalty to Christ.

THE PREACHER'S RIGHTS.

The preacher's rights, so far as Episcopal Methodists are concerned, are clearly defined, and in those rights he is fully protected. But do they not sometimes assume to possess rights to which they are not entitled? For example, we hear it said, now and then, that preachers in the itinerant ranks resign their right to choose their fields of labor. In connection with this, it is also said that the people resign their right to choose pastors. When did preachers or people ever have rights of that character to resign? And where is the authority for making the claim? It is not written in the present economy of Episcopal Methodism, and no such right was claimed in the beginning. As far as we know, the early apostles and preachers never claimed the right to go where they pleased for the purpose of preaching. Nor is there any record in the New Testament of any Church selecting and calling a pastor.

The apostles were sent out by our Lord without any reference to the call of the people. After His ascension, the movements of the Church were directed by the Holy Spirit. We read nowhere of rebellion against this order. St. Paul, who came in "as one born out of due time," never claimed that, in entering the ministry, he had rights which he was willing to surrender for the general good. But he does tell us that Christ sent him. In future years, under the guidance of the Spirit, he largely governed the Churches.

Jesus is still head over all things in the Church, and governs through the influence of the Holy Spirit. The presumption is that all who rule in the Church, rule according to the will of God, and under divine guidance, and when a man offers himself to Methodism as a preacher, he does not come with surrendered rights, but to take his place in the ranks, and go where he is sent. A soldier had as well talk of his right to fight in an command, or anywhere, as for a preacher to talk of his right to labor where he pleases.

Dear brother preacher, you never had any rights to surrender, but you come into a great and glorious privilege, when called and sent by the Master.

FOR A HELPING FUND.

Letters received at this office indicate that we have many subscribers who are unable to pay for the paper, and they reluctantly ask us to discontinue. Others who have never read the paper would take it if they had the money to pay the subscription price. It must be quite a trial to one who has been long a reader of the Advocate to be compelled to quit. Will generous-hearted brethren and sisters take this matter under consideration, and send us a few dollars for "the Helping Fund?" Subscriptions on this fund go at St. Those who help may name the beneficiaries, if they so desire. If left to us, we will do the best we can. Let us have several responses.

PERSONAL.

A short note from Rev. R. W. Tucker, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, informs us that "everything is going well" on the work save the country is very dry.

The address of Bishop Morrison is changed from New Orleans to Birmingham, Ala., which city he has elected as a permanent home. Correspondents will please note the change.

Miss Viola Blackburn, one of our faithful missionaries, stationed at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, is at present on leave of absence, and is spending her vacation with her parents at Bunty, Tenn., near Memphis.

We regret to learn of the serious illness of Rev. Jno. D. Ellis, of Lauderdale, Miss. He has been quite sick for two weeks, but his physician is hopeful that he will be able to sit up in a few days. Brother Ellis asks the prayers of his brethren.

Brother L. E. Wight, of Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, who was sent as delegate to the Young People's Convention at Asheville, N. C., has returned from a pleasant and profitable trip. He was announced to address the Union Epworth League last night.

Rev. J. C. Lowe, after a short stay at Monteagle, where Sister Lowe will remain for the summer, is again at home, at Stone, Ala., and at his "loved employ." We thank him for good work in behalf of the Advocate. He has sent us a club of thirteen subscribers.

Dr. Richard Wilkinson has redeemed his promise, to which we recently alluded, and as a result of his effort, we have a list of twenty-one new subscribers at Monroe. These are in addition to several sent in previously. Brother Wilkinson says he is greatly encouraged at the outcome of his days' work.

Rev. Geo. D. Parker, our missionary in Brazil, has recently made a trip through Rio Grand do Sul, which forms the southern border of Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, in the interest of our Church. In addition to the letter received with this note, Brother Parker promises notes of the trip later on.

At the last session of the Missouri Conference the Rev. A. T. Osborne was located without his consent. He brought suit against Bishop Hendrix for damages. What the Bishop had to do with the case has never been made public, save that he was President of the Conference. The case was called a few days ago, and was "thrown out of court."

Mr. J. W. Wynn, of Crowley, La., son of Rev. J. F. Wynn, was married in the Sunday school room of Rayne Memorial Church to Miss Sallie Hollingsworth, of New Orleans. The wedding occurred at 8 p.m., July 5, the Rev. R. H. Wynn, brother of the groom, officiating. The groom and bride are both prominent and active workers in the Church.

The death of Dr. Anson West, at his home, Athens, Ala., last week, removes from the Church a great and good man—a stanch and trusted Methodist—a man who both knew and loved our doctrines. He was well-known and respected throughout the connection, having been a member of every General Conference for many years, except the last, being then too feeble to take an active part in the work. He was in his day a safe counsellor, and a faithful laborer.

TRUSTEES MEET.

The Board of Trustees of the Home for Superannuated Preachers, Durant District, North Mississippi Conference, met in Durant District on June 29, and organized by electing Parham Williams President, Secretary and Treasurer. The district was divided into three parts, and each trustee was requested to canvass his territory, and also to find out what place would make the best offer for the purpose of securing the Home. The Trustees are Parham Williams, of Lexington; Gaston Therrell, of Ackerman, and F. A. Howell, of Bowling Green, Miss.

F. A. Howell.

DEATH OF REV. T. L. FOSTER.

Rev. T. L. Foster, a superannuated member of the North Mississippi Conference, passed to his reward July 3, 1906, of congestion of the brain. He joined the Conference in 1857. For several years he has been on the retired list, but he did a good deal of preaching, though in age and feebleness extreme. He was buried at Double Springs, four miles southeast of Maben, to await the resurrection morn. A good man has gone; a strong, able preacher, an affectionate father. May God bless his aged companion and his several children!

DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTICE.

Arrangements have been made with the V. S. & P., L. & N. and the Arkansas Southern Roads by which delegates and visitors to the District Conference at Winnfield, La., July 27, will be returned at one-third the regular fare, provided they get a certificate from the agent when buying a ticket. All visitors will please notify me of their coming, not later than the 21st. Bishop Ward is expected, and we anticipate a good, spiritual conference. To this end, let everyone come praying.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

No more successful session of the Columbus District Conference has ever been held than that which convened last week in the beautiful village of Shuqualak. The attendance was perhaps the largest in the history of the District, a noticeable feature being the number of laymen who were present. The spirit could hardly have been finer; no discord; no expressions of despondency or defeat—only a resolute determination to advance the great work of the Church within our bounds to the highest point of efficiency. The presidency of Brother Lipscomb gave rise to much favorable comment, and he greatly endeared himself to all present, while the quality of the hospitality left nothing to be desired.

Rev. Jas. Porter was kept away by the death of his father, and the Conference passed suitable resolutions of sympathy and condolence. W. V. Connell, S. B. White, J. C. Golding and R. A. Carson were elected delegates to the Annual Conference. The Conference refused to pass the character of G. L. Sutton, a local elder, and the presiding elder was instructed to demand his credentials. A committee was appointed to receive funds for the purchase of a Home for Superannuated Preachers, F. A. Critz, S. M. Rainey and T. J. Hopkins composing the same. Second Church, Columbus, was selected as the seat of the next Conference. These items sum up the principal business of the Conference.

Dr. W. B. Murrah delivered a very strong address on "Christian Education." Rev. Q. A. Oats presented the claims of the Orphanage, and Rev. J. W. Raper represented the Superannuate Endowment interest. These visiting brethren were very cordially welcomed, and accorded very respectful and interested hearings. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. L. D. Worsham, Brothers Dorman, Babb, Duren, Broyles, Lipscomb and Pope doing the remainder of the preaching. The Conference was greatly privileged to have Rev. J. D. Newsom, an honored veteran of over a half-century's service, present throughout, and frequently taking part in the discussions. On the whole, the occasion was a delightful one in every way, and the general verdict was that no better District Conference had ever been held in these parts.

NOTE FROM BROTHER NUNES.

To the Editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: Dear Sir and Brother—Allow me the small space on the eve of my departure to thank my brethren for the kind hospitality accorded me in your great city. While Methodism is not first in number, yet I think, from observation, that, with unity and the power of the Holy Ghost, by continual prayer to God for the unction from on high, I can fairly predict a complete victory for that great and brotherly religion, "Methodist."

By way of suggestion, I think that if all preachers were to make an earnest appeal to their members of the various congregations to subscribe to their paper, the ADVOCATE, and thus keep them in touch with the great work that their church is doing, and express their views in it, then would preacher and laity come in closer and more complete understanding of each other's ideas, and, with such unity (which is strength), conquer this old city for our Lord. Why seek the views of the world in the daily papers, and not seek the news of your brethren and the Gospel of Christ through your religious paper, at such a trifling cost? Come, preachers; let's work. Bishop Hoss found it a pleasure to secure subscriptions for the Nashville paper. Why not work for the good old NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE?

During my visit I have greatly enjoyed myself in working for our Lord. I thank all for the kindness shown me, especially Brothers Tinnin, Warlick, Holmes and Chalmers. With best wishes and trusting to meet you all again, I am yours in Christ. TILLOU NUNES.

PELICAN CHARGE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We are moving along very well in this charge. We have just completed our church at Pelican by adding new lights, rostrum, alter, pulpit chairs, magnificent oak pews and painting and hardoiling the inside at the cost of about $400. This gives a neat, comfortable church.

We have one of the best Woman's Home Mission Societies in the District, which has largely resulted in the completion of our parsonage and church improvements.

We have just closed a very successful revival at Pelican. Many souls found Christ. The church was greatly revived and thirty-five new members added to the roll. Rev. I. B. Harris, of Wilmore, Ky., did the preaching. We have our plans made for our summer campaign. We have some of the best men in Shreveport District engaged to help. But man is helpless, though he be ever so wise, without God. We are praying and expecting, by the help of God, to have a good meeting at every point in this charge. We ask an interest in your prayers. May God bless the ADVOCATE and its readers.

Yours in the work.

GEO. W. PURCELL, P. C.

A CHURCH SHOWER.

The ladies of our church at Moss Point, led by a daughter of one of our ministers, have been actively engaged in improving the condition of the parsonage, and not without success. While the brethren were placing an iron fence around our church property, and otherwise improving the external condition of the pastor's home, these elect women were working to make it comfortable and cosy within. Among other things provided was a complete dining room set, including table, chairs, sideboard, refrigerator, shades, curtains, etc., all nice and modern in style. Then they improvised a "church shower." A reception was given at the parsonage, at which light refreshments were served, without trouble or expense to the pastor's family. It was understood that each lady coming would bring something useful for the dining room or kitchen as her contribution to the "shower." It was a pleasant social event, contributing to the social life of the church and resulting in much improvement in the dining-room and kitchen furniture. Table linen, china, glassware and other articles too numerous to mention fell in the "shower," and nestled in their proper places under the touch of the deft fingers of the ladies who had the management of the affair, and the dining room of the parsonage was transformed.

Now let's have another "shower"—a "shower" of grace from above. Let us all, pastor and people, labor and pray together until God shall open the windows of heaven and pour upon us such a blessing that there will not be room enough to receive it. Why not? How such a "shower" of grace would gladden the heart of this pastor! And the heart of our God is yearning to bestow it. In his infinite wisdom and love and power, He would come quickly with the fullness of his blessing, to fill every heart and home with light and glory, if we could only place ourselves in a right attitude to receive it. What say the officers of this church, the members, male and female, one and all?

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MISSIONS TO THE CROWLEY DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

To the Presiding Elder and Members of the Crowley District Conference:

Brethren:

Your Committee on Missions beg leave to submit the following report:

From the reports made by the pastors, it seems to be very evident that we are not doing any great amount for the cause of missions, either home or foreign. One charge reports foreign mission collections raised and receipts received for the same. Another charge reports subscriptions in hand to cover both assessments. Brother Thrower reports his purpose to raise at least $400 for missions. May he be successful in this attempt, and may this example of his charge give to other charges a race which they will endeavor to keep.

Five W. H. M. S. Auxiliaries and five W. F. M. S. Auxiliaries were reported by the pastors, although Mrs Kennedy reported nine W. H. M. S. Auxillaries. The W. H. M. S. at Morgan City and at Lake Charles deserve special commendation. The membership of the former has increased from ten to forty-eight members during this year, while the latter is in a flourishing condition, with a most promising future. The Committee wishes to express itself as heartily in accord with the words of the Presiding Elder and the pastor at Lake Charles upon the subject of women's societies. May the preachers determine to use these forces and use them intelligently. To this end it is recommended that every preacher thoroughly acquaint himself with the great work of these good women.

On the question of Home Missions, it is found that there is ground to be occupied, and we feel that the harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. There are those about us, sitting in darkness, perishing for want of light. The presence of a vast number of French Catholics within the bounds of our District is a call to us as eloquent as any that comes from the land of the Southern cross. The condition of lethargy found in our charges and the prevalence of the Continental Sabbath, we believe, is chiefly due to the influence of Roman Catholicism in our midst. Aside from the presence of native Roman Catholics, we have in our midst a great number of foreigners about whom we need to be concerned. In the eastern portion of the Districts, Italians are becoming the laborers on the sugar plantations, and they are a familiar sight all over the District as vendors of peanuts, popcorn and fruits. The Syrian is also present with us, and he comes from a totally un-Christian influence in his native land. The Mexicans are beginning to come into the bounds of the District, and are being employed upon the railroads. This element is not large enough at present to cause any great concern, but it will most likely increase as time advances. Near Gueydan there is a colony of about forty Japanese, located on rice lands of the Lichenstein and Hechinger Canal Company. This colony is directly from Japan, and are followers of Buddha, knowing nothing of American customs or of Christianity. The Japanese at the head of the colony was taught the English language by one of our Southern Methodist missionaries in Japan, and it is reported that he is a convert, but it has been impossible to interest him. It is also desired to call attention to the great number of Jews within the bounds of our District, and to their religious condition. Brother Thrower quotes the rabbi in Lake Charles as saying that it is a commercial impossibility for his people to keep Saturday as a Sabbath, and they do not keep Sunday, therefore have no Sabbath. This is the state of this chosen people of God in respect to nearly all their religious life. Rev. Julius Magath states that the dew throws his religion overboard when he comes off the steamer in New York harbor. Is there not something we can do for this people in our midst? It is a delicate task, but one that God will bless. May we not mingle with the Jews socially, inviting them into our homes, and then into our churches? The Committee would like to call attention to our duty to the negroes within our District, but there are other things, and our time is limited. However, there is valuable assistance that we, being educated and equipped, may render to the negro preachers, who are the only ones "Breaking the Bread of Life" to this people, and who are so ignorant in many cases, knowing nothing of either morals or of religion.

Aside from this, there is reported missionary territory to be occupied within the District. Gueydan reports Kaplan, between Abbeville and Gueydan; Riceville, four miles north of Gueydan, and Egan, between Iota and Midland. All of these places are on the railroad. To the southwest of Gueydan, in Cameron parish and near the shores of Lake Arthur, is a region settled by progressive rice farmers, living on a large canal. This region goes under the name of "Klondyke," and is like the great gold region in lack of religious influences. Within the bounds of the Lake Arthur work is also to be found territory to be occupied. The communities being Thornwell, Holmwood and Illinois plantations. It is believed by Bro. Howell that a division of the Lake Arthur work, with an appropriation on each division, would make it possible to cover these places. The Committee wishes to call attention to the country lying between Morgan City and New Orleans. Bro. Vaughan reports Gibson, Donner and other places beyond Morgan City as being settled by people who are willing to receive the Gospel and to do something for its support. It is also desired to call attention to a statement made to one of the Committee by a converted Catholic, who is now a member of our church, and who was reared in Terrebonne parish. This statement is that there is a region in that part of the State about sixty miles in length and thirty miles in breadth in which there is only one Catholic priest to minister to the people, and this ministration is not done in a manner very much in accord with the teachings of Christ. It was further stated that this region is inhabited by people who own their own small farms and who are being taught in the public schools and are now becoming tired of Catholicism. The Committee wishes to call attention to the statement of Bro. Hebert, that he could use two or three men if he had them, and if the money to support them could be raised.

As to foreign missions, the Committee hardly knows what to say. Few subscriptions to our missionary paper, Go Forward, were reported. It is recommended that something be done toward putting this paper in the homes of the people. The Committee feels that an interest in foreign missions should be aroused. This lies in the hands of the preachers. A missionary campaigner appointed for the District might be of some help.

In view of these things the Committee recommends, first, that every pastor set about a more vigorous missionary propaganda in his charge; second, that the first Sunday in October be set aside to be observed on this District as a day of prayer to God for our foreign missionaries, for an increased interest on our District in their work, and for the help of the Almighty in the solution of the problem of the Catholics in our midst; third, that this District Conference calls upon the Annual Conference to take some steps toward the establishment and support of other missions to the French Catholics within this District.

Respectfully submitted,

L. E. FOSTER, Chm.

VIENNA CHARGE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I guess you think we are not trying to secure any more subscribers to the ADVOCATE. Well, most all our people are farmers, and with that class of people this is the dull season financially. We will renew the canvass for the ADVOCATE later. The partial rains have caused our crop to be spotted. The prospects for cotton is fair; but corn in some instances is suffering intensely. Two of our churches, one at Simsboro and the other at Pine Grove, need to be ceiled very badly.

A bran-new church will be built at Antioch, which, when complete, will cost about $600, to take the place of the one burned a few years since. As unceiled churches are so hard to preach in, we have resolved to complete this church before we let up on it. We find it to be no easy task to ceil a church after the work has been left undone for a few years.

We were never associated with a people who are using more diligence and faithfulness than these dear people. And surely their efforts will be crowned with success. But they will need help to finish this great work.

Our membership at Antioch is small (only about fifty), and they are people of small means. We have about three hundred members in our five churches. Less than one-third of this number are in the Sunday school.

We will begin our first series of revival meetings at Simsboro Sunday, July 15, 1906. Brother J. G. Sloane will come to our help on Monday, July 16, and remain until the close. Pray for us.

Very truly, G. W. HIVELEY.

HEBRON CIRCUIT.

Bro. Boswell: Though we are not doing much in the Hebron charge, we are about "holding our own" and are at peace among ourselves and hoping to have some prosperity in the charge before the end of the Conference year. We had a delightful children's day service at the Hebron church on the third Sunday in May and collected double the amount that was paid last year. We are progressing slowly with our Conference collections; will do better, I think, than last year.

I find the Center Point Church, which was not in this charge last year, is attended by a class of nice people, composed of Methodists, Presbyterians and Baptists and a few who are not members of any church.

Wife and I came up to Monteagle on the 5th. I will not be here long; came only to assist her in arranging for her stay during the summer. She can live here about as cheaply as at home and have the benefit of this delightfully cool and healthful climate in addition.

It would be folly for me to stay here, even if I could, for the sake of health or climatic benefit, as malaria seems never to affect me at all. My physical troubles are generally traced to some other source.

The recent fire at Monteagle was not so damaging as some of the secular papers published. The reading room and the school room adjoining it were not damaged at all. All of the public buildings will be rebuilt by the 1st of July. One of them is already finished. Some of the private cottages will be rebuilt at once and all of them during the summer and fall.

Any person desiring to come here this summer can be accommodated as usual, and will find everything to please and to be enjoyed that Monteagle generally supplies, and some things better than at any time before. Quite a number of new cottages are being built and others would be, and other improvements made at once if workmen and lumber could be obtained.

Permit me here to add another item by way of variety. For the sake of the property of the church in our Conference, I do not know when I have regretted anything more than the breaking up of the Hollow Springs District. Those people labored long with their preachers to secure a district parsonage. Where is it now? Twelve or fourteen charges in any district well attended to by a competent man will prosper more than a greater number of charges attended by the same man. I hope the district will be restored this fall.

Yours, etc.,

J. C. LOWE.

Over 20 Years of Success

As Specialists in the treatment of Chronic Diseases of Men and Women, is our record. We have been successful because we conduct our practice in an honest, straightforward manner. We claim nothing we cannot do. We carry out every promise we make. Each and every patient receives honest, conscientious service, and the best treatment medical science affords for these diseases.

We treat only Chronic Diseases. We invite every afflicted person to consult us, free. We will give them our expert opinion of their case and tell them what we can do for them. We have devoted over 20 years to the study and treatment of these diseases, established a reputation and practice which we believe is second to none in this country, and we unhesitatingly say that if your case is curable at all, we can cure it.

Our recent publication on Nervous Diseases, and "Health" free on application, also examination blank "A" for men and "B" for women. Personal examination always advised. WE DO NOT DEAL IN PATENT MEDICINES but prepare in our own private laboratory all medicines to suit each individual case, after careful, expert diagnosis. DR. LESSON FOR JULY 22.

Jesus Teaching How to Pray.

Luke xi, 1-13.

Jesus was praying in a certain place, and His disciples must have been watching and waiting until His prayer was ended. Then they were so much impressed with the Lord's earnestness and the frequency with which He had retired for prayer that thoughts of this kind were in their hearts: "Lord we have just seen you engaged in prayer, and often we have known of your going away to some lonely place and continuing in prayer all night. If prayer is so needful to you, our Lord and Master, it is most certainly needful to us. Teach us to pray. John taught his disciples to pray, and we well remember that he said of you, 'He that cometh from above is above all.'"

Those that desired to learn to pray were with Jesus every day, and were under His care and guidance, but the time was coming when Jesus would "Return from whence He came," then would prayer be their only comfort in their lonliness.

We mingle with the world, and become impressed with its hardness and selfishness toward the needy and the poor. We, ourselves, often feel the uselessness of appealing for help to even those from whom we would expect to receive it. Dark days of trouble and misfortune and hereavement come upon us with overwhelming force. Then we are glad and comforted that Jesus taught us to call upon the God of heaven as our Father. He tells us where our Father is, and we are satisfied. Where our Father is there is our home. We learn of the love of our Father when we take our own little ones in our arms, and all the love and tenderness we are capable of goes out to our child. We learn that the love of the Father is even greater. The very name of our Father must be hallowed, kept sacred above every name. It is the cause of great sorrow and shame that here in Christian America, where every child is privileged to learn and use the prayer taught by Jesus, that the Lord's name is profaned to a far greater extent than in other countries, where liberal religion, thought and speech are more restrained.

We are taught to pray for the coming of the Kingdom of God, and that God's will may be done on earth even as it is done in heaven. It is the plan and purpose of the Almighty that this time shall come, else Jesus would not have taught us to pray for it. What a change must there be, for now a warfare is waged against the kingdom of evil, and soldiers of Christ must be equipped with "the whole armor of God."

The next petition is for the needs of man on earth. "Give us this day our daily bread," according to Matthew. Luke says "Give us day by day our daily bread," teaching us that we must pray every day. Also teaching that all, even our daily food, is provided by the Father, and that to sustain us spiritually, we must be provided with the living bread that comes down from heaven. How sweet to know that the Father knows our needs before we ask Him, yet He loves us so that He wants us to ask Him for love's sake.

"Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." When we come to this petition we must stop and reflect deeply, because the answer is conditional, depending entirely on our having complied with the condition. We know that we are sinners, deeply in need of pardon, and we are taught that no pardon can be given as long as we entertain the least ill-feeling toward any that may have offended us. There is no uncertain sound in the words of Jesus relative to this duty. They are recorded in Matthew vi, 15: "But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Almost the same words are found in Mark xi, 26. It is necessary to be in this condition of spirit to acceptably worship God in the sanctuary. Indeed, our discipline teaches the same state of the soul as we approach the sacrament of the Lord's supper. However, let not our hearts be troubled lest we are not able to fulfill this condition, for if we only live and walk close to Jesus all difficulties will be removed.
